U.S. BREAKS OFF PEACE PARLEY TALKS

Train Hits Car Killing Three Airmen

Two Others Injured As Vehicle Fully Demolished

BARRIE (CP)—Three airmen from Camp Borden were killed and two others injured when the automobile in which they were riding was demolished by a freight train Friday night at a level-crossing at nearby Angus.

Dead were AC2 John H. Petre, 29, of South Porcupine, driver of the car; LAC. Fred Herman Olsen, 27, of Saint John, N. B.; and LAC. F. L. Gallant, 29, a Prince Edward Islander.

Injured were LAC. Robert Graham, 18, from western Canada, and AC2 A. H. Donley, Ottawa. The latter has head injuries.

Investigators said they believe the men, in a hurry to get to Barrie, passed another car that had stopped at the crossing and tried to beat the train.

FIRST INDICATION

Members of the train crew said their first indication that the car was on the crossing was the shattering crash and the sight of pieces of wreckage glancing off the sides of the locomotive.

The train, a way freight from Meaford to Barrie, shoved the car ahead of it for 200 yards.

The injured were taken to Sunnybrook Military Hospital in Toronto where officials said today their conditions were "satisfactory." Full extent of their injuries had not been determined.

Italy Makes Polite Gesture

ROME (AP)—Italy turned down election to an important international committee today so that Yugoslavia, its adversary in the heated dispute over Trieste, could have the post.

The gesture was greeted with applause from representatives of 22 other countries involved in the election to the commodity problems committee of the UN Food and Agriculture Organization.

Twenty countries, including Italy, were elected to the committee from among 24 candidates. The Italian delegate immediately asked that his country's seat be given to Yugoslavia, defeated in the voting. The committee and Yugoslavia accepted.

The 20 countries finally seated: Argentina, Belgium, Brazil, Burma, Canada, Ceylon, Cuba, Denmark, Egypt, France, Germany, India, Japan, Netherlands, New Zealand, Pakistan, Spain, the United Kingdom, the United States and Yugoslavia.

Czech Union Heads Sent Home By Reds

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—A Viennese news agency said today thousands of Czech Red trade union functionaries have been sent home from coal mines in central Czechoslovakia for siding with local miners who have been staying away from their jobs.

The news agency, Interreport Ost, said it had received the report from Communist officials here who recently returned from Czechoslovakia's Ostrava coal region.

PRICKLY PROBLEM for David Ainsworth, 1½, of 560 Charlotte St., was the choice of tinted teasel Christmas decorations at the Market Hall today. They looked pretty but hurt his fingers. Products of Mrs. Dan O'Brien, of Otonabee township, they have been selling well for the past eight years, she said. —(Examiner Staff Photo).

Greenish Light Just Meteor Officials Report

TORONTO (CP) — A greenish-blue light seen by dozens of persons over Ontario and New York state Friday night was a meteor, officials of the Dunlop Observatory said today.

The light, described by most as green or greenish-blue, was seen in Toronto, Oshawa, Port Hope, Perth and Smiths Falls in Ontario and in Buffalo, Rochester and Watertown in New York state.

SPOTTED BY RADAR

OTTAWA (CP)—ARCAF radar Friday night was watching for a "thing" after a "greenish-blue" light was spotted over Lake Ontario by a Trans-Canada Air Lines flight.

The pilot and co-pilot of TCA Flight 402, bound from New York to Toronto, reported about 9 p. m. that the light illuminated the overcast as it descended slowly.

An RCAF officer said the sighting "doesn't sound like anything that would normally be in the air."

Nothing was picked up on the radar screen here but it was believed any object over Lake Ontario would have been out of its range.

Dulles Asks Russia Follow Peace Path

PARIS (Reuters)—State Secretary Dulles of the United States today appealed to Russia to follow the path of peace set by President Eisenhower's "epoch-making" address on atomic control to the United Nations last Tuesday.

Dulles issued the appeal shortly after arriving here for Monday's meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council.

Dulles told reporters the president's speech to the UN assembly had opened up a "great new era of hope" on a subject which had hitherto been regarded with dread and fear. He said the NATO meeting is one of the important events helping to build up a strong instrument of peace.

Belleville Man Chased Across River, Rooftops

BELLEVILLE (CP)—After a two-hour chase which included swimming the Moira river and a dash across downtown rooftops, provincial police Friday arrested Joseph Leon Bouchard, 25. They said he is wanted by Montreal police on a "serious" charge. Police said that during the four months he has been sought by Montreal authorities, Bouchard has been living here under an assumed name.

The OPP were notified by the Quebec provincial police that Bouchard was wanted. He was traced through Selective Service to a house here where he had been living with his wife and child.

When police came in the front door, Bouchard fled out the back door and leaped into the river. He swam to the other side, then dashed into a basement of a building being renovated. Cpl. Flip Morden and Constable Jim McBride gave chase.

GOES TO ROOF

The man crossed the main street, went to the roof of a three-storey building and was chased for 100 yards. He entered a finance company office and, police said, picked up a purse belonging to Mary Cory. Employees Jim Seekings and Darrell McLaughlin joined the chase.

The purse was dropped and recovered. City Constables Tom Schreider and Elmer Minaker then joined the chase.

The man dashed out onto Front St., Belleville's main thoroughfare, and took to the rooftops again. After another 100 yards he was forced to the ground from a frozen food locker plant and captured by Constable McBride.

The wanted man is now being held for transfer to Hastings county jail to await further instructions from Montreal.

To Begin Construction

TORONTO (CP) — Construction of the largest home for aged persons in North America is expected to get under way near here in August, it was announced today.

The metropolitan housing and welfare committee has instructed the architects to prepare detailed plans of a $2,500,000 structure to be erected at Newmarket, about 20 miles north of here. The building will accommodate 515 patients.

Mail Pilot Prevents Crash

PARIS (Reuters) — A French mail pilot saved an American Flying Boxcar from crashing in thick fog here today after the transport had circled Le Bourget airport for nearly an hour with its fuel supply almost exhausted. Vanier, director of the French air mail centre, took off in a DC-3 when the Boxcar, carrying six servicemen, lost radio contact with the airport's control tower after her landing instruments were out of order.

Flying close to the Boxcar, Vannier signalled to the pilot: "Keep calm and follow me." As ambulances and fire-engines stood by, Vannier, using the DC-3's fog-landing equipment, made a dummy landing to indicate the runway.

As soon as the Boxcar settled safely on the runway, the French plane regained height and flew off to Lyon—to deliver the morning mail 45 minutes late.

Destroyer Athabaskan Home From Korea

VICTORIA (CP) — The sleek, proud Royal Canadian Navy destroyer Athabaskan, veteran of three tours in Korean waters, slid into her berth at Esquimalt Friday.

She is the first Canadian ship to complete three Korean tours.

There was a cloudburst as the Athabaskan, loaded with Christmas packages, nosed into port.

It was the first rain the 200 crew members had seen since leaving Japan, Nov. 17. One officer commented:

"I'd rather be back in Korea. The weather's better."

Wives, children and friends swarmed aboard to greet the sailors who had been away from home 14 months.

Reds To Give Atom Plan Serious Study

Molotov Has Given U.S. Ambassador Russian Assurances

LONDON (Reuters)— Moscow radio said today Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov informed American ambassador Charles E. Bohlen last Monday that Russia would "give serious attention" to President Eisenhower's atomic proposals.

Bohlen called at the Kremlin the day before Eisenhower proposed an international atomic agency in an address before the United Nations General Assembly.

The broadcast, quoting a statement from the official Soviet agency Tass, said:

CALLED ON MOLOTOV

"On Dec. 7, the ambassador of the U.S., Charles Bohlen, called on U.S.S.R. Foreign Minister V.M. Molotov, and told him of the speech on atomic weapons which President Eisenhower was going to make to the United Nations General Assembly on Dec. 8.

"Under instructions from his government, the ambassador asked for attention for the proposals which would be made by the United States president.

"V.M. Molotov, thanking the ambassador for the information, said that the question of atomic weapons was a very serious question and that the Soviet government would give serious attention to the U.S. president's speech as it had previously done in similar cases."

MOST ENCOURAGING

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House today described "as most encouraging" a Moscow radio report saying Russia would give "serious attention" to President Eisenhower's speech proposing an international atomic energy pool for peaceful purposes.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty said the report was shown to the president.

"This is a most encouraging report," Hagerty told reporters.

Extend Time For Vet Credits

OTTAWA (CP)—The government Friday introduced legislation extending the time in which Second World War veterans may apply for re-establishment credits.

The bill, an amendment to the War Service Grants Act, also sets Dec. 31, 1954, as the expiry date for application for war service gratuities by veterans of the last war.

Under existing legislation, veterans must apply for re-establishment credits 10 years after Jan. 1, 1945, or 10 years after discharge, whichever is the greater period. It now is proposed to extend the time to Jan. 1, 1960, or 15 years after discharge.

STILL NOT APPLIED

Veterans Minister Lapointe said that June 30, 1953, 187,000 veterans still had not applied for their re-establishment credits. These unused credits amount to $37,529,000 with about 10 per cent owing to veterans outside Canada.

Mr. Lapointe said most veterans received their war service gratuities automatically on discharge. However, men discharged before 1944 were required to apply for gratuities.

As of June 30 of this year, some 8,500 veterans had not collected gratuities amounting to approximately $500,000. They now would have until Dec. 3, 1954, to apply.

Oil Arrival Delayed

SARNIA (CP)—A leak in the new 1,734-mile pipeline from Edmonton to Sarnia will delay arrival of the first oil by two weeks, E. C. Irwin, local terminal superintendent, said today. Originally scheduled to reach here Dec. 15, the oil will not arrive until about Dec. 28, he said.

Police Find More Clothing May Be Clue

TORONTO (CP)—A Scarborough township police officer found a woman's blood-stained underclothing and a torn silk stocking today in a culvert near the lover's lane where 17-year-old Marion McDowell was abducted from her boy friend's car Sunday night.

The clothing was taken to the girl's parents for possible identification and later to provincial police for analysis. Police said they have no proof the clothing belonged to the missing girl.

A girl's shoe and an undergarment were found Friday in an abandoned barn 1½ miles from the lane.

400 SEEK CLUES

Meanwhile about 400 searchers, including 70 soldiers with walkie-talkies, searched a 90-square-mile area of Scarborough township today for other clues.

No definite lead to the whereabouts of the blonde typist has been found in the five days of searching.

Her escort, 19-year-old James Wilson, said a hooded gunman struck him twice on the head with what is believed to have been a pistol butt. He said that during brief intervals of consciousness he saw his assailant place the apparently unconsciousg irl in the trunk of a strange car and drive away.

MAY BE ALIVE

However, Police Chief Wilfred McLellan of Scarborough said Friday he believes the girl may be alive.

As the police check of the immediate area reached the stage where most of the ground had been covered, Chief McLellan said the search has been so thorough that he is convinced the girl, dead or alive, is not in the township. He said he believes that, since no body has been found, there is a good chance the girl still is alive.

"Although the boy (James Wilson) did not hit himself, I'm satisfied there is more than one way to skin a cat.

"I'm convinced the girl is somewhere else in the province and that she is well. Further, I believe she went away of her own free will."

The girl's father, Ross McDowell, who has searched tirelessly all week, said he cannot believe she would go away without informing her parents.

"If she's gone away, it's because someone else took her," he Told Employees Not To Vote

SUDBURY (CP)—T. G. Beaument, manager of an Orillia foundry firm, today confirmed that he had advised his employees not to vote for Orillia Mayor Wilber Crump, seeking re-election on Monday.

Mr. Beaument, manager of Fahr-Alloy Canada Limited, said his criticism of the mayor had resulted from the mayor's action as a power commissioner.

Mr. Crump said Friday he understood Mr. Beaument had "intimidated his men not to vote for me."

Dean Walks Out After Reds Charge Plot With Rhee

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Negotiations to set up a Korean peace conference were broken off today by Arthur H. Dean, United States envoy, after a meeting that lasted five hours and 45 minutes, longest since the preliminary peace talks began Oct. 26. The Allied and Communist diplomats had made no progress toward arranging a peace conference since the preliminary talks began. And today Dean, who is spokesman for the 17 United Nations countries which fought in Korea, walked out after the Reds accused the U.S. of plotting with the South Korean government to release 27,000 Korean war prisoners last June.

"I treated these charges as reason to break off the talks and left the meeting," Dean told correspondents. "I said they accused my government of perfidy and unless it was withdrawn I would interpret it as a motion on their side to recess indefinitely.

Dean added that no further meetings will be held unless the Communists withdraw their accusation and ask for further sessions.

He would give the Communists a "reasonable time to decide what they want to do."

SAID REMARKS RUDE

The charges against the U.S. were made by Chinese delegate Huang Hau. Dean said Huang's remarks became "ruder and ruder" and it became "evident they wanted to become so rude and arrogant as to force discontinuance of the talks."

Earlier in the session Dean accused the Communists of holding American and South Korean war prisoners as slave laborers in China and Manchuria, and said proof of this had been obtained from PoWs who escaped from "your dictatorial control."

Dean told the Communists they lied in saying all prisoners captured in the Korean war were repatriated except for a handful who chose to remain with the Reds.

"The representatives of your side have several times announced that all prisoners of our side who desired repatriation have been returned," Dean said. "You even put this in writing.

STATEMENT FALSE

"It so happens that your statement is completely false. You are still illegally withholding American military personnel in China or Manchuria.

"You have kept thousands of Koreans captured from the Republic of Korea army."

Dean also told the Reds that he and President Syngman Rhee of South Korea see "eye to eye" on the "problem of unification of Korea and the political (peace) conference."

U.K. Rail Strike To Begin December 20

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's biggest railroad union decided tonight to call a strike of its 400,000 members from midnight Dec. 20 —start of the Christmas travel rush.

The move followed a breakdown in negotiations between union leaders and British transport commission chiefs. The three railroad unions have demanded a 15-per-cent wage increase which would cost more than £30,000,000.

One of the unions, the Transport Salaried Staffs Association, has said it is prepared to accept and negotiate on proposals put up by the transport commission.

Another, the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, suggests strike action be postponed and the commission's proposals be the basis for negotiations.

But the National Union of Railwaymen, representing the vast majority of railroad workers of all grades, declared the proposals unacceptable.

Man Killed On Golf Course

VANCOUVER (CP)—The corpse on the 13th fairway was still unidentified today as detectives probed the bludgeoning of a 35-to-45-year-old man found slain on fashionable Langara golf course.

The body, its head battered and pillowed on a folded coat, was that of a "ball-shagger," a familiar figure who made a meagre living recovering lost golf balls and selling them.

Police said Friday night they knew who he was but later reported they had been unable to learn his name.

First reports said the corpse had a bullet hole in one temple, but an autopsy showed he had not been shot and had succumbed to a pounding "with a club or block of wood."

Only Six Messages Request Clemency

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the execution dates of Carl Austin Hall and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady less than a week away, just six communications asking clemency for them have been received by the federal justice department.

Department officials supplied the information today, in response to an inquiry, and observed that such a small volume of messages from the public is unusual in a case which has had national publicity. Frequently, they said, hundreds of communications, pro and con, are received in connection with a pending execution, and sometimes there are thousands.

These sources emphasized that no clemency action is under consideration, in the absence of a formal application for clemency by the couple doomed to die in the Missouri gas chamber Dec. 18 for the kidnap-slaying of Bobby Greenlease.

Charge Mother With Murder

MISSION, B.C. (CP) — Police said today they will charge a 25-year-old mother of three children with murder in the fatal shooting of a man she said had been "bothering me."

The woman was not identified. Her husband is employed at Kemano, B.C.

Police said the woman fired a .22-calibre rifle at Ollie Johnston of Vancouver through the door of her home in this city, 35 miles east of Vancouver.

The bullet hit Johnston in the stomach and he staggered back to a taxi which had taken him to the house. He died in hospital 15 minutes later.

Chief constable Sam Service said the woman told him the man had bothered her repeatedly.

Girl Disguised 10 Months Aboard Canadian Vessel

OSTENDE, Belgium (Reuters) — Blonde Liliane Soudemonte, who shipped out for Canada disguised as a man only to run into Canadian immigration authorities, says it wasn't the first time she had spent time at sea masquerading in men's clothes.

The 23-year-old Belgian girl said the first time was when her family lived for three years after the Second World War in Vancouver.

"I spent 10 months then aboard small Canadian coastal vessels disguised as a man," she said Friday in an interview.

"I prefer being dressed as a man because you get on much better with the sailors that way."

Liliane, back home but not discouraged, was still garbed in seamen's leather jacket and trousers but despite her close-cropped hair and strong body, there is no mistaking her sex.

"I still want to go to sea," she said firmly. "But for the time being, I suppose I shall have to try to settle down to life like any other girl."

Liliane told how she shipped out to Canada "for the spirit of adventure" only to have her secret discovered in Montreal.

She used her passport and Canadian immigration authorities noticed the difference between the picture and Liliane. They found her out when she admitted her masquerade rather then strip for a physical examination.

Liliane said she is thinking over an offer from Canadian Senator R. B. Horner offering to pay her passage to Canada. The senator said it would be an opportunity "for Canada to secure an amazing citizen."

"If the senator's offer comes true," Liliane said, "I could go back to Vancouver and get work on coastal ships there. It's a very kind offer and I would like to write to the senator—but I don't know his address."

To Try Citizens Abroad

Special Court Planned For Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — Servicemen's dependents and civilians who break the law while abroad with Canadian forces would be brought under Canadian judicial and penal jurisdiction by an act now before Parliament — if the country in which the crime is committed agrees.

The new procedure would apply mainly to dependents of service personnel stationed in Germany with the 27th brigade, and in Britain and France with the 1st Canadian air division.

The legislation is proposed in a bill introduced in the Commons by Associate Defence Minister Campney to amend legislation concerning the armed forces.

The bill sets up machinery under which arrangements may be made with the governments of countries where Canadian forces are located to have dependents and civilians tried under the code of service discipline for breaches of local laws. The code embraces Canadian civil law and the law of the country in which an individual is stationed.

TOO DEPENDENT

Without such an arrangement the dependents and civilians are subject only to the laws of the countries in which they are located.

The new act provides that dependents of service personnel would be tried by a special court presided over by a Canadian judge or member of the Canadian bar. If convicted, they would serve sentence in a civilian prison in Canada.

A spokesman said the legislation would mean that all civilians would be tried by the special court in time of peace. Because dependents are never in a war theatre it was possible to stipulate in the bill that trial before the special court should be mandatory for dependents at all times.

However, during a war this provision would not apply to civilians such as auxiliary services, war correspondents and clerical workers attached to the forces. They would be tried for crimes by military courts because it would not be practical to have the special court in the field.

A dependent would be tried by the special court for breaches of civil law in all 14 NATO countries, except Germany, providing authorities waived the right to prosecute. In Germany trial of dependents before the court would be automatic under an agreement with the German government.

AGREEMENT REACHED

In the other NATO countries an agreement has been reached under which they will give sympathetic consideration to waiving the right to prosecute.

Auxiliary workers, correspondents and civilians attached to the forces also would be tried by the special court for infractions of civil law providing the right to prosecute was waived. This would apply to all countries except Germany where such trial would be automatic.

Persons in this category, except in time of war, also would be tried by the special court for infractions of Canadian law. The spokesman said, however, that under special circumstances such a person might be tried by court martial.

Similar arrangements for the prosecution of dependents and civilians now are being worked out with the Japanese government.

Super-Secret U.S. Project Searched For Subversives

WASHINGTON (AP) — An aide to Senator Joseph McCarthy says "project Lincoln," a super-secret study of how to keep North America safe from atomic attack, is being probed for subversives by the Senate investigations sub-committee.

The Boston Post, in a copyrighted story, reported today that such an investigation was under way. Francis P. Carr, executive staff director of McCarthy's committee, confirmed that the project is among defence establishments in the Boston area being investigated for subversives.

The project uses facilities of Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge, which is within Boston's metropolitan area.

The Post said it is believed that "some top British and Canadian scientists work on 'project Lincoln.'"

It added that the "chief recommendation of 'project Lincoln' to be disclosed to date called for the erection of a $50,000,000,000 radar screen around the United States."

"Because of the strictest of security regulations governing 'project Lincoln,' it has never been known exactly what has come out of it.

"But a spokesman for the air force said . . . 'there is no question whatever that "project Lincoln" is our top project—and has been for some time.'"

The story also said:

"It is reported that 'project Lincoln' ranks in strategic importance just beind the manufacture of atomic and hydrogen bombs. The project, it was explained, is responsible for the safety of the United States itself."

2 Survive As Boat Rams Reef

Flickering Flashlight Leads Searchers To Unconscious Man

VANCOUVER —(CP)—Two survivors of a night of wet terror, and the bodies of three other members of a tugboat crew were together today in a small, up-coast hospital.

The only known survivors of the tug C. P. Yorke which rammed a reef before dawn Friday are chief engineer Bill MacDonald and Capt. Roy Johnson, 41.

Two members of the all-Vancouver crew remained unaccounted for. A search by RCAF planes and naval, fishing and towing craft was being organized for today.

FLASHLIGHT SPOTTED

Capt. Johnson was in the water an hour and a half. When searchers spotted his flickering flashlight, he was already unconscious, jammed into a lifeboat.

From his bed in St. Mary's Hospital at Pender Harbor, 50 miles northwest of here, he told how he had last seen his crew clinging to the small pieces of the wrecked C. P. Yorke. All the others were given up for lost.

Three bodies were recovered, then came a report from the RCMP detachment at Sechelt, near the scene of the wreck—one more survivor.

LONG ORDEAL

Mrs. I. C. Hartley, matron at St. Mary's, told of MacDonald's ordeal:

"When the boat began to sink, MacDonald was pitched into the water. But he had a lifebelt on—all the crew did. "He managed to swim to a lifeboat which had been torn from the boat when it sank. He clambered onto the lifeboat, which had a canvas cover over it and he could see the captain in the water, not too far away.

"The two talked for 15 or 20 minutes and the captain kept waving his flashlight which was probably the reason he was rescued so promptly.

"Then the captain lost consciousness.

BOAT TURNED OVER

"Several minutes later, the lifeboat turned over, but its canvas cover kept it afloat and MacDonald clung to the bottom."

The engineer kept his hold for nearly 14 hours and drifted 12 miles from the wreck scene. Then he lapsed into unconsciousness.

He was washed ashore, and found on the beach at Cape Cockburn, Nelson island by a Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, owners of the fishboat Howie. They took him to hospital.

Four Planes Play Santa Claus Role

MONTREAL (CP) — Four aircraft will take off Monday on a Santa Claus operation to northern outposts, the RCAF announced today.

Heavy cargoes of Christmas mail and supplies will be dropped to the men who maintain a lonely vigil throughout the long Arctic night at Canada's northern frontier. The planes will go as far as 2,500 miles from Montreal and within 600 miles of the North Pole.

Hinde & Dauch Acquires Box Plant

Announcement has been made by the Hinde & Dauch Paper Company of Canada, Limited, that an agreement has been concluded for the purchase of all outstanding shares of Martin-Hewitt Containers, Limited, Peterborough, Ontario.

This step by Hinde & Dauch represents further development in the Company's long-term policy of keeping pace with the industrial advancement of Canada, and firmly cements a close relationship which has existed for many years.

No change will be made in the present Management of Martin-Hewitt, which will henceforth operate as a wholly-owned subsidiary and whose customers will now have an even greater assurance of supply continuity due to the security of raw material availability from the Mills of Hinde & Dauch.

Arrest 7 Men In Drug Trap

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Police arrested seven men Friday night and seized 92 capsules of suspected heroin when two speeding automobiles failed to break through an elaborate police net set up south of this city.

State police said they pursued both cars at speeds greater than 90 miles an hour before forcing them to stop.

The Buffalo narcotics squad said the net was set up when it learned an attempt would be made to bring narcotics here from Cleveland. State and local police patrolled roads leading into the city for more than 12 hours.

All the arrested men gave Buffalo addresses.

FREE AFTER TORTURE — Pte. Frank James Kelly, British World War II soldier recently released from Russian captivity, sobs and gestures as he addresses a press conference in Hanover, Germany, after his release. He collapsed twice as he told a story of Russian "barbarism and cannibalism." Of 16-hour-a-day torture sessions, he had this to say: "It is only a miracle that I am here today among my own people."

Discuss Search For New Liberal Leader

TORONTO (CP)—The search for a new leader of the Ontario Liberal party was discussed Friday night by officials of the provincial organization.

After a day-long session by party representatives on policy matters, the committee on conventions, which has the task of ensuring that a good slate of candidates for the leadership comes before a party convention next April, met with A. P. Cadeau of Burlington, president of the Ontario Liberal Association, as chairman.

The committee, one of nine of the organization's groups which met during the day, does not pick a candidate but explores the field and approaches likely persons.

NINE COMMITTEES

The 140 representatives divided into nine committees to draft prospective policies on education, welfare, health, agriculture and other aspects of provincial affairs. Their reports will be submitted to the executive which will prepare them for submission to the April convention.

The new leader will succeed Walter Thomson, who resigned after the party's defeat in the provincial general election of 1951. Farquhar Oliver leads the seven-man Liberal group in the 90-seat legislature.

Albert Wren, member from Kenora, has announced that he will contest the leadership. He is the only one to do so thus far.

OBITUARY

GERALD ADAMSON

KEENE—A native of Otonabee township and rural mail carrier at Keene for many years, Gerald Adamson died Friday at his home after a short illness.

He was born 64 years ago in Otonabee township and lived there where he farmed during the early years of his life. His parents, both deceased, were Robert Adamson and the former Sarah Broadley. He moved to Keene and became a rural mail carrier. He was a member of Knox Presbyterian Church.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Robert Thomas (Lois), of Keene, four brothers and three sisters, Gardner and Mrs. Harold Robb (Irene), Balcarres, Sask., Mrs. James McFarlane (Barbara), Angus and Elmer, all of Otonabee township, Ralph of Keene, and Mrs. Victor Austin (Marian), of Port Hope. His wife, the former Jennie Wood, died four years ago.

A private funeral service will be held at his home Monday, at 2 p.m., the Rev. D. G. Smith, of Knox Presbyterian Church, officiating. Burial will be in Keene cemetery.

TINY COUNTRY

The Grand Duchy of Luxembourg in Western Europe, big producer of iron and steel, covers 999 square miles.

Mrs. Cooke Hostess To Stirling WI

STIRLING (ENS)—The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. H. Cooke.

The meeting opened with the singing of the Institute Ode, the Mary Stewart collect and prayer.

Roll call was answered by 16 members. Scrap books will be made for hospitals.

There was $25 voted to the Belleville hospital fund, $5 for treats for inmates of the county home and $5 and a quilt for the Salvation Army.

A short program was presented and lunch served.

Beautiful Men Viennese Goal

VIENNA (AP) — Men, take it from Frau Mignon Paparella. There's nothing like a mud pack after a rough day in the office.

Frau Paparella, after 20 years catering to Austrian haus-fraus, is training her beauty-making talents on men.

"Why should men be less attractive than women?" she asks.

Convinced there is a solid market for masculine beauty treatments, she moved out of her old shop and set up what she believes is the first all-male beauty salon in Europe.

"I'm crusading against double chins, bald heads, wrinkles and enlarged waistlines," she declares. "I'm going to make Viennese men as good-looking as their female counterparts."

Dean Walks

The U. S. envoy said that several times during the sessions Huang had accused the South Korean government of releasing the 27,000 Korean prisoners from Allied compounds. Rhee has said openly that the release was ordered by him.

SWITCHES ATTACK

But shortly before the Allied walkout, Dean said, Huang suddenly switched his attack and accused the U. S. of "perfidy" and conspiring with South Korea.

The break came after seven full weeks of negotiations. There had been speculation for days that the talks were on the verge of a breakdown, but Dean had repeatedly said he would make every effort to reach an agreement.

Huge Cyclotron

STOCKHOLM (CP)—The world's largest cyclotron, with a capacity of 200,000,000 volts, has been completed at the Nobel Physics Institute near here. It utilizes oxygen particles instead of hydrogen for nuclear bombardment, a method also used in a smaller cyclotron at Birmingham, England.

Find Ancient Flint Tool Part Of Piltdown Hoax

London — (AP)—A piece of flint called a tool and long linked with the Piltdown man hoax was declared a forgery today by Dr. Kenneth Oakley of the Natural History Museum.

Oakley, one of three scientists who recently exposed the Piltdown skull as being fitted with a modern ape's jawbone, said the so-called implement found near it was just a mechanically broken piece of flint stained with chromate. Once the stain was removed, he said, the flint appeared greyish white.

The fragment had been accepted by some experts as the unique work of a race of Palaeolithic men.

"Whereas a bone might have been dipped in a solution of potassium dichromate with the sole purpose of trying to harden it, a flint would only have been treated in that way by a forger requiring it to be of a certain color," Oakley said.

MAGNIFICENT HOAX

He contended in an article in Nature magazine that this should be further proof of the magnificent hoax "in case there is any lingering doubt that the Piltdown finds are in part fraudulent."

The Piltdown man had been regarded by some for many years as one of the world wonders in tracing the human race back as far as half a million years.

The only clue in trying to track down the culprit for the hoax is that the person was someone with an expert knowledge of chemistry, geology and palaeonthology.

"Family" Government In Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua.—It is perhaps as well that Canada's Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, has a large family in case Canada should decide some day to turn to the Nicaraguan form of Government.

The eldest son of Nicaragua's president, Anastasia (Tacho) Somoza is president of the congress, and was acting president of Nicaragua during his father's recent visit to the Argentine.

His youngest son is chief of the Army and chief of the general staff.

One brother-in-law is presient of the senate and another is the director of the National Bank.

His son-in-law is the Ambassador to the United States, and his daughter, not to be omitted from the distribution of national honors, has her face on Nicaragua's note currency, the cordoba.

This is enough to make it evident that Anastasia Somaza is more than just the figurehead president of Nicaragua. He is the country's constitution, its law, and it's government.

If he is able to call himself a constitutional president it is because Tacho himself rewrites the constitution every six years to keep himself in power for another term. He last rewrote it in 1950 which makes him president until 1956.

If in other countries his trafficking in cattle exports might be considered highly illegal, in Nicaragua they are absolutely within the law. Tacho Somoza writes the laws.

And if in other countries his business tactics might be considered unethical, in Nicaragua Somoza not only sets the standard of ethics but he owns a very large percentage of the business.

The companies which bear his name are innumerable but they are only the one tenth of the iceberg which shows above the surface. His hidden business assets would take pages to describe.

Besides his monopoloy on cattle exports, he has monopolies on cement and match production, and on the sale of pasteurized milk in the city of Managua.

He owns at least 46 coffee plantations and is the biggest producer of coffee in the country. He owns even more cattle ranches.

The newspaper Novedades is his. So is the Mamenic Shipping Line which runs services on Nicaraguas's lakes and the Nica Airlines, the only local airways.

His interests stretch to sawmills, gambling joints, electric power plants, sugar factories, liquor sales, and a cotton factory.

As the chief executive of Nicaragua he is in a postiion to improve his business considerably and he does not fail to take advantage of it. For instance, the fact that cigarette lighters are banned in Nicaragua considerably adds to the sale of low grade matches produced from Somoza's factories.

With the exception of a handful of "holy cow" American companies and a few Nicaraguans who were economically powerful before Somozaz became president in 1937, no business is too small to escape the interest of the president.

Ho one man could ever become so powerful in this wealthy little country is an interesting story.

In the 1920's, the United States government, not satisfied with the way affairs were being run in Nicaragua decided to send down the marines to teach the Nicaraguans a lesson in democracy.

The "lesson" produced disastrous resulted for Nicaragua. The United States united the police force and the army which, if they had constantly been bickering with each other, up to then had provided an effective balance of power in the country. The new force was called the National Guard.

However part of the Army under General August Sandino objected to the United States intervention and retreated to the hills from where they maintained a successguerrilla warfare against the marines for almost six years.

In 1933, when the U.S. forces withdrew from Nicaragua, it was obvious that the man who controlled the National Guard controlled Nicaragua.

That man was Anastasia Somoza. Tacho quickly succeeded in quelling the Sandino forces where the American marines had failed.

He waited until his wife's uncle, who was then president of Nicaragua, invited Sandino to a private conference. Then he closed in with his national guard. All the bandit leaders were executed and then followed a slaughter of their innocent families in their mountain hideouts.

Somoza was now virtually the ruler of Nicaragua and he completed the job in 1937 when he initiated a coup d'etat against his wife's uncle. In the elections which followed a few months later, he was elected president.

The constitution at that time said that a president could only remain in office four years and he could not succeed himself. Tacho rewrote the constitution in 1939 to give himself six more years in office. He has done it frequently since then.

For a while, when the people expressed their clear displeasure at his essays in constitution writing, he allowed henchmen to rule in his place.

When one of these Somoza nominees, President Leonardo Arguello, showed a little independent spirit and went against Somoza's wishes, the congress, with admirable solicitude for Arguello's health, had him declared "mentally unfit" and replaced him with another president.

Tacho can find plenty of support outside his own intimate circle of friends. An American with a business in Managua told me, "Samoza has provided peace in Nicaragua and the country has gone ahead under him. Anyway these Latins need a strong hand."

These arguments are, at best, only partly true.

Roads have been provided throughout the country under Somoza but they were mainly paid for by United States money and built under U.S. supervision. His public health program received a healthy subsidy from the U.S. too.

That Nicaragua was in a state of continual unrest until Somoza came to power is a concept existing only in the historical perspective of the Somozistas and has little basis in fact.

Nor is the theory that Latins need a strong hand born out in fact. Every other Latin American republic in North America has thrown out the dictatorship form of government. Jorge Ubico of Guatemala was the last to go in that country's "bloodbath" revolution of 1944.

Somoza, despite his charm and fat affability, is a lonely and increasingly disliked figure.

What credit Somoza can draw from pacifying and economically improving Nicaragua—and it is highly doubtful if any credit is due to him—must be set against the disadvantages of his regime. And the disadvantages, to put it in blunt terms, are enormous.

When Somoza came to power the cordoba like the Guatemalan quetzal stood approximately at par with the U.S. dollar. Yet while the quetzal has remained at the same level, the cordoba has plumetted to an exchange rate of 7.8 to the American dollar.

(There is an official rate of 6.7 to the dollar but only Somoza enterpises can get dollars at this rate. Other businesses must buy at 7.8 to the dollar.)

COUNTRY IS RICH

Yet Nicaragua is a wealthy country. Its capital investment program since 1937 has been even greater than Guatemala's, while its primary products have been getting the same favorable prices in the dollar markets.

What then is the reason for the inflation? Unbelievable as it may seem the only possible reason is that Somoza has been shipping the profits from his enterprises outside to the United States.

The imagination staggers at the amount that must have been exported to produce this degree of inflation. Yet this reason for the sickness of the cordoba has been published by reliable economists—although not in Nicargua, of course.

The wealthy who have been able to take advantage of manipulations on the international money market to profit by the inflation have become wealthier, but the man on the street has become considerably poorer.

Opposition to the Somoza regime does exist in Nicaragua but it is ineffective.

The opposition party, the conservatives, is led by former president Emiliano Chamorro. But the Chamorro family so discredited itself during its term of office (Nicaraguan government has always been a family affair) that Emiliano inspires little enthusiasm.

FREEDOM CURBED

There are opposition papers too, but their freedom to print news is cunningly circumscribed by the president's press laws.

Somoza recently introduced a law which makes it a punishable offence to write any article that is disrespectful of the president, or (according to the opposition interpretation of the law) any of his associates.

Charges under the act are not heard before a jury but before a single judge who is a Somoga appointee.

A Nicaraguan journalist complained to me, "The only person this law leaves us to crticize is Malenkov. I guess we can criticize him."

But as long as Somoza retains his hold over the National Guard his power is secure. Up to the present this hold ha been so complete that Somoza has been able to make concessions of the qualified freedom of speech and freedom of the press.

And there is no real reason for presuming that his power with the National Guard, and therewith his control over the destiny of Nicaragua, will diminish for a long time to come yet.

Niagara Plan Proponents Present Issue To Club

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Major proponents of the three suggested plans for further development of the electric power resources of the Niagara river at Niagara Falls debated the issue in person today, each claiming the public interest would best be served by his own proposal.

Representative William E. Miller (Rep. N. Y.) urged support of the Capehart-Miller bill which would authorize five private power companies to do the job.

Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., (Dem. N. Y.) charged in his prepared remarks that private interests had proved themselves "inefficient or greedy" when holding what he called a power monopoly.

Roosevelt is co-sponsor of a bill which would give the federal government authority to build new power facilities at the falls.

HARD, COLD FACTS

John E. Burton, chairman of the state power authority and supporter of Governor Thomas Dewey's plan to have the project handled by the state, declared in his prepared talk that Miller and Roosevelt "must observe and overcome hard, cold facts of state and federal law" to defeat the state proposal.

The three men appeared before the Rochester City Club, a civic organization devoted to the discussion of major issues of public policy on the local, state and national level.

Redevelopment of the Niagara's power potential has been made possible through a water diversion treaty between the U. S. and Canada, signed in 1949. The cost of the U. S. phase of the project has been estimated at about $350,000,000.

ACCEPTS STATE OWNERSHIP

Roosevelt has agreed to state ownership of the proposed power facilities provided that municipal and co-operative distributing agencies get preference in buying power from the state.

Burton said such an arrangement "would block the integration of power systems in New York state."

Both Burton and Roosevelt attacked claims by private power interests that public redevelopment would mean loss of millions of dollars in taxes. They said lower power costs to consumers under public redevelopment would make up for the tax loss.

Burton charged that to authorize private redevelopment would be to invite a future federal administration "to recapture the Niagara project."

"New York state is ready, willing and able to carry out its responsibilities without federal dictation or usurpation," he said. "It will do so if the short-sighted goal of our utility companies does not open the back door to federal intervention."

WMS Leader Speaks At Christmas Meeting

WARKWORTH (ENS) — The Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's United church met at the home of Mrs. D. H. Evans. The president, Mrs. . G. Allen presided over the opening exercises.

Mrs. C. W. Massey was in charge of the devotional period. The Christmas message was read by Mrs. Massey as Mrs. Glenn Hancock played quiet Christmas music. A Christmas carol, sung in unison, was followed by the scripture reading by Mrs. George Bowen.

Mrs. Massey gave a paper. Christmas carols were sung intermittently with the scripture readings and the topic.

Mrs. Charles Diamond introduced Mrs. M. Reid, guest speaker, leader of the national committee and member of the council of the WMS executive. Mrs. Reid told how the WMS money was used and asked the ladies to give of their talents and their prayers.

A duet was sung by Mrs. G. Hancock and Mrs. Don Thompson.

The president, Mrs. W. G. Allen, presided over the business period.

Cards of thanks from sick members were read by the friendship secretary. Good wishes for a speedy recovery were extended to Mrs. G. Palmateer.

The nominating committee presented a slate of officers, who will be installed at the next meeting.

Lunch was served by the committee in charge.

Police Find

said. "I'll keep on searching even if everyone else drops out."

Police have directed a thorough search for the girl, poking into thickets and gulleys, checking barns and cottages and dragging streams. The girl's picture has been televised and her description published and broadcast. Despite the offer of $2,000 in reward money police have received no tangible clue to her disappearance.

As the hunt widened, police have received several reports of the sighting of girls answering Miss McDowell's description. Four women at Thamesville, 20 miles north of Chatham, said they saw a blonde girl in a restaurant with a man who had polished fingernails. A telegram believed to concern the case came from Timiskaming, Que., but its contents were not made public.

The frogman was assigned to climb down into a well 10 miles north of the point where the girl disappeared. Searchers Friday snagged something in the well but could not raise it.

The helicopters were to take searchers aloft.

Police said they expected some 1,000 persons would take part in today's search.

TODAY IS DAY—FATHER

Meanwhile, the girl's father boarded one of the three helicopters taking part in today's search.

"Today, I believe, will be the day," he said. "If we're going to find any trace of her in Scarborough, we'll do it today through the help of the helicopters and the hundreds of searchers."

Mrs. Sylvia McDowell, the girl's aunt, offered Friday to act as go-between for anyone afraid to talk to police.

She and her husband said they would hold in "strict confidence" any information that might help.

"If this place was a lover's lane, as they say, surely other cars were parked there," Mrs. McDowell said. "They must have seen something. Perhaps they have been too embarrassed to come forward. If they would, we will protect their identity."

New Directors Holstein Men Elect

Directors elected at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Holstein Breeders in Norwood Friday were: Vern Campbell, Stewart Nelson, Walter Thorn, Earl Doris, Eddie Bulmer, Charlie Bolton, Howard Clark, Gordon LaPlante, A. Davis, Archie Davidson.

Directors to the East-Central show committee: Stan Wood. Director to the Federation of Agriculture: Chas. E. Moore.

The door prize woolen rugs were taken home by Harold Van-Volkenburg of Asphodel and Ralph Drummond of Otonabee.

Attending directors of the Canadian Holstein-Friesian Association were: Ray Barker of Woodbridge, York; and George McLaughlin of Oshawa. Henry Sharp, president, was chairman of the morning and afternoon sessions.

Everett Brown of Orono will be invited to be judge of the county Black and White Show next autumn. The Holstein Club decided to apply to the CPR for a special coach to the annual meeting in Toronto February 10.

Fieldman J. F. Nelson of Brooklin recalled of the fourteen shows he attended this year the weather at Peterborough Exhibition was the chilliest, "a miserable week."

Membership in the East-Central district (Simcoe county to Frontenac) has increased this year to 1903, a gain of 164 over 1952.

ONE OF THE BEST

"The championship show in Peterborough, mid-October, was one of the largest and best we have ever had," Mr. Nelson said. "A lot of competition was keener than at the C.N.E. In fact the same cattle were higher up at the Toonto Exhibition than they were at our championship show. Our breeders brought out 189 cattle as compared with 179 last year.

Thirty-four were Peterborough Holsteins, tied with Ontario county in number. Three different counties have won the herd honors in the last three years. Peterborough placed second in that class this year."

Mr. McLaughlin reported an increase of 57 per cent in transfers this year, to the end of October. The bulk of that gain in cattle ownership has been recorded since midsummer. The Holstein-Friesian membership is up 8 per cent and receipts 23%, the latter a substanstial improvement over last year.

The artificial breeding units have reduced the number of herds from whicl. good sires can be bought. That, Mr. McLaughlin said, tends to have a detrimental effect.

"We feel that is undersirable. It means that we would be depending too much on fewer individual breeders for the type and qualit of bulls that are needed.

"In 1944, the number of bulls was 19% of the registrations, and only 6% in 1952."

"It has got to the point where there are comparitively few herds from which you can buy a bull for your own use."

EXPENSIVE

Mr. McLaughlin said there had been an improvement this year in the number of bull registrations. Possibly the innovation of frozen semen might slow up this trend to sire ownership, but the new artificial method is somewhat expensive.

"There is an increase in the number of breeders who are now registering bulls from good cow families."

"There is also keener competition among the units for promising bulls. Since July 1 we have three times as many enquiries than for the previous two year period. The units are in the market for herd sires. The manager of one of them came to my place recently about 6 p.m. after looking around all day. He wanted five bulls and hadn't found one."

The inference from Mr. McLaughlin's remark was that units had not been bidding against each other for awhile, but apparently there has been a recent revival of competition to get the sires they needed.

4-H CLUBS

Ken Best, assistant agricultural representative, said that of the 65 boys and girls in 4-H dairy calf clubs this year, 52 had Holsteins.

"There was one disappointing feature. Only 36 completed their projects. We could have a lot more members, and more carrying on to Achievement Day. Your interest," Mr. Best said, "has a great bearing on the interest of our club young people. That interest begins in the home, and is stimulated by the parents. I would also like to ask whether you try to encourage young people who are not of your own families. There is so much more that could be done by your members that would be greatly helpful to us. We know that you feel our 4-H Clubs are doing something well worth while. We are grateful for the co-operation the Holstein Club has given us. It means a lot to us, but I wanted to mention the fact that in our country we can do a great deal more."

F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative, introduced Dr. J. C. Rennie of the animal husbandry department of O.A.C.

Dr. Rennie discussed at length aspects of genetics that were clearly explained, and were of special interest of Holstein breeders.

Thinks Bow And Arrow Better For Deer Hunting

INDIAN HEAD, Sask. (CP)—Percy Crawford of Indian Head, one of 50 archers who took out special hunting licenses in Saskatchewan this year, says hunting deer with a bow and arrow is superior in many ways to shooting.

Crawford killed his deer for the season—the hunter may only take one—in brush country near here. He shot the full-grown doe from a distance of yards, a head-on shot straight to the heart which brought the animal down immediately.

He says when he shot his deer its companions continued to graze quietly. A hunter with a gun would have terrorized the entire animal population in the district.

FEWER ANIMALS LOST

Crawford says his method also is more humane because fewer wounded animals are lost. He cites statistics compiled in the United tates, where bow-and-arrow hunting is popular, to show only one per cent of wounded animals are lost to archers compared with 25 to 40 per cent of those wounded by gunshot.

Archery calls for more personal prowess in hunting, Crawford says. Because it is a slower and more quiet type of hunting, requiring greater skill in woodcraft, it fosters a love and appreciation for nature which opens new enjoyment.

The archery season for game in Saskatchewan runs from Oct. 5 to Nov. 7.

Crawford had to make several expeditions before he finally got his deer. On one occasion he shot at a big buck, but the arrow was deflected by a tree

Three-Man Mission Going To Far East

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will send a three-man mission to the Far East early in the new year in an effort to promote sale of Canadian grain in foreign markets, it was announced Friday.

The mission will be made up of William Riddell, commissioner of the Canadian wheat board; Dr. J. A. Anderson, chief chemist of the board of grain commissioners; and G. N. Vogel, chief of the trade department's grain division. The members will leave Vancouver for Tokyo Jan. 6.

After 10 days in Japan, the mission will visit Hong Kong, Manila, Singapore, Djakarta, Indonesia, Karachi, New Delhi and Bombay.

TRAVEL: with Jean Stenton

Vagabonding On Freighter To Interesting Ports Fun At Half Usual Cost

Vagabonding on a freighter cruise to strange corners of the world is a heaven-sent answer for those with small travel budgets and those who dislike the formality and crowds on passenger liners. One of the practical features is that you may save on the cost up to half what it would be for similar accommodation on a passenger boat.

In recent years American and foreign shipbuilders have launched a large number of cargo vessels of advanced type which provide very comfortable accommodation for a limited number of passengers, usually 12. American vessels of this type are commonly known as C-1s, C-2s and C-3s.

Other nations, particularly Norway and Sweden, have also built a large number of passenger-carrying freighters. They have become popular with travellers because they are relatively fast, with spacious quarters and usually excellent meals.

Some lines have booked all space on their ships months in advance and normally have waiting lists. One must frequently shop around to get space on vessels going to Australia and New Zealand, Hawaii, Taihiti, Japan and the Far East. Each summer sees a peak demand for freighter passage to Europe, the Scandinavian countries and Mediterranean ports. Freighter cruises to the Caribbean have also become extremely popular.

LIKE FOREIGN LAND

Many experienced travellers will tell you that they prefer to travel on foreign flag vessels. They have some good reasons for doing so. The accommodations are, in many instances, better than are found on American boats. Scandinavian and Holland vessels are noted around the world for their excellent food. Foreign vessels also usually carry a better stock of wines and liquors and at lower prices.

There are some people who have the feeling that when they step aboard a foreign ship they are stepping into a foreign land, which is true in a sense. But you don't have to worry about language. Nearly everyone on the ship will speak English.

Heavily-laden freighters ride more evenly and steadily than passenger ships with their tall hulls riding above the water and exposed to the full action of wind and wave.

The cabins or staterooms are all outside and usually located amidships, the same part of the ship where the officers are quartered. The lounge, dining room and other public rooms are frequently shared with the officers.

BANANA BOAT CRUISE

For those with a short vacation the Banana Boat cruise of 12 days to the Honduras has appeal. Sailings are from New York every Tuesday and Sunday by trim modern Norwegian motorships carrying 8 to 9 passengers. There are comfortable outside single and double cabins with and without private bath. Food is good and the menus varied. The ship is your hotel throughout the cruise. Rates vary from $240 in double cabin to $260 for a single.

The itinerary includes 10 days of leisurely cruising at sea and two days at La Ceiba, Honduras. Included with the cruise is a unique sightseeing trip through the vast coconut and banana plantations, a journey on the Salado River, Trader Horn fashion on a barge the company maintains for that purpose, a picnic in a coconut grove and a beach party on the shore of the Caribbean.

About every two weeks there are sailings for England, Belgium and Holland on the Holland flag cargo-passenger vessels Edam and Leerdam. These ships carry about 25 passengers. Accommodations are plain but comfortable, consisting of all outside staterooms for one or two people. The food is good and served in the dining saloon. The voyage to Europe takes 10 to 12 days. Passenger fares to London, Antwerp or Rotterdam (one way) $165.

MEDITERRANEAN VAGABONDING

On a more ambitious scale, there is an attractive vagabond voyage in the Mediterranean area which includes Italy, Greece, Turkey, etc. The fare is $10 per day and the trip lasts 45 to 50 days. There is always a little elasticity to freighter schedules depending on cargo commitments.

Sailings are from New York every 60 days by modern Liberty-type freighters with accommodation for up to 12 passengers. It is a wonderful opportunity for an informal visit to many colorful and old-world ports. The $10.a-day rate includes transportation, all meals aboard ship, berth in outside double cabin and use of deck chairs and other facilities provided for passengers. Also cruise passengers may use the ship as their hotel while in port.

Usual ports of call are Genoa, Naples, Venice, Trieste and, if cargo warrants, they go to Piraeus in Greece and Istanbul in Turkey. The exact duration of the round trip voyage cannot be guaranteed because until ships are in the Mediterranean it is not known to which ports they will go to load cargo for the return voyage or how long it will take to load it. The outward voyage from New York to Genoa takes about 15 days, the round trip usually 45-50 days. Vessels may remain in port from one to several days and passengers usually have ample time for leisurely sightseeing, shopping and shore excursions to places of interest.

One-way passage is sold to the first cruise port of call, usually Genoa, $225 each person; round trip Mediterranean cruise rate $10 per day.

CRUISE TO ECUADOR

There is another interesting Banana Boat cruise offered to Panama and Ecuador for 20 days at $430 and up. There are sailings from New York every Thursday by modern Norwegian freighters carrying 12 passengers. There are also outside single and double cabins, each with private bath, also suites consisting of sitting room and bedroom with private bath. The public rooms are attractive and consist of a lounge, dining salon, smoking room and bar. The meals are good and served by Norwegian waitresses. The ship is your hotel throughout the cruise.

Vessels arrive at Cristobal, Canal Zone, on the morning of the sixth day. Passengers go ashore here and have a full day ahead. Besides sightseeing, there are many good buys to be found in the bazaars along Front St. While the vessel is going through the canal, passengers can travel the 50 miles across the isthmus to Balboa by train or bus. On the Pacific side, sightseeing is a must including a stop for tea at El Panama hotel, an unforgetable scene of tropical beauty. Late in the afternoon, passengers rejoin their ship and are soon out on the Pacific sailing for Ecuador.

After two days of leisurely cruising, the ship crosses the Equator and the following day arrives at Guayaquil. Here passengers have two full days of sightseeing in Ecuador's largest city before beginning the return voyage. Back at the Canal again, passengers can remain aboard and watch their boat being raised and lowered as it passes through the great locks and finally enters the Caribbean. Northbound vessels stop for a day at Charleston, South Carolina, affording opportunity for sightseeing.

These are only a small sample of the interesting possibilities to any point in the world on first class freighters. Passengers can see and do things that they would never have the opportunity for on larger liners.

Independence For Malaya Distant Goal

By WARREN WHITE

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters)—Independence for Malaya is the dream of most Malayans, but only optimists believe it will come in the near future.

This 500-mile peninsula, clad in jungle and rubber trees, scarred with the yellow scrapings of tin mines, is inhabited by nearly 6,000,000 Malays, Chinese, Indians, Eurasians and Europeans.

Stumbling blocks to self-government include the Malays' fear of Chinese commercial domination and, conversely, Chinese fear of Malay military and police suppression.

The Chinese own most of the business and control most of the money not in the hands of British firms. The Malays are generally the laborers.

A leading Malayan Chinese, Sir Cheng-lock Tan, 70, whose ancestors came from China 200 years ago, said: "We Chinese like to live under British rule and protection. The Chinese like secure conditions to make money."

LEADS ALLIANCE

Sir Cheng-lock is president of Malaya's most powerful political organization, an alliance of Malays and Chinese.

His opposite number, Sir Oun Bin Ja'afar, said: "It is true to say that everyone here feels that there must eventually be independence; but we do not want a repetition of the mistakes of Burma and Indonesia. We have not yet the administrators to run an independent government."

Pensioners Won't Get Cheque Before Dec 25

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Martin said Friday that old age pensioners will not receive their December cheques before Christmas.

Mr. Martin, replying to a question asked by Alistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North), said it would not be in the interest of the pensioners for them to receive their cheques before the end of the month.

The minister said delivery of cheques before Christmas would mean that pensioners must wait five or six weeks before receiving another cheque. This would place an "unnecessary hardship on pensioners with limited means."

An administrative difficulty would also arise if the date of issuing the old age pension cheques were changed.

Potato Prices Drop 5-10 Cents In Week

TORONTO (CP)—Potato prices here have dropped five to 10 cents for 75-pound bags this week.

The market-setting Prince Edward Island potatoes, which receive federal subsidy, are down five cents at $1.25 a 75-pound bag wholesale bringing New Brunswick returns to the same level and Ontario to $1.15-1.20.

Officials of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture are following up protests that the Prince Edward Island prices are lowering the prices of Ontario-grown potatoes.

Ontario growers are protesting because they say the importing of P.E.I. potatoes has eliminated any chance of regulating prices for potatoes grown here "since Ontario is a deficient producing area."

Union President Jailed 10 Days

WINDSOR (CP)—Another prison sentence was sustained Friday in connection with a blockade thrown up on Tecumseh road during the Ontario trucking strike last summer.

Lawrence Parent, 42, president of the bus drivers' union, will have to serve 10 days in jail. The union was not involved.

The crown argued Parent caused a disturbance by ordering the driver of a bus not to get off his route when a policeman was trying to get the vehicle moved from the area of the blockade. Parent was a pedestrian at the time, not acting as president of the union.

The defence argued that the disturbance was under way before Parent arrived on the scene.

Daylight Holdup Nets Robbers $8,000

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two men staged a daylight armed holdup at Bulat's Mens' Wear shortly before noon today and escaped with $8,000 in cash.

Peter Bulat, owner, had just come from the bank and left the money with two employees.

The holdup men, acting as customers, backed up their demand for money with revolvers.

Justice Chevrier Goes To Appeal Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier of the Supreme Court of Ontario has been appointed a member of the Court of Appeal of Ontario and ex officio member of the High Court of Justice for Ontario, Justice Minister Garson announced Friday.

He also announced the appointment of Eric G. Moorhouse of London, Ont., as judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario and member of the High Court of Justice for Ontario and ex officio member of the Court of Appeal for Ontario.

Says Manager Told Workers Not To Vote

ORILLIA (CP)—Mayor Wilbur M. Cramp Friday night accused the manager of a foundry firm of instructing employees not to vote for him in Monday's civic election.

Mr. Cramp, speaking at a public meeting, said:

"I understand Mr. Beament (T. G. Beament, manager of Fahralloy Canada Limited) at a meeting today intimidated his men not to vote for me."

Mr. Beament was not available for comment. A member of his household said he was on his way by train to Falconbridge in the Sudbury area and would be away until Sunday.

Opposing Mayor Cramp is Hugh Johnston, present reeve, and John MacIsaac, deputy reeve.

London Buses Receive Beauty Care

LONDON (CP)—The big double-decker buses of London Transport, rambling red vehicles so familiar to Canadian visitors, are being given regular four - minute beauty treatments.

The push - button treatment, which leaves the vehicles thoroughly vacuum-cleaned, refuelled and lubricated, is a development of a £6,000,000 post-war plan for reconstruction and modernization of LT facilities.

Six new garages have been constructed under the plan, which is expected to end early in the new year, and 14 garages and depots have been rebuilt or remodelled. This brings to 114 the number of garages and depots handling the 8,000 buses.

CLEANING TIME CUT

One of the new garages, at Beckham in the southeast district, boasts the latest high-speed push-button equipment, which has resulted in cutting cleaning and repair time from eight hours to 20 minutes.

Favorite gadget of night foreman Percy James is an immense frame on which 56 brushes whirl at 500 revolutions a minute. Cold water jets drench the exterior of the bus and the brushes clean and polish it in less than two minutes.

Every nine weeks the coaches are given "a shampoo" when gallons of liquid soap are sprayed through the mechanism. "The Gobbler," a powerful vacuum cleaner which sucks up tickets, litter and dirt, can clean one deck of a bus in about one minute.

Happier Prospect For Northern Ontario

The North Bay Nugget mournfully said earlier this week that "Christmas, 1953, is threatening to go into the books as one of the gloomiest in the young history of Northern Ontario". The reason—the strikes in the gold mining industry of two of the North's largest communities, the Porcupine and Noranda mining areas. Some strikes began in mid-summer, others developed a dozen weeks ago. More than 7,000 men are off work and centres like Timmins have been hard hit and faced a ghost-town future.

* * *

The crack that was opened Thursday by intervening Provincial officials seems to have provided at last a way to break the strike in this industry and the northern towns. The Steelworkers' Union has accepted the plan on behalf of Hollinger employees, and other mine workers of other companies are likely to follow suit. The five-cent wage increase proposed is 1½ cents above the last company offer. Just to get the strikes settled may be a justification for the companies' acceptance of the increase, but it is doubtful if the present economics of the industry can provide any adequate reason for making the pay increases.

* * *

Gold mining is a strange business. Gold, though valuable, is of little use. It has an artificial financial value, not an economic one. In fact, the process of expensively digging gold out of the earth to bury it again in expensive vaults under the earth would strike men from Mars as ludicrous human employment. The industry has had lean times in recent years because the formal monetary price set on gold by international and national bankers, has not kept up with the post-war inflation of other materials and industries. The industry has been subsidized by government for several years. Because of these conditions, it would seem that further pay increases to gold miners are unwarranted.

* * *

Another aspect of the wage state in the industry which surprises southern Ontario people—watching the strike from afar—is this. The wage scales of northern Ontario miners are already the highest paid by any Ontario industry, on the average. So why must the gold miners demand more? Here are some comparative figures for the month of September. In the "Nickel Range" area (where nickel, copper, gold and silver are mined) the average weekly industrial wage and salary last September was $82.76. The average for the whole of Ontario was $61.69. Leading Ontario mines, reporting their payrolls for September, show that companies in the striking area paid their miners an average of $76.57 a week. This was the second highest average weekly wage paid by the mining industry of Ontario. The highest was paid in the Sault region (iron), a weekly average wage for September of $79.55. The average wage paid by all Ontario mining industries was $69.76. When the gold miners are already among the highest paid workers of the Province, why did they strike for more money?

Ontario Retail Trade

The kind and amount of retail sales are indications of the economic condition and the secular standard of living. Since the standards and economy of Ontario have changed much in the last two decades, there have also been changes in retail sales, for people spend more of their money on retail goods than on anything else, including rents and services.

Since the war the dollar value of retail sales in this Province has increased more than four times. In 1939 retail sales amounted to $1,049 million; last year they were $4,388 million. Even allowing for the deflated value of the dollar there was an increase. In terms of constant (1935-39 average) dollars, retail sales in Ontario have doubled. Making a further compensatory allowance, this time for the increase in population since 1939, one finds that retail sales have increased by a third. Thus people are buying more goods, hence their material standards have risen. It is interesting that since 1947 the volume of retail trade has remained steady; later increases have been on account of more people and goods costing more dollars. By the head, and in terms of constant dollars, retail sales have been at about the same rate during the last five years.

One reason for the absolute increase since 1939 has been this: people are spending more of their money on goods, less on services. An interesting table has been compiled by the Ontario Bureau of Statistics showing the percentage of income which goes into retail buying in Ontario. The low figure for 1943 reflects the rationing and shortage of goods available then. Here is the table:

Year	I Retail Sales $'000,000	II Estimated Personal Disposable Income $'000,000	I as a Per Cent. of II %
1930	1,100	1,796	61.2
1935	883	1,397	63.2
1939	1,049	1,746	60.0
1943	1,450	3,125	46.4
1947	2,687	3,814	68.4
1948	3,022	4,355	69.4
1949	3,235	4,717	68.6
1950	3,644	5,088	71.6
1951	4,114	5,849	70.3
1952	4,388	6,288	69.8

An analysis of Ontario's retail trade according to the types of stores was made for Dominion census purposes in 1951. It shows that 30.8 per cent. of the trade was in food and beverage stores and 24.5 per cent. in automotive stores. These were the two highest categories. Despite the number of shops dealing in furniture, appliances, radio and home furnishings, only 4.4 per cent. of the total sales in that year in Ontario were made by stores of this kind.

Some local figures may interest our readers. In this Kawartha District including Oshawa and Lindsay retail sales amounted in 1951 to $188,000,000; in 1941 they were $60,300,000. The 1951 figure represents consumer spending in retail stores of this area of $788 each; the 1941 figure $309.

In Festive Array

The Chamber of Commerce's Christmas trees are now up, the Utilities Commission has strung the red and green lights across business streets, and downtown Peterborough is in festive array. The lights are, as usual, neatly strung and symmetrically arranged; they look charming. The trees tied to the lamp posts—red pines grown locally—are the fullest and prettiest ever put up. Shops and shop windows are decked with festive colors and the streets are thronged with people. The town has indeed an air of festivity. And why not? the weather has been wonderful, the wonderful holiday is only a fortnight away. Providence has been kind to this city and country; it is right and delightful to prepare for a wonderful celebration.

Try It In A Beverage Room

We have been reading a very interesting article in The Church Times, the official newspaper of the Church of England, about an experiment which a clergyman named Canon Lloyd tried last Christmas. He arranged with the landlord of a pub to hold a brief Christmas service in the bar on Christmas Eve. His intention was made known, and he went to the pub, called The Crown, at eight o'clock on that night, with some misgiving. He was not sure what to expect, but he found the pub full and friendly. Some carols were sung, the Canon preached a short sermon, the Lord's Prayer was repeated, more carols were sung, and that was that. Everybody appeared to enjoy and appreciate the service very much.

The Canon's reason for his action was that, as Christ was born in the stable of a crowded pub, it seemed a suitable place to preach the message of Christmas on the Eve of Christ's birth.

As we read about this service, we wondered what would happen if a clergyman were to hold a service in a Canadian beverage room under similar circumstances. The obvious conclusion to reach is that he would be unwelcome, that he would have to combat the hostility of the people gathered in the beverage room, and that he might not be able to finish his service.

We might even suppose that he would have trouble with the police, for singing or music of any kind is forbidden by law in our beverage rooms, and so is any kind of entertainment. A Christmas service, if people enjoyed it, might be classed as an entertainment.

These are the obvious, the cynical conclusions to reach. But we are not at all sure that they are the right ones. Perhaps the beverage room would welcome the service just as The Crown did. Perhaps the police, who do not like to interfere with people who are enjoying themselves in an orderly manner, would forget about the law for half an hour. Perhaps it would work.

In any case, we should like to see the experiment tried.

NOTES AND COMMENT

The Duke of Edinburgh, we read, is now the idol of the bobby-soxers. Which creates a difficult situation for those editors, teachers, viewers-with-alarm and amateur moralists generally, who assume that any idol of the bobby-soxers is, by definition, contemptible.

A bride is said to incorporate something belonging to her grandmother in her wedding outfit in order to give her a sense of security. Maybe the bridegroom ought to carry something belonging to his mother-in-law, in order to give his a sense of the awful solemnity of the occasion.

TWO QUEENS

Salote Of The Tongans

By HECTOR BOLITHO

MORE than 40 years have passed since I first saw the Queen of the Tongan Islands.

We were of an age, in Auckland, New Zealand, and where she was at school. The enduring picture is of a cinnamon-colored girl, about 12, always laughing, usually surrounded by her friends who called her Charlotte—the English form of Salote.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN JUNE, 1953, I saw her again, in Westminster Abbey, for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II. A few days later I was summoned to see her, in London, in a house that was typically English except for a lovely rug in the drawing room painted with a fantastic design which I recognized as Polynesian.

The door opened and Queen Salote walked in—tall, splendid and smiling. Her warm eyes revealed the charm that had captured London when she drove in the procession to the Abbey.

✧ ✧ ✧

WE TALKED of the old days in Auckland, and of her islands. Then Queen Salote spoke of the coronation service, and compared the music with the singing of her subjects: she said, "We produced the 'Messiah', with 300 voices, less than a year ago." Then she said, "Of course I am going to be very busy when I arrive home. Queen Elizabeth is to come to see me in Tonga, on her way to New Zealand." Later, Queen Salote said, "I can only hope that Her Majesty enjoys herself half as much as I have."

✧ ✧ ✧

ON NOVEMBER 30, the SS Gothic, with Queen Elizabeth on board, steamed from Panama Canal into the Pacific Ocean. Twenty-one days later, the ship will reach the Tongan Islands. Let us call them the Friendly Islands—the name Captain Cook gave them in 1777.

Cook wrote of his reception by Queen Salote's ancestor, King Poulaho: "It being my interest, as well as my inclination, to pay court to all the great men . . . I invited Paulaho on board . . . I desired him to walk dawn into the cabin . . . his attendants objected, saying, that if he were to accept that invitation, it must happen that people would walk over his head; but the chief himself, less scrupulous in this respect than his attendants, waived all ceremony and walked down."

✧ ✧ ✧

DOES one associate King Poulaho's independence with the gesture that Queen Salote made as she drove from Westminster Abbey in the rain—keeping the hood of her carriage down so that the people would see her?

In 1834, the reigning King of Tonga was converted to Christianity, and baptized as George—in honor George III; and his consort assumed the name of Charlotte—twisted on Tongan tongues into Salote.

King George was a remarkable and radical ruler: he gave his people a constitution: he balanced the yearly budget; and he introduced reforms by which each of his subjects was allowed, by law, to own his plot of land. This was the tradition that Queen Salote inherited when she acceded, in 1918.

QUEEN ELIZABETH will arrive at Nukualofa, the capital of Tonga, five days before Christmas. I recall the beauty of Nukualofa from 34 years ago: the silver glory of the sun, the blue silk of the outer ocean, and the sigh it made when it broke over the coral reefs that shelter the harbor. As my ship steamed in, I wrote in my diary:

Hundreds of Tongan islanders are standing knee-deep in the water in a line across the bay. Each man holds a net of rushes against his legs so that they form a complete barrier, stretching for hundreds of yards. The tide is running out, and the brown calves and ankles of the men appear out of the ripples of the water. On the fat coral bed, within the line of the rush mats, a thousand fishes are jumping madly—gasping for air. They shine like polished knife blades in the sun.

THE SCENE will be different for Queen Elizabeth: she will land on a Sunday and find a state of quiet that may startle her—after a year of cheering crowds in England. The Tongans do not cheer: they sit on the ground, cross-legged, and they bow their heads when their 'betters' pass by.

They will receive Queen Elizabeth in the same way as they green Queen Salote, when she drives past to open Parliament, wearing European clothes and her crown. The silence of the Tongans, when Queen Elizabeth lands, will be a sign of their politeness and humility; their bowed heads will declare their manners, which are exquisite.

QUEEN SALOTE told me that Queen Elizabeth's stay in Tonga will be divided between a service in the Wesleyan Church, a feast, and a drive across the island. The Queen will see the low, verdant fields, and the coconut plantations, that yield each man a comfortable living and no man a fortune. The Duke of Edinburgh, who will be with her, might cast a longing glance at the golf course, where the few English residents keep their Englishness alive by the inherent English habit of hitting a ball.

Queen Salote may direct Queen Elizabeth's attention to a group of ancient, mighty stones, standing like the giants of Stonehenge and weighing 50 tons apiece. They are the tombs of her ancestors, and they prove Queen Salote's descent from a dynasty as old as that of Queen Elizabeth.

BESIDE Queen Salote, during this proud day in Tonga's history, will stand her heir, who was educated in an Australian university. He believes, very sincerely, that this island kingdom is bound to England forever—that they'll continue as the Friendly Islands, come what may to the Pacific.

There is a story told, of an American businessman who arrived in Tonga to impress on the Crown Prince the example of Hawaii, prospering under American rule. I have been told that the Prince answered, "Oh, I have been to Hawaii. I have seen the robes of the Queen of Hawaii, in the Museum. My mother is still wearing hers, under British protection."

An American Opinion: A DUD—ALLAH BE PRAISED

Night Shift

By W. JOHN MORGAN

YEARS AGO an old collier told me that he had never worked any shift but nights. He believed the darkness the time to go into the perpetual darkness, and that if he was to miss any sunlight he would prefer to miss it from his own bed.

I was very impressed at meeting this man, whose alleyway into life was so different from my own, who had never known the day before lunch and who, when the rest of us were preparing for bed or a long read or a party, was isolating himself and moving into a tougher, superior world. So impressed that for a long time I regarded industry's shift-workers as men removed from society. Whenever I passed groups of them at bus-stops in the evening stamping their feet or in the sunlight after lunch in their uniform of shabby mackintoshes, or whenever on a sleepless night I thought fancifully of them staring at the dawn, I considered them martyrs but undergoing a preliminary period of imprisonment. When I became a shift-worker myself I realized I had been only a little precious in my reaction.

Behind me I had a life-time of late rising, a history of leisure. Now the morning shift, with its alarm-clock at 4:30 a.m., hurt; the "two till ten" shift hurt with its illusory deprivation of leisure; above all the strange hours of the night shift hurt, disturbing the digestion and dislocating sleep. I felt tougher and superior to the people who were not exploring, as I said I was, new permutations in time. I began to talk about the Good of Solitude. Although in my steelworks I lacked the old collier's subterranean isolation, I became, like him, a man apart.

"You've got to keep on the go," a man told me during my first night-shift. "You've got to keep moving. Sit down and you're finished." "But," I protested, "I have to sit down to do my job." "Oh"—he said, loosing interest. "Well, try to take a walk now and then."

The furnacemen have that advantage over me. They are active. Crane-drivers, although they sit down to their work, are constantly needed. Men like myself at desks—my head dropping nearer the board, hanging sideways from my shoulders—have the hardest battle.

The telephone becomes my saviour. Eyes close, the face slackens, the enemy creeps into the hot room—and suddenly the telephone rings at my elbow. The spasm of guilt takes me involuntarily out of the office on to the furnace stage, and as consciousness comes back I wonder confusedly at the simple way in which steel is made and at the complexities, danger and power that surround its making.

Sunlight bleaches a furnace; but at night the flames curling like red beards under the furnace doors, the yellow-hot steelfall at tapping time, the multitudinous exploding stars at the teeming-stage, are a giant's firework display. Noises by day are the reasonable production of machinery moving at speed; at night, in the wind blown down the long, high cavern they join with the overhead ladles of hot metal, the glowing furnace-walls and the pressure of fire in a scheme again credibility. The flannel-shirted men throwing dolomite into a furnace shuffle in an arc, their shovels at the ready, and as they turn away from the flames their faces shine and their eyes are hollow with the sweat and the heat.

THE SEA ebbs behind the factory. One night, wanting fresh air, I walked across the strand of scrub to the water's edge. The subtleties of nature had been driven upwards and outwards. Here the sounds, the forms, the translations in space were those of the substitute forest of the steelworks. Engines could be heard to hoot; there was the enduring noise of falling scrap iron; the machines charging the furnaces rattled and roared.

These were the definable sounds. Their strangeness was their isolation in the vastness of sea and sky and mountains. There were other sounds—the crackling noise, like a man flicking forefinger on thumb; earthquake rumbles; the whispers of an industrial conversation. Along the bay, where there were other steelworks, the glow of a tapping furnace irradiated the sky, and from invisible chimney stacks gusts of white smoke expanded and then leaned against the sky. In front of me there was continual noise and movement and colour, and behind me only the gentle sound of the dark sea.

At six o'clock on summer mornings the streets are deserted. I cycle on my way home through a town lying dead in the clear light of day. There are no people, no buses; all shutters are down. Overnight there might have been an evacuation or a plague. Deserted streets at night are expected; the the silence is romantic and natural. The town empty in the sunlight is sinister. Images of a frightened people staring through shutters come to mind.

I ride quickly through the town and along the mountain road. Cocks are crowing in back-gardens; raiding sheep are blundering out of the same gardens; a bus-load of colliers is waiting for one of its shift who has slept late. The valley is quiet, the mountainside a blaze of purple, the irregular hills across the river a bright green. As I walk wearily the last few yards along the row, an alarm clock rings in one of the houses; rings for a full minute and is extinguished.

Police Censorship

(Niagara Falls Review)

Surely it is a crazy business as stated in the House of Commons that some candidates running for House of Commons seats in Quebec constituencies had to submit their speeches in advance to the police. In other places campaign helpers for some candidates had to secure police permits before they could circulate campaign literature. Surely that sort of thing should be investigated and halted and the federal government see to it that there is no interference with free election there or anywhere else.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

For ye are yet carnal: for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men? For while one saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos; are ye not carnal? Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man? I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase. So then neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase. (ICor. 3:3-7.)

Letter To The Editor

THE CHRISTIAN EXAMINER

Sir: I want to thank you for the very beautiful selections of scripture you daily print in the "Examiner". I'm sure they are helpful to many.

It is good to see someone who values the Bible and is not afraid to be on the Lord's side. To many the Holy Book is an unknown volume, and love of self, pleasure and money, and apathy abound.

I wonder will our Christmas season remind very many of the Babe who came for man's redemption and who bore our sins to bring us back to God, or will it only be a day of gaiety and feasting.

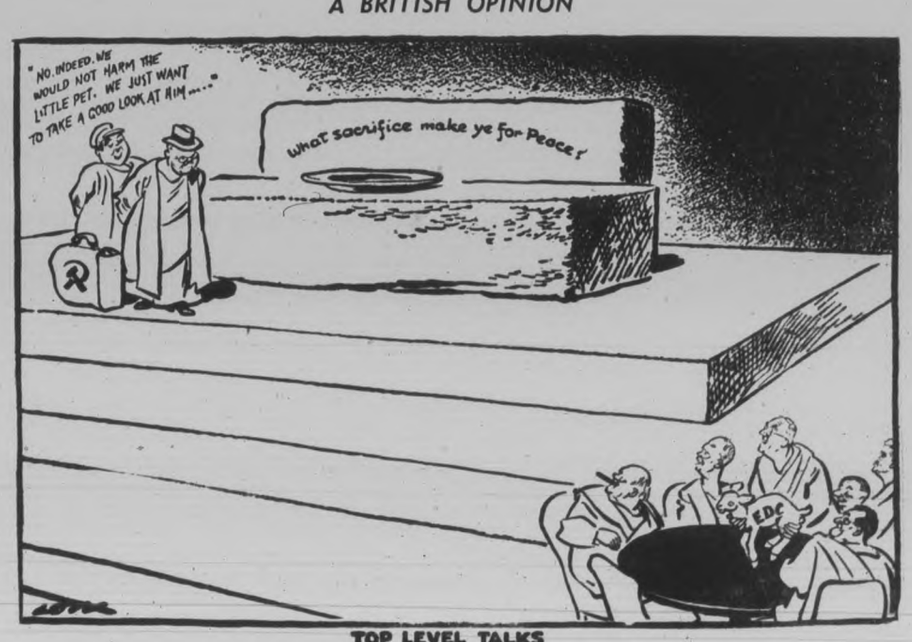
May your Christmas be a very happy one, and your New Year be bright and prosperous.

Sincerely,
MRS. R. BONNEY.

THE COMMUNIST EXAMINER

Sir: It appears that some of your recent editorials regarding McCarthyism, are tending to resemble articles in the Communist paper, "The Daily Worker". You have incessantly attempted to smear, one of the cleverest, most devoted, American politicians in this age of deteriorating democracy. If your home was in constant danger, would you protect by a watch-dog that could not bark? Then in all sensible judgement why try to handicap and smear Joseph McCarthy—the watch-dog of the home of democracy—the U.S.A.

Why does a city have a police force?—to keep crime and corruption from overthrowing decent, peaceful citizens. McCarthy is not destructive, as you imply, but preventive. His tactics may seem strong and unreasonable to those who do not see the immediate danger of Communism—but what is wrong with fighting fire with fire? What are the Communist tactics towards subversives in Russia or any of its satellites. We should be proud and thankful that there are men like Senator McCarthy who have the "guts" to fight the evil that is threatening to undermine our way of life.



Mr. Editor, you criticize Senator McCarthy, but what is your suggested method of thwarting Communism?

The Toronto Star sent Joe a bushel of Canadian Spy apples. Surely the Examiner could at least send, at our humble suggestion, last Wednesday's December 9 edition of your paper containing one of the editorials in question. As an added feature, you could also send along Wednesday's delightful Christmas shopping supplement.

Just who are you trying to force your views upon, the American people?—who I am sure do not read your limited circulation, or, are these views directed at your humble subscribers. Well, here are two that are not being taken in.

J. G. LEGROS,
D. J. FINN.

Mackenzie King of Canada Knew Where Stone Of Kings Taken And Hidden In 1939

By F. DEREK THROGMORTON

Three years ago this Christmas Eve the Stone of Scone disappeared from under the Coronation Chair in Westminster Abbey. None knew where it was, except the thieves who had stolen it. For the first time since Edward I had brought the Stone of Destiny to England in 1296 and had the Coronation Chair built around it, the Stone was gone. The first time? No. It was the second disappearance of the Stone. It has been removed from the Coronation Chair twice within the last fifteen years.

When Scottish nationalists stole the Stone of Destiny Christmas Eve, 1950, the furore was tremendous. The Thames was dredged. Scotland Yard threw its net over the whole kingdom. For the first time in 400 years the Scottish border was closed. When the Stone disappeared the first time, in 1939, it was removed as secretly as the Scottish nationalist students had taken it, but officials and the press kept quiet about it. Even fewer people than in 1950 knew where it was hidden, and one of the few was Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada.

When the stone was taken away three years ago it was gone for only a couple of weeks. When it was removed in 1939 it was hidden for more than five years.

OLDEST ROYAL RELIC

The Stone of Scone is our oldest Royal Relic, older than any of the Crown Regalia. Jacob was said to have rested his head on it. From the year 843 Scottish chieftains and kings were proclaimed on it. Since Edward I removed it to England 656 years ago 27 British monarchs have been crowned on the Stone of Destiny. When Elizabeth II was crowned last June, the Stone was back in its place under the Coronation Chair, from which it was taken only twice in recorded history: on December 25, 1950, and on August 29, 1939.

The Stone was removed both times because of national pride and solicitude. In 1950 Scottish national pride motivated its theft. In 1939 the care of the Commonwealth dictated its removal. War was imminent. The realists of Britain were preparing for the worst—the subjugation of the Kingdom by invading Nazis, or the destruction of the Abbey, the Chair and the Stone by bombers. Officials determined to preserve the Royal Stone of Destiny from destruction and usurpers.

On Thursday, August 29, 1939, on notepaper bearing the letterhead of "The Library, The Cloisters, Westminster Abbey," a hand-written note was signed by Bishop Paul de Labilliere, Dean of Westminster; by Sir Charles Peers "Surveyor to The Fabric," and by William Bishop, Clerk of Works. It read: "On Thursday, August 29, 1939, the Stone of Scone was taken out of the Coronation Chair, which was being sent away from London to a place of safety. The Stone was deposited in the vault beneath the Islip Chapel, in the position shown on the drawing attached to this paper."

Islip Chapel is one of the chapels of the Abbey.

PAPERS DEPOSITED

The paper and drawings were deposited in archives in London. They included a detailed drawing of the chapel's outline, with an X marking the corner where the Stone lay buried.

War was declared. The dark spring of 1940 came and the Battle of Britain was in progress. The Germans were overrunning France and were only a dozen miles from the coast of England and already shelling Dover.

It was then that the secret documents showing where the Stone of Destiny was hidden were sent to the personal safekeeping of Mr. Mackenzie King, along with the notation in the handwriting of Bishop Labilliere: "Plan of the hiding place of the Coronation Stone. To be surrendered only to his Lord Chamberlain or to myself."

Mr. King deposited the paper for safekeeping in the vault of the Bank of Canada. Dr. William Kaye Lamb, Dominion Archivist and now the first National Librarian, says that they were kept there until early in 1946, when Mr. King asked the Dean of Westminster for permission to retain them permanently and deposit them in the Public Archives. The Dean agreed, and the papers were received by the Archives soon after.

Only recently has this information been removed from the secret list, and the story of how the Prime Minister of Canada held the secret of the hiding-place of the Stone of Scone on which Queen Elizabeth was crowned on June 2, as twenty-seven of her ancestors have been crowned before her.

Murdered At The Poll

The Christian Guardian, April 7, 1841, printed a letter telling of the murder in Clarke township of John Henry Marshall of Peterborough, a Wesleyan Methodist, at the election.

He left home on Friday, 26 March, to vote for John Tucker Williams and on Saturday gave his vote. On descending from the hustings he was met by a gang of miscreants who struck him when he admitted having voted for Williams. After a second blow on the head he died. The news was broken to his wife and 4 children by William McFadden, who wrote the Guardian.

He was a Wesleyan Methodist preacher on the Port Hope Circuit in 1844, and although a search was made through subsequent numbers of the Guardian no reference was found to the punishment, if any, meted out to those who committed this crime.

FREE-LANCER'S UPS AND DOWNS

By A. J. THOMAS

Robert Thomas Allen of Omemee belongs to a rare species in Canada —successful free-lance writers.

What is a free-lance writer? He is a man who, forsaking all else, determines to live by his pen, without bosses, without contracts, without a weekly pay envelope, selling what he writes where he can, like a jeweller selling sapphires or a market gardener disposing of his cabbages.

The woods are full of free-lancers but most of them have to come sooner or later (depending on how long they can stand starvation and rejection slips) to the realization that the point of a lance is a poor and old-fashioned thing for spiking the bread that you must eat to live to write. So they take other jobs and end up as successful advertising copy-writers, as office cogs, as this or that — anything but writers. Thus they and their families eat and they do no more writing.

These free-lancers' places in the woods are taken by other hopefuls who leave the life of commerce and bosses and cities for the rustic quiet of villages and the pure pursuit of freedom. And so on, ad infinitum.

Bob Allen of Omemee is different as a free-lancer. He did not begin to tilt until he was in his mid-thirties, and that was in 1946. He left a good advertising job, paying upwards of $90 a week, in order to give his whole time to writing—writing which had until 1942 paid him no more than the sum total of one dollar and eighty-five cents—which was the price he got for the first article he ever sold.

TOIL AND SWEAT

Now Robert Thomas Allen commands top prices in Canadian magazines, something like $400 for a single article. But he did not arrive at this generalship of Canadian free-lancers without toil, sweat, disappointments—and courage.

Mr. Allen is one of the best practitioners in Canada of writing about notable and interesting people. So anyone who presumes to write about Robert Thomas Allen must have qualms doing it. This report is therefore an apologetic sketch.

One's first impression of Mr. Allen is that he is the unfunniest man one could meet. Not that he does not have sly and fetching turns of wit, but he is so quiet and unpretentious that you wonder if this is the same man who has written hilariously about hens, trenchantly about the Christmas spirit, discerningly about sports or provocatively about bachelors. Or who has had four pieces printed in the Reader's Digest. Mrs. Allen is of quiet, gentle disposition, too. She is an attractive, capable hostess, an amateur painter and has an intense interest in her children.

In appearance and manner, Bob Allen could be a mild clerk in an insurance office, a modest civil servant with an interest in music or a biologist with an after-hours passion for painting in oils. He certainly does not impress one as a person wanting to deliver a "message"; perhaps that is one reason for his success as a humorous commentator on the Ontario social scene. He is uncommitted, not only to bosses, but to cant. He holds definite opinions, but does not beleaguer conversation with them.

ROBERT THOMAS ALLEN

Mr. Allen was born in Toronto in 1911. At technical school he got the idea that he wanted to write. "I looked around and thought it was the softest way to make a living . . . one of the wackiest decisions in history". But this was a fugitive notion. He also decided to be a musician, and for a whole month practised the piano eight hours a day, driving his parents to distraction.

He threw up this unpromising career as suddenly as he had begun it. He toyed with the idea of becoming an aeroplane pilot, then was appalled at the thought of his future self spending a lifetime in a box with a stick in front of him. Then he returned to his old idea, to be a writer.

ADVERTISING JOB

Meanwhile, his father got him a job in the advertising department of Eaton's, Toronto, and advertising jobs of one kind or another were his bread-and-butter occupation for many years, although he hated advertising. After work, on Sundays and on holidays, he wrote. He tried all kinds of subjects and themes—fiction, commercial potboilers, and the like, but was getting "absolutely nowhere".

When talking to this reporter about this phase of life, Mr. Allen went off to his study in his Omemee farm-house (it is at the west end of the village) and came back with a filing cabinet drawer full of cards. He indexes and keeps a history of every piece he has written and sold. The wad of cards showed how great has been both his productivity and his sales. He pulled out one card. "The first piece I sold . . . A Sunday School paper called 'Dewdrops' bought it. I was paid $1.85."

This first sale was made only in 1942. By this time Mr. Allen had married, had bought a house in Toronto, and was starting to raise a family. He began to make more sales and to get better prices.

With this not very substantial encouragement, he quit his job in Toronto, sold everything and set out for Lake Simcoe with his wife and two young daughters. It was June, 1946. He was determined to free-lance. That summer he sold only one article —on birds — and got $100 for it.

As well as having a craving for the freedom of a free-lance writer, Mr. Allen also hankers for sun and warm air. That autumn the family set out in an old 1934 Chevrolet for California. The car went as far as a swamp in Georgia and there gave up the ghost but not before a garage man had charged its owner for repairs double what the car was worth. They had all their few possessions lashed to the car and the menage was "looking like a bunch of oakies".

It is a fantastic story of troubles, trials and wayfaring which Mr. Allen tells of that tortuous journey from Toronto to California via Georgia, Florida, Arizona, third-rate hotels, sumptuous motels, and the kindness and treachery of acquaintances.

AT NEEDLES

They came to temporary haven in a place called Needles, Arizona. Why did they go there, off the beaten track? Well, they had heard of a place called Flagstaff, went there by train and a girl on the train suggested Needles, in the middle of the Mojavi desert (the same desert as Death Valley).

At Needles they started to look for a place to live. Both children were sick, money was running low. The owner of the motor court where they had put up turned out to be a Scot with no liking for Americans, but a fondness for Canadians or anybody else who lived under the Union Jack. "He went to bat for us, bolstered up our spirits, and finally found us a place that had formerly been a maternity home. The youngsters slept in the maternity room, I in the delivery room."

There the family settled down, and Mr. Allen affixed himself to his typewriter. When five months had elapsed since they left Toronto, no story had been sold, their money went down and down, and they had to pay up to eighteen per cent. exchange on their Canadian dollars.

By the spring (of 1947) Mr. Allen got homesick and decided to go back, but first to visit California. "This gypsy life isn't what it is cracked up to be". Thinking on such lines, he went over to his typewriter and banged out seven pages.

It was an article which he called "Please Fence Me In", done with a light touch in a whimsical mood. He sent the article to Maclean's and they immediately sent him a $150 advance.

Later he sold one other article—written down south, but that was all the return he got from his writing in half a year.

The Allen family returned by train from Califronia and arrived in Toronto with no house, no furniture and no money. One snippet of conversation was recalled this week by Mr. Allen, when he was being interviewed at Omemee. "On the train back from California we met a man who had come from the north. I told him I was going back to Canada. Why? he asked. 'Everybody who leaves California comes back. So why waste time?' "

ARTICLES

A Toronto editor suggested to him that he should get back to doing articles instead of "breaking my neck on fiction". Mr. Allen thereupon set out to do an article on baise drinkers (a concoction made from bay rum and drunk by down-and-outers). It was an outstanding article and turned considerable attention to the subject —and also to the writer of the article. But it took a long time to write—talking with horrible characters, getting statistics, and so on.

This is a fact of writing life to which Mr. Allen as a free-lancer now gives heed: "You can turn out some wonderful jobs but still go broke doing them". For instance, an article on George Young took him a month and a half to do. Spread the pay for that—even if it is at a good rate—over six weeks, and what kind of income have you?

The money for the rum-tub article did not come in immediately, and the family had to pay high rent for a furnished apartment and to eat. Mr. Allen went back to advertising, at $90 a week. As soon as he was on salary he took a bungalow in Toronto, and settled in to the routine of job by day and writing by night.

FREE AGAIN

Assignments now came in frequently. He found that he was getting more work than he could handle properly, and decided to give free-lancing another chance. That was how he happened to come to Omemee.

He threw up his Toronto job and "began the damn fool thing all over again." He sold his house and took his family to Florida on a shoe-string. This was in the fall of 1951. Next spring they returned to Toronto, again with no house but this time with a storage place full of furniture and clothes.

After looking at flats and houses and duplexes in expensive, noisy, crowded Toronto, Mr. Allen said to his wife: "Let's get out of Toronto and try to live in some sort of dignity and serenity." So they temporarily took a cottage on Georgian Bay. In the autumn he telephoned Scott Young of Omemee, a writing friend. Mr. Young said there was a house available in Omemee. The Allens took it.

That was the autumn of 1951, and there Robert Thomas Allen and his wife Helen and their two girls have been established ever since—except for wintering each year between Christmas and Easter in Florida. Cold weather and sunless days repell the Allen spirit. Mrs. Allen, who has loyally shared the ups and downs of this life, also likes warm weather (her painting shows this).

At Omemee, with frequent one or two-day trips to Toronto to consult with editors, Mr. Allen works regularly and hard at his typewriter, often putting in twelve or fourteen hours a day. There is an assured market for his writing, and he has been pub-

On the final day of the four-day December session of Hastings County Council, Reeve and deer hunter Clarke T. Rollins said he had heard that a movement was soon to be started to petition the Government petitioning the use of dogs in deer hunting. It must have been a rumor because he could raise no discussion on the matter. It is hoped the matter will be brought up again by all county councils in the Kawarthas and pressure brought to bear by fish and game clubs.

A couple of notes from Perry Alexander (Oak Orchard) from his winter headquarters at Pickering Lodge, Cleveland, Florida, comments on the recent resort owners' annual meeting in which they admitted their rates were too low.

"I tried to tell many of them that long ago," said Perry.

In his second note he mailed a clipping from a Florida newspaper wherein it was reported the stiff IMPRISONMENT terms imposed on two fishing lawbreakers. A touch of the same in the Kawarthas would be a good thing, thinks Perry, for pickerel fishermen who take bass in May.

Things never looked so black, including ourselves, when we undertook to de-soot our oil space heater this week. After congratulating ourselves that the fine fall weather had saved us considerable on our fuel bill we learned that the situation was fouled up with false economy and downright danger. After a couple of months of slow burning we found the pipes and stove were badly plugged.

An unmechanical chap like myself dreads this job, not because of the dirt, but because the pipes never go together again as they should. Operation Soot results in bad temper and scraped knuckles. I tackled the current job with cunning.

Each length of pipe was taken down and carried into the woods and laid exactly in their proper order and when installed again in the proper order there were no wrong-end-tos or elbows in the wrong places. It worked.

Cleaning of heater and pipe lengths is only half the job for no matter how well floors and furniture are covered with newspapers, it takes hours of cleaning up afterwards. But the satisfaction of a job well done is similar to that when you have paid up an ample insurance coverage policy on your home.

The Fire Department boys tell me that 75 per cent of fires alleged to have been caused by "exploding" space heaters is due to carelessness. In the first place there is no evidence on record that a heater ever did explode. If you want a first-class fire in your home —one that will burn if down completely—the firemen recommend that you:

1. —Don't bother to read the instruction booklet or study the operating principles of your heater.
2. —Turn on the fuel control before you want to light the stove and go away and forget about it so the heat chamber will become well flooded.
3. —Encourage the kids to tamper with the controls so you can brag to people how smart they are.
4. —Don't bother to clean heater or pipes.

These few light-hearted rules are sure to work and there are many more.

The zaniest Christmas decoration this year comes from the twisted brain of some Hollywood press agent, a 14-foot tree frame adorned with 500 Canadian mink skins. You, too, could build a dream tree like this, if you have 50 old dusty G's kicking around your safety deposit box and if you have entirely lost the idea of Christmas and what it means.

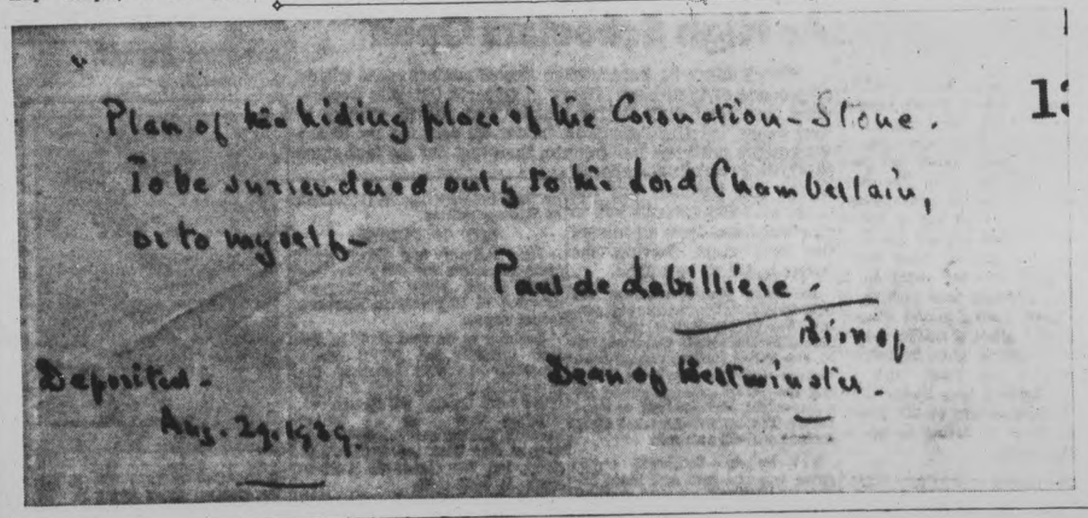
A young man of my acquaintance was sweating out social studies about Africa the other evening—(I suppose this is a new-fangled name for "Geography"). He said the native names for rivers, towns and districts were hard to learn and all screwy, anyway.

Did he think, then, that the native Indian names in our own district were screwy? No, that wasn't the same thing.

So we dug out an Indian grammar that I acquired many years ago in Sioux Lookout. And in piecing together some of our common district names found the phonetic ear of early whitemen came close to the real thing but that actual Indian spelling of them was not the same.

The phonetic letters of the Indian language are as follows:



A, c, e, h, i, k, l, m, n, o, p, s, t, u, w, and y.

Using "a" as the a in far, and "e" as in the e in me, we translate:

O-tan-a-pe (Otonabee)
Ka-cha-wa-noo-ka (Katchiwanooka)
Che-mun (Chemong)
Ka-wa-tha (Kawartha)
Kash-ka-bag-a-mag (Kosh)
O-me-me (Omemee)
Pa-tash (Paudash)
Scu-gag (Scugog)
Bo-shink (Boschink)

"Hiawatha", the anglocized version of Longfellow's poem, doesn't count and neither does Bobcaygeon which is the French derivation for "beau bocage", meaning a pretty grove.

This may be trivial information for you, but if you have trouble with your spelling, it is at least an excuse.

Your Garden:

Culture And Choice Of Bulbs For Indoor Planting

BY HENRY PREE (NEA)

Giant Amaryllis bulbs for indoor bloom in February and March are now on sale at florist and garden shops. The bulbs should be potted soon to permit the root development necessary for satisfactory blooms.

These giant bulbs will produce four to six blooms on one stem in colors ranging from pure white with varied markings of rose, red and crimson to the richest of self-colors in scarlet, crimson and bright red. Florists use the word "self" to denote a clear, single, solid color.

The Amaryllis, showiest of all house plants, was named for a nymph celebrated by Virgil. The family is large, writes Dr. Liberty Hyde Bailey, in his synopsis of the plant kingdom; there are 71 genera and about 800 species widely distributed throughout the tropics.

Culture of this gorgeous flower is simple but, advises the old gardener, buy good bulbs rather than the growers' leftover after the better bulbs have been distributed to reliable garden supply shops, florists and nurserymen.

Each bulb will probably have very short roots—quite possibly no roots at all. Choose the healthiest-looking rooted bulbs if you want early bloom. Before it can grow leaves or flowers, it must grow roots. Select a six inch pot, wash it, inside and out, and put an inch of broken pot, or gravel in the bottom.

Over this put a little peatmoss to prevent the soil from sifting through this porous material. The soil should be a mixture of two parts garden loam, one part well-rotted cow manure and one part sand.

The bulb should be set so that it will be a good half above the soil, and there should be about an inch between the sides of the bulb and the side of the pot. Do not fill to the brim with soil—leave it half an inch below the top for watering space.

After planting the bulb, water thoroughly and set in the coldest part of the basement. When an inch or more of growth appears, put the pot in the sunniest window, where it is warm and feed liberally with liquid fertilier every two weeks.

The Amaryllis Society year-book says that while bulbs potted now are certain to bloom, one is not certain as to the date, it will take at least six weeks for root development and then three or four weeks to perfect the flowers, so just pot it and wait.

After flowering, green leaves will appear and the plant must still remain on the warm window sill with daily watering, for at this time it is making the growth on which next winter's flowers depend and must be kept alive and active.

In May the Amaryllis goes out into the garden, sunk up to its rim in a bed which is shaded during the afternoon. Here it needs frequent watering, too, and a weak liquid fertilier every three weeks. As fall nears the water may be gradually withheld, and the bulb is brought indoors, after the first light frost, it may be kept without water almost entirely.

When the foliage dies down as it will, the pot should be set in a cool, dark cellar until January. If there is no garden handy, the apartment dweller may keep the Amaryllis growing on the window sill, then it can be placed in a cool cupboard when the foliage fades.

Gardening Questions

Q—Our garden is limited as to space and yet we want two or three pyramidal trees like poplars for accent. What do you recommend?

A—Poplars are out because the roots spread a great distance and rob the soil of its nutrients. Arborvitae is recommended if you want an evergreen accent and the Katsura tree, cercidiphyllum japonicum, if a deciduous tree will satisfy you.

Q—Since it is too late to sow grass seed what could be done now to lessen the job next spring?

A—If you do not mind bare ground all winter it would be a great help to dig the lawn up now and allow it to lie rough until early April. The action of the frost will make the soil more friable. When digging rake out all the weed roots you can.

Q—What indoor care should be given an Easter azalea which stood in the garden this summer?

A—Keep the azalea in the sunniest window and in as cool a temperature as possible. Water the soil thoroughly once a week and syringe the foliage every three or four days—using tepid water. Every 2nd week spray the underside of the leaves with a Black Leaf 40 soapy water solution to control insects. Fertilize once a month.

Potting plants will be an easy chore if you'll follow directions.

LED THE PETES TO WIN—Chum Fryia (left) and Bert Hill led the Petes to a 7-5 win over Oshawa Truckmen here last night in a neat senior "B" puck fray. Chum proved to be the triggerman with two timely goals and Bert was the insurance man with two markers. The Petes have a game here Monday against Belleville.

Petes Beat The Truckmen By A Count Of 7 to 5 In Speedy Senior Contest

The fourth-place Petes crept to within a game of third spot in their OHA senior "B" group standing here last night by downing the leading Oshawa Truckmen 7-5 before nearly 1,400 fans. They had to come from behind with a four-goal splurge in the last period to yank out the victory in a speedy, clean contest. The visitors drew six of the 11 penalties, one being a match misconduct in the third to Sinden for pushing Referee Bill Holway of Belleville and using abusive language after drawing a holding penalty.

Oshawa led 3-1 in the first frame and were still in front by 4-3 going into the third when the Petes caught fire to blast home four goals to one. It was the fourth loss in a row for the Truckmen. Belleville plays Petes here Monday night.

LED THE WAY

Chum Fryia and Bert Hill each tallied twice for the Redmond men with singles going to Gus Leonard, Bill Crowley and Bill McMaster. Two assists each were chalked up to Crowley, McMaster, Ted Collins and Coach Eddie Redmond. The Oshawa goals were by Fred Etcher, Jim Holden, Frank Hooper, Bob Jago and Jerry Scott. Hooper and Etcher each had two assists, with George Samolenko and Ied Peters in on one each. The only casualty of the clean tilt was Doc Prentice who received a cut on the nose early in the fray, but he continued to play.

Oshawa had a definite edge in the first period. Etcher scoring early on an angle drive with Hooper's pass. Holden added another shortly with a surprise shot which Goalie Donlevy never saw, the play being built up by Hooper and Etcher. Hooper later went off for charging, and Prentice followed for slashing. They were back when Wilson got it for charging. He returned in time to see Crowley count one for Petes, but Hooper got it back right away on a close-in play with Etcher.

PETES IMPROVE

Play was scrambly but more even in the second. McMaster tallied halfway through on fast combination with Collins and Redmond, But Jago even that up shortly on a passing play with Peters and Samolenko in close. Collins drew a double roughing penalty and Wilson a single then, and Petes were a man short when Fryia counted on a breakaway with McMaster's passup, finishing it nicely.

The Petes took over in the third as the Oshawa crew, shy several regulars, found the pace too hot. Leonard tipped in a forward pass early on a play with Redmond and McMaster, the latter being a bashing checker as well as prominent on the attack. Hill got another from Crowley to put the Petes one up on a quick thrust in close. Crowley was gated for holding and McBeth followed for elbowing. Scott's deflected shot tied it once more. McMaster was away for tripping later when Fryia got the winning goal on a fast breakaway, being hampered all the way but finishing it smartly. Sinden then drew his match misconduct, and Hill scored the insurance marker from Crowley and Collins. McBeth went over for holding near the close.

Oshawa: Goal, Courtney; defence, Sinden and McBeth; centre, Hooper; wings, Holden and Etcher; Alts.: Jago, Wilson, Samolenko, Yourth, Scott and Peters.

Petes: Goal, Donlevy; defence, Redmond and McMaster; centre, Leonard; wings, Fryia and Greenlaw; Alts.: Hill, Crowley, Collins, Prentice, Belisle, Peterson, Munroe, Montgomery and Armstrong.

Referees: J. Crombie and W. Holway.

FIRST PERIOD

Oshawa—Etcher (Hooper)	5:55
Oshawa—Holden (Hooper, Etcher)	8:32
Petes—Crowley	16:25
Oshawa—Hooper (Etcher)	17:05

Penalties: Hooper, Prentice, Wilson.

SECOND PERIOD

Petes—McMaster (Collins, Redmond)	10:00
Oshawa—Jago (Peters, Samolenko)	14:50
Petes—Fryia (McMaster)	18:20

Penalties: Collins (2), Wilson.

THIRD PERIOD

Petes—Leonard (Redmond, McMaster)	1:40
Petes—Hill (Crowley)	2:36
Oshawa—Scott	4:36
Petes—Fryia	10:54
Petes—Hill (Crowley, Collins)	14:18

Penalties: Crowley, McBeth (2), McMaster, Sinden.

Black's, Collis Get Wins In Girls' Loop

Black's edged CGE 32-31 and Collis beat Lindsay Neill's 41-26 last night in keen Girls' Basketball League fixtures in the YWCA to wind up their pre-Christmas schedule. They will resume action early in January.

With just 36 seconds to go in the game, Electrics missed four free throws, D. Jackson and B. Luther being a shade off in their tries, and thus missed their chance to tie or win the game with Black's. H. Miller starred for the losers with 14 points, while G. Gibson and C. Bosnell of Black's shone in a game marked with good passing.

CGE led 8-7 in the first quarter but Black's were up 21-17 at the half and 31-26 going into the fourth when CGE rallied strongly. C. Bosnell led the winners with 14 points as C. Gibson got eight, R. Naylor six, R. Butcher three and V. Barnett one. H. Miller topped CGE with 14, B. Luther notching seven, D. Jackson five, M. Hodson three and J. Brunt two. Teams:

Black's — C. Bosnell, E. McIlhagga, R. Naylor, R. Butcher, M. Scanlon, M. Middleton, V. Barnett, C. Gibson.

CGE—J. Brunt, J. Phelan, K. Calladine, H. Miller, J. Pearson, M. Jones, D. Jackson, B. Luther, M. Hodson.

GOOD PASSING

The nightcap saw some neat passing plays, too, with both teams playing close zones. It was pretty even on ball possession but Lindsay was poor on shooting. The Collis crew built up an 11-5 lead in the initial inning and were in front 24-16 halfway through. They edged Neill's 7-6 in the third quarter and finished stronger.

M. Owen shone in a losing cause with 18 points, as two each were tallied by G. O'Brien, H. Robertson, D. Copp and M. Vanstone. Best in scoring for Collis was P. Stewart, with 14 points, J. Dunk clicking for 11, M. McIlvena and B. Rumble four each, as V. Rose got five; while J. LaPointe got two. Teams:

Lindsay—M. Owen, G. O'Brien, H. Robertson, D. Copp, M. Vanstone, D. Jordan, P. Hodgins.

Collis—J. Dunk, P. Stewart, J. LaPointe, B. Rumble, M. McIlvena, V. Rose.

Referee, W. Edger.

Kenora Team Chosen To Represent Canada

WINNIPEG (CP)—Jimmy Dunn of Winnipeg, vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced Friday night that Kenora Thistles, 1952-53 western intermediate champions, have been granted permission to represent Canada in an 11-game tour of Japan next year.

Dunn said it was decided at a recent CAHA meeting in Toronto that if the Ontario team turns down the offer, then it will be passed on to the senior Trail Smoke Eaters.

The Canadian team will leave Vancouver March 1 and return April 13.

M. Johnson Leads

Mary Johnson took all individual honors this week in the YMCA senior girls' bowling circuit. She rolled high three of 714 and top single of 287. Aces, Bombers, Commandos and Lucky Strikes took four points each from Corvettes, Hurricanes, Tigers and Glens in that order. The annual chicken roll will be next Wednesday night.

Dorothy Martin had a triple of 659, followed by Betty Castle with 630, L. Martin 625, Mary Hepburn 606, Betty Pogue 604 and B. Kay 601. Good singles were: D. Martin 260, B. Castle 258, Jean Ward 250, Jean Snape 247, B. Kay 241 and M. Hepburn 238.

H. Powell Rolls High

H. Powell had high single of 358 and D. Hanley top three of 602 in the Lucky Strike Bowling League. The 4-0 wins went to Callaghan, Reed, Miles and Parsons in that order over Knights, McBride, Dunfield and Gibbons, while Butcher and Graham drew 2-all.

Good triples were: M. Watson 600, G. Pearson 593, M. Tompkins 569, E. Miles 563, B. Hardill 550, M. Knights 549, L. Murdock 542, I. Penrose 526, H. Powell 512, G. SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Mike Rodden of Kingston writes: "Along the 'Rue de Travel' the word has gone around that the Peterborough edifice is the worst in the senior 'B' group. The Kingston Memorial Centre far surpasses any other. Belleville takes second place by a shade; Orillia runs third; Bowmanville rates fourth (where Oshawa plays) and the Liftlock City retains its former status quo. No two arenas have much in common and in that kind of a mixup the home forces should enjoy an advantage. It should however be pointed out that the Oshawa Truckers have become accustomed to performing on large ice surfaces and that they and Belleville Memos are not handicapped when playing in the Community Memorial Centre at Kingston."

* * * * * * *

This outside appraisal of Peterborough's hockey facilities—or, rather, lack of them—is interesting. When local folks learn that a small centre like Bowmanville has a better arena than a city as large as Peterborough it must make them think. A town like Orillia has a far better arena, and in fact villages like Omemee, Marmora and even Apsley are pretty much on a par with what we have to offer visiting hockey teams and local fans. We'd like to see a lot of prominent people (the council and the Memorial Centre included) visit that scrumptious community centre edifice which graces Kingston. It would be an eye-opener.

* * * * * * *

Just Like the Gardens

A miniature Maple Leaf Gardens, that's what you could call the Kingston job, though "miniature" is hardly the right word, either. It accommodates about a third as many as Toronto's Gardens, and is every bit as smart a place. It isn't built anywhere near downtown, but out toward the edge, and they grabbed up every possible grant, governmental and otherwise, in the process of producing the project. Belleville, too, has a fine arena, though older. It is quite adequate for a city that size. Oshawa had a dandy place till fire levelled it last summer. Even Lindsay (a quarter the size of this city) has a smart structure.

* * * * * * *

We mention these facts as the subject is timely. Let's not miss the boat again this winter. The council has a lawyer working on the matter of getting a governmental okay on Morrow Park as the site. If this passes in February, there should be no reason why work couldn't commence in March. Ground should be broken then and the project pushed right along. Sometime ago (two or three years) the Memorial Centre committee shifted the responsibility of obtaining a site to the laps of the city council. They have gradually accepted it and only this year made a constructive step forward in putting a lawyer to work on lining up the Morrow Park deal to present to the Legislature in February for appproval. We trust the new council checks on this legal progress.

Untracked in the Third

It took the TPT Petes a spell to get untracked here last eve but they rolled well in the third period to trim Oshawa Truckmen 7-5 to move closer to third slot. If they can take Belleville here Monday p.m. they will be right in the thick of the race again for the leading positions. Bashing Bill McMaster and Speedy Bill Crowley were in on three goals each in a nice showing, while two points apiece were registered by Chum Fryia (who sure finishes off a play smartly), hard-working Bert Hill, Coach Eddie Redmond and Ted Collins. Hooper and Etcher went best over the route for the leading Truckmen. A goodly gallery saw the TPT-ers come from behind in the late stages to grab the verdict.

Lots of local basketball activity last gloaming. In girls' play at the YW, Black's yanked out a 32-31 decision o'er CGE as Collis took Lindsay 41-26. They won't resume till after New Year's. DeLaSalle barely beat St. Peter's seniors 38-37 in an OCC tilt, and SPS juniors dropped a 38-23 decision to the DeLaSalle lads. PCVS juniors bested Kenner cagers 46-32. Another joust saw the PCVS grads win 67-58 from the senior PCI-ers in a wide-open exhibition. There'll be a right entertaining exhibition men's tussle tonight at eight in St. Peter's gym when New York Black Barons tangle with Outboard Marines, and this touring colored cage crew puts on quite a show. They're classy, too.

Ban On Professional Boxing Outpoints Boxing Promoter

LONDON (CP)—Pint-sized Dr. Edith Summerskill won a split decision over burly fight promoter Jack Solomons Friday night by convincing a London debating society that professional boxing should be banned.

The red-haired member of Parliament, health minister in the last Labor government, outpointed Solomons by a vote of 13 to 11 when they tangled before the Hardwicke Society at the Temple in the heart of London's legal district.

The verbal battle began, appropriately enough, with the tinkling of a little brass bell. Dr. Summerskill moved right out of her corner.

"I seek to prohibit professional boxing on rational grounds," she said.

DOCTORS" SUPPORT

She claimed the support of "some of the finest medical men in the world, who have come to the conclusion that civilized society must prohibit commercialized fighting."

In the four years after the Second World War, 42 boxers had been killed in the United States and "thousands of others" had been made punch-drunk.

Dr. Summerskill then produced a cardboard box and pulled out a skull.

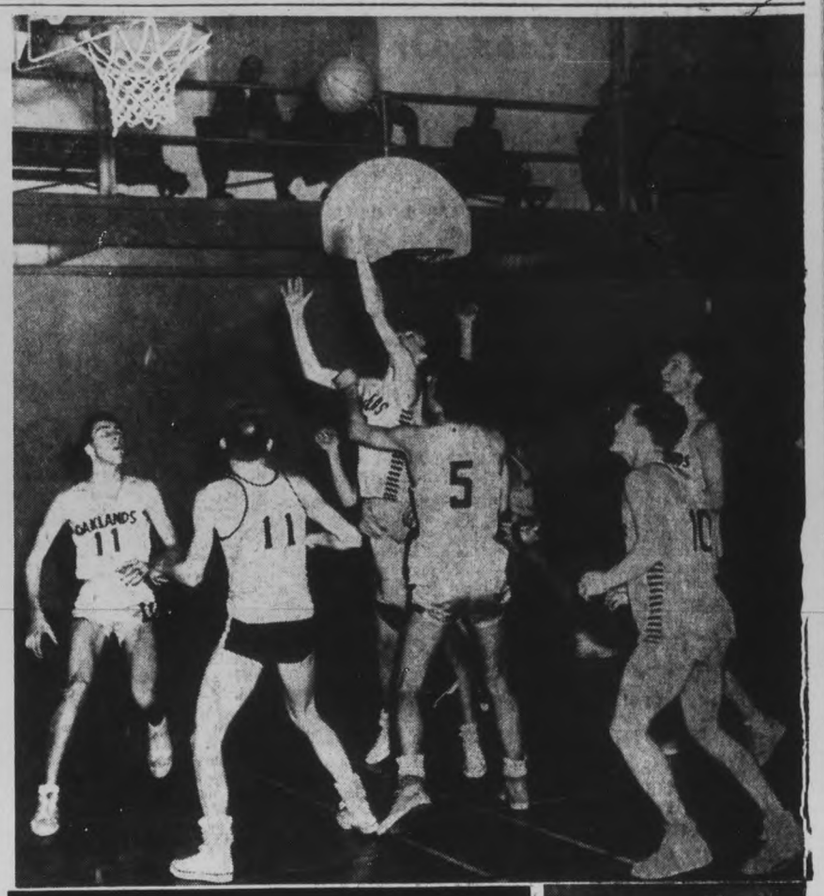
Holding up half of the skull she pointed out a ridge called the spenoidal ridge, against which the brain bounces every time it meets with impact.

PUNCH-DRUNK

Punches on the head, she said, cause the brain to bounce against the ridge and this may damage brain cells—"a condition known as being punch-drunk."

Solomons said only 21 boxers died in the ring in the United States from 1920 to 1952. But 43 athletes had been killed in baseball and 22 in football during the same period.

He landed his Sunday punch when he announced that Dr. Summerskill's son is one of the best boxers at his school. His opponent refused to comment.



Barons Edge Bisons In Stormy 3-2 Win

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Barons scored twice in the last period to defeat Buffalo Bisons, leaders of the American Hockey League 3-2 in a stormy game Friday night.

With four seconds left, a fist fight between Fred Glover of Cleveland and Frank Eddolls, the Buffalo playing manager, cost them both major penalties and nearly touched off a free-for-all. Glover was in the penalty box and Eddolls outside the rail when they started swinging.

Buffalo took the lead at 8:14 of the second period on Don Marshall's 19th goal of the season, but Jack Gordon soon tied it. In the final period, Glover and Eddie Olson gave Cleveland a 3-1 lead.

Steve Wochy scored the Bisons second goal.

Oaklands Get Close One Over SPS Hoopsters As High Schoolers Open

Hilly Yudin's St. Peter's High School seniors came within 32 seconds of their first victory in Ontario Catholic Conference basketball play Friday night. The Saints, winless in four years, led the DeLaSalle Oaklands, coached by Nobby Wirkowski, until the last minute, then lost out on foul shots 38-37. St. Peter's had a chance to tie and perhaps win the game with five seconds left to play but Dave Quinlan missed two foul shots, leaving the Oaklands still up by a point.

In other games opening the 1953-54 high school basketball season, the junior Saints were defeated by DeLaSalle Oaklands 38-23, the PCVS juniors turned back Kenner Collegiate juniors 46-32, and the PCVS grads returned for a one-night performance to hand Zolton Temesy's Garnet and Grey seniors a 67-58 setback.

The Saints - Oaklands senior game was the best and most exciting basketball opening game in Peterborough in several seasons. The aSints took a 14-1 lead in the first quarter, but Oaklands rallied to tie the score 16-all, then take the lead 23-20 at the half. During the second half the score never varied more than three points. In fact it was tied 29-all, 31-all, 35-all, and 37-all in the fourth quarter.

FOULED OUT

Then with 32 seconds remaining, Saints star, Doug Galvin fouled out, giving Oaklands' MacNamara two free throws. MacNamara missed the first, but sank the second for the winning point. Quinlan missed two foul shots 27 second later and the game went to Toronto.

Ab Ryan led the scoring with 15 points for St. Peter's while DeLaSalle's best were Balazovic with 10 and Baker with nine points.

The junior Saints-Oakland game was just the opposite. The Saints coached by John Lynch hung on throughout the first quarter, being down 9-7. But they faded quickly in the second quarter as the Oaklands surged ahead 22-9 at half-time. The Oaklands kept ahead 28-14 in the third quarter and withstood a Saints' rally in the fourth.

The Oaklands distributed their points well, their highest scorers, Connelly with nine and DeVriendt with seven. The Saints were led by Kane and Board, each with seven points.

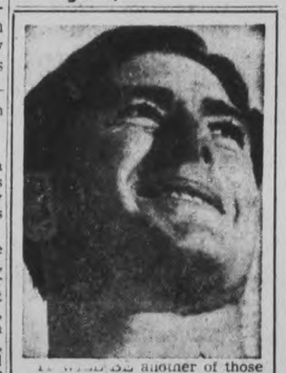
Building up an early first quarter lead, the Garnet and Grey juniors had little trouble with Kenner Collegiate in an exhibition game at PCVS' gym. Paul Davis sparked the PCVS quintet to a 16-4 first quarter. Then they went ahead 26-9 at the half, 36-18 at three-quarters and fell back on their lengthy lead in the fourth as Kenner rallied.

GOT 10 POINTS

Jim Bethany and Davis each sank 10 points for the collegians while blond Jerry Montgomery dropped in 10 points in Kenner's losing cause.

Cashing in on foul shots in the first quarter, the PCVS grads, especialy grouped together for this opening game, took a slight 18-15 lead on the PCVS seniors, coached this year by Zolton Temesy. Little Dave Langhorne, former star with the Garnet and Grey, led the Grads to a 32-26 score at half-time.

Neil Courneya sparked the 1953-45 seniors throughout the third quarter as the game quickened, slightly favouring the students. But once more foul shots became important, so much so that the Grads were able to keep their lead 48-43 at three-quarters, even though outscored 17-16 in that quarter.



Dan Griffin, didn't hit his stride until the fourth quarter. Then sank seven points to pace the Grads to a 19-point scoring parade which gave them a nine-point victory.

Langhorne topped all the scoring for the night totalling 19 points, closely followed by teammate Griffin with 16 and PCVS senior, Courneya with 16.

Profitable Week For NHL As Players Contribute $400 Fines

By ED SIMON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The way things are going, the National Hockey League can stop worrying about its dwindling attendance figures. It threatens to become the first self-supporting professional hockey league in history. League officials have discovered the answer to their financial woes in the mass misconduct penalty, a device which permits them to chase all the players to their dressing rooms and collect a $25 entry fee from them as they file through the door.

Referee Frank Udvari introduced the sure-fire money-maker in Toronto Wednesday night when he broke up a free-for-all between the Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens and tagged everyone with misconduct penalties, which carry an automatic $25 fine.

League officials reviewed the sentence Thursday and reluctantly decided to let off eight players who were permitted to remain on the ice and one who was serving a minor penalty at the time of the outbreak.

Even so, the league was enriched by $375 and was able to make it an even $400 when Chicago goalie Al Rollins was nicked for $25 for pushing around referee Jack Mehlenbacher as the Hawks dropped a 5-3 decision to Montreal the following night.

WEEKEND GAMES

It remains to be seen whether the players or the customers will pay the freight in the NHL's busy round of weekend activities, but the schedule promises a few attractions that are likely to keep the fans interested.

Detroit fans, awed by the news that the Red Wings haven't won a game in their last four, can be expected to turn up either for Boston Bruins' visit Saturday night or Montreal's appearance Sunday.

Toronto fans will get a chance to celebrate captain Ted Kennedy's 28th birthday as the Leafs entertain Chicago Saturday night. At the same time they can check on goalie Harry Lumley's progress as he leads the pack in pursuit of the Vezina Trophy.

New York Rangers will be in Montreal Saturday, trying for their first victory at the Forum since February, 1950. Sunday they play host to Toronto while the Bruins visit the last-place Hawks.

Remember When—

Freddy Fox, one of England's great jockeys, was killed in an automobile accident in England eight years ago today. Fox had retired in 1936 after a 30-year career in the saddle, during which he twice won the Derby and for two years was first-string jockey for King George V.

St. Mike's Crush Barrie 5-1; In 2nd Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mixing studies and hockey doesn't seem to bother Toronto St. Michael's College Majors.

The only school team in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, the Collegians are also the most improved of any team since the season started.

Rated as the team to beat in pre-season predictions, the Majors got off to a glum start and at one time were sitting second from the bottom in the nine-team loop.

Today they are riding an eight-game winning streak and are two points behind the league-leading St. Catharines TeePees. They chalked up their eighth in a row Friday night with a 5-1 victory over Barrie Flyers in the first game of a Toronto doubleheader.

SNATCH VICTORY

In the second game Toronto Marlboros, led by rookies, roared from behind a three-goal deficit to take a 4-3 victory over Galt Black Hawks.

Hamilton Tigers edged out the Biltmores 4-3 in Guelph during the other league game.

Les and Dick Duff racked up seven points between them for St. Michael's. Dick fired three goals and assisted on another and Les notched up two assists and a goal. Defenceman Noel Price netted the other Toronto tally. Jim Robertson broke Bob Dodds' shutout.

Galt led 3-0 going into the final session. But Marlboros, paced by rookies Mike Nykoluk, who scored two goals, and Al Larose, who got the one that won it, roared back with four markers in five minutes to steal the victory. Wally Maxwell scored the other Marlboro goal.

Pete Kowalchuk, Ed Sleaver and Ron Halstead shared the Galt total.

GOAL-A-PERIOD

Bill Stewart scored a goal a period for Hamilton. Ted Reid notched the other marker for the Tigers. Bill McCreary, Paul Midghall and Bob Attersley were the Guelph marksmen.

Kitchener Greenshirts are expected to be back at full strength when they meet the Black Hawks in Galt tonight. Quebec Citadelles are at Marlboros and Guelph is at St. Michael's in a doubleheader at Toronto Sunday.

Harry Lumley Takes Lead In Vezina Trophy Race

By WALTER GRAY

TORONTO (CP) — Goalkeeper Harry Lumley, whose early-season efforts last year left Toronto Maple Leaf fans cold, has the crowd cheering him these days. He has taken the lead from Detroit Red Wings' Terry Sawchuk in the race for the Vezina Trophy.

In 27 National Hockey League games, the 27-year-old netminder from Owen Sound has scored four shutouts and has allowed 42 goals for an average of 1.55 goals a game.

Sawchuk, trophy winner the last two seasons, slipped behind Lum this week. In 24 games he has scored five shutouts and allowed 46 goals for a 1.91 average.

In the last three games Lumley has recorded two shutouts, over Montreal Canadiens and the Wings.

The Vezina Trophy and $1,000 cash is awarded annually to the goalkeeper who has played the most games for the team with the fewest goals scored against it.

LUM PLEASED

Lumley wears no feather in his cap.

"Ah, there's not much I can say about it," he said in an interview Friday. "I'm pleased so far and I hope the front office is too."

Harry has made his best showing this season for the home crowd who gave him a verbal blasting early in the 1952-53 season. He's scored all four shutouts at the Gardens against every other team in the league except the last-place Chicago Black Hawks who play Leafs here Saturday night.

PLAYING BEST SEASON

Experts figure Lumley is playing his best season this year. He turned pro in 1943 with Indianapolis of the American Hockey League. The same season he played two games with Detroit and allowed 13 goals. Hustled back to Indianapolis for further experience he returned to the Wings in mid-season the following year and remained with them until 1951 when he was traded to Chicago Black Hawks.

Hab-Leaf Game Penalties Set Record For Big League

MONTREAL (CP) — National Hockey League officials came wearily out of a long huddle Friday and announced they have established these figures in connection with the Wednesday game between Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs—the game that was almost blown to smithereens late in the last period:

There were 36 penalties in all—a record. There were 18 penalties to each club. Research showed the previous high in total penalties was 35—all minors in a game Nov. 12, 1931, with New York Rangers in Montreal.

The Leafs had nine minor penalties, two majors and seven misconduct penalties.

Canadiens had eight minors, two majors and eight misconduct penalties.

Total penalties in minutes were 264, another record. Previous high was Oct. 12, 1952, when Leafs played at Detroit, and the total was 78 minutes. In that game there were 25 penalties—19 minors, four majors, one misconduct and one game-misconduct.

NHL $375 RICHER

Canadiens amassed 106 penalty-minutes and Leafs 98.

The 15 misconduct penalties, at an automatic fine of $25 against each man, means the NHL will collect $375.

It took a lot of telephoning and telegraphing before referee-in-chief Carl Voss decided he had the records straight. He talked with referee Frank Udvari and other officials connected with the game. At the end president Clarence Campbell of the NHL said he was satisfied Voss had correctly analyzed the whole business. There was no further statement from Campbell.

OFFICIAL RECORD

The official record now shows these players received misconduct penalties, including George Armstrong and Eddie Mazur who got the heave-ho on minor and misconduct counts before the melee broke out.

Montreal—Eddie Mazur, Bernie Geoffrion, Dick Gamble, Maurice Richard, Calum MacKay, Paul Meger, Paul Masnick, Ken Mosdell.

NEW YORK (AP) — Wallace (Bud) Smith, 136, No. 1 challenger for Jimmy Carter's lightweight title, shook up Orlando Zulueta, 135, in seventh and eighth-round flurries Friday night to win a unanimous 10-round decision over the slick jab-and-clutch artist from Havana.

Always moving after his fleet, dancing opponent, Smith managed to slam home enough solid hooks to the head and body to convince all three officials.

Referee Ruby Goldstein saw it 7-2-1, judge Artie Susskind 7-3 and judge Bert Grant 5-4-1, all in favor of Smith.

NO KNOCKDOWNS

There were no knockdowns in the dullish bout that was watched by a crowd of 2,991 and a television audience.

Zulueta was on the deck three times but never from a punch. He was pushed down in the third when Goldstein started to count and then changed his mind. He tripped over Smith's leg in the eighth and fell through the ropes while ducking punches that never landed in the ninth.

Landy Runs 4:02 Mile, Misses Record

MELBOURNE (AP)—Almost a year to the day he first gained international fame, slender John Landy today ran the third fastest winning mile in history, a 4:02 effort at Olympic Park only six tenths of a second off a world record.

Landy's time was exceeded only by the world record of 4:01.4 set by Sweden's Gunder Haegg in 1945 and by the 4:01.6 of Sweden's Arne Andersson in 1944 for a then world mark.

Roger Bannister of England ran a 4:02 mile earlier this year, but the time was not recognized because it was a paced mile.

In contrast to a week ago when he ran a 4:09.8 mile, Landy was helped today by a swift 58.2 first quarter set by John Marks, the former Aussie mile champion. At the half-mile, time in 1:58.6, Landy was in front by 20 yards. He steadily increased his margin during the last half-mile, winning by 200 yards He finished running into a headwind of 6.1 feet a second.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies, who witnessed the run, exclaimed: "It was colossal. Give him someone to go with him and he will win the four-minute mile for Australia."

Menzies was at the finish line to greet the 23-year-old medical student, who seemed disappointed at his effort.

"I knew all week I was going for a fast run, but I did not tell anyone," he said. "I needed the initiative at the 200-yard mark, but could not do it."

End Port Walkout

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters)—Port workers who struck here Thursday to support demands for higher pay, work bonuses and revision of vacation periods, resumed work Friday night. Their union spokesman said the strike was called off for 15 days on assurance from a government conciliation officer that there would be no victimization and that their demands would be considere Tuesday.

Win 2 Out of 3

STIRLING (ENS)— Stirling minor hockey teams won two out of three games played at Marmora.

The midgets and juveniles each won 3-0 over Norwood. Austin, Roy and Kidd were the scorers for the midgets and Parks, Herniston and Palmer for the juveniles. The bantams were defeated 5-2.

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Finance Minister Sir Oliver Goonetilleke left Ceylon today for the United States to seek a $16,000,000 loan from the World Bank. Sir Oliver, accompanied by a three-man delegation, will stop off in London en route to Washington.

ROLLINS FINED $25

CHICAGO (AP)—Goalie Al Rollins of Chicago Black Hawks was fined $25 for a fracas with referee Jack Mehlenbacher in Thursday night's 5-3 loss to the Canadiens in Montreal.

The Hawks disclosed the fine by Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, was based on Mehlenbacher's report Rollins "deliberately and intentionaly molested" him in a dispute over a goal scored by Maurice Richard.

Mercurys Drop Chatham 4-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's games like the one in Chatham Friday night that cause old-timers to say modern hockey is going soft.

Only two minor penalties were called as Owen Sound Mercurys defeated Chatham Maroons 4-2 to take sole possession of third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings.

In Sudbury, the Wolves regained first place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A standings by downing Pembroke Lumber Kings 4-2.

Chatham's Bill Cupulo and Owen Sound's Ralph Hosking were the only offenders in Chatham and both penalties were called in the third period.

OWEN SOUND MARKSMEN

Herb Carnegie, Roy Leckie and Bill McComb were the Owen Sound marksmen. Jimmy Campbell and Al Plouffe notched the Chatham goals.

At Sudbury Andy Milne, Yacker Flynn, Hub Beaudry and Frank King scored a goal each for the Wolves. Hal Mayer and Marcotte tallied for Pembroke.

Week-end action has Windsor at Stratford, Chatham at Hamilton and Niagara Falls at Kitchener tonight. Owen Sound is at Windsor Sunday.

In the NOHA tonight Pembroke plays Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Sudbury meets the Trappers in North Bay. The Lumber Kings tangle with the Indians in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sunday.

Britain's 1953 Sport Achievement Winning The Ashes From Australia

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The 1953 British sports record—though smudged by soccer and boxing reverses—was still the most encouraging of the post-war era.

England won the Ashes, coveted symbol of cricket supremacy. Horse racing more than held its own, and track produced high hopes for the British Empire games at Vancouver next summer and the European games immediately following.

Among the names to remember in 1953 were these: Len Hutton and Alec Bedser (cricket), Sir Gordon Richards (racing), Stanley Matthews (soccer), Roger Bannister, Gordon Pirie and Jim Peters (track), Joe Carr and Canada's Marlene Stewart (golf).

CRICKET TRIUMPH

The first two were key men in wresting the Ashes from Australia for the first time in 20 years. It was a typical English campaign. The first four matches were drawn, largely because of desperation batting stands by England.

The break came in the fifth match at London's Oval, where England's curve bowling finally blunted and subdued the heavy-hitting Australian attack. Hutton was the pay-off batsman. Bedser took 39 wickets, a series record.

The long-suspect state of soccer was brutally revealed at Wembley Stadium late in November. A state-trained team from Hungary outclasses the best English squad since the war, winning 6-3 with a dazzling display of passing, speed and teamwork.

Randolph Turpin, big gun in Britain's sadly-stocked armory of boxing, fumed away his chance to regain the world middleweight crown. The temperamental Turpin lost on points to Carl (Bobo) Olson from San Francisco.

The highlight of the horse-racing season was provided by the burly colt Pinza, owned by Sir Victor Sassoon and an easy winner in the Derby over the Queen's Aureole. Pinza gave champion jockey Sir Gordon Richards his first victory in the classic he had been trying to win for nearly three decades.

A few weeks later, the 49-year-old jockey knelt before the Queen to receive the accolade of knighthood, first ever awarded to a jockey.

French owner Marcel Boussac, who dominated British racing nearly every year since 1948, had little luck in 1953. A new challenger emerged from Ireland. P. J. (Paddy) Prendergast was leading Irish flat trainer for the fourth straight year and won 10 races in England, valued at £13,700.

His two top horses were The Pie King, and Sixpence, respectively the leading two-year-old colt and filly of the year. Both were sold for export, The Pie King to the United States and Sixpence to Alberta Ranches.

Prendergast was suspended by the English Jockey Club in October for alleged discrepancies in the performance of his horse Blue Sail, but the jockey club gave him a clean slate.

Aside from losing its 90-year record of home invincibility to Hungary and showing its age, British soccer prospered. Arsenal squeaked to the league championship ahead of West Bromwich Albion. Blackpool, equipped with ageless Stanley Matthews, beat Bolton 4-3 in the Football Cup final.

At 39, Matthews won his first winners' medal. His performance resulted in his recall to the English international team later in the year.

A freckled, five-foot Canadian girl was the scintillating figure in the women's ranks. Marlene Stewart, 19-year-old school lass from Fonthill, Ont., became the first Canadian ever to win the British women's amateur golf crown.

Her victory left British sports writers breathless. In defeating Irish champion Philomena Garvey 7 and 6 over the 36-hole final at Porthcawl, Wales, she was described as "one of the world's finest golfers."

Joe Carr of Ireland wrested the British amateur golf crown from a long American possession. And the Ryder Cup produced the most tingling finish in its history when victory for the British hinged and fell on two one-yard putts by Peter Alliss and B. J. Hunt. Both missed.

ATHLETES SHINE

In track, marathoner Jim Peters established a world record. Spindle-legged Gordon Pirie crept close to Gundar Haegg's 5,000-metre and three-mile marks and set a short-lived world six-mile record. Miler Roger Bannister got within two seconds of the four-minute mile.

Tennis at Wimbledon was an American - Australian show. The Aussie twins Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad faltered in the singles—American Vic Seixas won—but kept the doubles. Maureen Connolly from California blasted her way to another singles crown.

Hockey suffered reverses from high taxes and ice show competition. Fewer Canadians played and the number of teams dropped to five in the English League, an all-time low. There were signs that the still-prosperous Scottish League might hook up with the southern division next year—or that clubs would be redistributed in the south to provide more of them and keener competition.

GAVILAN WINS AWARD

NEW YORK (AP)—Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan was voted as 1953's "fighter of the year" by the Boxing Writers Association.

Gavilan will receive the Edward J. Neil memorial plaque Jan. 14 at the association's annual dinner. The 27-year-old Havana "Keed" defended his crown three times during the year, defeating Chuck Davey, Carmen Basilio and Johnny Bratton. He turned in outstanding performances while knocking out Davey and battering Bratton.

The Neil plaque, presented annually to the fighter who did the most for the sport during the year, is named in memory of the former Associated Press boxing writer who was killed in 1938 while serving as a war correspondent in Spain. Gavilan became the first non-U.S. boxer to win it.

Gavilan, given a unanimous ballot by the 44 voting members, succeeds Rocky Marciano, 1952 winner. Lightweight champion Jimmy Carter and middleweight king Bobo Olson also were considered.

The flashy Cuban lost only one fight of 10 in 1953, an upset defeat by Danny (Bang Bang) Womber at Syracuse, N.Y., May 2.

MONEY-MAKING TROTTER

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Newport Dream, winter book favorite for next year's Hambletonian three-year-old trotting classic at Goshen, N.Y., was the leading money-winning harness horse of 1953.

The bay colt, winner of 20 of 22 starts, earned $94,933, an all-time high for a two-year-old, the U.S. Trotting Association announced Friday.

The son of Axomite-Miss Key is a product of the Newport Stock Farm stable of Plainfield, N.J., owned by Octave Blake, president of the Grand Circuit. Del Cameron was the trainer-driver.

Kimberley Kid, owned by Allwood Stables of Far Hils, N.J., was the No. 2 money winner with $91,192.

Helicopter, owned by J. Elgin and C. E. Armstrong of Brampton, Ont., won $85,028 for third position. Helicopter won this year's Hambletonian.

FIGHTS ALMOST LEGAL

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Utah law enforcement officers can go to the fights with a clear conscience.

Prize fighting is finally legal in Utah.

Well, almost, anyway.

The state senate has repealed an ancient statute which declared prize fighting to be a felony.

The house of representatives already has passed the measure, and it now goes to Governor J. Bracken Lee.

A boxing fan himself, he's expected to sign it.

Professional and amateur boxing has been held in Utah for many years despite the law.

NHL VETERAN TO RETURN

CALGARY (CP)—Coach Frank Currie of Calgary Stampeders has announced that centre Jimmy McFadden, National Hockey League veteran, will join the Western Hockey League team here soon.

McFadden, 33, was named the NHL's top rookie when he broke in with Detroit Red Wings in 1947. He was traded to Chicago in 1951 and retired last month after a slow start.

Dr. Nardiello Voted Memorial Plaque

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Vincent Nardiello, 65-year-old New York state athletic commission physician, today was voted the James J. Walker Memorial Plaque for long and meritorious service to boxing by the New York Boxing Writers Association. Light heavyweight Floyd Patterson also was named "rookie of the year" for 1953.

Dr. Nardiello, Patterson and welter champ Kid Gavilan, who was voted the Edward J. Neil Plaque, will receive their awards at the annual dinner of the association Jan. 14. The "rookie" award has been renamed the James J. Dawson Plaque in memory of the late boxing writer for the New York Times.

Reaume Stands By With Toronto Leafs

TORONTO (CP)—Marc Reaume, defenceman with Toronto St. Michael's College of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, will act as a stand-by for Toronto Maple Leafs during their National Hockey League game with Chicago Black Hawks tonight.

Leafs, hard hit by injuries, are short of defencemen.

Hugh Bolton, who has been playing with Ottawa Senators of the Quebec League, will be in the Toronto line-up tonight.

Blue Bombers Want New Coach But Deny Trafton's Been Fired

WINNIPEG (CP)—Tough-talking George Trafton says he figures the ax fell on his coaching job with Winnipeg Blue Bombers when he decided against dodging out the door marked resignation.

But this is denied by Blue Bombers, who say at the same time that they don't plan to have Trafton mastermind the Western Interprovincial Football Union champions next season.

With Trafton pointing out that his three-year contract still has a year to go, and the club no more than fingering the ax, the situation is stalemated.

Trafton said Friday before leaving for Chicago that he had been fired from the football team he led into this year's Grey Cup battle, which Blue Bombers lost 12-6 to Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

TOLD DECISION

The former Chicago Bear centre said he was informed of the club's decision Thursday by president Karl Slocomb. He said he had been asked to resign but had refused to do so.

Friday night Slocomb said the club executive had unanimously agreed to a management committee recommendation that a new man be hired as "head coach" for 1954.

In the past, he said, Bombers never had had a "head coach." Trafton was signed as "a coach" and "he still is 'a coach' with the club."

ISSUES STATEMENT

Slocomb issued a statement which said in part:

"At a meeting of the management committee held at noon, Tuesday, Dec. 8, the contract of George E. Trafton was discussed and it was unanimously decided by those present to recommend to the executive that in the best interests of the Winnipeg Rugby Football Club a new man as head coach should be hired for 1954."

Slocomb said he talked with Trafton Thursday and "informed him of the recommendation to be submitted to the executive Friday night."

The club president said he suggested to Trafton that "in his own interests he consider the situation with a view to seeing whether some mutually satisfactory arrangement could be worked out."

"Trafton agreed to call Slocomb by noon Friday to advise him of any decision which he had reached. He did not communicate with Slocomb as he had agreed."

Slocomb said Trafton can "look for another job if he wants to," indicating the club would not stand in the way of the $12,000-a-year coach.

COLORFUL CAREER

The 56-year-old Trafton had a long and colorful football career in the United States. He played college ball at Notre Dame under the late Knute Rockne and professional ball with the Chicago Staleys, now Bears. He was assistant coach of Green Bay, Cleveland and Los Angeles pro teams.

In Canada, he has been one of the game's most controversial figures. A man with a colorful vocabulary, he's been in red-hot arguments with executive members, sports writers, radio broadcasters and even, it is said, with his own players.

With previous rumors that Trafton was on his way out, much speculation on a possible successor has centred around Tommy Thompson, former Philadelphia Eagle quarterback cut from Bombers' playing roster at the Oct. 1 import deadline.

Britain's Stately Homes Disappearing Under Taxes

LONDON—Since the end of the war, more than sixty great houses in the United Kingdom, all of them rich in historic associations, have disappeared. That's the measure of the threat which hangs over Britain's stately homes today writes Arthur Gaunt in the Montreal Star.

During the last twelve months alone, not less than twenty mansions have been added to this sorry list—none of them razed by fire, but deliberttely demolished or allowed to fall into ruin, because they can no longer be kept in good repair.

They include Halnaby Hall, Yorkshire, which in its heydays was a fine residence with Byron association; Langford Grove, Essex, formerly famous for its splendid interior; and Guy's Cliff House, Warwickshire, traditionally associated with the Earl of Warwick who became a hermit after performing heroic deeds in the Holy Land.

TRAGEDY IS PLAIN

Even in a country noted for its wealth of historic treasures the tragedy is plain to see. Homes famous in literature are among those theatened . . . or have already vanished. A particularly grievous loss was the disappearance of High Sunderland Hall, near Halifax, in 1951.

The venerable hall figured in Emily Bronte's "Wuthering Heights," yet it had to be razed, having fallen into such disrepair that its restoration would have been uneconomic.

Another mansion which has suffered the same fate is Dalton Holme Hall, the East Riding home of the Hotham family since the time of the Reformation. It, too, is regarded as beyond repair and is having to come down.

Crippling taxation, high death duties, soaring repair costs, and a dearth of maintenance staff have combined to produce the dilemma facing many great British families today. Circumstances have compelled the Earl of Leicester to live in a single wing of palatial Holkham Hall, and Lord Newton has closed Lyme Hall and dispersed its contents.

Only a few months ago, the Nottinghamshire Cliftons sold their family seat for conversion into an education centre, and went to live in an unpretentious house in the nearby village. The move ended a family association with Clifton Hall which extended over several centuries.

Other owners are staving off the need of similar steps by renting their castles and halls to colleges or institutions. Others again are meeting the problem by thowing open their fine residences to the public and charging a small sum for the privilege—an idea which would doubtless have horrified their forebears, yet which enables the buildings to earn something towards their upkeep.

Since 1945, dozens of mansions, hitherto rarely open to every Tom, Dick or Harry, have swung back their doors and invited the public to come inside. In some cases the owners themselves hand out the tickets in the entrance hall, while family portraits look down from the walls on to this unprecedented scene.

One splendid home which has extended an invitation to tourists is Syon House, near Kew, and every week during the summer hundreds of visitors have wandered through its sumptuous staterooms, admired the beautiful furniture, and stared at the immensely valuable paintings.

When the Duke of Northumberland decided to have regular "open days" here, he introduced an entirely new era in the history of Syon House. The mansion had not been opened to the public for 100 years. The last occasion was in connection with the Great Exhibition of 1851.

Crowds nowadays troop round the wonderfully appointed apartments of Wilton House, near Salisbury, which for 400 years has been the family seat of the Earls of Pembroke and Montgomery, and other sightseers bear down on such palaces as Burton Agnes Hall (Yorkshire), Castle Howard (ancient home of the Earls of Carlisle) and Knebworth House, the Gothic residence of the Lyttons—all for the price of a ticket.

Nowadays the Duke of Devonshire nets £16,000 a year towards the upkeep of Chatworth House by charging for tours round the ducal mansion, and visitors to the gardens bring him another £5,000. Since the Duke of Rutland threw open Haddon Hall, Derbyshire, more than 60,000 have accepted his invitation—and paid 2.6d a time for the privilege. But staff wages and other expenses considerably reduce the gross takings, and only a few mansions are suitably situated to attract such large numbers of visitors.

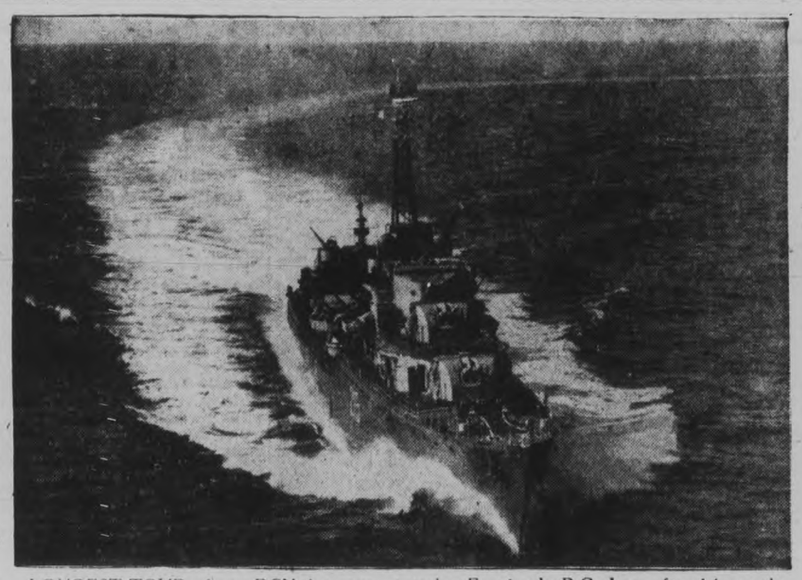
The National Trust has come to the rescue of some owners, under an arrangement whereby they are allowed to remain in residence though the Trust takes over the property, with a condition that the public be given access on certain days each week.

Not every owner beset by upkeep problems is able to meet the requirements of the Trust, yet a considerable number of great houses have been handed over during the last few years. Others have been bequeathed by owners who realized that the maintenance of the properties would probably be a handicap rather than an asset to their successors.

Lord Jersey bequeathed Osterly Park to the nation, and today this imposing mansion a few miles out of London is a mecca of sightseers. They can see for themselves the splendor which prompted Walpole to describe the house as "the palace of Palaces."

Charlecote Park, in Shakespeare's Country, had been handed over to the Trust, after being in the same family for more than 700 years, and Montacute House, formerly the home of the Marquis of Curzon, is today national property.

The threat of deterioration hangs so heavily over many of Britain's ducal homes and ancestral castles that a few months ago the Government introduced measures to meet it. A sum of £250,000 a year has been earmarked for preserving such historic properties, and the Ministry of Works has been empowered to spend £2,500,00 in five years on purchasing others, so that they can be properly cared for.



The total number of houses for which Government aid may ultimately be sought is said to exceed 1,000. Some 200 are stated to be in urgent need of attention.

Yet it would be incorrect to imply that this problem is entirely new. The transfer of splendid houses to public ownership has been practised in Britain for more than 50 years, many having been acquired by municipal authorities for conversion into museums.

Never before, however, has Government help been sought for so many occupied mansions, and never before have so many of these great houses been thrown open by the famous families living in them.

Tours to these places are nowadays a popular attraction, especially among visitors from overseas. Thus there is at least one bright facet to the present sombre story of the Stately Homes of Britain.

The principle of free public libraries was established in Britain by a parliamentary act of 1850.

LONGEST TOUR of any RCN destroyer in the Korean theatre has just been completed by HMCS Athabaskan, seen steaming to her Esquimalt, B.C., base after 14 months of duty. This is the third such assignment for the Athabaskan, which has piled up more than 170,000 miles in the three tours.

Stock Markets Ending Week On More Optimistic Note

By BOB JOHNSTONE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Slow and low. That was the week's stock market activity.

Trading in New York, Montreal and Toronto was quiet as prices dipped in most groups, and the recent dullness of all markets continued. However, the Toronto and New York markets ended the week on a more optimistic note.

Toronto trading saw base metals taking the biggest losses and it was that group which showed an upward trend toward the close of Friday's session. Consolidated Smelters led the base metals lower.

Most senior base metals followed Consolidated's lower trend, although juniors were mixed throughout most of the week's sessions.

Industrials were lower on the Toronto market as financial houses and utilities, the recent mainstays of the group, slipped in mixed trading. Papers, although generally strong, showed a few weak spots. Textiles gained slightly.

Golds continue their recent downward movement.

OILS RALLY

Western oils were lower most of the week, although Thursday saw a rally that put the group in winning territory. Friday's trading was mixed, however, and the group was lower at the close despite a determined last-hour comeback attempt.

The Friday-to-Friday Toronto index comparison showed industrials down 2.79 at 309.79, golds down .87 at 66.26, base metals down 3.83 at 141.02 and western oils down 1.88 at 86.90.

Montreal, too, showed a lower trend in quiet trading in most groups. Papers joined banks, steels and utilities on the downward path. Mines and western oils were also lower in gradually weakening trading.

The weekly comparison showed banks down .62 at 35.66, utilities down .50 at 93.50, industrials down 2.20 at 184.30, combined down 1.80 at 153.90, papers down 18.97 at 763.49 and golds up .31 at 49.86.

NEW YORK SLIPS

Railroads and tobaccos led the New York market lower. The week began with the biggest decline in three weeks, then continued downward at a slower pace.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost $1.50 at $108.30.

On the bond market, the Bank of Canada reported that the eighth series of Canada savings bonds sold better than any previous issue with a record total of $852,000,000, compared to $340,000,000 in 1952.

NEW SCHOOL OPENED

BELLEVILLE (CP)—Most Rev. J. A. O'Sullivan, archbishop of Kingston, officially opened Belleville's third Roman Catholic school today. The archbishop also announced the establishment of a new Catholic parish in Belleville's residential east end.

Rev. Ernest Young Dies In Windsor

WINDSOR (CP) — Rev. Ernest William Young, 74, a native of Sligo, Ireland, died Friday.

Mr. Young came to Canada 25 years ago from Belfast and held pastorates in the United Church of Canada at Pickering, London, Ont., and Brantford.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter and three sons.

Mrs. Burnham Heads Evening Auxiliary

HASTINGS—(ENS)—The evening auxiliary of Trinity United Church met at the home of the president, Mrs. R. R. Burnham.

The president opened the meeting with words of greeting, a poem, meditations and Christmas prayer.

Each member was to bring a toy. These are to be sent to the Scott Mission in Toronto. Gifts for the annual white gift service, December 20, will consist of money. All are asked to place their gift in a white envelope.

Auditors for the year are Mrs. Clarence Lackhart and Miss Mae Webster.

Convener for the nominating committee, Mrs. Alton Thompson, presented the following slate of officers for 1954: President, Mrs. R. R. Burnham; vice-president, Miss Marjorie Scriver; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Leonard Metcalfe; secretary, Mrs. F. S. Crate; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Orr; press, Mrs. T. S. Crate; Christian citizenship, Mrs. C. Oliver; community friendship, Mrs. T. Humpheries; Christian stewardship, Mrs. Harvey Youngs; pianist, Mrs. Marjorie Scriver; associate members, Mrs. C. Scriver; supply secretary, Mrs. C. Lockhart; literature, Mrs. Walter Thomas.

The first meeting of the new year will be held on January 12, when the installation of officers will take place. Mrs. C. Scriver will be convener of the committee, assisted by Mrs. C. Skinkle, Mrs. F. Stevenson and Mrs. W. Thomas.

The theme of the meeting was the first Christmas story, with Mrs. C. Lockhart convener, assisted by Mrs. L. Metcalfe and Mrs. C. Oliver.

The story was told by Miss Dorothy Child. Special music was played by Miss M. Scriver and the anthem was sung by Mesdames E. Hess, J. Jones, L. Scriver, C. Skinkle, J. G. Thompson and Miss J. Hofman.

The president closed the meeting with a poem. Prayer was offered by the Rev. N. Cole. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Liberal MP Says New Law Could Be Used To Strangle Trade

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal member of Parliament from Saskatchewan Friday said in the Commons that a government measure to tighten anti-dumping laws could be used to strangle trade.

Walter Tucker, member for Rosthern, said he does not see how Revenue Minister McCann will be able to administer the measure if it is passed by Parliament.

The bill would deal with sharp seasonal price cuts in imported manufactured goods by providing for an appraisal for customs duty purposes. This appraisal would be of a "weighted average" price based on prices for the imported goods in the country of origin up to six months prior to the date of import.

Provisions of the bill went into effect last Tuesday and the measure writes into law the action already taken. The step was taken after representations by the textile industry against sharp seasonal drops in the price of imported U.S. textiles. Revenue Minister McCann has described this as a "special kind of dumping."

After lengthy debate, the Commons approved the bill in principle and started clause-by-clause consideration of it.

Mr. Tucker said trade could be strangled by a minister delaying a ruling on the duty until after the imported goods had been sold and then imposing a duty that would mean a loss for the importer.

Mr. Tucker said it is a bad policy to pass such a law at a time when Canada is protesting to the United States about trade restrictions on Canadian exports to the U.S.

Hon. Earl Rowe (PC—Dufferin-Simcoe) said he supports the measure although "it looks like a gunshot prescription knowing that the patient is in trouble but not knowing what the prescription is going to do."

He wondered whether the fact that about 300 textile workers are jobless in Dr. McCann's riding of Renfrew had anything to do with the "hasty" drafting of the legislation.

The measure should not be confined to manufactured goods but should include raw products which may need similar attention soon. The trend of discrimination against such Canadian products as dairy foods was becoming more conspicuous.

Henry Hosking (L — Wellington South) said the government move was made only because the jobs of Canadian workers were threatened by dumped imports. The measure would also help small shopkeepers, since only a few large retailers in Canada were able to buy U.S. goods at cut rates.

Anti-Soviet Acts Reported

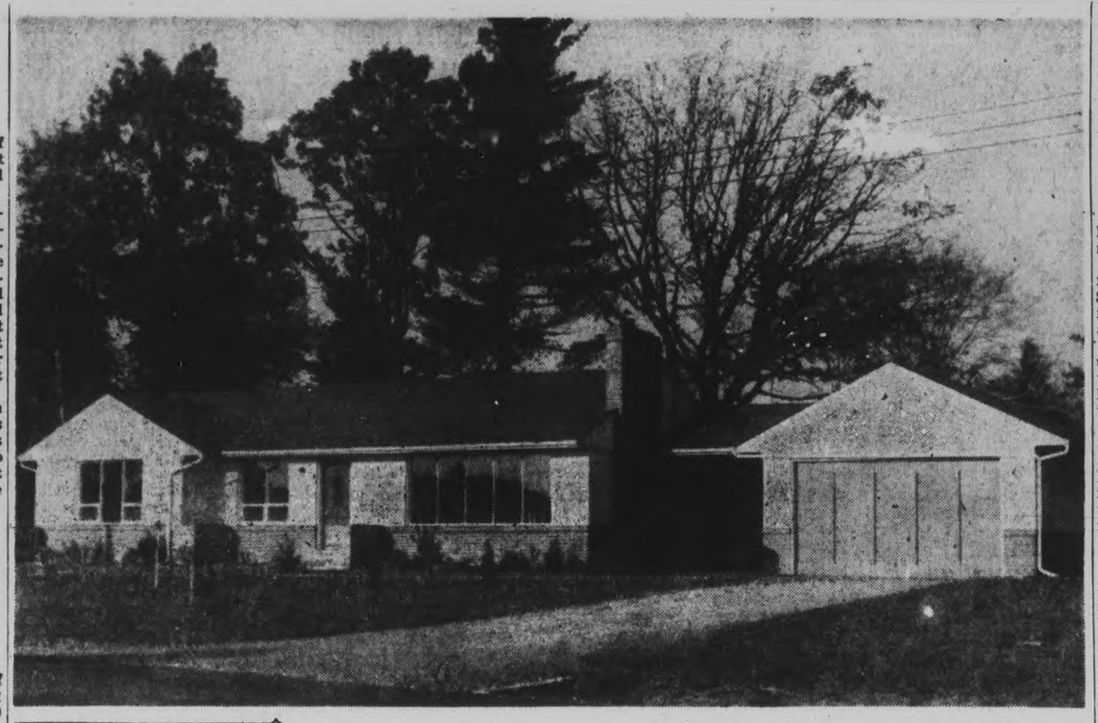
BERLIN (AP) — New reports of anti-Soviet activity on the East German Baltic sea coast reached West Berlin Friday.

Information Bureau West reported three officers, four petty officers and nine seamen in the German Communist sea police have been arrested at Stralsund, charged with anti-Russian underground activity. The bureau said it had been informed the men had built a resistance group and were caught by the security police. A number of comrades have fled toward West Berlin, it was said.

The Baltic area has been in a state of unrest for some months the well-informed Free Jurists Committee reported a week ago that a 21,000-ton liner being rebuilt for the Russians at Warnemuende had been sabotaged.

Dairy Products Increase 1953

OTTAWA (CP) — Production of creamery butter in Canada during November totalled 16,065,000 pounds compared with 15,422,000 in November, 1952, the bureau of statistics reported Friday.



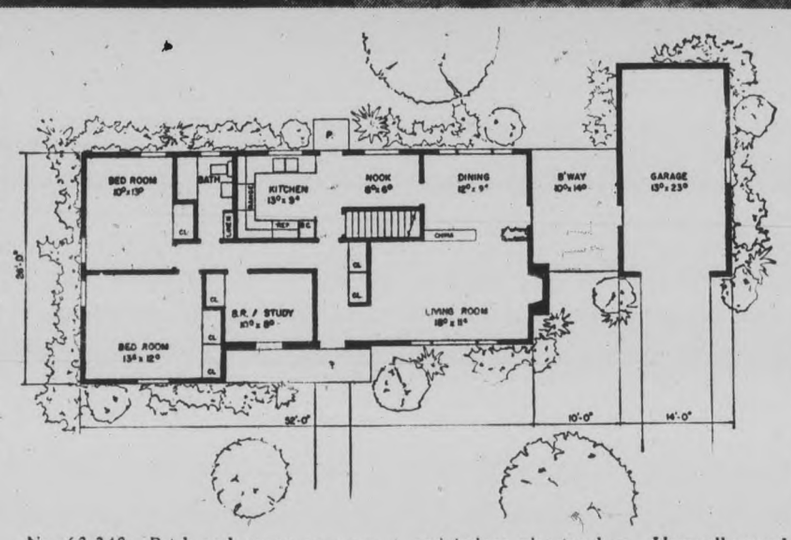
Production of margarine, cheddar cheese, process cheese and ice cream also increased.

The November output of butter brought the 11-month total to 288,574,000 pounds, compared with 267,495,000 in the corresponding period of 1952.

Margarine production in November rose to 10,399,000 pounds from last year's corresponding total of 9,119,000, but the cumulative output for the first 11 months of this year declined to 95,862,000 from 96,666,000 a year ago.

Reeve Elected Again

HAMILTON (CP) — Burton E. Corman Friday was re-elected reeve of suburban Saltfleet township. He defeated Hans Gillman by 935 votes, polling 1,289 in a light turnout of voters. "I've lost track of the number of years I've been reeve," Mr. Corman said. "But I've been on council 21 years."



Report U.S. Pledge Assistance In Jordan

DAMASCUS, Syria (Reuters) — The Syrian Nationalist party newspaper Albina says Friday the United States has pledged to guarantee Jordan's borders and increase financial aid if the Arab state makes peace with Israel.

Albina says Jordan would not be obliged to establish diplomatic and economic relations with Israel under the American proposal, and other Arab states would not have to end their state of war with Israel.

In return the United States promises to increase financial and economic aid to Jordan and give her a larger share of the Jordan river's water under a $121,000,000 river control project planned by the U.S. state department.

The paper says Jordan is considering a meeting with Syria and Lebanon to study the proposal.

Britons Have Best Yule For Buying In Many Years

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Christmas in Britain this year means a buyer's market.

For the first Yuletide since 1939, food rationing is virtually unknown. Store shelves are filled with goodies, toys and a wide range of gifts aimed to fit most pocket books.

With the end of rationing scheduled for next autumn, butter is the only basic kitchen ingredient likely to crimp the British housewife's program for the family.

The three-ounce weekly ration doesn't allow for rich baking aided though it is by doles of margarine and cooking fat. Bacon now is sold to all comers, but meat, virtually off ration since June, is restricted to about a pound a week.

TIGHTEN MEAT RATION

For the last six months, housewives have been able to buy as much meat as they could afford. This concession now is to end. Food ministry officials say, however, that the tighter ration will not be felt until after Christmas. Near-record stocks of turkey and poultry, bacon and ham will be available and some 30,000 pigs will be slaughtered.

Nationalized cheese at two ounces a week is a minor difficulty. There are lots of continental and some British off-ration varieties.

Accordingly, a popular purchase this year is food parcels and hampers. Big wicker hampers costing up to £12 include turkey, wine, cheese, crackers, canned meats, fruits, marrons glaces and other tasty specialties. They are the best Britons have seen or purchased in years. Cardboard boxes containing mixed bottled and canned goods are reasonably priced.

A new gift for those who wish to send "a toast by post" is a Christmas card with detachable token, exchangeable for a drink at any southern England public house owned by the Breweries sponsoring the scheme.

Those sending wines and spirits by the bottle or festive carton can choose items ranging from cheap white wines to smooth french liqueurs.

SCOTCH IS SCARCE

Whisky, in brands most Britons like to buy, is still confined mostly to the export market. It is easier to purchase a bottle of Canadian rye than a well-known scotch cuits of many varieties, rich scotch shortbreads and even the long-absent canned pears, peaches and pineapple are easily procured.

There are quantities of rich cakes, Christmas puddings, bis- There are, however, one or two little-known whiskies on the shelves —and there's a wide selection of rum, gin and brandy.

LUXURY GOODS

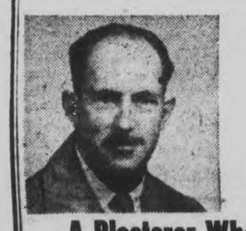
Luxury goods include boxes of chocolates ranging from £4 to £10. There are £5 china jars of pate de fois gras, large boxes of cocktail requisites, jars of stem ginger and cartons of crystallized fruits. For those with less to spend well-known chocolate firms have festive boxes and figures ranging up from 2s 6d, roughly 35 cents.

For children, Santa Claus corners have everything any youngster could wish.

Toys range in price from a few pence to £10 and £20 cars, tricycles and train sets. Tiny mechanical toys from jet aircraft to tractors can be had for a few shillings. Train and meccano sets, radio-controlled cars, forts of authentically-dressed soldiers of the Queen and realistic atomic weapons can be had for around £3.

Elect Officials Of Sunday School

BETHANY (ENS)—The annual meeting of the executive of the United church Sunday school was held Tuesday evening. Reports were given and officers elected for 1954.



Mr. A. H. Monk continues as superintendent, with Allan Beer as assistant; Miss Eleanor Rowan, secretary; Miss Grace Bigelow, treasurer; Miss Lily Thompson, Cradle Roll superintendent; Mrs. Herb Coppins, missionary and temperance covener; Mrs. T. J. Jackson, teacher of adult Bible class, with Mr. A. H. Monk as assistant; Mrs. Orloe Wright, teacher of young people's class, with Mrs. Clarence Rowan assistant; Mrs. Herb Coppins, teacher for intermediate girls; Mrs. J. P. Henderson, teacher of intermediate boys, with Mrs. L. Norman assistant; Mrs. Welington Fallis, teacher of junior class, with Miss Joan Bristow assistant; Mrs. Mervyn Porteous, teacher of beginners' class, with Mrs. Vincent Jackson, Miss Marie Carr and Miss Marie Finney assistants.

A Christmas party for the children was planned for December 18, when there will be a brief program by the pupils, followed by lunch. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. George Waddell who is retiring as teacher of the beginners' class.

The Rev. Lawrence Norman addressed the meeting and stressed the importance of Sunday school wrok. Following the scripture reading, Mr. Norman conducted an installation service for new officers and led in prayers.

Soldiers Due Home

SEATTLE (CP)—Four hundred Canadian soldiers, veterans of a year's service in the Far East, are scheduled to arrive here Monday aboard a United States troopship. The men represent nearly all units of the 25th Infantry Brigade.

Build In Manner To Keep Lumber In Home Dry

Best way to avoid decay is to build in a manner that will keep the lumber dry—fungi that causes decay can not work on dry wood.

The fight against decay begins with the selection of lumber and its use. Sills, porches, outside steps, the lowest siding boards—any lumber used near the ground is preferably heartwood rather than sapwood. Heartwood is more resistive to decay. However, the use of fully preservative-treated lumber is more effctive.

Paint protects the wood surface from wettings—it is not a preservative. In the case of green lumber, it actually tends to aid decay by preventing lumber from drying out. To be fully protected against decay the wood must be deeply impregnated with preservative. There are many effective preservatives on the market which home builders can obtain from their lumber or supply dealers, or direct from the manufacturer. Where available, lumber treated under pressure is best of all.

Moisture and decay go hand-in-hand; therefore control on condensation by vapor barrier and ventilation are important means of preventing decay. In the crawl space underneath the basementless houses moisture vapor given up through the soil may condense on the cold sills and joists. This sweating wets the wood and eventually leads to decay.

VENTILATE CRAWL SPACE

To correct this ventilate the crawl space properly by placing at least 4 ventilating openings, one near each corner and as high as possible from the ground. National Housing Act specifications require 2 vents of one square foot each, per five hundred square feet of unexcavated area, located in opposite walls, with non corrodible screening of not over ¼" mesh installed in each vent opening.

By covering the soil with smooth surface roofing, weighing at least 55 lb. per 108 square foot roll, and allowing a 2-inch lap at the edges, the moisture vapor is stopped at its source. This also stops the likelihood of moisture in the attic.

Wood should never come in contact with the soil. Where wood rests on concrete or masonry a vapor barrier, such as hot coal tar, asphalt roll roofing or corrosion-resistive metal may be placed between them. Wood posts should never be embedded in concrete, but placed on a raised concrete base. Where wood floors are laid of concrete slabs, the upper part of the slab should have a damp-proofed membrane, or the upper surface be given a coating of tar or asphalt.

Always remember that moisture barriers are beneficial if placed where moisture is prevented from entering the wood—but not if it prevents its leaving.

By the use of heartwood or preservative-treated woods, proper drainage of soil, vapor barriers and ventilation of unheated areas, decay can be decreased or eliminated and will remain so as long as the building is carefully maintained.

Hourly Earnings Make Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—Average hourly earnings in manufacturing increased one per cent during September accompanied by an increase of half an hour in the length of the working week, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Latest earnings were 136.7 cents an hour and the average hours worked were 41.5. Average weekly wages were $56.73 compared with $55.64 in the previous month.

The increase in earnings was partly due to wage increases and partly to a return to more normal working conditions following the summer vacation period.

Those Chilly Drafts Can Be Sealed

By MR. FIX

If wintry winds are whistling through cracks in the walls of your home, then you must be wishing you had anticipated them 'way back when the weather was more pleasant.

But if you're willing to brave the cold, and take a little extra trouble, those chill drafts can be sealed out with caulking compound.

This is not the best time of year to be caulking because the material stiffens from the cold and becomes harder to smooth out. To combat this tendency, place the container of compound you plan to use near a heat radiator or register for a few hours before taking it outside.

There are several ways to apply caulking compound, which comes in various forms. Perhaps the best way at this time of year is to use a caulking gun, then the compound can be kept warm inside the house between fillings of the gun.

There are two general types of caulking guns. One uses bulk compound from a can and the other is loaded with cartridges. The cartridges are more expensive than bulk but less messy. If you order bulk compound be sure to get the right grade for use in guns. The guns can be rented at some hardware stores.

The cartridge-type gun is a wise purchase (if you plan to buy one) for limited usage. Each cartridge contains one tenth of a gallon of compound—enough to cover from 15 to 25 lineal feet.

Another type of compound that is not impractical for use now is the cord type, which is about the thickness of a pencil and comes in rolls. It is merely pressed into openings with finger tips. Held in the hand, it remains pliant.

There are a number of places to check outside the home for cracks that admit damaging moisture as well as cold drafts:

Around window and door frames, door sills, foundation walls, eaves and gables, chimneys, warped clapboards or shingles (particularly at corners).

Larger cracks can be filled with glass fibre or mineral wool insulation before caulking. A tarred rope called oakum, used by boat builders to caulk seams and by plumbers, can also be used here.

Caulking compound isn't meant for exterior use alone. It serves equally well indoors, around wood trim, plumbing fixtures, basement ceilings and at the top of the foundation wall where it meets the sill.

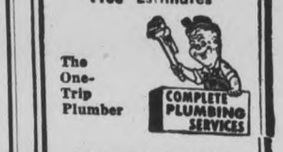
One advantage of caulking compound is that it can be tinted with oil colors—something to remember when using it inside the house.

Before using caulking compound, make sure that surfaces are clean and dry. Remove loose mortar, paint scales, dust and grease with putty knife and wire brush. All porous surfaces exposed to the compound should be primed with paint first. That includes wood, brick or stone.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q—Why must some floor finishes be thinned before use?

A—Some are prethinned and some are not. Thin coatings dry quicker, and two thin coats are more durable than one heavy one. Always thin in accordance with directions on the label.



THOUGH THE TIME is not ripe for caulking, it can be done if the compound is made workable by keeping it warm.

Ancient Russian Monastery 50 Miles North Of Moscow Centre Of Orthodox Church

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP)—Zagorsk monastery is about 50 miles north of Moscow.

The way is through Moscow's suburbs. Eight- and 10-storey brick apartment houses are being built there and soon hundreds of ancient cottages with their intricate fretwork window-frames and gables, the earth banked around their foundations, will be abandoned.

The road passes the Moscow exhibition grounds. At the entrance is a gigantic stainless steel statue representing Communist youth on the march toward a fuller life, cast for and first exhibited at the Paris International Exhibition in 1938.

WOMEN ROADWORKERS

As the highway leaves Moscow it narrows from six to two lanes. One gang repairing the macadam surface, including steam-roller operators, was all women. A gang of army engineers, brewing tea at the roadside, waved and smiled.

The car passed through miles of evergreen forest, the Russia of the picture books, even to occasional carts with heavy-yoked horses, hoops arched over the animals' heads.

It would be wonderful picnic ground in summer but beyond 25 miles from Moscow, foreigners are not allowed to stop until they get to Zagorsk.

The monastery is in a "kremlin" —the Russian word for "citadel." Its walls once withstood an 18th-century attack by invading Poles. Its multi-spired, onion-domed chapels glisten from careful maintenance. Especially eye-catching is the main basilica, whose cupolas are a brilliant blue emblazoned with gold stars.

RELIGIOUS CENTRE

Zagorsk is an active centre of the Russian Orthodox Church and also a seminary. Religion is said to be free.

The monastery has six chapels. When I was there, on a week-day just after noon, three were open with services in progress.

In one chapel continuous prayers are recited over the guilded sarcophagus of St. Sergei, a hermit around whose forest grave the monastery later grew. His body may be seen through glassed openings in his casket.

An Orthodox priest in black robes recites the service. He and his assistant wear their hair long, parted in the middle and swept loosely down the back, and have full beards. One priest helps worshippers adjust in a large circular candelabrum the wax tapers they have bought at the door.

Most of the 30 persons in the chapel congregation were peasant women, many of them old and infirm. Three men were dressed as though they held state jobs.

There were probably 30 worshippers in another small chapel and perhaps 50 in the monastery refectory, the front of which serves as the third chapel.

All the chapels abound in gilt-framed ikons (religious paintings on wood) some exceedingly beautiful. Above 15 feet the walls are covered with murals.

PRIME MINISTER SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL chats with Sir Alexander Hood, Governor of Bermuda, during a moment of relaxation following conclusion of a four-day Big Three conference. Sir Winston left the British island colony Thursday, accompanied by French Premier Joseph Laniel, who is reported to be much improved following a lung ailment which forced him to drop out of the Big Three talks. While the British Prime Minister prepares for his flight home, Lady Churchill is in Stockholm, Sweden, to accept his Nobel literary prize from King Gustaf Adolph.

Ex-Airwoman Refuses To Tell Story

VANCOUVER (CP)—It's not a story, it's just my life. . . ."

That was Isobel Burton's answer to questions about where she spent the 19 months she was absent without leave from the RCAF.

The 28-year-old former airwoman vanished April 15, 1952, from the RCAF station at Aylmer, Ont. A widespread search followed.

She was posted as r deserter and not seen again until she flew to Victoria Nov. 23 from California where she had been hiding "for personal reasons."

SERVES SENTENCE

Brought to Vancouver, she appeared before Wing Cmdr. D.C.F. MacDonald, who fined her $40 and confined her to barracks for 21 days, to be followed by a discharge.

She was released Friday, two weeks before her sentence was up, "on grounds of compassion."

At her parents' home later, she refused to discuss the disappearance.

"My life is my own and I'm going to keep it private always," she told reporters.

HANGOVER — Quickly titled "Hangover" by local wits is this new hat designed by Sandy Pendery, of Miami Beach. Even though it hides part of her charms, she still commands admiring attention as she suns on the beaches of southern Florida.

Movie Column

Giving Old Films New Life Says Goldwyn

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The shortage of movies has brought greater interest in reissues, and Sam Goldwyn has a formula for them.

"Most theatres allow reissues to sneak out as though they were something to be ashamed of," says the wily producer. "I'm bringing back 'Best Years of Our Lives' proudly, as though it were a new picture."

Sam, who knows how to milk the most money from a picture, is putting on a big campaign for "Best Years," a 1946 hit. He plans to spend $250,000 on an advertising campaign.

"We will go into towns and play important first - run theatres with this picture, starting after the first of the year," he said. "If it makes only one-quarter the money it made on the first release, I will be happy. I have never released figures on my pictures, but I know that it is second only to 'Gone with the Wind' as a money maker."

STANDS UP WELL

Variety has listed the "Best Years" take in the United States and Canada at almost $10,500,000. It starred Frederic March, Myrna Loy, Dana Andrews, Teresa Wright, Virginia Mayo and Harold Russell. March picked up an Oscar for it, Russell got two, William Wyler won for direction, Robert Sherwood for writing and Goldwyn got it for the picture, as well as an Irving Thalberg award.

The picture stands up amazingly well after seven years. The dialogue and acting are as crisp as new, and the only thing dated is the length of the women's skirts, which are a trifle short for these times.

Goldwyn added that he plans to give the same treatment to some of his other classics. Among those he mentioned were "Wuthering Heights" and "Dodsworth."

Although the reissues meet some buyer resistance, they are well liked in the industry. Producers find them a godsend, since the profits are pure gravy. The only cost is a slight one for advertising.

Dunlop Welcomes Holiday Discussion

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister W. J. Dunlop said Friday he would welcome a thorough discussion on whether Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, should be a public school holiday.

He was commenting on a request by the St. Catharines board of education that the holiday be abolished because it did nothing to add to the effectiveness and solemnity of the day.

Dr. Dunlop said observance by the schools should be handled in a way to bring the greatest possible remembrance of those who fell in the two world wars.

Troops' Yule Gift Six-Acre Centre

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian troops in Korea are getting a six-acre recreation centre as a Christmas present, the army has announced.

Consisting of five large quonset huts, the new 25th brigade centre will come complete with hockey rink, stage, amphitheatre, gymnasium, lounge, library, canteens and a gift shop. It has been erected on a hillside overlooking the scarred main road north of Seoul.

Built by Canadian Army engineers, the new centre will be under the command of Capt. W. E. Manley of Ottawa and Toronto.

The brigade centre also will be used by other members of Commonwealth Division units.

Eisenhower Approves Limiting Shipping

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator Charles Potter (Rep. Mich.) said Friday that President Eisenhower has indicated he would approve limiting shipping between Canadian and U.S. Great Lake ports to ships of those two countries, if and when the St. Lawrence seaway is built.

Such a limitation would prevent foreign ships, able to enter the Great Lakes after the seaway was built, from competing with Canadian and U.S. lake freighters in carrying cargoes between Great Lakes ports.

Shallow-draft European freighte now carry cargoes between European and Great Lakes ports but do not carry cargoes between lake ports.

Stirling Subscribed $7,206 To Hospital

STIRLING (ENS)—Final figures, released by H. J. Wells, chairman of the Belleville hospital fund committee showed $7,206 subscribed in Stirling. A quota of $3,000 had been set by the committee. The Stirling committee also canvassed the Rawdon district and collected an additional $2,370 making a grand total of $9,576 raised by the committee.

Textile Plants Lay Off Staff

TORONTO (CP)—Many Ontario primary textile plants report that in recent weeks they have cut down their operations and temporarily laid off some of their staff.

The Ontario regional office of the national employment service said Friday most of 21 primary textile reports received here recently told of layoffs or short-time employment. Areas affected included London, Toronto, Renfrew, Cornwall, Galt, Barrie, Guelph, Woodstock, Trenton, Simcoe, Brantford and Brampton.

Max Federman, Toronto business agent for the Fur Workers Union (AFL), said 600 employees, 70 per cent of the membership, are unemployed. He blamed competition from United States imports and the mild fall and early winter for the slump in the industry.

Would Extend Time Vote In Effect

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church of Canada has recommended to Premier Frost that legislation be amended so that a vote of communities against an open Sunday would remain in effect for three years, instead of the present one.

The executive of the board of evangelism and social services of the church made the recommendation at a meeting so that "communities that have stood against the open Sunday, such as Ottawa, Oshawa, Hamilton, Guelph and many other places, would not be threatened every 12 months by open Sunday advocates."

Man Loses Licence For Life After Chase

GUELPH (CP)—A wild chase which was reported to have reached 95 miles an hour last Aug. 25 resulted in the life suspension of Duncan Malcolm Ferguson's driving licence.

Ferguson, a 58-year-old resident of Toronto and formerly of Guelph, was also fined $25 and costs on a charge of reckless driving Friday.

A psychiatrist testiffed that Ferguson suffered depression.

Cottesloe WMS Holds Christmas Meeting

COTTESLOE — The brightly decorated living room of Mrs. Howard Harnden was the meeting place of the Cottesloe WMS Christmas program.

Mrs. John Gallaher was in the chair. Miss Helen Tedford read the scripture. Mrs. H. Patterson and George Webster read the prayers. Mrs. H. Harnden gave an interesting paper entitled, "Best Christmas Gifts".

Mrs. C. Bolton sang, "We Three Kings", assisted at the piano by Mrs. C. McMillan.

A letter was read from Miss Mary Haddon in Bolivia. A letter of thanks was also read from the Overseas Relief Depot, for a parcel sent recently.

The treasurer, Mrs. George Webster, presented her report showing receipts of $175.40 for the past year also a total of $59.31 for tea money.

The January meeting will be at the home of Mrs. George Webster.

Mrs. C. Bolton and Miss Helen Tedfor dserved lunch assisted by the hostess, Mrs. H. Harnden.

Free-Lancer's Ups, Downs

lished in Maclean's, Chatelaine, the Canadian Home Journal, New Liberty, the Atlantic Monthly, the Saturday Evening Post and the Reader's Digest. At the present time a collection of his articles is being prepared for printing in book form by an American publisher, and Mr. Allen has another book in his New York agent's hands.

Stories of free-lancers making fabulous sums of money are pretty well poppycock. Mr. Allen now receives the top rates paid by Canadian magazines, and he also sells to American publications. But it is not a life of either idleness or wealth. When he and the Omemee garage man "Wally" Wollerman collaborated on an article which was bought by the Saturday Evening Post, a Toronto newspaper columnist said that he had been paid $2,500 for the article. In actual fact, they received the sum total of $700, out of which agent's fees had to be paid.

Mr. Allen deals principally in three kinds of articles—straight "solid" accurate reportorial stories on any subject from ball to yachts; first person "ghosted" articles, for political figures or anybody with a story to tell. (These appear in print as if written by the person who is the subject of the article.) The third kind of article which Mr. Allen habitually writes, and the kind that has made his name widely known, is "light humour."

The Allens are fond of Omemee and happy there, except that they still like sun and warmth. Mr. Allen says the life there is "physically wonderful" and the people very friendly. "This farm I consider the best place I have ever lived in my life, if only I could just plant it in the middle of Central Park."

There's the rub. The silence and the lack of people did not serve his writing well. "Out here, writing for a week, I get overwhelmed by the silence. I want to get back to the city, to meet people, to talk." On the other hand, when Mr. Allen does go off to Toronto for a day, "I can't wait to get back."

The Allens are resolving this problem in a characteristic adventurous way. They want country and town, quiet and bustle, and warmth. So in a few weeks the whole household will again be on the move. Back to California —to some town near Los Angeles —where they are going with a view to setting permanently. The statement of the man on the train is being fulfilled—"Everybody who leaves California comes back."

Omemee, the parlour organ in the front hall, the outsheds of the farm house running off down to the pond, and their friends will miss the Robert Thomas Allens.

Evolve Labor Formula

TORONTO (CP)—A formula for settling a wage dispute between the Toronto Transportation Commission and the Street Railway Employees' Union (AFL-TLC) has resulted from talks with Louis Fine Ontario's chief conciliation officer. The union said the formula will be submitted to a secret vote among the commission's 4,400 unionized employees next Wednesday and Thursday. Terms of the formula were not disclosed.

NoResponsibility For Wages Lost

TORONTO (CP) — Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Ontario hydro commission, said Friday that the commission will not assume any responsibility for wages lost due to the electrical conversion of a plant.

"Such an obligation was never contemplated at the time the legislation covering frequency standardization was passed," Mr. Saunders said in a letter to Eamon Park, representative of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

Mr. Park had protested lay-offs due to conversion work at the John Inglis plant in Toronto.

Find Mammoth's Tusk In Aldershot Area

HAMILTON (CP) — A 75-pound fossil thought to be a mammoth's tusk was found Friday at the bottom of a gravel pit at nearby Aldershot.

Dr. Herbert Armstrong, dean of arts and science at McMaster University, said the huge animal may have wandered to this district in search of food or to escape the cold 15,000 years ago.

Jim Syvret, 24-year-old steam shovel operator, discovered the tusk between layers of gravel and clay 30 feet down in the pit.

NOW'S THE SEASON TO BE

but with care!

Christmas month is a jolly month, to be sure. But it's also a month of changing weather conditions with harsh, windy days alternating with periods of sunshine and spring-like weather. That's hard on the body. And when you add to that the increasing nervous tension as the 25th approaches, you'll have to agree . . . December, at best, is an exhausting month!

Why not take care now, before fatigue and tension take their toll. Why not see your doctor for a check-up. Follow his suggestions carefully and if there is a prescription involved, take it to your friendly neighborhood druggist.

Your druggist is always delighted to help you in any way . . . and with Christmas not far off he can be of very real help indeed. So see him soon . . . for whatever you want for the coming season you can depend on your neighborhood druggist.

Attitudes of Men Cause Of Much of Racial Strife

BY WILIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

In a world which, then as now, was beset with racial and sectional prejudices as intense as they have ever been, Saint Paul set the picture of a Christian world and society in which all such prejudices were dissolved in an environment of brotherly love and fellowship.

In a letter to the Christians at Colossae, where the slave-master Philemon, to whom Paul had returned the slave Onesimus, was a leader (See the Book of Philemon), Paul pictured that world of the new life in Christ, where, he said, "There is neither Greek nor Jew, nor Barbarian, Scythian bond nor free; but Christ is all and in all."

It was a marvelous portrayal of a free world, against a world of slavery and prejudice. Can anyone say that it is anything more than a Christian world ought to be?

Yet nearly twenty centuries after Paul we still live in a world in which racial prejudices are rife and intense, even in the great democracies where they might least be expected to be found!

One of the most distressing aspects of American democracy is that we should find in our midst highly organized groups of professing Christians carrying on widespread propaganda in a poison press, burning crosses and manifeseting every medium of hatred and prejudice against those Catholics, Jews, Negroes, "foreigners"... whom they do not happen to like.

When one surveys the dark picture one may well ask the question: Can racial problems be solved?

It would be too much to say that they can be, for solution is undoubtedly a long way off, and will not come in our time.

But it is worth while to look as well at the bright side of the picture and realize the extent of the progress that is being made toward better understanding and toward a large measure of fairness and regard for personal rights, even wheer prejudices may to some extent remain.

One hopeful sign is the active counter propaganda being carried on by such agencies as the Conference of Jews and Christians.

Another hopeful sign is increased emphasis upon Christian teaching and a broadening of

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CVI. No. 290 SATURDAY DECEMBER 12, 1953

Main Street Topics

KINGSTON WIN

In the senior "B" OHA game between Kingston and Belleville played in Kingston on Friday night, Kingston won 9 to 6.

CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Westclox Veterans Association today gave their children a theatre party. Santa Claus arrived to distribute a bag of candies to each of the 450 children present.

ZONING EXPERT

Gordon Culham of Bolton, Ont., whom the city retained to prepare a zoning bylaw, was in Peterborough this week consulting with the city engineer regarding preliminary work on the bylaw.

DAMAGE SET AT $250

Two cars colliding at the intersection of Park and Hunter Sts. early today caused damage estimated at $250. Robert Olver, 19, of 774 Cameron St., was northbound on Park when his car collided with that of Albert McIvar, 23, of RR 4, Peterborough, who had been driving south and was turning left at Hunter.

CORRECTION

A head in Friday's Examiner said it cost $14,584 to maintain the city hall. This was incorrect. Maintenance costs of the city building were estimated at $44,873.82 during 1953, which is $14,584.35 less than was predicted when the building was erected. This was explained in the story beneath the headline.

SAME POPULATION

In their 1953 edition of the city of Peterborough directory, a copy of which was delivered to the Examiner this week, Vernon Directories Ltd. of Hamilton, publishers and compilers, give their estimate of the population of Peterborough and outskirts as 46,886. This is the same figure as was given in their 1952-53 edition.

HELP CANCER SOCIETY

The Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (TLC) have agreed to help the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Cancer Society in any way they can. This will include distributing information printed by the society, as well as other work. The decision came after an appeal by Mrs. Alene Holt, president of the Peterborough branch.

To Lay Cornerstone Of St. Giles' Church

The cornerstone of the new St. Giles' Presbyterian church will be laid Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Building of this church situated on the west side of Park St. south of Lansdowne St. commenced in October.

James Dutton who was prominent in getting St. Giles' started in October 1952, and was one of the assessor elders named by the session of St. Paul's to organize the congregation and assist it in its first year will lay the cornerstone. The Rev. G. D. Smith, minister of the congregation, will be in charge of the ceremony and he will be assisted by the Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's church.

The Winnah!

Ever have an urge to ram a car? A woman driver had and did this week when a male tried to sneak into her parking spot. The woman had pulled ahead to back into the spot when a male drove his car part way into the space. The member of the weaker sex told him that it was her parking spot and he had no business trying to sneak in. He was stubborn. After an exchange of words, the woman threatened. "Get out of there, or I'll ram you." He didn't and the woman bumped his fender, inflicting a good sized dent. The man backed out.

To Pay $14,000 For Injuries Damage In Crash

In two separate actions settled Thursday in Supreme Court, Floyd Barkwell, 24, of RR 2, Claremont, was found liable for a total of $14,000 and court costs as a result of a car-truck collision 17 months ago on an Ontario county road, seven miles north of Oshawa.

Barkwell was driving a three-ton dump truck, loaded with gravel, on the afternoon of July 30, 1952, and crashed into the rear of a car owned by the Peterborough Utilities Commission and occupied by two PUC employees.

The PUC car was wrecked, and Barkwell agreed to settle with the PUC and the City of Peterborough for $1,500 damages. That was one of the two actions.

In the other action, Harry Beatty, 61, of 651 Gilmour Ave., received $8,000 for injuries, medical expense, loss of time and other damages incurred in the accident. Mr. Beatty was driving the car when it was struck from behind and he received a smashed right knee and knee cap, torn tendons, a chipped and splintered hip joint, crushed chest, three or four ribs broken and other injuries.

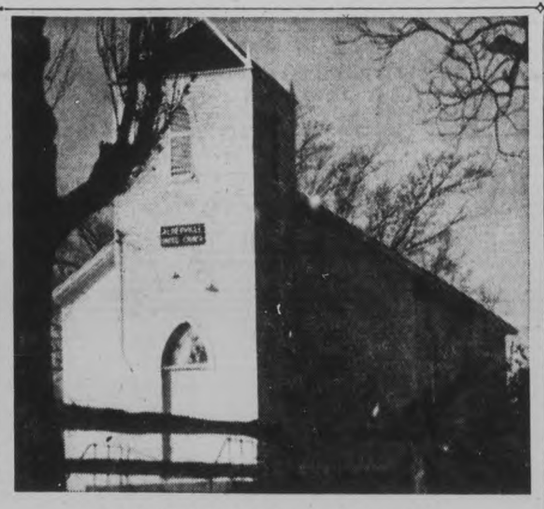
8 WEEKS IN HOSPITAL

Mr. Beatty, superintendent of the PUC, was a week in Oshawa hospital and nearly seven weeks in a Peterborough hospital. His right leg is permanently injured as a result of the accident and he walks with the aid of a cane.

Another PUC employee, Ross Hopkins, of 34 Ephgrave Blvd., was a passenger in the wrecked car. His injuries included fractured ribs, cuts, bruises and other injuries. He was awarded damages totalling $4,500.

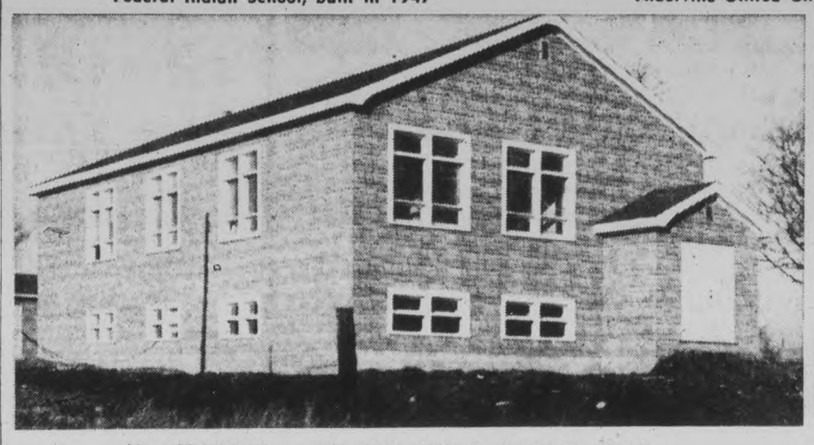
Costs were assessed at $1,500.

The accident occurred as Beatty was driving from Peterborough to Oshawa. He slowed on the county road when he came to two parked vehicles—on either side of the road, opposite each other—and the truck, coming from behind, ran into the rear of the PUC car and jolted it 70 feet down the road.



Alex Elliott, QC, was counsel for the city and the PUC, in the action over the car; and T. J. Carley, QC, was counsel for Beatty and Hopkins. E. A. Richardson, QC, of Toronto, was counsel for Barkwell.

The record was endorsed by Mr. Justice Treleaven who is presiding at the non-jury sittings of the Supreme Court.



No evidence was heard.

Turkey Prices Expected Higher

Tracing to the surplus of a year ago, the price of turkeys may be five to ten cents a pound higher in the Christmas market.

"Some of the growers took a beating last year from over-production," according to one estimate of the price pospect. "Interest in turkeys had been building up in recent years. Farmers specializing in these birds for the festive season showed what they could do, and the result was an excess of supply over demand. After that experience some of them got out of turkeys this year. It can be done quickkly, not like developing a herd of cattle. This year flocks are not so many and large as in 1952."

From another source it was said that there are likely to be some deliveries from Western Canada, and also imports from the U.S.

"United States producers have developed an efficiency in eviscerating (drawing) poultry that enables them to compete here. Some of their Christmas fowl have already crossed the border, and you can't estimate right now whether there is quantity enough to affect our own turkey market.

"I'M TIRED" — A tiger-sized yawn tells everyon how tired this cute white kitten is. The young mouser has reason to be tired—after lengthy posing for the 1954 Cat Calendar in Cambridge, Mass. The man behind the camera was Walter Chandoha, one of the top cat photographers in the country.

Alnwick Indians Completing $20,000 Community Hall

By NICK NICKELS

ROSENEATH — Two-hundred and forty Indians of the Alnwick Band are going to have a new $20,000 community hall for a Christmas. And they own it themselves. Initial plans for the new community project were first talked about in the summer of 1952. By the time the Curve Lake Band built one and had it officially opened by Oshawa officials in August the Alnwick Indians decided to build one, too, only it was to be better.

Although Chief Norman Marsden and his two councillors, Moses Smoke and Alfred Loukes, have not deigned to inspect the Curve Lake project, their tribesmen did; they probably started things rolling.

BEGAN IN OCTOBER

The foundations for the new building were started in early October by contractors Milne & Son of Coldsprings. Employing as many as 10 Indians at various stages of construction, the contractors sailed through the job. A small crew are now finishing the laying of a hardwood floor and the interior painting.

The building is 32 by 60 feet, with full cement block basement and a common meeting hall on the ground floor. The basement contains a forced air oil furnace and kitchen complete with an electric range, sink and kitchen cupboards. Banquets will be held here. Upstairs, the north end of the hall has a stage 10 feet deep across the full width with wing dressing rooms on either side.

Drapes, blinds and stage curtains will be installed next week, together with a piano. Two hundred folding steel chairs arrived at Havelock Station for the hall on Friday.

Alnwick Band members will pay off the cost of the hall within 15 years to their capital account at the Indian Affairs Branch in Ottawa.

BADLY NEEDED

Chief Marsden said he was very pleased with the new building, and that it was sorely needed on the Reservation. Since the old hall, which stood on the south side of the concession road burned down in 1947, there has been no general meeting place, except the school.

Especially excited are the 27 school children who will stage their Christmas concert in the new hall on Dec. 23.

Teacher John Loukes, who has been in the community for the past 18 years, paid the building a visit on Friday afternoon at recess to ask Superintendent E. A. Adams if he was certain that the piano and chairs were on the way. Being assured that they were, he rushed off back to his classroom and put the young pupils through an hour of carol singing practice. From what the reporter could hear, the pupils were in excellent voice.

Then they staked 1,500 acres took a few samples and had them assayed. The results pleased them and they have done some trenching, investing some $40,000 in the land.

Not only the new hall but the 83-year-old Alderville United Church is getting prettied up for the holiday season to the tune of $1,000 in painting, new carpets, and two new oil space heaters. Band secretary and brother of the chief, Tom Marsden, finished painting the floors on Friday afternoon, and will lay the new carpets in choir loft and chancel as soon as the floors are dry.

The Federal Indian School next door to the church was built in 1947; it will have nothing done to it this year but in 1954 inspector Adams says it will be repainted

MAY ORGANIZE CLUB

There is no Indian Homemakers' Club in Alnwick but Mrs. (Chief) Marsden thought there would be no trouble in organizing one with the kitchen appointments available at the new hall.

From the towering concrete War Memorial at the highway crossroads to the three bright buildings—hall, church, and school—nearby, Alnwick Indian Reservation has taken on a new and clean look. Twenty homes even boast telephones since early this summer but there are no TV aerials in evidence.

There is more sober thought than levity in the suggestion that we give Canada back to the Indians; they might make a better go of things, at that.

C. Of C. Elects 15 New Directors

Fifteen directors of the Peterborough chamber of commerce have been elected for 1954.

They are D. J. Fitzgerald, J. W. Fortner, Max Kaye, Ronald Knox, William H. Lettau, J. G. Lewis, H. B. McGinness, T. E. McKay, G. E. Morden, Howard Powell, S. O. Shields, Ernest Trueman, J. H. Turner, Ford Warren and S. J. Whitehouse.

Election for president and other executive members will be during the first meeting of the new year.

Uranium Find On Land Bought For Lumbering

Uranium news attracts uranium news. A report Thursday about a rich sample taken from a staked area on the Faraday property on Bow lake brought a report today that two Peterborough lumbermen unwittingly were among the first in the uranium race of Haliburton county.

Samuel and Allan Moldaver in 1946 bought three 100-acre lots to take off the lumber just east of the Tory Hill road south of the settlement.

The next year an engineer happened on the property and noticed traces of uranium ore. He reported it to the Moldavers, but they did nothing about it until 1951.

Alerted Police Find Man In Store Money In Pocket

Alerted by a call from aroused neighbors, police swooped down on an east city grocery store Friday night and caught a burglar red-handed. Joe Cleary, 32, of 529 Roger St., was charged with breaking, entering and theft in magistrate's court today. He was remanded until Monday without plea, election or bail.

NEAR CASH REGISTER

In response to a call just prior to midnight, Detective Dennis Traynor and Constables Sherman Keliele and James Armstrong hurried to the Ross food market between Driscoll Terrace and Mark on Hunter St. East.

While the two constables went around to the rear door. Detective Traynor went to the front door and shone his flashlight inside. Looking over to the cash register, he saw a man on his knees.

The man looked up, saw the officer and ran through the back of the store. Detective Traynor went around the side, found a broken window and waited there until he was joined by Constable Keliele.

By this time the officers' shouting and those who had noticed the man originally and tipped off police, attracted a large group of passers-by, including bus drivers.

Led by PC Armstrong they surrounded the building while the other two officers went in through the broken window.

After looking around in the darkened cellar they found a man hiding behind stacked cartons of canned goods. They arrested him and found in his possession $44.70 in rolled coins and bills.

The officers established the money came from the cash register.

To Police Chief John Thompson, help extended by the spectators was "gratifying" especially since there might have been an element of personal danger involved.

Glenn Price Going To Chicago

Glenn Price, candidate in the recent municipal election, has been appointed a director of the Wells Organization, an international Protestant church fund raising group.

The appointment comes as a result of his work in the Grace United church fund-drive in which he was a team captain.

At present employed at a linotype operator at The Examiner, Mr. Price was re-elected president of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council Wednesday.

Mr. Price's new work will take him through Canada and the United States after he completes a training course in Chicago. He leaves here January 3, although his family will remain in Peterborough.

The recent fund drive in which Mr. Price participated resulted in the $45,000 mark being topped by $20,000.

The new position will force Mr. Price to relinquish his Trades and Labor Council post.

Need Confidence

VANCOUVER (CP)—Eric Newton, art critic from London, England, said in an interview here "Canadian artists have developed a deplorable state of nerves over fretting about what others think of them." He declared "What I have seen of Canadian art is good."

Mortgage Given To Settle Property Dispute

Opposing legal counsel have reached a settlement in the Supreme Court action brought by Mrs. Shirley Rae of Burleigh township against Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Shannon of Lakefield.

Mrs. Rae agreed to buy a parcel of land, including a garage, on Queen St., Lakefield, valued at $13,500. She said she paid a deposit and was to have had immediate possession of the garage

Later, she said, she found that the garage was seven feet over on property owned by the Village of Lakefield. She sued for the return of the $6,500 she said she paid on deposit, plus interest, and an end to the agreement.

SAID LOST MONEY

The Shannons denied Mrs. Rae's allegation. They said they had lost money as a result of the transaction, and filed a counter-claim for specific performance, and $3,000 in damages.

In the settlement, Mrs. Rae gets a first mortgage from the Shannons to run for three years, interest at five per cent. The principal may be paid off at any time, without notice, as and when the lands are sold by the defendants.

Minutes of settlement were endorsed by Mr. Justice Treleaven who is presiding at the non-jury sittings in Peterborough.

John Corkery was counsel for Mrs. Rae and J. C. N. Currelly was counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Shannon.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING—Children often have the good sense to pick out a gift for a friend, like this dolly tea set, which they themselves would enjoy.

For Parents Only

Children Like To Shop For Presents They Give

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Can I go shopping for the presents I'm giving this year?" Junior ask eagerly. Last Christmas Mother bought all his gifts. It was simpler and quicker for her that way, and she was fearful that he would get over-tired and catch cold. But Junior was disappointed that she left him at home on Daddy's half-day. Mother has been wondering about giving her child the opportunity to do Christmas shopping.

The crowded stores the week before Christmas are exhausting for adults, and even more tiring for children. If Junior is to be allowed to buy his presents, he should make out his Christmas list in good time, and shop early in December. He can have the fun of wrapping his gifts, of making some home-made "surprises" and drawing a picture or printing his name on the gift cards later in the month.

Mother soon discovers that if a child buys two or even three gifts on a shopping trip he does well. A child hates to be hurried and if he is making a choice between two articles he must have time to decide. Mother may have to remind him that the clerks are busy, and often it is wise not to ask for the services of a clerk until the gift has been selected.

In shopping, a child becomes more familiar with different coins but he also discovers that money is not elastic! If he uses a good deal of money on one gift he has less to spend on another. Perhaps he is not very experienced in counting. But the problem of shopping show him the importance of knowing how to do simple sums of addition.

If at all possible, Mother should take time for a cup of tea or coffee for herself and a drink of fruit juice or milk and a cookie for Junior at a lunch counter before starting home. This gives them both a little rest from walking around and is a real treat for Junior.

A child can get a great deal of fun from a shopping expedition with a parent. He also acquires a good deal of knowledge. By watching mother be courteous to sales clerks, and patient with delays, he learns how to act in public. This indirect leading by example is more effective than any pointed orders such as "Say, Thank You!" Mother can point out quietly, "We take our turn in the line-up! There are other people ahead of us who were here first."

Good manners have been described as "the happy way of doing things." They are contagious, and should be in evidence in December, the Chistmas month. Shopping would be so much less taxing for both clerks and customers, if more courtesy was used.

The real climax of shopping is when Junior gets home with his parcels, and shows Daddy his purchases that evening. Wrapping up the presents is fun too and taking them to the post office well ahead of mailing dead-lines.

Mother and father want their child to think of other people, and not just of what he is hoping to receive himself on Christmas morning. So parents plan to make shopping a happy adventure. Even a very little child can get a real thrill out of giving. The poet, Louis Ginsberg, who wrote the following lines must have retained something of a child's eagerness to show affection in a gift which delights the heart of the one who receives it:

"It is the things we always hold
That we will lose some day:
The only things we ever keep
Are what we give away."

Bad Weather Marks Path Of Queen's Ship

ABOARD S. S. GOTHIC (CP)—Brilliant sunshine of the last week which has brightened the voyage of Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh towards Fiji islands vanished today.

The weather torned cloudy and overcast, with rain showers visible five miles away from this royal liner. The wind whipped whitecaps on the Pacific rollers.

The Queen and the duke wore sun glasses Friday as they stood on the saluting platform above the bridge of the Gothic and watched a ceremonial change of escort ships, which the Queen filmed with her own camera.

COLORFUL FIJI

They are due at the Fiji group Dec. 17, where they will spend three days, including an overnight trip to the Friendly islands, 430 miles distant.

Before going ashore, the Queen and the duke will be met in the coral-reefed harbor of Suva by a fleet of native Fijian canoes and modern streamlined yachts. The governor, Sir Ronald Garvey, Lady Garvey, and a Fijian master of ceremonies will go aboard to greet the monarch.

On deck, a representative Fijian chief will perform "cavuikelekele," the ceremonial invitation to land. This will be the first of many dances and rituals which the robust, bushy-haired Fijians, dressed in their woven garments of vividly-patterned bark cloth, will perform for the Queen.

Still Consider Formula To End Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd., is still considering a formula that could set the pattern for a break in the strike of some 5,000 gold miners in northern Ontario.

L. S. Weldon, executive vice-president of the company, said Friday the provincially-backed plan for settling the wages walkout of 1,500 Hollinger miners is still being considered. The union concerned, the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), has accepted the plan.

It was reported the company might not make public its decision before Monday at the earliest.

An increase of five cents an hour is the basis for the settlement proposal. It also calls for a government-appointed fact-finding committee to investigate the economics of the gold-mining industry.

PROPOSAL WELCOMED

This latter proposal was welcomed by C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the steelworkers, who said it was "one of the most promising features" of the formula. He added he couldn't say "whether settlement of the Hollinger strike would form a pattern for settlement at the other mines."

Seven of the 10 other Timmins area mines are on strike. Also on strike are 2,700 miners at Noranda and other base metal mines in northwestern Quebec.

Labor Minister Daley, who made the formula public, said he felt the plan should settle the Holinger strike, which began 11 weeks ago. The union gave up its demand for checkoff, deduction of union dues by the company from workers' pay cheques.

Aylmer Man Killed

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Donald Vanpatter, about 30, of Aylmer was killed Friday night when the car in which he was riding collided into the rear of a truck which was being backed out of a farm laneway. After clipping the truck, the car rolled over. Driver of the car, Bill Lamont, also of Aylmer, was not injured.

Marmora WI Makes Benefit Contribution

MARMORA (ENS)—The December meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. F. R. Wells on Wednesday evening. Mrs. M. Kouri presided over a good attendance of members.

The roll call "The best Chirstmas I ever had", brought fourth interesting and varied answers.

In response to a communication from the Mental Health Association it was decided to make a donation to that body. It was decided to give the Marmora branch of the Canadian Legion, ten dollars towards the latter's Christmas cheer project.

Mrs. R. E. Neal gave a reading "Another kind of Santa Claus". The members then sang two Christmas carols with Mrs. E. C. Prentice at the piano.

Miss Grace Warren gave a humorous reading on "Limberger cheese." A guessing contest was won by Mrs. Harold Nayler. The exchange of gifts was then carried out.

The meeting closed with "God save the Queen' following which the committee for the month served refreshments.

The January meeting wil be held at the home of Mrs. E. Hewitt.

Mrs. Carlaw Elected Group President

WARKWORTH (ENS)—The Blue Banner group of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church held its Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. George Meiklejohn.

Mrs. Milton Baird read the scripture and Mrs. Percy Campbell lead in prayer.

The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of approximately $150.

Mrs. T. E. Kennedy presided for the nomination and election of officers for 1954, which resulted as follows: President, Mrs. John Carlaw; vice-president, Mrs. Bert Smith; secretary, Mrs. Gordon Thompson; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Mallory; sunshine convener, Mrs. George Meiklejohn.

The new president presided over the program. A reading was given by Mrs. G. McCubbin. The distribution of exchange gifts followed.

Score Dead, Nine Missing In Air Crashes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

More than a score of persons died in three widely-separated air crashes Friday night and another nine are missing in a British observation plane which vanished during an Atlantic weather flight.

Thirteen persons were killed, one of them India's leading anti-Communist labor leader, in the crash of an Indian government airliner near Nagpur, India. Other victims were said to include a Frenchman and an American.

Only survivor of the crash was the pilot, who was critically injured.

In the United States, a giant B-36 bomber, lumbering in for a landing through swirling snow, rammed into a mountain near El Paso, Tex., and exploded, killing nine men. Five of those aboard, including the commander, had parachuted to safety from a similar plane which crashed in England last February.

An RAF Shackleton with nine men aboard was reported overdue Friday night from a weather observation flight from Bally Kelly, Northern Ireland base. Fears for its safety were felt after reports of a "blinding flash" in the Sound of Mull, West Scotland.

A sea and air search was under way over the Mull area today.

In the Texas crash, the blast reduced the 10-engined craft to bits of charred metal. Wreckage dotted a blackened patch about the size of a city block on the snow-heaped mountain.

The bomber groped low through thick clouds and a blinding snowstorm as it let down to land at Biggs air force base.

Its drone erupted into a thundering roar as the ship smashed into the west slope of bleak, 7,100-foot Franklin mountain, just north of the El Paso outskirts. Buildings shook, flames and smoke shot skyward. The crash happened shortly before 5 p. m.

Miss Benay Buchanan heard it, and "through white fog rolling down the mountain I could see the smoke," she said.

"One body was on fire. It was soaked with gasoline."

In 1944, a B-25 bomber crashed on the same mountain's east side, killing eight.

Decide Woman Mentally Competent

NEW YORK (AP) — A jury ruled today that the late Mrs. Eleanor Morgan Satterlee was mentally competent when she executed her will. The eight men and four women deliberated 15 hours and 20 minutes before returning the verdict after hearing the case for six weeks.

Mrs. Satterlee, a grand-daughter of the late financier J. P. Morgan, died in April, 1951, at the age of 46. Her last will, executied Nov. 3, 1950, made her lawyer, Sol. A. Rosenblatt, residuary legatee to an estimated $200,000 estate. The will was so worded that it actually bequeathed the residuary estate, through Rosenblatt as executor, to Dr. Richard H. Hoffman, Park avenue psychiatrist.

The will was challenged by Mrs. Satterlee's sister, Mrs. Mabel Satterlee Ingalls, who charged her sister was not mentally competent to make a will and that undue influence had been exerted on the deceased by Rosenblatt and Hoffman.

Mrs. Ingalls lost an initial trial in 1952, and appealed.

Judge George Frankenthaler said he would hand down his ruling, as to whether the will should be admitted for probate, at a later date.

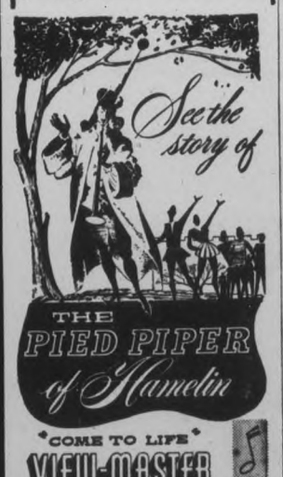
Begin Battle For Capital

HANOI, Indo - China (AP)— French Union troops fired their opening shots today in what is expected to be a big battle for Dien Dien Phu, newly-proclaimed capital of the Thai tribal country in northwest Indo-China.

A French high command spokesman reported two heavy clashes with Communist - led Vietminh troops about six miles north and the same distance south of the heavily-reinforced and strongly fortified post. He said the rebel forces suffered appreciable losses.

Pro - French Thai tribesmen meanwhile battled other Vietminh units southeast of Lai Chau, the former capital, which the French abandoned without firing a shot.

The high command spokesman said it is believed most of the rebel troops fighting around Dien Dien Phu are local guerrilla fighters, but those engaged southeast of Lai Chau probably are part of the Vietminh's crack Division 316, which earlier was reported marching on the area.



Refloated Ship Towed To Detroit

SARNIA (CP) — The German motorship Wallschiff, silt-covered after two months at the bottom of the St. Clair river, left here today under tow for a Detroit drydock.

The 882-ton ship, built at a cost of $500,000, was on her maiden voyage when she collided with the United States ore carrier Pioneer and sank Oct. 2.

Moored ships sounded their sirens as the ship moved down river in what may be her last trip. She will enter dry dock where representatives of the German owners will decide whether she will be repaired or scrapped.

STRONG SENSE OF DUTY—Pfc. Raymond L. Cote, of Saco, Me., enjoys a smoke after a long, cold tour of guard duty on the Rhine River in Germany. Cote, during manoeuvres, was told to guard two boats and six days later he was still guarding them. Eventually some of his German friends, who had been feeding him, called his outfit, which had forgotten about him, and he was promptly relieved. He was promoted to Pfc. for his "strong sense of duty, judgment and dependability."

Milk Of Human Kindness Curdles In Row With N.Z. Government Over Bottle Tops

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters). — The milk of human kindness curdled here today in a row between civic authorities and the New Zealand government over milk bottle tops adorned with Queen Elizabeth's crown and cipher emblems.

Thousands of milkmen, on orders of their city council and despite a federal ban, this morning delivered the bottles with the decorated tops. The tops included the words "Welcome to our gracious Queen" in anticipation of her forthcoming visit here.

One daring milkman placed a bottle with the disputed top on the doorstep of Internal Affairs Minister A. G. Harper — the man who had banned the bottle tops. He had claimed they were in "bad taste" since the emblems used are the Queen's personal ones.

The milk corporation, run by the city council, has more than 2,500,00 decorated tops—enough to supply Wellington for two weeks. Mayor R. MacAlister said after an emregncy council meeting this morning that distribution will go on until the tops are used up.

"I can point out that a similar top has been used on beer bottles ever since the Coronation last June," he said.

Tweed Citizen 91 Years Old

TWEED—John Brown who has lived in the Tweed district all his life, celebrated his 91st birthday on Wednesday. Mr. Brown, who is in exceptionally good health, spent the day quietly at his home here. Living alone, he keeps his comfortable dwelling spotless, prepares his meals, and is quite independent of any help from friends or relatives. His keenness and perfect physical health are most exceptional for his advanced years.

Born in a home on the present Leo Murphy farm on the Lodgeroom road, for many years he operated a farm on the north shore of Stoco lake, known as the Wm. Porter property, and was at one time an employee of the Bay of Quinte railway. His wife, the former Alice Porter, died over ten years ago.

Madoc Man Marks His 91st Birthday

TWEED — Everton Tufts of Madoc celebrated his 91st birthday on Monday. Mr. Tufts is well-known in the Tweed district, having been born on the Tufts homestead, a few miles north of Lodgeroom. He went to Madoc following his marriage to Edith Whittaker who lived on the farm now occupied by Clarence Meraw, in the same community, and operated a furniture store there, until his retirement a few years ago.

Mr. Tufts and his wife observed the birthday quietly at their home in Madoc, with part of their family of two sons and four daughters, which includes Garnet Tufts in Western Canada; Mrs. Hector Thompson (Marguerite), Ottawa; Mrs. Adam Yearwood (Marion), Peterborough; Mrs. Jas. Bird (Mildred), Madoc, and Kenneth Tufts, Belleville. Another son, Manley, predeceased his parents. Mr. Tufts is the last surviving member of his family.

Still in fairly good health, he walks to the post office in Madoc each day, and enjoys meeting old friends. With his wife, who is in her late seventies, they quietly live in their comfortable Madoc residence.

Ireland Said Land Of Timid People

VALETTA, Malta (Reuters) — Polling booths opened today for Malta's fourth general election in six years. Voting will end Monday.

Politicians have been using every established campaign trick to get the 140,000 voters to the polls. But it looks as though it will be one of the most apathetic elections in the history of this British - held Mediterranean island.

Complex constitutional questions are the main issue on which the four major parties have put up 132 candidates for the legislature's 40 seats. The Nationalist party, led by Premier Dr. George Borg Olivier, demands dominion status for Malta.

The other parties — the Malta Workers party, the Progressive Constitutionalists and the Labor party — have all approved Britain's recent offer to switch the responsibility for Malta from the colonial office to the home office. But all have their own ideas on details of Anglo-Maltese relations.

Today's election was called in October, after the legislature rejected the budget offered by Olivier's coalition.

Belleville Company Builds Post Office

TWEED—The St. Lawrence Construction Company of Belleville, has been awarded the contract to build Tweed's new post office. The building must be completed within ten months from the time the contract is awarded. The contract figure was slightly over $95,000.

It will be a one-storey and basement building, of fire-proof construction, measuring 73 ft. by 65 ft., with a brick and stone exterior, aluminum windows, linoleum flooring and fluorescent lighting. The building will provide accommodation for the post office department only.

It was anticipated that work on the new building would start this year, but with the holiday season coming up, it may be delayed until after January 1.

Fails To Pay Fine Lord Glenorchy Jailed

BRIGHTON England (Reuters) Lord Glenorchy, 34-year-old son and heir of the wealthy Scottish Earl of Breadalbane and Holland, was jailed today for failing to pay £80 maintenance to his estranged wife.

The divorce court had given him 28 days to pay the maintenance arrears or go to jail for a month. The time limit expired last Monday.

Glenorchy, who said he has offers of two jobs and will take them if he can get out of going to jail, declared he has no intention of returning to his father's estate in Scotland.

"I do not want to live at my father's expense," he said.

Trio Remanded In Robbery Case

MORRISBURG (CP)—Three Toronto men Friday were remanded a week in custody on a charge of robbery with violence.

Robert Payne, 25, Charles Edwin Carpenter, 20, and Donald James Low, 17, are accused of robbing the local brewers retail store of $600 Dec. 4.

Morrisburg is mid-way between Cornwall and Brockville.

Find Vesuvius Getting More Restive

It is part of the duties of a B.B.C. foreign correspondent to assess the political temperature of the countries to which they are accredited but recently the Corporation's Rome correpondent, Christopher Serpell, talked about temperatures of a very different kind, relates B.B.C Calling.

He had been to see Mount Vesuvius, the great volcano near Naples which in 79 A.D. destroyed the cities of Pompeii and Heculaneum.

ERUPTED IN 1944

Vesuvius last beltched fire and smoke during the war, in 1944, when Allied troops stationed nearby had a front row seat for one of nature's greatest and most awful spectacles. Since then Vesuvius hsa been going through a rare period of inactivity.

In the past such lulls have been followed by unusually violent eruptions and today experts are studying the mountain closely, for recently they have noticed a number of yellow blotches on the slopes near the crater.

One scientist went to take the temperature of the mountain and discovered, so Serpell said, that 16 inches below the surface yellow spot the temperature registered was 1,220 degrees Fahrenheit. The last time Vesuvius' temperature was taken at this point was in January, 1952, when it was only 750 F., so it seems that the patient's fever is rapidly rising.

INSIDE CRATER

The intrepid professor later went down inside the shallow crater and started digging, with the idea of testing the temperature in the hole he had dug. He had excavated to a depth of only four inches when he found that he was uncovering what seemed to be an extensive stretch of red-hot cinders.

He went on to another yellow blotch inside the crater where the temperature was already 1,800 degrees. An escape of acid gases was noticeable on the surface over the blotch, and particularly the presence of hydrochloric acid —observations which convinced him that another eruption is near.

RISING PRESSURE

After 1944, the vertical tube in the bowels of Vesuvius which gives vent to the molten lava must have been blocked by rocks and also by the lava itself as it cooled. The pressure of molten matter beneath has steadily increased since then and it is thought that a new column of lava is now forcing its way to the surface.

Symptoms of this, say the scientists, are the acid gases on the yellow blotches whicl. reach the surface only when pushed upwards by lava.

Red-hot cinders only a few inches below the floor of the crater appear to indicate that the resistance of the congealed material of the last eruption has now been almost overcome by the heat and pressure from below, and it may be only a shor time before the rich, fertile slopes of this great mountain are again scoured by crawling streams of lava.

Mrs. Sargent Named President Of WA

WESTWOOD (ENS)—Mrs. Hugh Neilson was hostess to the St. Andrew's Woman's Association.

A Christmas candlelight service was held with Mrs. F. Neilson, Miss Ellen McColl, Mrs. Gerald Chapman, Mrs. Stephen Elmhirst and Mrs. Clayton Brackenridge taking part. A solo was sung by Barbara Russell.

Officers for the coming year are: President, Mrs. J. S. Sargent; vice-presidents, Mrs. Ronald Warner and Mrs. Hugh Neilson; treasurer, Mrs. Wilbert Graham; secretary, Mrs. Aubrey Wood; pianist, Mrs. Max Brackenridge; assistant, Mrs. Gordon Warner; visiting committee, Mrs. J. S. Sargent and Mrs. Hugh Neilson.

Hold Three Men Following Break-in

SUDBURY (CP) — Police held three men in custoday here today in connection with a break-in at a drug store Friday night.

They are Robert Rosenborough, 19, of North Bay; Douglas Fleming, 22, of Timiskaming and Roland Point, 23, North Bay. Police said they had cameras, pen and pencil sets, wallets, wrist watches and $20 in cash when arrested.

Change Method Of Scrutinizing Board Accounts

A change in the method of scrutinizing accounts has been approved by the board of education.

Dr. Donald Whyte started the move when he asked if the long list of accounts, presented to trustees at the monthly meeting, could be mailed to them beforehand. This would permit careful scrutiny of the items, he said.

At present the accounts, as presented by the chairman of finance, are approved almost as a matter of routine. Vouchers for all board expenditures have previously been checked by chairmen of the various committees before being passed along to finance. They are then summarized at the board meeting by the chairman. A detailed copy is given each trustee who may see the original voucher if he wishes.

K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, explained that under the present method accounts can be paid up until shortly before the meeting. This couldn't be done if a list was mailed to trustees earlier in the week.

"It's more important that members of the board of education should know what's going on than that the office should be run efficiently," said Dr. Whyte.

G. Wilson Craw, chairman of finance, said that if that was case the finance committee should meet at 7 p.m., half an hour before the monthly meeting. This committee includes all the chairmen of the board's various committees. It was approved after a motion by W. B. Gordon and Dr. Whyte.

Mr. Craw added that this method had been tried before and often only the chairman showed up.

Ralph Langley, county master, took the chair for the initiation and Morgan Brown, for the installation.

Professor Suicides After Red Pressure

BERLIN (AP)—The anti-Communist Free Jurists League of West Berlin said today a noted German history professor committed suicide by throwing himself in front of a train because of Communist pressure on his writings.

He was identified as Dr. Karl Griewank, 53, professor at the University of Jena in the Soviet zone.

The league said the East zone Socialist Unity party had brought increasing pressure recently on the historian. For some time, the league said, Griewank had been working on an account of the big battle of Leipzig in 1813 in which the Prussians and the Russians joined to defeat Napoleon.

The league, which has excellent East zone connection, said the Reds wanted Griewank to depict the battle as a Russian victory.

Alberta Sets Up Polio Research Group

EDMONTON (CP)—Alberta is setting up a special polio research committee in an attempt to find the best method of preventing spread of the disease.

Dr. W. W. Cross, health minister, today announced a special committee will meet in Edmonton Monday to take initial steps to find out among other things whether quarantines or school closures have any effect.

The committee will also check on the results of gamma globulin, thousands of doses of which have been issued to the province.

Boy 4, Flies From U.K. Alone To Meet Parents

MONTREAL (CP) — A four-year-old Canadian boy met his parents today for the first time in 11 months after an unaccompanied transatlantic flight from London to Montreal.

Frazer McInnis of Brockville, Ont., should have come home from a visit to his English grandmother in September but he wasn't old enough. The age limit for unaccompanied children flying the Atlantic was raised from three to four this year.

Frazer had his fourth birthday Thursday and got his transportation tickets at once.

The crew of the Trans - Canada Air Liner described Frazer as "a model passenger" but two young fellow - travellers — also alone, Frederick Katz, 6½, and his four-year-old brother Joreg, who flew from Dusseldorf, Germany, were a different proposition.

NOISY PAIR

"They insisted on playing hide-and-seek all the time and eventually the hostess had to strap them into their seats to keep them quiet," a TCA official said.

Frederik and Joreg flew on to Toronto later today to join their parents.

Frazer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McInnis, who drove from Brockville to meet their son, said his homecoming had one "happy coincidence"—it was six years to the day since Mrs. McInnis first arrived in Canada where she met her husband.

Young Frazer went to Britain with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parfitt of Swansea, Wales, after they had visited his parents in Brockville.

Police Give Party To Children

Municipal and provincial police combined efforts. Friday night, to throw a Christmas party for their children. The sergeant's mess at the armouries was the site of festivities. Before the night was over, Santa Claus dropped in by way of the balcony and greeted the 100 or more children present.

Carol singing was led by Sgt. Claire McGillen with Mrs. K. I. Shadgett accompanying on the piano. Mrs. Shadgett sang, "White Snow and Silver Bells", accompanied by Mrs. Bill Aggas on piano. Constable Wilf Perry delighted children with his rendition of "Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer".

Christmas films were shown by Constable W. G. Scott.

Season's greetings were offered by district Inspector J. A. Stringer of provincial police, and city police chief, John Thompson.

The party committee was headed by Sgt. Gordon Puffer and included Constable Harold Andrew, Mrs. Ernest Beattie, Mrs. J. A. Stringer and Mrs. Bert Howden.

Anglican Guild Hold Christmas Bazaar

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Memorial Hall was thronged with shoppers on Thursday afternoon when the Guild of St. John the Baptist Anglican church held their Christmas bazaar and tea. The guests were received by the president, Mrs. H. E. Gastle and Mrs. L. J. Delaney.

The auditorium was decorated, using Christmas parcels as the motif. Large packages, gaily wrapped, filled each window and the quartet tables in the tea room were each centred with an attractively decorated parcel. Overlooking the busy scene was a large Christmas tree. Mrs. Gastle was convener of the decorating committee.

'Pouring tea, from a table centred with white 'mums and red carnations in a white pottery pitcher, flanked by white candles in silver holders, were Mrs. O. A. Langley, Mrs. Herbert Stuart, Mrs. L. Quackenbush and Mrs. R. Burgess. Assisting in serving were Mrs. A. R. Gariepy, Mrs. George Birch and Mrs. Norman Graham. Tea hostess was Mrs. Burgess.

The sewing table was in charge of Mrs. E. Robinson and Mrs. B. Q. Dench. On this table were aprons, knitting and handicraft. Mrs. John Twist Sr., convened the home baking table, assisted by Mrs. Price Morris and Mrs. Charles King.

The parcel post table was managed by Mrs. John Mose. Candy was sold by Mrs. Thomas Junkin and Mrs. John Twist Jr. The fish pond was in charge of Mrs. Harold Deeth and Mrs. M. Griffin. Specially for the children was the "Kiddies Korner" where they had their tea and were entertained by Mrs. R. C. Connors. Replenishing plates were Mrs. E. Ogilvie, Mrs. Creighton and Mrs. Harold Hopkins.

The ladies of Warsaw Anglican church also had a booth at the bazaar, where home canned fruit, pickles, baking and fancy work could be purchased. It was in charge of Mrs. Parsons, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Thompson, all of Warsaw.

Miss Annie Atwood was treasurer for the tea room. Financial results were very gratifying.

Install PA System In Stirling Church

STIRLING (ENS) — St. Paul's United church added another centennial year improvement to their church when they had installed a public address system which was dedicated and used for the first time last Sunday.

The Young People of the church, with the special donation of two elderly members, made this improvement possible by donating the funds required.

Three outlets are provided, two in the church and one in the Sunday school hall.

Voters Take Little Interest

MONTREAL (CP) — An Irish doctor who lives in Canada says Ireland has become a land of timid and frightened people because of a history of rebellions and repressions.

Dr. G. A. P. Hurley, a Montreal surgeon, formerly of Cork, said Friday in a panel discussion on "The vanishing Irish" that too few marriages, marriages late in life and emigration are causes of the Irishman's "disappearance."

"Ireland has little or no natural resources, a miserable climate and very little to attract the young to stay at home."

Sean Masterson, an emigrant engineer, told the all-Irish audience however that "through 750 years of oppression the spirit of the Irish has never been conquered."

Christmas Tree Prices Cut On Farm Market

The indoor and outdoor markets were today a splash of color as vendors prepared for Christmas by offering trees, decorations and table delicacies.

More delicate goods, home-made pies, tarts, cookies, bread and various holiday knacks were in abundance at market hall. Many vendors displayed choice fowl, artificial decorations or pastries. Lace dinner and chesterfield sets were selling at $6 to $8. Dollies were $1 each. Yuletide door and window decorations ranged in price from 75 cents to $1.50.

In the pastry section, pies were 60 cents; tarts, 40 cents a dozen; cookies, 30 to 40 cents a dozen; bread, 15 cents a loaf; and cakes, 60 cents each.

Jars of marmalade sold at 40 cents as did horse radish. Apple jellies ranged in price from 25 to 40 cents, depending on the size of jar.

FEW PRICE CHANGES

At the outdoor market the usual produce was on sale, and prices remained generally constant. Christmas trees took a drop from a minimum of $1 last week to a minimum of 50 cents today. A large assortment of trees was on hand.

Apples were just as plentiful as ever. Bushels of spies and McIntosh Reds were selling at $3.50 to $3.75. Snow and Talman Sweets at $2.75 and Delicious at $3.25.

Baskets of potatoes were as low as 25 cents, parsnips were 40 cents a basket, and carrots and beets 35 cents.

Egg and fowl prices also were unchanged. Chicken was 48 to 50 cents a pound; ducks, 50 cents; geese, 55 cents, and turkey 55 to 60 cents a pound. Eggs were 55 cents for grade A large, 50 cents for large, and 45 for mediums.

WI Christmas Party Held At Lakefield

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Twenty-four members and six visitors attended the Christmas party of the Women's Institute in Memorial hall. The president, Mrs. Howard Bullock welcomed those present and conducted a short business period.

Donations of $10 each will be made to the Mental Health Association and the Hostpital for Sick Children. A visit will be made to the old people's home in January. A box will be placed in Kemp's jewelery store in which members are asked to place donations of food for the family of a member who is ill in hospital and unable to make the usual dainties enjoyed at Christmas.

Demonstrations on the making of Christmas decorations were given by Mrs. Douglas Davis and Mrs. Clarence Foster.

Representatives from each church in the village contributed towards the program, which was arranged by Mrs. John Murphy and Mrs. Foster. Readings were given by Mrs. P. Leal of the Baptist church, Mrs. J. Kenney fo St. Paul's Roman Catholic church and Mrs. L. J. Delaney of St. John the Baptist Anglican church. Mrs. Glenford Murphy of Grace Gospel chapel contributed a solo and Mrs. H. C. Wolfraim of the United church a story. Christmas carols were sung, with Mrs. T. Payton at the piano.

Christmas presents were exchanged by the members and gifts were presented to those who had taken part in the program.

Afternoon tea was served by Mrs. Russell Bullock, Mrs. Clare Chittick and Mrs. Alex Rosborough.

Youthful Partyers Be Yourselves

Party days are here again. And that, as every teen-ager knows, can mean multigrooming problems. But the wise teen-ager also knows that it need not.

In grooming for a big event, remember that the sucessful guest is the one who fits easily into the group. To merit favorable comments, from both boys and girls, act your years and dress according to them; in other words, be yourself.

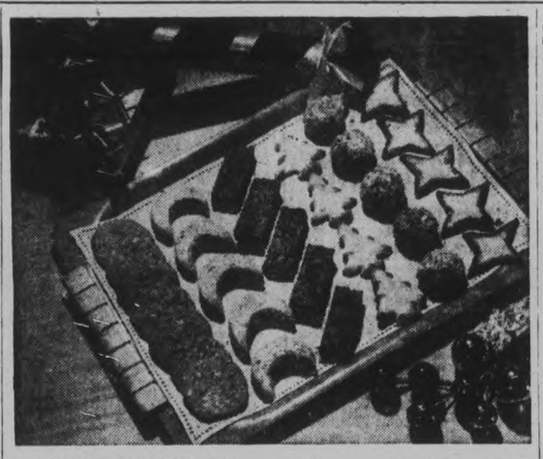
You know you are no slinky siren. Then why beg for permission to buy a black satin sheath? You'll look ridiculous, not glamorous.

You teen-agers have a wonderful, bright, clear-eyed expression that adults envy. Why try to trade it in for the phony mystery concocted of heavy applications of eyebrow pencil, shadow and mascara?

Why not accent what you do have? Women spend fortunes trying to recapture the smooth skin, clear eyes, shining hair and gentle curves they squandered in their youth. Make the most of them while you can.

Rural Teachers Aid Community

TORONTO (CP) — Rural school teachers who marry farmers usually remain in a community to give leadership in projects for the general good, a panel discussion group decided Friday at the closing session of a four-day staff conference of the Women's Institute branch of the Ontario agriculture department.



A delegate said that in one Lambton county school section, 13 successive teachers married farmers from the area.

"The leadership they gave the community was a valuable contribution," she said.

Discussing conservation, delegates said it is often the farm wife who persuaded a farmer to plant trees or start a farm pond.

SCARVES, SOFTEN SILHOUETTE

Beautiful silk squares to soften casual sports separates include interesting and unusual designs. One square has the replica of the very first French fire engine sketched in a red and absinthe green color combination on a brown background. For modern design, bold grey and black stripes are combined over a gold swirl pattern on cloud-light silk for added chicness to an all grey long sleeved sweater and skirt costume.

CHRISTMAS COOKIES are an ideal way to solve some of your gift problems. Bake a variety—balls and bars, circles and fancy shapes, and trim them your favorite way. Then tuck them in gay holiday boxes, "prettied up" mailing tubes, enamelled coffee tins. They'll carry your wishes right with them—and spell out extra thoughtfulness when they're opened—under the tree.

Cookies Make Ideal Gifts "Your House To Theirs"

The way Grandma celebrated Christmas—the good old-fashioned way—still holds plenty of appeal for her modern grandchildren.

And part of the charm of her way of remembering loved ones lay in her own "gift making". She knew that a gift became more precious when some of the time and talents of the giver had gone together to create it.

Cookies took top honors in the realm of Christmas gifts in Grandma's day and they're every bit as welcome today, if not more so. Christmas butter cookies are rich and delicate, and good to the proverbial last crumb.

Try any of the recipes in this new collection. In fact, why not try all of them, so you can mix 'em and match 'em. The lucky opener will know you thought just a wee bit more about them—for some of your love and labor went into gifts from your own kitchen.

PECAN CRESCENTS

Makes 3 Dozen

1 cup butter
½ cup icing sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups finely chopped pecans

Cream butter; add sugar gradually and beat until fluffy. Add vanilla. Sift together flour and salt; then add to creamed mixture. Fold in pecans. Using 1 tablespoon dough for each cookie, shape in hands to make crescents. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet in a slow oven (325 deg. F.) for 30 to 40 minutes. Roll in icing sugar while warm.

FRUITED CHRISTMAS JEWELS

(Makes approximately 4 dozen)

¾ cup each of raisins, currants, candied pineapple, candied cherries and broken nut meats
⅓ cup thinly sliced citron
⅓ cup butter
¾ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 eggs, separated
¼ cup evaporated milk.
¾ teaspoon vinegar.
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour.
¼ teaspoon each of soda and salt.
½ teaspoon each of cinnamon, cloves and allspice.
Dash of nutmeg.

Wash raisins and currants. Drain well. Cut other fruit into small pieces and combine with raisins and currants. Cream butter until smooth. Add sugar gradually and continue creaming until well blended. Beat in egg yolks. Stir vinegar into milk and add butter mixture. Sift together flour, soda, salt and spices. Stir into the butter mixture with fruit and nuts. Whip egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into batter. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto a buttered cookie sheet. Bake in a slow oven (325 deg. Fahr.) 20 to 25 minutes.

SUGARED BRAZIL BALLS

(Makes 5 Dozen)

6 tablespoons shortening.
½ cup butter.
¼ cup icing sugar.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
2 tablespoons thick cream.
2 cups coursely chopped brazil nuts.
2 ¼-cups sifted all-purpose.

Cream shortening and butter togeth r. Add sugar and beat until ligh' and smoth. Add vanilla and cream. Continue beating until well blended. Mix nuts through flour and add to the creamed mixture. Roll lightly into small balls. Bake on an ungreased cookie sheet in a slow oven (325 deg. Fahr.) for 30 minutes or until light brown. Roll in icing sugar or chopped nuts when cool.

DATE STICKS,

2 eggs.
1 cup sugar.
1 tablespoons melted butter.
2 cups dates, finely cut.
½ cup chopped walnuts.
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour.
1 teaspoon baking powder.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 tablespoon hot water.

Beat eggs well, add sugar and melted buttter. Blend. Beat in dates and nuts. Add dry ingredients, which have been mixed and sifted, alternately with the hot water. Beat after each addition. Divide mixture into two greased pans, 8 x 8 x 2 inches, spreading the dough thinly. Bake in a slow oven (350 deg. Fahr.) for 30 to 35 minutes. Cool and cut in strips 3 x 1 inch. Roll in powdered sugar, if desired.

KRISS-KRINGLE FAVORITES

(Makes Approximately 7 Dozen)

½ cup butter.
¼ cup shortening.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
1 cup sugar.
2 eggs, well beaten.
2¼ cups sifted all-pupose flour.
1½ teaspoonsbaking powder.
½ teaspoon salt.

Cream butter and shortening until fluffy. Add vanilla. Gradually add sugar, mixing until creamy. Add beaten eggs. Beat well. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add dry ingredients to butter mixture, combining thoroughly. Chill dough for 2 hours at least (preferably overnight). Roll out chilled dough on lightly floured bake board. Roll about ⅛ inch thick. Using floured cookie cutter of any Christmas shape, cut out cookies close together. Put leftover pieces of dough together and rechill. Decorate trees, bells, stars or holly with colored sugar, citron peel, cherries, nuts chocolate shot and cocoanut. Arrange on buttered cookie sheet, leaving space between cookies to allow spreading. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 deg. Fahr.) for 8 to 10 minuntes. Remove cookies from sheet and place on wire rack to cool.

N.B.: Keep a roll or so of these in your own frig too over the holiday—they're life savers when other goodies get low. Just flip on the oven, slice the roll, pop them in. Then serve your guests "freshly made" cookies, and delight them.

CATHERINE PARR TRAILL CHAPTER

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Mrs. Earl Orr was hostess to members of the Catherine Parr Traill Chapter, IODE, at her home this week. The regent, Mrs. J. A. Arnott, presided.

Mrs. T. W. Chaplin, educational secretary, reported that framed pictures of the Queen had been placed in the Lakefield District High School and in the public library.

Mrs. L. J. Delaney gave a paper on the Kremlin and Mrs. Chaplin a reading about Edna Jaques, which concluded with a prayer for the New Year.

Mrs. Chaplin, Mrs. E. H. Northey and Mrs. Delaney were appointed a nominating committee.

Assisting the hostess in serving tea were Mrs. S. R. Henderson and Mrs. Chaplin.

Feet wearied from day-long activity will be refreshed in minutes if you bathe them with alternating applications of hot and cold water.

St. Paul's WMS Re-Elects Mrs. J. H. Eastwood

Mrs. J. H. Eastwood was re-elected president of St. Paul's Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society Friday afternoon at the annual meeting.

The Rev. C. G. Boyd gave a very practical and inspiring address, encouraging members in the work they are doing in community, home mission field and abroad. He emphasized the fact that "the world is the field, and while there were many discouraging factors to combat, and antagonism by nationalistic movements, yet the main endeavour is making sure that people all over the world are given the opportunity to hear and receive the message of the gospel. He stated that Christ acomplished His work in spite of a formidable power of evil and that if we witnessed fervently Christ would accomplish His purpose in His own time.

Mr. Boyd in conclusion urged the ladies to "Lift up your heart and take new heart and witness before all creatures".

Mrs. Eastwood presided at the meeting and the period of devotion was conducted by Mrs. P. B. MacQueen, Mrs. Fred Hills presided at the paino. A life membership certificate was presented to Mrs. W. J. Hancock who has been a loyal member for a number of years. Reports of secretaries and conveners showed a very active year. The treasurer's complete report will be given at the January meeting, but her report to date was exceptionally gratifying

Mr. Boyd installed the officers for 1954, as follows:

Honorary president, Mrs. R. R. Hall; Mrs. James Dutton, Miss Nina Davidson; president Mrs. J. H. Eastwood; 1st vice president, Mrs. J. J. Craig; 2nd vice president, Mrs. W. C. Steinkraus; treasurer, Mrs. W. A. Hinds; assistant treasurer, Miss Margaret Lees; recording secretary, Mrs. W. A. Gray; corresponding, Mrs. D. W. Clark; press, Mrs. D. L. Diplock; supply, Miss Annie Erskine; glad tiding, Mrs. Fred Hills; student, Mrs. R. J. McNight; literature, Mrs. O. M. Steer; junior organization, Mrs. Walter M. Perks; welcome and welfare, Miss Mary Lees; social convener, Mrs. Robert Abbott; telephone, Mrs. E. H. Howson; program, Mrs. T. J. Carley; pianist, Mrs. Fred Hills.

Executive without portfolio: Mrs. C. G. Boyd, Mrs. W. A. Burrel, Miss L. J. Davidson, Mrs. Alex McCuaig, Mrs. W. A. Cochrane, Mrs. P. B. MacQueen.

Trustees: Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. E. Howson, Mrs. O. M. Steer.

Have Lovely Nails With Daily Care

If you are willing to spend a few minutes every day, you can do a great deal toward making your fingernails lovely. Since nails take four to seven months to grow, don't expect quick results.

Use nail enamel from the outset. Even though you may not want to call attention to your nails now, the enamel will help to protect them. Incidentally, the claim that nails should be allowed to "breathe" is false; nails do not "breathe."

MAKE TIME

Set aside a certain time each day, perhaps right after your bath, for massage. Massage a nail cream into the base of each nail with the cushion of your thumb. Using a gentle, but firm, rotary motion, continue massaging until you feel warmth beneath the cuticle.

It is important to develop a consciousness of your nails so that you can protect them from breaking. Open bobby pins with the cushions of your fingers instead of with the nails; use a pencil for dialling telephone numbers; push back the cuticles every time you dry your hands.

USE POLISH

Your nail enamel will help you to disguise poorly-shaped nails. Wide nails appear more slender when the polish does not completely cover the sides. Fan-shaped nails seem oval when the polish covers the nail near the cuticle, and is applied in a straight line to the top so that the sides are exposed.

Flowers Add Holiday Touch

Traditionally, women allow themselves a lot more license in preening during the winter. The brisk weather, the holiday spirit and the festive parties invite elaborate grooming especially for Christmas.

While many go all out for the social season, others tend to stop short at the hairline. Come an invitation to a coronation and these women would retain their simple coiffures.

If you belong to this group, hurrah for you individualism! Your hairdo will provide a refreshing contrast to the intricate coifs of other women.

While it is fine to keep your hair refreshingly simple, you don't want it to be forgotten. Set off the sleek lines dramatically. An arrangement of wide velvet ribbon, a rhinestone clip or perhaps a sprig of holly would be effective.

For a really smart note, wear your flowers in your hair instead of as a corsage. A rare green orchid set behind gentle blonde waves would be exquisite. Cool white gardenias are the perfect foil for jet black hair. And for red and brown hair, camellias provide the artful balance between the demure and the exotic.

MULTIPLE PETTICOATS of stiffened nylon tulle, worn one on top of the other, are the secret behind this season's bouffant, after-five skirts. The cascade of can-can ruffles is in a rainbow of colors. FLAMING RED NIGHTGOWN of nylon tricot is representative of new ideas in lingerie colors and styling. Designed with elastic at waist and arms to fit as comfortably as a dress.

Wintery Settings Can Be Made In Your Home

It's going to be a white Christmas this year whether the weatherman co-operates or not. Instead of counting on the fickle forecaster to provide a Christmas atmosphere, homemakers are planning to create wintry settings indoors with handy decorating aids that spray synthetic snow at the touch of a finger. Some are even outdoing nature by ordering their Christmas snow in bright shades of red, green, pink or blue.

Packed in pressure-powered metal containers, these push-button aerosols can be used with striking results on Christmas trees, holly wreaths, parcels, table decorations, window panes and mirrors. And there is no danger from fire.

A Christmas tree can be gaily decorated or completely blanketed with the snowy material. The ingenious will quickly discover that a few squirts will transform such simple materials as pine cones and boughs, sprigs of holly or short lengths of birch log into attractive table and mantel decorations.

With a little more patience anyone can "paint" a Christmas scene or "write" a season's greeting on a window pane or mirror. To "paint" a scene, just prepare a simple cut-out cardboard mask for each color area and spray around it. Keep the design simple by using broad areas rather than fine lines, because the fluffiness of the resinous snow doesn't have quite enough adhesion to hold in fine lines when the mask is removed after spraying.

HATS OF GLOVE KID

NEW YORK — Glove kid is making a strong play for entire hats in pastel colors, stark white, and deep, rich tones. Fur also is staging a revival, as well as long silky naps which give furry effects at less cost. Yarn, embroidery, beading, or feathers add brilliant surface decoration.

DRAPED TURBANS

NEW YORK — Draped turbans are bidding for "hit" popularity this season in all types from deep cover-ups to level toques.

Spirited Shades Being Worn "Undercover" This Season

Lingerie is losing its color-shyness rapidly. Traditional pink and blue are taking a back seat to red, green and cocoa among Christmas shoppers. Even women who never before deviated from white are suddenly showing a prefrence for deep rose, aqua, lilac and yellow.

Deep-dyed shades are being selected in lingerie to complement rather than match costumes. For instance, fiery red nylon tricot slips are now popular underpinnings for black outfits, while vibrant green is being paired with navy. The cocoas, on the other hand, are blended with the entire brown family in dresses and suits. For the first time in many seasons, black failed to capture the usual big vote as a fall lingerie color.

All this does not mean the end of conservative colors in lingerie. Manufacturers believe there will always be a heavy demand for conventional shades by the great majority of women who can't afford to invest in a wardrobe of slips.

New colors have permeated the lingerie picture so thoroughly, many stores are offering gowns, slips, half slips and panties that can be matched in shade as well as in style.

Styles have never been more lavish in the use of nylon lace, permanent pleats, embroidery, flounces and ruffles. Many daytime slips are cut with narrower skirts to conform with the new slender silhouette. Some dress-up designs are tubular sheaths of nylon lace lined with nylon tricot in a contrasting color and look like short evening dresses. Others are practical as well as pretty with opaque bodices and shadow-proof skirts.

There are can-can petticoats of ruffled nylon tulle, which are sold singly but often in twos, threes and even fours to wear one on top of the other. They are the secret behind the floating skirts that steal out after dark.

Nightgowns are also appearing in such less retiring colors as green, cocoa and flaming red. Fit is more important this year and there are many with elastic around the neckline, under the arms, at the waist and even on the wrists of those designed with push-up sleeves.

Children's lingerie comes in for its share of frou-frou this Christmas season, too, with nylon tricot slips, nighties and panties often imitating adult styles ruffle for ruffle.

STRICTLY FOR LOUNGING

NEW YORK — Strickly for lounging in the glamour manner is an outfit of tapered slacks in black velveteen with an overblouse of white cotton with gathered back.

DOROTHY DIX

Girl Asks About Propriety In Inviting Boy Home

DEAR MISS DIX: While attending a convention recently, I dated Frank, who is 21 (2 years my senior). Since my return home, I have been bored with all the boys here. I have Frank's address, though he doesn't have mine. Could I write and ask him to visit me? TERRY

✧ ✧ ✧

ACQUAINTANCE TOO BRIEF

ANSWER: Make your first letter a bit more impersonal than a direct invitation. You know very little of the boy, your acquaintance was very brief, and you are taking too much for granted from a casual association.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My adopted daughter is seven, and I live in daily dread that someone will tell her she's not ours by birth. I don't know how to tell her myself. I've heard of books on this subject; can you recommend one?

Mrs. D. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: "The Adopted Family," a two-volume publication of Crown Publishers, is admirably suited for your purpose. Ask your librarian for it, or buy it from a bookstore.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 18 and have been writing to a boy in service who is 21. Recently, I received a letter from him saying he would not write me again, and didn't want me to write to him, either. Since I have grown to love the boy, I was deeply hurt. I have heard, through a mutual friend, that the reason for his action was a recent letter of mine in which I practically proposed to him. He says he's not ready for marriage yet. I didn't realize I sounded so serious; how can I get myself out of this situation? M. I.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A lesson, I think, is the most you'll get out of the deal. Be friendly and pleasant when you see the boy, and perhaps his fondness for you will dispel his fears. In future, be more cautious and don't repeat the incident with this, or any other, boy. Young men like to do the wooing themselves; they hate to be hemmed in a corner by an overeager girl.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: What can we do with a nuisance who is wearing out his welcome? A bachelor friend practically has taken up quarters in our home, and both my husband and I are rather weary of him. He's here almost every evening and makes himself part of every social activity. We like him, but would prefer an evening to ourselves occasionally. It's gotten so that the only time we can be alone is to go out before he has a chance to call. Mildred E.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You say you have no single lady friends to help you out, but it seems almost impossible that a city the size of yours harbors no unattached girls who would love a chance at an eligible bachelor. I'm sure, if you really look around, you'll find quite a few. This is by far the best way of solving the problem, since any other solution is bound to incur hurt feelings. How about getting interested in a civic club, get your friend to join and see if he can't meet new people that way?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My father passed away a few years ago, leaving me quite a bit of property. My husband has three children from a former marriage; he thinks I should put his name on the deed, which means, of course, that when we are both gone, his children will share, with my two, the property for which my father worked so hard. While my stepchildren have been pleasant to me, they certainly have never gone out of their way to do anything for me.

Helena S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A will would probably be a better solution than a change in deed, but your immediate necessity is a lawyer. The property laws of your state must be considered, too.

Readers' Saturday Column By Mary Moore

QUESTION: Some weeks ago I wrote asking for... Spanish Rice... forget to enclose stamped envelope and to thank you for your prompt reply to my first letter ... your columns have been a great help... feel I am voicing opinion of all who read it ... have you a recipe for Potato Cakes (fried in pan on top of stove) I never seem to cook them the way my mother did... best wishes... Vera R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Vera I have just received another letter from you, and want to apologize for not including the menus for 50 in the "Five Oaks" article on Thursday last. I'll get you those quantity recipes soon though.

POTATO CAKES

Two cups leftover mashed potatoes, 1 large egg, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 tablespoons cream, 1 to 3 teaspoons grated onion if desired, about 4 tablespoons butter or fat. Mix ingredients and shape into flat cakes or drop from spoon into hot fat. Fry a golden brown on both sides.

SPANISH RICE

Saute ½ cup raw rice in 1 tablespoon butter for a few minutes until it is golden, then add 1¼ cup boiling water and boil until dry. Cover and steam over lowest possible heat for 10 minutes. Now melt 2½ tablespoons butter in another pan and add 3 tablespoons chopped onion, 2 tablespoons chopped pepper, ⅛ teaspoon sage, ¼ teaspoon salt, and saute them for about 3 or 4 minutes. Sprinkle over them 1½ tablespoons flour, stir in, then add 1½ cups thick tomato pulp and stir until thick. Boil gently 5 minutes. Pour over dry rice, cover and steam over low heat until sauce is of desired consistency—about 10 minutes.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION:... Could you give a few recipes for macaroni... isn't there a special rice now to use as a vegetable? Elizabeth M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It was very pleasant to hear from you again. Any rice may be used for a vegetable, but I think you refer to the very quick-cooking product. Please see the recipe above for Spanish Rice.

I am not sure what kind of a macaroni dish you would like. Here is one that calls for cheese and meat. You mentioned combining macaroni and rice. If you care to, you could substitute rice precooked for half of the macaroni in the following dish.

MACARONI CASSEROLE

One-half pound broken macaroni, ¼ lb. each ground veal and beef (raw), 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1 small onion minced, 1 bay leaf, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, ¼ lb. sliced cheddar cheese. Parboil macaroni 5 minutes and drain. Sear the ground meat in hot pan without additional fat until golden brown. Add tomatoes, onion and cooled macaroni, bay leaf and seasonings and carefully mix. Turn into casserole and cover with slices of cheese. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes.

If you would like to use rice as a vegetable, for 2 people measure ½ cup long-grain or brown rice, wash it in strainer, put in aluminum pot for which you have tight-fitting cover, add 1 cup boiling water, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon butter, cover and place over high heat until it boils. Turn off heat. In 5 minutes, turn heat on as low as possible, for about 20 minutes or until rice is tender; brown rice requires 40 minutes in all. Stand off heat, remove cover and spread a doubled cloth over pot and under lid for 5 minutes. Rice will be flaky and dry. Some sticks to bottom of pot but this washes off after soaking. Let me know when I can help again.

QUESTION: ... I noticed you would like Queen Elizabeth cake... I hope enclosed is what you want ...in your medium dark Christmas cake do I have to let it stand for a couple of weeks before I cut it or can I cut into it within a few days...I was asked to bring a Christmas cake to a PTA meeting ... hoping you will never stop writing ... your column is a wonderful morale builder...

MRS. M. H. F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: We help one another ...I received so many recipes for Queen Elizabeth cake I had to put them in a separate filing basket. I could write reams of thanks for the recipes and comments enclosed. One big THANK YOU will have to do. Yes, you can cut the cake ... we cut ours the day after it was made. However it is wise to have it ice cold or it may crumble when it is so fresh.

Edith Eason Tillicum President

KEENE (ENS)—The Christmas meeting of the Tillicum class was held at the home of Mrs. Herb McFarlane and Mrs. Everett McFarlane with 35 members and friends present. President Marybelle Elmhirst was in the chair.

The program, prepared by Mable Comrie and Marion Elmhirst, opened with a call to worship, followed by a Christmas carol. Velma Wilson acted as pianist. Bertha Wilson read the Christmas story from the Bible and Isobel Wismer led in prayer.

A pantomime was presented by Alberta Sexsmith, Isobel McIntyre and Alberta Drummond, dressed in white, while Margaret Short and Evelyn Richardson sang "Silent Night," accompanied by Marilyn McIntyre on the piano. Mary Elmhirst gave a reading. Margaret Short, Evelyn Richardson and Marilyn McIntyre sang a trio. Edith McIntyre gave a reading and several Christmas carols were sung.

It was agreed to buy water glasses for the church kitchen. The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $265.49.

Olga Gall, Margaret Short and Isobel McIntyre were appointed a committee to look after needy families in Otonabee at Christmas. Donations of food, clothing or toys are to be left at the home of Margaret Short before December 19. Lists were prepared for cards and fruit to be sent to the sick, shut-ins and absent friends at Christmas, the committee in charge to be Bertha Wilson, Ruth Bryer and Marion Elmhirst. It was decided to donate $50 to the WMS.

An election of officers for 1954 was conducted, with the following result: President, Edith Eason; vice-president, Mary Tuthill; secretary, Ruth Bryer; treasurer, Marion Elmhirst. The treasurer requested that all outstanding bills be turned in before the end of the year. Mary Elmhirst and Isobel Wismer were appointed auditors.

An exchange of gifts from a gaily decorated tree took place.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Velma McFarlane, Lucy Harding, Evelyn Anderson and Emma Coltman.

6—In Memoriam

ADAMSON—In loving memory of a dear dad and granddad, Pryice Adamson, who passed away, Dec. 12, 1951.
In our heart your memory lingers,
Always tender fond and true.
There's not a day dear dad
We do not think of you.
—Ever remembered by Marge Bill and granddaughter Mary Lynne.

ADAMSON—In loving memory of my dear husband Pryice Adamson who passed away Dec. 12 1951.
His life was earnest, his actions kind,
A generous hand and an active mind,
Anxious to please, loath to offend,
A loving husband and faithful friend.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by his wife, Mamie.

ADAMSON—In loving memory of Dad and Grandad, Pryice Acamson who passed away, Dec. 12, 1951.
We often sit and think of him when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak; when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.
—Ever remembered by Jack, Agnes, Bonnie and Jackie.

ADAMSON—In loving memory of a dear dad and granddad, Pryice Adamson, who passed away Dec. 12, 1951.
The dearest father this world could hold,
The cheerfest smile and a heart of gold,
For those who knew him, all will know
How much we lost, and miss him so.
—Ever remembered by Gertie, Ed. and granddaughters, Lenore and Arlene.

DRUMMOND—In loving memory of my dearly beloved Jimmie, who passed away three years ago today.
—Ever remembered by his wife Lenore.

FRALEY—In loving memory of Mr. Joseph Fraley, who passed away seven years ago tomorrow, Dec. 13, 1946.
Oh, God, what a weight of sorrow,
Must we, the lonely ones bear
A lonely home a silent voice
And only his vacant chair.
—Ever remembered by daughter Doris and family.

FALLIS (Reynolds)—In loving memory of Mrs. Cora Fallis, who passed away, December 13, 1949.
Oft and oft our thoughts do wander
To the grave not far away,
Where we laid our dear mother
Just four years ago tomorrow
—Ever remembered by her daughters Hazel and Della.

FRALEY—In loving memory of Mr. Joseph Lawrence Fraley, who passed away, Dec. 13, 1946.
We often sit and think of him when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own;
Like ivy on the withered oak; when all other things decay
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.
—Always remembered by wife Polly and family.

FORD—Treasured memories of my dear husband, Howard J. Ford, who entered into rest, Dec. 12, 1950.
His life on earth was a chain of gold
Bound with honour and respect
Each link a smile, a word or cheer,
And no matter how far or heavy the load
Sweet was his journey on Friendship Road
Yet have we peace and can rejoice,
When we but hear the Master's voice:
"Arise we will wait patiently."
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by his wife, May R. M. Ford.

ORDE—In loving memory of our dear nephew, Evangelist Keith Orde, who passed away, December 13, 1952.
—Sadly missed by Aunts, Myrtle, Etta and Florence.

ORDE—In loving memory of my dear brother, Evangelist Keith Orde, who passed away one year ago tomorrow, Dec. 13, 1952.
God knew that he was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So he closed his weary eye lids
And whispered "Peace be Thine."
—Lovingly remembered by sister and brother-in-law, Shirley and Bill Fisher.

ORDE—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Evangelist R. Keith Orde, who passed away, one year ago tomorrow, Dec. 13, 1952.
See the prayer of Jesus answered,
Just before He walked the vale,
That His loved ones might be with Him
Safe and sound within the Veil.

Sure our hearts are sore and tender,
For he's left us for awhile,
But his Saviour's work he finishes
In our home beyond the skies,
We have one dear son has gained
One of heaven's best sons the world could contain.
—Loving remembered by father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Orde and brothers, Garry, Wayne, Bob and sister-in-law, Joan.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

6—In Memoriam

ORDE—In loving memory of a dear friend, Keith Orde.
Till the day breaks and the shadows flee away.
—Lovingly remembered by Marnie Ford.

SMITH—In memory of our dear husband and father, Pte. Adam Smith, died Dec. 12th, 1943.
Dearer still as the years depart,
Your memory live within our hearts.
—Ever remembered by his wife and family.

SCRIVER—In loving memory of our beloved son, Harold K. Scriver, who passed away December 12, 1952.
He is gone but not forgotten
And as dawns another year
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near
Days of saddness still come o'er us
Friends may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed —Ever remembered by mother and dad.

TURNBULL—In loving memory of Joseph Turnbull, who passed away Dec. 12, 1949, and Annie Turnbull, who passed away Dec. 27, 1949.
Two dear ones are missing and with us no more,
But we think of them now the same as of yore.
—Lovingly remembered by the family.

7—Card of Thanks

I Wish to extend my sincere thanks to the sisters, nurses and staff of St. Joseph's Hospital, also attending doctors, relatives, friends and neighbors, employees of Shipping Department of Quaker Oats, and those that helped at the time of my accident, May 29th. — Cameron Trude.

Youth Stole Auto Jailed One Year

COBOURG (ENS) — Found guilty on a charge of stealing a car, Robert Pacey, 19, of Trenton, was sentenced to 12 months determinate and six months indeterminate in the reformatory by Magistrate R. B. Baxter, Friday. On a charge of theft of gas he was sentenced to six months in the reformatory, to run concurrently with the other term.

"You were seven years in the training school and your record there was far from good. Apparently the efforts made at the school to put you on the right path were in vain and I am letting the charge stand at car theft. Under other circumstances the court might be inclined to consider a charge of joyriding," said Magistrate R. B. Baxter.

Diver Will Repair Scow Sunk In Harbor

COBOURG (ENS)—In a race against weather, work was started Friday afternoon to salvage the scow and derrick of the Ontario Construction Co., which sank in Cobourg harbor Thursday morning when a gale battered the scow against the pier until it sprang a leak and sank. Just visible above the water is one end of the scow which is still afloat and the other end is on the lake bottom but the top of the derrick is above the water.

A company official said that a diver would inspect the sunken scow and see what repairs are necessary to make it watertight after which the water will be pumped out and the scow raised. A mobile derrick was brought down by transport and taken out to the pier to assist in raising the scow which is just off the T-pier.

Funeral services for Mrs. Adeline Thompson were held from the Kaye funeral home Friday for burial in Union cemetery, Cadmus, Ontario. Mrs. Thompson died Wednesday at her residence, 351 Park St.

Pallbearers were, Mervin Williamson, Ross Thompson, John Peel, James eHnry, William Harland, and Lawrence Smith.

Czechs Reject Donations

SCHIRNDING, Germany (AP)—Communist Czech authorities refused to accept a shipment of 40 washing machines and two tons of soap flakes donated by American firms for needy families in Czechoslovakia, German railway officials said Friday night. A German freight car containing the shipment left this Bavarian border station last Saturday but was returned by the Czechs without explanation.

Reds Attack Surgeons

HONG KONG (Reuters) — The Communist New China news agency alleged today that American military surgeons performed amputations unnecessarily on Chinese prisoners-of-war in Korea. Quoting from a 20,000-word report by the Chinese Red Cross, the agency said prominent doctors had found that of 1,172 returned prisoners who had been wounded, 840 were incapacitated or crippled.

4 Unions Agree Accept Pattern

NEW YORK (AP)—Four AFL newspaper unions Friday agreed tentatively to go along with the fact-finding pattern that grew out of New York's newspaper strike.

They are the paper handlers, mailers, stereotypers and printers. A fifth union, the pressmen, want more time to think it over.

Leaders of the four unions said they will recommend to their membership that they accept a $3.75 package, subject to possible upward revision by a fact-finding panel. The package covers wages, welfare benefits, holidays and a shorter work week.

The pattern was set by the AFL photo-engravers last Tuesday when they ended a strike of nearly 11 days that tied up six major New York dailies. Two other city newspapers were suspended at various times during the strike.

A three-man fact-finding panel now is reviewing the engravers' case.

Ghostly Face Fades From TV

BLUE POINT, N. Y. (AP)—The "ghost lady's" face finally faded from a Long island family's television screen Friday.

And the NBC network said it has solved the mystery. NBC said the face that looked steadily out of Jerry Travers' TV set for two days was that of Francey Lane, a singer on the Morey Amsterdam show.

A network spokesman quoted a TV dealer who examined the set as saying:

"An explosion of electrons burned the image of a face into the fluorescent lining of the picture tube."

There was no immediate explanation of why the image disappeared, unless it burned off.

Shortly after lunchtime Friday, said Travers' wife, there was a sort of "poof," the face turned into a ball and faded into nothing. Until then, the face had stayed on the screen no matter what station was tuned in.

Children WI Guests At Christmas Party

WARSAW (ENS)—The Women's Institute held a Christmas meeting in the institute rooms with 22 present, including four visitors.

The meeting was opened with the singing of the Institute Ode. Mrs. Clysdale, president, was in charge.

Card conveners for the next month will be Mrs. M. Drain and Mrs. H. Digweed. Proceeds from the last two card parties were $15.80.

Mrs. Milton Drain read a report on the convention in Toronto. Mrs. Harold Ray gave a reading. Miss Georgina Moore played several numbers on the accordion. Mrs. Ivan Payne read "The Night Before Christmas" for the youngsters present. Mrs. Harold Ray conducted a contest.

Lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. M. Drain, Mrs. Hilliard Ray and Mrs. Ivan Payne. The rooms were decorated with evergreen boughs and Christmas decoraitons.

During lunch, gifts were exchanged amongst the members and the youngsters received candy.

60 Bursaries Given To OAC Students

GUELPH (CP)—More than 60 bursaries and scholastic awards have been presented to students at the Ontario Agricultural College, Macdonald Institute and Ontario Veterinary College.

Joan Ellerington of Exeter, Shirley Patterson of Lindsay and Sheila Ramsy of New Liskeard received Ontario Women's Institute awards.

H. J. Stanley of Carleton Place won the Governor General's medal at OAC.

CPR Plans New Cars

TORONTO (CP)—Stainless steel cars with scenic domes and luxury transcontinental trains that will equal any in the United States are some of the objectives of the Canadian Pacific Railway, N. R. Crump of Montreal said Friday. The executive vice-president of the railway told the Rotary Club the trains will operate between Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

Wins Court Judgment

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—J. Walter Gootee, who claimed he suffered from ulcers after a truck ran into the side of his barber shop, won a $3,500 court judgment Friday. Gootee, 37, said he was cut and bruised when the truck rammed into the building and that anxiety and nervousness resulting from the accident last December brought on ulcers.

Harp Inventor Dies

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Melville Clark, inventor of the Clark Irish harp and noted as one of North America's fine harp virtuosos, died Friday while talking with a customer in his music store here. He was 70. Clark had travelled extensively on concert tours in the United States and abroad.

Turkish Publisher Dies

ISTANBUL (AP)—Sedat Simavi, 58, owner and publisher of Hufriyet, Turkey's largest newspaper, died last night. A self-made man, Simavi built Hurriyet to a circulation of 140,000 daily and 210,000 Sundays since he started it five years ago.

Papers Expect To Break Edition Record

NEW YORK (AP)—Sunday is BE-day—for big editions—on the New York newspaper front.

The 11-day newspaper strike, which stretched over two Sundays before it ended, will make for the biggest publishing day in New York history.

Here is the announced line-up for four of the newspapers which publish on Sunday:

Times: Biggest paper in its 102-year history, with the largest main news section it has ever printed, a special section containing the front page and a general news page as prepared each day for issues missed during the strike, and a 64-page children's Christmas book issue.

OTHER PAPERS

News: A 532-page paper, including regional sections, with 23,000 more lines of department store advertising than on the same Sunday last year.

Mirror: A capacity 96-page news section plus extra district sections.

Journal-American: Oversized news and advertising sections, and twice the number of some of the paper's comic and feature supplements.

The Herald Tribune, not struck by the engravers but published without advertising during part of the strike period, expects to publish a record-breaker of its own with a main section of more than 100 pages.

WI To Sell Tickets On Print Quilt

WESTWOOD (ENS) — The Christmas meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the community hall.

First vice-president Mrs. Redmond Walsh presided. An exchange of Christmas gifts was made.

Current events were given by Miss eJssie Davidson. Mrs. Fred Faun reported on the convention in Toronto.

A print quilt was donated by Mrs. F. E. Birdsall on which tickets will be sold at the card party on December 16. The draw will be made the same evening. Proceeds will be added to the floor convening fund.

Miscellaneous articles were auctioned by Mrs. Birdsall. Proceeds amounted to $15.50. Refreshments were served.

Legion Party

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — Santa Claus visited Branch 103 of the Canadian Legion on Friday night, when veterans' children of the district packed the Legion Hall to sit on Santa's knee and receive bags of candy and fruit.

The Legion each year plays host to children of district veterans. A committee under chairman Len Beggs decorated the hall and arranged the program.

Morality Squad Youths Jailed

PERUGIA, Italy (Reuters) — Three youths today began serving 16-month prison sentences for belonging to "morality squads" which stripped, raped and branded some 30 Italian girls seen in the company of American soldiers at the Leghorn embarkation centre in 1947.

The "morality squads" to which the convicted youths belonged ranged the streets of Leghorn for three nights trying to drive out the 3,000 women who had flocked to the free-spending Americans.

Most of the women fled in panic, but at least 30 were treated for serious injuries after being beaten up, branded and raped. Many of them had their hair cropped.

More than 20 youths were tried for "libidinous acts, carnal violence and robbery," but most were acquitted.

Intensifying Drive Against Guerrillas

SEOUL (AP) — South Korean army and police units today joined forces in an intensified drive against Communist guerrillas.

The defence department said at least one full division of battle-toughened army troops and more than 10,000 national police are taking part. The operation centres in the guerrilla-infested Chirj mountains of southwest Korea.

It has been officially estimated that about 800 guerrillas are hiding in the mountains, raiding towns and communication lines in the area.

Says Court Ruling 'Blow To Devil'

MONTREAL (CP)—A minister of Jehovah's Witnesses said Friday night a Supreme Court ruling upholding the sect's right to distribute religious literature in Quebec is "another great blow to the devil and his dupes on earth."

Opening a three-day meeting of some 1,000 ministers from all parts of the province, A. D'Amico said the Witnesses now should seize the opportunity to step up distribution of bibles and printed sermons.

The Supreme Court ruled Oct. 6 that police licences are not required in Quebec for distribution of religious pamphlets.

$12,000 Damage In Hat Shop Fire

TORONTO (CP)—Fire in a millinery store operated by Sidney Weinstock Friday night caused an estimated $12,000 damage.

One fireman, John Richardson, was injured in the blaze and was treated at hospital for cuts to the left wrist.

Weinstock who lives upstairs and apartment tenants Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brant fought their way down a smoke-filled stairway to the street. They were unharmed.

Two Nominated For Reeve In Millbrook

MILLBROOK (ENS) — Millbrook nomination meeting, held on Friday evening in the council chamber, was the most largely attended one for many years.

A full slate was nominated. Dr. J. W. Wright, who has served as reeve for the past 4½ years, was again nominated to that position. He filled out six months of Harold Bigelow's term when the latter moved to Port Hope, and has held the office for the four years since that.

Also nominated as reeve was George F. Harrington, a former councillor. Mr. Harrington, who has served on the hydro commission for 37 years, was nominated as well to the new public utilities commission which after the New Year is to have charge of the village hydro and water supply. He did not indicate for which office he would stand, but said whichever he decided on he would fill the position to the best of his ability if elected.

SEVEN NOMINATED

Seven councillors were nominated to fill four places. They were Weldon Coulter, who has had four years' experience on council, J. H. Raper, who has served for three years, G. T. MacPherson, on council for two years, Ivan L. H. Gray, for one year, and Gordon Trick, G. A. Spicer and Robert Ridge not at present on the council.

Nominated for the public school board were Ed. Nattress with four years' experience, Mrs. Anna Kennedy with four, Fred Lowery with 12, and Jack Crowley and James Larmer, both new men. It was not clear whether it would be necessary to elect three or four of the five candidates. Four places are to be filled but one of them was made vacant by the resignation of Dr. M. E. Hobbs one year before his time was up. According to the Municipal Act 532, where one trustee resigns before his time is up other members of the board may appoint a person to take his place. D. R. Fowler and Homer Ouelette are the trustees not up for election this year.

PUBLIC UTILITIES

Nominated to the new public utilities commission for the east zone were Stanley Olan, Percy Hamilton and Lavergne Fallis, and for the west zone, George F. Harrington, Russell Reid, Howard Lancashire, Alex Gilbert, and David Fowler. Four commissioners are to be elected.

There was considerable discussion about the handling of the water supply. Now that it is to be under the administration of the new public utilities commission, it would be possible to get money for the necessary improvements and repairs. Pipe lines would have to be replaced and the water supply increased by the rise of the artesian well west of the present one up past the CNR station. This could be done without a great outlay of capital, and added to as time went on.

J. H. Raper stated that he would like to see a certain sum allotted each year for the replacing of sidewalks in the village, some of which were in a bad state of repair. He would like also to see more adequate fire protection in the east end of the village. This could be done, he thought, by having a reservoir into which the overflow from wells could be turned. He thought also that small streams which are numerous in the village could be widened and dammed up for an emergency water supply. Hydrants, which were costly, would not be necessary, he thought.

Ivan Grey was commended for his work in making plans for the new water supply.

G. T. MacPherson spoke of the culvert in front of the Presbyterian Church. It was difficult to keep it free from holes when heavy construction trucks doing road work passed over it all day long.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Under discussion, too, were the new stop lights installed at the corners of Anne and King Streets and Tupper and King Streets. Cars coming from both the side streets and along King were required to come to a complete stop at the lights. Some thought it would be wise to disconnect the lights for the winter, since it would be hard to come to a complete stop if it were icy or to get up the hills after having come to a complete stop when it was slippery. Others thought the lights should remain and thorough sanding done. It was felt by the majority that the lights had greatly reduced the danger of accidents.

All those nominated have until Saturday night, 9 p.m., to qualify.

Presbytery Officers Attend YPS Meeting

WARKWORTH (ENS) — The Young People of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church met in the Sunday school rooms.

Miss Marie Campbell was devotional convener. A vocal solo was given by Miss Ruth McCubbin.

The executive committee from the Peterborough presbytery were present and were introduced by Arden McNaughton. Miss Leona Gordon explained about a convention that is coming up.

Arden McNaughton was convener for the missionary period. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Smith. Mrs. T. E. Kennedy and Miss Fay Anderson served lunch.

TOWN TO BE MOVED—R. G. Robertson (right), deputy minister of the resources department and commissioner of the Northwest Territories, discusses with Frank Carmichael, of Aklavik, N.W.T., plans for moving Aklavik to a new site. The community serves some 50,000 square miles of Arctic territory and is the centre for fur trading, administration and missionary activities for the Mackenzie delta. It has outgrown its present location and is in danger of sinking as heat from the buildings melts the frozen ground on which the community stands.

Your Children's Aid Society

A Weekly Column Written in the Interest of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society

It was a neighbour who had telephoned the Children's Aid Society about Tommy's family. When the Children's Aid worker called, Tommy's mother was very upset. Nobody was going to take her children away. For sometime her chief concern was "getting back" at whoever had reported her. She did not accept it kindly when told that it was the policy of the Children's Aid Society not to reveal the name of the complainant.

The worker told Mrs. Anderson, Tommy's mother, that the society was anxious for children to remain in their own homes and that we could help parents who were having difficulties such as she was said to be having. If Mrs. Anderson had decided to struggle on alone with her problem, the interview would have ended there. But Mrs. Anderson really needed and wanted help. She was quite willing to keep regular appointments with the Children's Aid worker in order to get this help. Mr. Anderson became interested, and also arranged for interviews with the worker.

In these interviews the worker helped the Andersons, as they unfolded their story, to get an understanding of what had happened to their marriage.

Tommy, the second of 4 children,, was born during the Great War. His father had been in the army three years, having married shortly after enlisting. When Mr. Anderson went overseas, Mrs. Anderson with the responsibility of two babies, was really worried —worried about the danger in which her husband would be and worried as to whether she could carry her heavy responsibilities alone. When her husband returned she was nervous and weary.

Mr. Anderson found home life a great responsibility. One had not the worry of bills and kids and housing in the army. Moreover, his two children didn't know him and turned to their mother for everything. Mrs. Anderson needed appreciation for the job she had done and Mr. Anderson felt he had made a real contribution too in fighting for his country. Things went all wrong. Mrs. Anderson became pettish and nagging. Mr. Anderson found comfort in drinking. Home was unhappy for Tommy and the other children who began to look for their pleasure on the street.

With the guidance of the Children's Aid worker, the Andersons were able to see what they had to do if their marriage was going to work and if Tommy and the other children were going to have a happy home.

In slightly less than a year, the services of the Society were no longer needed. All of the problems had not been solved but the family had built up an ability to work out its own difficulties.

As soon as the Andersons felt they wished to manage without other help, the Society withdrew its service.

This is one of the many situations which come to the attention of the Children's Aid Society. Next week the Society would like to tell you about the Douglas family, who made their own application to the Society for help.

Rome Workers Have Ended 24-Hr. Walkout

ROME (AP)—Striking government workers went back to their jobs today after a 24-hour walkout, but Italy is bracing itself for a second round. Some 5,000,000 industrial workers have been ordered to lay down their tools Tuesday in a follow-up show of labor strength.

Both Communist and non-Red unions have backed the twin 24-hour demonstrations for higher pay.

The walkout, which ended promptly at midnight, tied up railway and postal service almost completely and affected telegraph service. Many schools closed because teachers were absent.

AFRAID TO STAY HOME

Most government office workers however, showed up for work under threat of stern economic reprisals if they stayed away.

The government, declaring the strike a failure, claimed 65 per cent of all public employees disregarded the halt-work order and only 3,301 of the 37,000 workers in government offices stayed home.

The Communist press claimed the strike was more than 99 per cent effective on the railways, 95 per cent in the post offices and 90 per cent in the schools. At least 80 per cent of government offices closed, the Reds said.

Independent sources placed the number of strikers at less than 1,000,000.

Steel Production Drops At Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Operations at Buffalo-area steel plants have fallen to 87.8 per cent of practical capacity, the lowest level in more than three years.

A check of area plants revealed that only 28 of 34 open hearths at the Bethlehem Steel Company's Lackawanna plant were in operation Friday, compared with 33 a week ago.

Plant officials would not say if a decline in orders caused the shutdowns. A spokesman said there have been no layoffs.

Republic Steel was operating six furnaces instead of the eight that had been in production recently.

Seize Mother, Children

NEW YORK (AP)—A mother and her six children were seized at the George Washington bridge Friday night. Police reported the mother said they planned to jump off the Hudson river span. Apprehended after alighting from a taxicab near the bridge were Mrs. Mary Glenn, 27, and her four girls and two boys, ranging in age from 11 years to six months. The mother was taken to hospital for observation.

Admits Kidnappings

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Joel Fernandes, 23, government telegraph operator, has confessed that he tried to kidnap the wives of four wealthy Rio de Janeiro men to get money for his marriage, police said. He was arrested Dec. 9, the date he planned to be married. Police said Fernandes confessed he had been influenced by American gangster movies.

Veteran Of Korean Army To Study At B.C. University

OTTAWA (CP) — A young veteran of the Korean Army and Navy is flying across the Pacific to enrol at the University of British Columbia.

Sponsored by two Canadians, 26-year-old Pak Kun said before leaving Tokyo that his trip to Canada is "the realization of a dream."

Pak graduated from Seoul University last March and will pursue his engineering studies at UBC.

Pak was studying at Seoul University in 1950 when the Communists invaded South Korea. He joined the South Korean 3rd division and fought until the Communists were pushed northward to the Yalu river.

FINISHED KOREAN STUDIES

Early in 1951, he worked with the UN's civil assistance command where he met Canadian Press reporter Bill Boss and Reg Bowering, a sanitation engineer with the UN in Korea. They discussed with him the possibility of studying in Canada some day but Boss advised him to finish his schooling in Korea first.

Pak did, and after graduating last spring was commissioned as a lieutenant in the Korean Navy. When the truce came Korean authorities found they could let him take up his studies again.

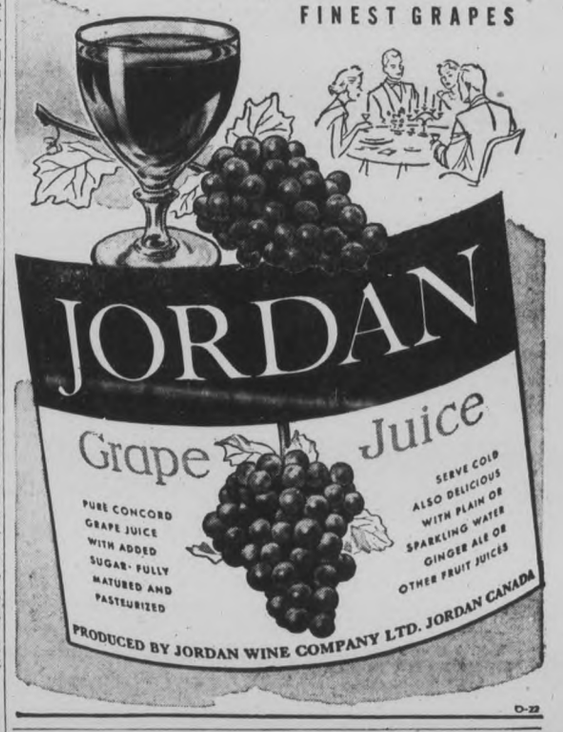
He plans to return to Korea after graduation to aid in its reconstruction. His story was reported here from the Canadian army public relations unit in Korea.

Mrs Rennie Elected President Of WA

KEENE (ENS)—The Women's Association of the United church met at the home of Mrs. Sam Comrie, with the president, Mrs. Elsie Rennie in the chair.

Mrs. Herb McFarlane had charge of the worship service and was assisted with readings by Mrs. Sam Comrie and a solo by Miss Margaret Bryce.

The nominating committee presented their slate of officers for 1954 and the following ladies will be installed at the January meeting: President, Mrs. Elsie Rennie; vice-president to be elected; secretary, Mrs. H. Wright; treasurer, Mrs. Ralph Adamson; pianist, Miss Margaret Bryce; manse committee, Mrs. Mary Graham, Mrs. Sam Comrie and Mrs. Ralph Adamson.



Christmas boxes are to be sent to shut-ins. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Freighter Craft Supply Fighter Bases

MONTREAL (CP) — Everything from toothpicks to tractors is carried by an aerial pipe line from England to Europe, to supply the RCAF fighter units on the continent.

Three times a week, three freighter aircraft of the Bristol Aeroplane Company of Canada ferry essential materials across the English channel to RCAF fighter bases in Germany and France.

The planes operate from the Langer air material base in England to Canadian Sabre jet stations at Zweibrucken and Solingen, Germany, and Gros Tenquin in France.

A spokesman for the Bristol company here said the service supplies "almost everything that Canadian airmen in Europe require."

One important function of the air freight service is carrying damaged fighter planes to an airport at Bristol where they are repaired under agreement with the aircraft builders in Montreal. RCAF ground personnel say they can load a damaged jet fighter on to one of the big air freighters, and secure it for flight, within 30 minutes.

HISTORIC ISLE

The island of Malta in the Mediterranean is believed to have been colonized by the Phoenicians about 1600 BC.

TRAMS LOSE CLOCKS—One of the unique features of Ottawa street cars—clocks—soon will be lost. High cost of maintaining them is the reason given for having the clocks removed. Ottawa trams are the only ones in the world which have them. They are helpful to shoppers and workers in a hurry. Katja Arnold, of Ottawa, checks her watch against one of the few remaining clocks.

Fear U.S. Decision Will Cut Canadian Wheat Price

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States decision to sell surplus holdings of subsidized wheat in markets outside the International Wheat Agreement has brought repercussions in Parliament.

In a special Commons debate on the subject Friday, CCF members were joined by one Liberal in voicing concern that the U. S. action may force down Canadian wheat prices.

Trade Minister Howe, the cabinet minister responsible for wheat marketing, replied that Canadian prices will not be affected. Americans had the right to compete with Canada in world wheat markets and the government had "no particular objection" to this.

Walter Tucker (L—Rosthern) said Canada should tell the U. S. that nothing should be done "to break the prices of our product."

BUSINESS SET ASIDE

Regular business of the Commons was set aside at the request of M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, to discuss the U. S. move, which he described as a "very serious threat" both to the International Wheat Agreement and to Canada's traditional market in the United Kingdom.

Canada should take immediate steps to safeguard her wheat economy from what would probably be "disastrous competition."

It was evident, Mr. Coldwell said, that the U. S. government had decided to destroy the IWA and monopolize the world market as far as possible "without regard for the consequences" to other wheat-producing countries.

Canada should call for an immediate meeting of the recently-formed Canada-U. S. joint economic and trade committee to seek "redress" of the unilateral action.

The U. S. move referred to was the Washington announcement earlier this week that the U. S. will subsidize a "limited" quality of government wheat stocks for sale to non-IWA countries at IWA prices. The current IWA price is about $1.89 in Canadian funds.

COMPETITIVE PRICES

Mr. Coldwell said the U. S. announcement means it plans to sell the 780,000,000 bushels held by its agency, the Commodity Credit Corporation, at competitive prices on the world market.

Canada, with 550,000,000 bushels for export outside the IWA, was in the position of either entering "cut throat" competition with the U. S. or holding its wheat unsold.

Britain, only major non-IWA country, is traditionally Canada's wheat buyer. However, she declined to sign the IWA when exporting countries demanded a ceiling of $2.05 a bushel.

Mr. Coldwell said Britain was obviously hoping that wheat-producing countries would start a "serious competition" for the British market.

NO OBJECTION

Mr. Howe, in reply, said the U. S. has the right to compete in world markets with Canada and its present move was "to be expected." Canada was informed in advance and had made "no particular objection."

"I see nothing in this situation that is unfair or unjustifiable."

For Canada it meant more competition but the situation was "not one that makes us particularly fearful."

The U. S. Commodity Credit Corporation had to consider the heavy amount of wheat it holds.

If Canada's position were seriously affected, he was sure the U. S. would consider a Canadian request for a readjustment in IWA delivery quotas.

"No one can say to what extent this will affect our position in the British market. I would not expect our position to be seriously affected."

The present IWA price was reasonable and the highest Canadian price in 20 years. "I do not expect any departure up or down from that price under these circumstances."

McCarthyism Big Aid To Soviet Union

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Herbert H. Lehman, Democrat-Liberal from New York, says "McCarthyism" has created a situation in which "the Soviet Union has profited more than it could from knowing all our vital defence secrets."

Lehman, addressing the Friends Committee on National Legislation Friday night, called Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep. Wis.), Senator William E. Jenner (Rep. Ind.) and Representative Harold H. Velde (Rep. Wis.), Vdle (Rep. Ill.) "inquisitors."

Referring to the "paralyzing influence of McCarthyism," Lehman said it started as "a guerrilla activity" and since last January has become "a full-scale assault on the government service, the schools, the stage, the publishing world and even on our churches."

FAR-REACHING EFFECTS

"The effects of these activities have been far-reaching and appalling," Lehman said.

"One effect has been to create more disunity at home than we have had in generations. The government service has been filled with fear and paralyzed in the exercise of judgment. Civil liberties have been cast under a pall. The basic concepts of due process and of presumptive innocence until guilt has been proved have been distorted beyond recognition.

"From these particular developments, in my judgment, the Soviet cause has profited more than it could from knowing all our vital defence secrets."

Won't Amend Act At This Session

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Gregg said Friday in the Commons the government does not intend to introduce legislation at this session to amend the Annuities Act.

The minister was replying to a question asked by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre).

About two years ago the government introduced a bill to raise the maximum government annuity from $1,200 to $2,400 but it was withdrawn.

National Council Of Women Protest Postage Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Council of Women of Canada, representing 605,000 women across the country, Friday presented the cabinet with a "strong protest" over the proposed increased postal rates.

A five-woman delegation, presenting their annual brief to the government, said the proposed postal rates were exhorbitant "and out of line with the reasons given" for the increase. The regular rates are to be increased by one cent next April 1.

Their objections were presented to Prime Minister St. Laurent and six other members of the cabinet, including Finance Minister Abbott.

Asked what Mr. Abbott's reaction was to a suggestion the delegation made that the postal rates issue be debated in the Commons, a spokesman quoted the finance minister saying.

"Undoubtedly it will be debated —loud and long."

NO DISCRIMINATION

The delegation said it also had received assurance from the prime minister that the government of Canada has no intention of discriminating against women in any phase of the national life.

Further to a recommendation, contained in their brief, that the government provide better treatment of early sex offenders under a revised Criminal Code, the council urged "a grant to set up a pilot project of a psychiatrist, endocrinologist and research worker to study the reasons for sexual aberrations."

The brief also had called for the removal of the 10 per cent sales tax on margarine; elimination of the means test in the Blind Persons Act; more favorable pensions to dependents of dead Canadian war veterans; continued attention to outstanding women in the selection of senators; and pursuance of a policy barring liquor advertisement from CBC television and radio programs.

Attitudes Of Men

Christian fellowship. Methodism, once divided north and south, white and colored, is now united; and movements for similar union are in progress in other denominations.

Insofar as the color line is concerned, as a northerner and a native of Canada, in which, at my time at least, there was little if any racial prejudice, I am inclined to believe that the greatest progress in recent years has been in the South, where slavery existed less than a century ago.

Beneath all this is the matter of personal attitudes of man to man individually. I believe that despite all the evil in the world there has never been a time when so many men were viewing one another with good will and freedom from prejudice, willing to judge their felows and treat them for what they are, without regard to color, religions affiliation, or any other outward difference.

That is a great reason, and perhaps the greatest, for hope.

Lindsay Strike Settled Grant Union Recognition

SOURCE OF THE TROUBLE in Lindsay was this transformer (top photo) which blew out Saturday night and plunged 25 homes into darkness. Striking maintenance men who were seeking recognition as a union, quickly put up a picket line at the hydro yard and around the pole. Office workers were unable to get to the transformer to repair it although there was no violence reported. The scene around the pole is shown in the top photo while one of the home owners in the blacked-out two blocks, Russ Lamb, who was elected last week to the 1954 town council, lights a fire in the wood-burning annex to his electric stove. The strike was settled this morning.

Dulles Order Stuns NATO Parley

France, Germany Told To Settle Or U.S. To Withdraw

PARIS (AP) — State Secretary John Foster Dulles told a North Atlantic Treaty Organization council session today that if European nations decide to commit suicide by blundering into another war "they may have to commit it alone."

However, in reply to a reporters' question later, he emphasized that U. S. policy is to keep American forces in Europe during the life of the NATO treaty, 20 years.

His statement was made as he outlined to news correspondents what the U.S. attitude will be if the European army treaty is not ratified and Germany and France fail to settled their age-old rivalries.

The declaration brought a gasp from 200 correspondents who had assembled for the first full-dress press conference on the first day of the session.

WARNS FRENCH, GERMANS

He said it is the aim of the European Defence Community to bring Germany and France together and to prevent further fighting.

Failure to ratify the treaty, he said, will require the U.S. to make "an agonizing reappraisal" of its policies toward Europe.

Dulles urged France and West Germany to "create a union that would make it impossible" for war to break out between those two countries again.

Dulles told a press conference the United States would support a European policy of this kind. He said it could be carried out "within the framework of the North Atlantic treaty through association with the European Defence Community."

MAJOR POLICY SPEECH

Dulles talked to reporters a few minutes after making what was described as a major policy speech before a meeting of ministers of the 14 NATO nations.

Dulles said the United States is trying to co-operate with European policy and would do so as long as it remained "sane and sensible."

Dulles said he spoke briefly on the Far East and quoted Stalin as saying, "The East is the road to victory over the West and the West can never neglect the East."

He praised France for carrying on her heavy burden in Indo-China fighting communism.

HAILS ATOMIC PROGRAM

Earlier, French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault told the ministers President Eisenhower's plan for an atomic pool for peace would "divert an immense material power from a deathly destruction toward the peaceful progress of mankind."

Bidault, chairman of the meeting, said a positive Soviet reply to the Eisenhower proposal would

Rescue 4 Adrift

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Four persons adrift in a small boat off Gros Cap, 12 miles west of here, were rescued Sunday night by the United States coast guard from the Michigan Sault. Fishermen Alfred and James Daigle, Louis Neview and 13-year-old Joseph Daigle, were checking nets when their boat developed engine trouble. They burned rags to attract attention and were unharmed when picked up after seven hours in rough weather.

B.C. Asks Gov't Help Launch Costly Program

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbia today proposed that the federal government help it launch a multi-million-dollar economic expansion program, enlarging B.C. rail, highway and forest conservation facilities.

The proposal was placed before Prime Minister St. Laurent in a 44-page brief submitted by a three-man B. C. cabinet delegation headed by Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

The provincial projects are estimated to cost about $238,000,000 over a period of years. Mr. Bennett proposed that the costs be borne equally by B.C. and federal governments.

RAILS, ROADS, FORESTS

The proposals are:

1. Adding 311 miles to the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, extending its southern end by 40 miles and its northern end by 271 miles. This would bring the southern end into Vancouver from Squamish and push the northern railhead from Prince George into Peace river country at Dawson creek. Cost is estimated unofficially at about $75,000,000.

2. Construction of a new network of provincial highways to tap new resources and promote tourist traffic. Estimated cost of an "essential minimum" highway program would be $150,000,000—excluding the trans-Canada highway plan. The provincial road program would take several years to complete.

3. Development of a forest fire protection system that would cost $13,000,000 initially and an additional $1,750,000 annually for maintenance. Forest protection was in the national interest, Mr. Bennett said, but the province did not have sufficient funds for an adequate system.

Extension of the Pacific Great Eastern would tap more of the Peace river products for Asiatic trade, particularly to expand trade with Japan. It also would help bring the big Vancouver market in closer touch with northern producers.

CITES PRECEDENTS

There has been precedent for federal participation in provincial economic expansion, Mr. Bennett said in the brief. The federal government was participating in construction of the Canso causeway in Nova Scotia, in the St. Lawrence seaway project which would principally benefit Ontario, Quebec and possibly Manitoba. It also was participating in prairie and Maritime irrigation and land reclamation projects.

In the case of B.C. needs, the "national interest" was clear. Development of the province's re-

Missing Girl Said Seen Near Orillia

Woman Identifies Picture As Pair Asking For Coffee

TORONTO (CP)—An elderly woman today looked at a picture of Marion McDowell, kidnapped eight days ago, and told police: that's her. That's the girl who came to my door Saturday."

The woman, whose name was not given by police, said a girl and a man stopped at her lonely farmhouse near Orillia and asked for coffee.

This was the latest lead in the search for the pretty, 17-year-old typist abducted from her boy friend's automobile on a suburban lover's lane Dec. 6.

Provincial police constable Morley Wright said the woman told police a car pulled into her driveway about 4 p.m. Saturday.

She said the man came to the door and asked for coffee "for my girl friend."

MAN ARGUED

The woman said she had no coffee but directed the man to a restaurant several miles away. The man said his "girl friend" had been in an accident and after an argument with the woman, the man and girl drove away.

Before leaving, the woman said, the man warned her that "You'll be sorry."

Police Arrest Premier's Wife

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—Police Sunday arrested Mrs. Janet Rosenberg Jagan, American-born wife of British Guiana's ousted prime minister, and nine other leaders of the leftist Progressive Peoples party. They were charged with holding an illegal meeting.

All 10 were released on bail of $75 ($44.25 U. S.) each. Hearings on the charges were set for Tuesday.

Police said Mrs. Jagan, secretary of the PPP, and her associates were using a loudspeaker to address a crowd of 300 at a sugar estate village about 15 miles from Georgetown.

Guiana's colonial governor, Sir Alfred Savage, early in October banned public meetings unless they had police permission at the same time he ousted Mrs. Jagan's husband, Cheddi, and five other PPP government ministers and suspended the constitution.

25 Homes, Cafe Without Power For Nearly 30 Hours

LINDSAY (ENS)—The strike of 13 Lindsay hydro maintenance men ended at 2:30 a.m. today and power was restored to 25 homes and a restaurant 30 hours after a transformer failure had plunged two blocks into darkness and precipitated a crisis in the week-long strike. The maintenance men of the town's electricity commission had gone on strike to try to force the commission to recognize their forming a local of the National Union of Public Service Employees.

After a three-hour meeting that began about 11 p.m. Sunday, the commission and union representatives reached an agreement in which the commission recognized the union.

The agreement was signed by L. A. Waddell, chairman of the commission and Stanley J. Little, Toronto, representative of the National Union of Public Service Employees.

NO DISCRIMINATION

It was called for the commission to start negotiating with employees through their elected representative toward a signed collective agreement. One of the terms of today's agreement was that there would be no discriminating or punitive action taken against any of those who had taken part in the strike.

The union agreed to the use of section 78 of the Labor Relations Act under which the commission declared itself a municipality and not subject to the Labor Relations Board regulations.

It was felt that this would mean that disputes would be negotiate outside the Labor Relations Act, but could contain many of its features.

It was informally agreed that there would be no negotiating for

Ask RCAF To Help Find Missing Flier

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Flying Club has asked the RCAF to help find one of its members who is unreported since Nov. 28 when he took off from Kingston, Ont., for Montreal.

A club spokesman said today Jack Lawson, 18, of Baie Comeau, Que., and Quebec City, left here Nov. 19 on a three-week cruise with a Fleet Canuck bearing letters CF-ENY. The plane is owned by the club.

The spokesman said Lawson, a private pilot with 150 hours of flying time, was last reported leaving Kingston Nov. 28 at 4 p. m. for Cartierville airport, Montreal. He never landed there.

Lawson was not due back here until last Wednesday. A check of airports in eastern Canada brought no clue as to his whereabouts.

Find Canadians Gabbiest In Phoning

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians make more use of their telephones than any other people in the world, the Bell Telephone Company says.

The annual world telephone survey, released Sunday, shows Canadians were slightly gabbier than U.S. citizens, averaging 388.7 telephone calls a person in 1952 while United States per capita average was 382.1. Iceland ranked third with 360.1 calls a person.

In number of telephones and number of phones a hundred persons, Canada came third. The United States was tops in both departments with 48,056,308 telephones or 30.3 for every hundred persons.

OTHER FIGURES

The United Kingdom was second in number of phones with 5,915,972, and Sweden was second in number a hundred with 26.4. Canada had 3,353,000 telephones, or 22.9 for every hundred persons.

UAW Drops Plan For 35-Hr. Week

BRANTFORD (CP)—The Canadian district council of United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) will press demands for the guaranteed annual wage and abandon a proposal for a 35-hour work week.

The council, representing 75,000 members in anada, decided during a week-end meeting to make the drive for the guaranteed wage its prime objective.

Dennis McDermott of Toronto termed the proposed 35-hour week a "Communist-inspired" proposition meant to impede the UAW's campaign for the guaranteed wage.

Plans were laid for a "full employment" conference in Ottawa early next year when the union will press for legislation providing ful employment whenever unemployment reaches serious proportions.

Colder Weather Moving Across Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—Snow and rain swept over Ontario today as icy blasts of air began moving down from northern Canada. Temperatures are expected to drop about 15 degrees Tuesday.

Sunday night it was believed a storm heading north-northeast through the United States would cause a cold snap in Central Canada. This storm diminished during the night and no longer is a threat.

The first full-scale snowfall of the winter hit the capital today, snarling traffic scores of minor accidents.

Ottawans so far this year have had an almost-unprecedented spell of mild weather, and many feared a green Christmas. However, the weatherman indicated today's fall may be here to stay.

40 ACCIDENTS

The heavy fall opened at 7 a. m. and two inches had fallen within four hours. The forecast was for a continuing heavy fall ending some time tonight, with lower temperatures and snowflurries Tuesday.

More than 40 traffic accidents were reported before noon.

CHICAGO (AP)—Rain, sleet and snow pelted the eastern United States today and a great man of cold air from Canada chilled the central plains as it moved southward.

The storm that was expected to dump a heavy fall of snow in western Pennsylvania and New York already had dropped up to .75 of an inch of rain in the Carolinas and Virginia.

Pennsylvania had snow, sleet and rain. There was rain and snow in the eastern Great Lakes region. Southern Missouri had snow flurries.

50 Sailors Tossed Into Choppy Water

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A 50-foot launch with more than 50 sailors aboard capsized in Hampton roads near the Norfolk naval base piers today. The water was choppy.

Naval spokesmen said it was not known immediately whether any of the men were lost. The 50-foot launch upset while en route from the anchored cruiser Pittsburgh to the naval base.

Spokesmen said the submarine rescue vessel Kittiwake plucked "about 50" survivors from the water and the aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt "picked up a handful."

China, North Korea Ask U.S. Order Talks Resumed

PANMUNJOM (CP)—Communist China and North Korea tonight called upon the United States to order the resumption of preliminary negotiations here for a Korean peace conference. The call came in a formal statement broadcast by Peiping Radio a few hours after chief Allied negotiator Arthur Dean announced he will leave tomorrow for an indefinite stay in Washington.

"The decision entirely rests with the U. S. government as to whether it chooses to assume the grave responsibility of sabotaging the convening of the political conference or to return to Panmunjom to continue the discussions between the two sides;" the statement said.

Dean will leave his chief aid in Korea "to see if the Communists wish to resume" the rupturned negotiations.

Dean, who met for eight weeks with the Reds in an effort to reach an agreement, walked out on the Communist diplomats Saturday after they accused the Allies of "perfidi'ty." He told reporters today that his aide, Kenneth Young of the U.S. state department, will

However, the Communists' Peiping radio already had reasserted the perfidy charges and laid the blame for the breakdown on the "contemptible cold war policy of the United States."

OMINOUS SIGN

Peiping said Dean's walkout was "an ominous sign that the U.S. government might commit further perfidies of graver consequence."

Bog Worker, Shot Abandoned By Hunters

MIDDLEBORO, Mass. (AP)—A hardy cranberry bog worker told today how he was shot and abandoned by a group of hunters and how he lay without help for three days in his little shack until his plight was discovered by a chance visitor.

Benjamin de Silva said in his hospital bed that a group of hunters apparently mistook him for a deer last Thursday and shot him three times, filling his chest, back, right leg and arm with buckshot.

The hunters took him to his shack and told him they were going for help. They never returned, de Silva said.

He yelled for help for two days but none came, de Silva said.

Then a friend, Raymond Pannenen, called on de Silva Sunday. The visitor said he knocked on the door but got no answer. He was about to leave, he said, when he decided to look inside. There he saw de Silva in a coma from loss of blood.

Coughing Concert-Goers Win Battle Drown Out Pianist At London Recital

LONDON (AP)—The coughing of music lovers just about knocked all the inspiration out of German pianist Wilhelm Kempff at a recital Sunday night.

In the midst of one of his own compositions, coughing and piano climbed up crescendos simultaneously.

The coughers seemed to be getting the better of it when Kempff lifted his hands from the keyboard and exclaimed pleadingly:

"It's imposiible."

Some music lovers shouted "Hear, Hear." Thereafter the coughers restrained themselves and the piano was interrupted only by some minor nose blowings.

One critic, who confessed to a little coughing in a minor key, wrote:

"I rather questioned the propriety of Mr. Kempff's protest. Anyone who schedules a winter concert in London should be prepared to take our respiratory ailments in stride."

Ask Ottawa Give Crossing Aid

OTTAWA, (CP) — The federal government has been asked to boost financial aid in the drive to cut down the "alarming" loss of life through level crossing accidents.

The Canadian Good Roads Association said today it made the proposal in a brief submitted last week to the board of transport commissioners.

Specificially, the CGRA proposed:

1. Increased federal aid for the protection of road traffic at railroad crossings.

2. National stock-taking aid for the protection of road traffic at railroad crossings.

3. A co-ordinated country-wide program of driver education undertaken by governments, railways and other interested bodies to reduce "driver error," responsible for a large number of level crossing deaths.

"Provincial and municipal governments are unable to do much more than they now are doing to improve grade crossing protection," the association said. "The federal government is the only agency that is financially able to help curb the alarming loss of life at level crossings."

Rudderless Liner Will Reach Norway

OSLO (AP) — The rudderless Norwegian liner Stavangerfjord headed into calmer Atlantic seas today with good prospects that her 644 passengers will reach Norway well before Christmas.

The 13,344-ton ship, whose rudder broke Wednesday, rode out a week-end gale and was reported still plugging along on her own power, steering only by her twin screws.

Weather experts here predicted calmer seas for the ship, which was some 600 miles west of Ireland Sunday. Her owners, the Norwegian America line, estimated she would reach here Friday or Saturday. She left New York Dec. 4.

The British sea-going tug Turmoil, famous for her heroic but unsuccessful attempt two years ago to save Capt. Kurt Carlsen's Flying Enterprise, joined the Norwegian liner Sunday to shepherd her home.

SUPPER BY LAMPLIGHT was something new for young Kristin Trotter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Trotter who were one of the families who lost their electricity Saturday night when a transformer blew and striking maintenance men of the Lindsay hydro commission refused to fix it or allow office staff to try. Power was restored early today when the commission decided to recognize the union and the strike ended.

Union Votes To Accept Settlement

Declare Next Move Up To Company In Mining Strike

TIMMINS (CP)—The next step toward ending the strike of 1,500 employees of Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines is up to the company.

Between 700 and 800 miners who have been on strike for 11 weeks to enforce demands for a pay increase and the checkoff of union dues voted Sunday night to accept a settlement plan calling for a general wage increase of five cents an hour.

The plan was worked out in Toronto last week at a series of meetings held under auspices of the Ontario government. Officials of the striking union, United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), recommended acceptance to the night's meeting.

NO ANNOUNCEMENT

The company has not yet announced its stand on the settlement proposal. It may do so today.

It is believed the plan, if accepted, could set the pattern for ending the strikes by 3,500 other miners at seven of the 10 other Timmins area gold mines.

The settlement proposals, released last week in Toronto, made no mention of the checkoff of union dues, one of the main issues in the dispute. It has been suggested pay cheques could be sent to the banks, which could deduct the monthly dues and send them to the union office.

Missing Girl

Police in nearby Scarborough township, who are conducting the search, said they have been informed of the incident near Orillia and are checking with provincial police for further information.

Volunteer searching was called off Sunday night, a week from the time it began. Police said their investigation will continue.

Searchers in helicopters, in diving equipment, on foot, in cars, and with portable radio equipment, poked into virtually every building, gulley, well or stream that might hold the girl's body or any other clue to her fate. They found nothing to help.

DESCRIPTION CIRCULATED

The girl's photograph was televised and printed in the newspapers. Her description went out to the papers and over the air. Her father broadcast appeals for help in finding her.

The offer of $2,000 in reward money brought countless tips, all of which were checked. Girls resembling the missing Marion were reported seen in Thamesville, 20 miles north of Chatham, and in many other places. Police interviewed more than 200 of the girl's friends and acquaintances.

Toward the end of the week, Police Chief Wilfred McLellan of Scarborough announced that, as a result of the thorough search, he was satisfied the girl was not in the township, dead or alive.

He also said he thought the girl still alive and that she had left home of her own free will.

The girl's family insisted she would not run away without telling them. Her father said she would only leave home if someone forced her to do so.

Last night the father thanked the volunteer searchers and praised the work of the police. He said:

"I don't want to give up, but I don't know where to turn next."

TWO CANADIANS PRESENT

Canada's delegation to the conference is headed by External Affairs Minister Pearson and Defence Minister Claxton.

Bidault was expected to ask that the North Atlantic Treaty be extended to 50 years from its present limit of 20 years. That would make its binding ties on the U.S. last as long as the EDC treaty binding Germany and France together—and provide an additional obligation on the United States to protect France against any future German invasion.

U.S. sentiment here seemed to indicate a willingness to go along with such a French request.

Liberals Choose Planks For Platform

TORONTO (CP)—Planks of a new party platform to be submitted to an Ontario Liberal Association leadership convention here next April were hammered out by a party policy conference which ended Saturday.

The sessions were held behind closed doors. A statement issued after the meeting said reports of the standing committees were presented at a session of the whole co-ordinating committee on party policy and there was extensive debate, particularly on the party's position on health and welfare housing and municipal affairs.

"The Liberal party is devoting all its talents to the solution of the many problems confronting our people," the statement said.

ENTHUSIASM ENCOURAGING

A. P. Cadeau of Burlington, president of the association, said:

"The enthusiasm displayed at the sessions was most encouraging."

The question of finding a leader to succeed Walter Thomson, who resigned after the party's defeat in the provincial general election of 1951, was considered at a meeting of the committee on conventions, which has the task of arranging for a slate of candidates to go before the convention in April.

The baby was born by caesarian section in Washington, Ind., to a 28-year-old mother of three normal daughters.

Mine Company Turns Down Some Terms

TORONTO (CP) — Jules Timmins, president of Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines, today gave a mixed reception to Labor Minister Daley's plan for ending a strike at the mine, accepting some proposals, rejecting others.

The United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) last week accepted the Daley plan as a basis for ending the strike by 1,500 of its members.

Mr. Timmins, in a letter to the labor minister, said the company agreed to a five-cent-an-hour wage increase contained in the proposals but rejected as "one-sided" a suggestion that wages be reviewed during the contract period if the price of gold is changed.

Mr. Daley suggested in the basis for settlement that "all conditions in the mine now existing should remain." Mr. Timmins said the company will not agree to this. He did not elaborate.

Mr. Timmins said any acceptable collective agreement would have to be for two years, subject to termination by the company after one year in event of the emergency Gold Mining Assistance Act not being renewed for 1955. Mr. Daley had proposed a one-year agreement.

UNION SPURNS SUGGESTIONS

William Mahoney, assistant Canadian director of the steelworkers, said at Timmins that the union could not accept Mr. Timmins' counter-proposals.

At Toronto a union spokesman said the proposals Mr. Timmins rejected are "the ones most important to us."

DALEY DISAPPOINTED

Mr. Daley said later in Toronto he was "very disappointed" in Hollinger's reply to his proposals but "we're going to continue our efforts toward a settlement."

He said he will call in both management and the union separately to talk over the situation again before deciding on further action. He named no date.

Insistence of the owners that they would not accept less than a two-year contract was particularly disappointing, Mr. Daley said.

Price Groups Mixed In Light Trading

TORONTO (CP) — Price groups were mixed in light early afternoon market trading today.

Industrial strength was based on a majority of gains by liquors, and banks although steels, foods and retail stores were lower and papers and agricultures were steady.

Juniors bolstered the sagging golds as East Malartic and Preston gained 20 cents. In seniors, Lakeshore and Bulolo were strong, and holding companies were a little lower.

Western oils were steady with gains by Merrill, Canada Oil lands and Trans Empire.

Uraniums were stronger as several, Gunnar and New Mylamaque in the lead, made more-than-five-cent gains. New Brunswick base metals were quiet.

Although senior base metals traded actively only three were changed and they all showed slight losses. Junior gains and losses were in balance.

Town To Have Power From Bersimis Project

CHIBOUGAMAU, Que. (CP) — Finance Minister Gagnon of Quebec said Saturday this gold mining town in northern Qubeec will be served by electricity from the giant Bersimis river hydro project by January, 1955.

Mr. Gagnon said at the opening of the Opemiska Mine Limited's new plant here that trail cutting for the power line between here and the Bersimis project, about 400 miles away, has already started.

OBITUARIES

JOSH HARNDEN

NORWOOD (ENS)—A former resident of Peterborough and a native of Belmont township, Josh Harnden of South Porcupine died there Saturday at the age of 55. He has a sister, Mrs. Howard Simpson (Annie) of Norwood.

Also surviving are four children and his mother, Mabel Maude Harnden. The funeral will be held Tuesday in South Porcupine.

SILAS HENRY PEARSON

Silas Henry Pearson RR 1, Lakefield, died in St. Joseph's Hospital, Saturday, after a lengthy illness. He was 71 years old.

Born in Smith township, son of Frank Pearson and the former Mary Ann Blanco, he farmed most of his life except for a 25-year period spent in the U.S. His wife, the former Laura Lora Newton, predeceased him in 1938.

Mr. Pearson is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Chester Lepinski (Carrie), of Cleveland, and Mrs. John Fairbairn, of Saskatchewan; two brothers, Frank and George, of Lakefield, and one granddaughter, Miss Lucille Lange, of Virginia.

He was educated at school section 10, Smith township, and was a member of the Wesley United church.

Funeral services will be from the Hendren funeral home, Lakefield, Tuesday at 2.00 p.m., for burial in the Lakefield cemetery. Mr. Kenneth Stewart will officiate.

No Potatoes Dumped On U.S. Market

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—E. D. Reid of the Prince Edward Island potato marketing board said Sunday no Canadian potatoes have been "dumped" on the United States market this year.

Under present circumstances, he said, U.S. imposition of the 45-cent-a-bushel tariff on Canadian imports asked by Maine potato growers would violate a tariff agreement between the two countries.

"An agreement is an agreement and it cannot be changed overnight to the benefit of either party," Mr. Reid said in an interview.

ONLY JUSTIFICATION

"The only justification the American grower would have for complaint would be in the case of dumping on the U.S. market; that is, selling the potatoes below our domestic price.

"In such case a violation of the tariff agreement could be claimed. Such has definitely not taken place this year."

He said the position was the reverse of last year when U.S. potatoes were sold in Canada below the Canadian price.

"We didn't like that but we had to put up with it."

Mediators Arrange Steelworkers Talks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Federal mediation commissioners arranged talks today which they hope will help end a strike of 33,000 CIO United Steelworkers which has dealt a near knockout blow at production on tin cans in the U. S. and Canada.

The USW is on strike against the Continental Can Company and American Can Company in a contract dispute. Continental employs 13,000 USW members and American 20,000.

Today's session, first since the walkout was called Dec. 2, was between American and the USW.

The mediation service arranged another meeting for Wednesday between the union and Continental Can.

N.Y. Stereotypers Accept Package Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — Stereotypers employed on New York City newspapers have accepted a package of $3.75 a week offered by the publishers, plus a fact-finding arrangement.

James J. McMahon, president of Local 1 of the AFL International Stereotypers Union, announced that acceptance was voted by a meeting of 300 of the local's membership Sunday.

The package, as specified by the stereotypers, includes a weekly wage increase of $2 along with $1.75 in other benefits.

The stereotypers accepted the formula agreed on in the strike of AFL photo-engravers against six major newspapers, which ended last Tuesday.

25 Homes

a contract until after the new year.

POWER RESTORED

As soon as the settlement was signed, striking workers took a repair truck to the transformer that had caused the crisis and restored power to the 25 homes and one restaurant.

The striking workers were given today off since most of them had had little or no sleep since Saturday morning.

The trouble began Saturday about 8 p.m. when a fuse in a transformer on Queen St. blew and 25 homes had their power cut off. Lights, stoves, water heaters, and two or three oil furnaces were useless.

Realizing that the first real test of their picketing would now be made, the strikers who had walked off their jobs Monday, quickly gathered. Within half an hour some formed a picket line at the hydro yard while others went to the pole on which the burned-out transformer was mounted.

TURNED BACK BY CROWDS

In a few minutes some office staff who had been called to make repairs, tried to start out in a car. They were pushed back. Members of CIO unions in Lindsay and sympathetic citizens swelled the ranks of the strikers until there were about 200 milling around the pole.

When the attempt with a car failed, the commission asked for police help and town and OPP officers turned out. A truck got as far as the crowd around the pole, but no further. There was no violence but the crowd jerred so vehemently and stood their ground around the pole so firmly that the truck turned back.

Even people who lived in the houses that had been blacked out joined the picketers to show that they sympathised with them.

A second attempt later did no better.

Members of the commission met for four hours and in the end tried to get the strikers to accept a four-month waiting period in which both sides could examine the union and decide on a future course. The strikers rejected this proposal.

THREATENED TO SUE

Sunday the homes still had no power. Owner of a restaurant in the area threatened to sue the town for loss of business and spoiling of food.

One of the commissioners, R. A. Cozens, made a final attempt to restore power Sunday afternoon. He offered to replace the burned out fuse himself and asked the strikers not to interfere and to give him instructions on how to go about the job.

The strikers refused saying that they could not be responsible for Cozen's safety.

With the strikres standing firm, the commission met again late Sunday night with union representatives and the deadlock was broken.

3,000 Chicks Burn In Zion Barn

Cause Unknown Loud "Bang" Heard Loss About $5,000

Three thousand month-old chickens were destroyed Saturday night when fire destroyed Roy Swan's barn at Zion Corners in Otonabee township. Damage is estimated at $5,000, slightly more than half of it covered by insurance.

There is no certainty what started the fire. Mr. Swan believes that it was either his brooder stoves, heated by propane gas, or a defect in the electrical wiring.

"A neighbor told me that he heard a loud 'bang' as he drove by the barn and shortly afterwards it was up in flames," said Mr. Swan. "But we still don't know."

Mr. Swan raises broiler chickens for Braund's Home Food Markets and the birds were about four weeks old when the accident occurred. Their value is tentatively estimated at $2,400.

NO STOCK

Besides the barn—which contains no stock, just chickens—there was a heavy loss caused by the destruction of the propane-heated brooder stoves, an automatic pumping and water system, a ton and a half of chicken feed a couple of sets of hose, forks, shovels, and other equipment used in chicken raising.

A second building—a roofless log stable—was also destroyed by the fire. It contained a plow, some lumber for building, whiffletrees and other odds and ends.

The blaze was discovered by the Swan family about 8.30 p.m. while Mr. Swan was away at a store. Mrs. Swan was bathing one of the children when she smelled smoke and then noticed that the barn was slight.

About the same time a number of the neighbors saw the red glow coming from the inside of the burning barn, and a series of telephone calls soon assembled a crowd of volunteers to help fight the flames. By this time, however, the barn and stable were doomed and the volunteers confined their efforts to protecting the house from catching fire as well.

The spectacular blaze caused a minor traffic tieup at Zion Corners as neighbors and several hundred curious motorists converged on the fire. The reflected glow in the sky could be seen for miles, and the Peterborough fire department received a large number of calls from people who thought it was in the city instead of four miles to the southeast.

GAS TANKS EXPLODE

Three propane gas tanks blew up when the fire was at its height, adding another spectacular touch.

"It looked like a miniature atomic bomb—mushroom shaped," explained Norman Blodgett, a neighbor. "There was a sound like an arc welder striking an arc, and up it went."

Mr. Swan said that because of the age of the chickens he was thinking of turning off the heating on Saturday night. But he hadn't got around to it.

The birds were valued at 80 cents apiece.

Insurance on the barn and contents was more than $3,000.

One day — each week,

The Boy

who delivers your Examiner

calls to collect

He has so many customers he can't afford to give credit for he must pay for his papers on fixed dates and counts on his collections to make his payments. Your courteous carrier boy assumes a financial burden he cannot afford to carry when you ask him to wait for his money. He collects on the same day each week — you know which day — and when he has to "call again" to collect from you, delivery of his whole route is delayed on several days. Have the money ready for the boy the day he collects—the correct change, if convenient. Help him to meet his financial obligations promptly, and to make delivery on time every day.

Six Qualify For Council In Millbrook

MILLBROOK (ENS) —George F. Harrington will be Millbrook's new reeve. Also nominated was Dr. J. W. Wright, who has served for 4½ years as reeve. He withdrew in favor of Mr. Harrington, making it an acclamation.

Mr. Harrington, although not on last year's council, is a veteran of council and the school board and has served on the hydro commission for 37 years⅜ He is particularly interested in Millbrook's water supply.

After the new year, a public utilities commission is to be set up, which will cause the water supply to be financed from taxes. An artesian well on town property, with a flow of about 300 gallons a minute, is to replace the one in present use beside the old hotel, just northwest of the CNR station. The new well is about 100 yards west of the present one and is considered to be the best of the many artesian wells in the village.

POPULAR REEVE

Dr. J. W. Wright proved a popular reeve. He has worked in close co-operation with Reform Minister Foote in choosing the site and making plans for the new reform institution to be built on the outskirts of the village. Construction will start in the spring.

There will be an election on December 18. Six of those nominated have qualified for four places on council. They are Weldon Coulter, with four years experience, J. H. Raper with three, G. T. MacPherson with two, Ian L. H. Gray with one, and Gordon Trick and Robert Ridge, both new men.

For the public school board five were nominated, with three to be elected. They are Ed. Nattress and Mrs. Anna Kennedy, both with four years' experience, Fred Lowery with twelve, Jack Crowley and James Larmer, both new men. The other vacancy on the board, caused by the resignation of Dr. M. E. Hobbs before his term was up, is to be filled by appointment by the other members of the board. D R. Fowler and Homer Ouelette are the members of the board not up for election this year.

Those qualifying for election to the new public utilities commission are Stanley Olan and Percy Hamilton for the east zone, and Russell Reid, Howard Lancashire and Alex. Gilbert for the west. Four of the five are to be elected. Lavergne Fallis and David Fowler were nominated but did not qualify. Baxters creek is the dividing line between the east and west zones of the village.

Voting hours on December 18 will be from 10 am. to 7 p.m. in the council chambers. William Belch, village clerk, will be returning officer.

Car Sideswiped; Two Injured

COBOURG (ENS) — Mr. and Mrs. Percy Macklin of Cobourg escaped with a shaking up and bruises when their car upset on Highway 28, south of Bewdley, while returning from Peterborough over the weekend.

As they approached a northbound truck, a car swooped out from behind the truck and struck their car. Mr. Macklin swung sharply and avoided a head-on collision but was sideswiped.

His car rolled over and landed on its top. The car sped on and the transport driver was unaware what had happened. Only clue to the hit-and-run is blue paint left by it on the left side of the Macklin car.

New U.S. Hydrogen Bombs May Exceed Power Of All Bombs Used In War

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The hydrogen weapon blast the United States plans for the Bikini atoll test this spring may exceed the total power of all bombs dropped by the U.S. air forces in the Second World War.

That figure was slightly more than 2,000,000 tons of TNT. President Eisenhower said in his speech Tuesday to the United Nations General Assembly that "hydrogen weapons are in the range of millions of tons of TNT's equivalent."

The test at Bikini will show what could happen to the United States as well as to Russia in a war with hydrogen weapons.

The last atomic explosion at the remote and quiet Bikini atoll probably will become, by comparison, a puny pop.

ENERGY EQUIVALENT

The two test bombs used there in the 1946 tests had an energy equivalent of about 20,000 tons of TNT. An air-burst bomb sank ships, crushed others with the shock wave, set others burning. An underwater burst sank a carrier, a battleship and other vessels. Neither burst left any mark on the islands fringing the lagoon.

But some time next spring, when the seasonal change comes in the direction of the trade winds which can carry radioactive contamination long distances, the face of the atoll may change in an instant.

Release of a force equalling two or more millions of tons of exploding TNT could erase all trace of not only one but possibly several of the islands fringing the lagoon. There were reports, never denied by the Atomic Energy Commission, that the 1952 test of a relatively small hydrogen device destroyed the island upon which the device was mounted.

ENLARGING GROUNDS

Earlier this year the commission announced it was including the long-unused Bikini atoll, in the Marshall islands group, with Eniwetok in its testing ground.

This made it apparent that projected tests were to be of such magnitude that it was considered inadvisable to endanger permanent installations at Eniwetok.

Need Many Days To Raise Sunken Vessels

COBOURG (ENS) — Raising of the scow and derrick which sank in Cobourg harbor during Thursday's gale is going to be a major operation and will take several days.

In order to operate the electrically-driven pumps, the HEPC installed a bank of three transformers with switch panel at the harbor. A mobile derrick was driven out on the pier beside the sunken scow, the end of which is above water.

On Saturday a diver from Brockville descended to the harbor bottom to inspect the damage to the scow when it was pounded against the pier during the storm. Hatch covers were made up from steel plate with rope liners to seal the hatches. A four-inch pipe is welded to each cover and these will be connected to the pumps. The diver will install the covers and pumping will start.

North Bay Honors Pioneer Dinner For Dr. G. W. Smith

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—This northern Ontario community today honors one of its pioneers, a man who watched the growth of its industry and attended at the birth of many of its citizens.

Dr. George W. Smith is marking the 50th anniversary of the year he set up a medical practice in northern Ontario. In those years he has watched the birth of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, now the Ontario Northland Railway, the rise of the great Cobalt silver camp and development of North Bay from 2,000 to 20,000 population.

DINNER FOR DOCTOR

A public dinner is being held here for the medical pioneer who 50 years ago performed his first major operation in northern Ontario under the flickering light of a coal oil lamp. He then practised in Haileybury.

Prior to his work in Haileybury, Dr. Smith practised at Mattawa where, with the help of the late Dr. A. McMurchy, Sr., he cared for 600 construction workers on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway. In those days he travelled by horse and cutter in the winter and by foot or horseback in the summer.

Later, he came to North Bay. Citizens credit his efforts here with helping to provide expansion of North Bay's first hospital and keeping the hospital solvent during the depression years. He has been chairman of the collegiate board and aided in the formation of North Boy's first vaudeville theatre, its first skating rink and golf club.

Today, Dr. Smith is still active He practises in partnership with his surgeon son, Dr. Alex G. Smith.

Ceylon Leader Protests Plans

COLOMBO (Reuters) — G. P. Malalasekera, president of the All-Ceylon Buddhist Congress has protested against plans for Queen Elizabeth to watch a procession from the Temple of the Tooth at Kandy without first paying homage to the tooth relic.

In a letter to the governor-general, Lord Soulbury, Malalasekera suggested that if the Queen did not make the traditional offering, a special dais should be erected outside the temple precincts from which the Queen could watch the perahera, (a mammoth procession with elephants, dancers and torches).

Malalasekera said the Queen was coming not only as sovereign of England, but primarily as queen of Ceylon.

Former sovereigns of Ceylon used to render homage to the tooth (reputed to have belonged to Buddha) before watching the perahera, he added.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh are due to arrive in Ceylon April 10.

Eight Canadian Churches Get Coronation Carpet

By RON EVANS

LONDON (CP)—Eight Canadian churches and chapels are receiving sections of Westminster Abbey's lush blue and gold Coronation carpet after bidding in a £9-000 jigsaw sale.

The carpet, together with other Coronation furnishings from the Abbey, was sold by the ministry of works to help defray expenses. Prices ranged from £3 to £4 a square yard.

The great carpet, which originally cost £6,600, sold in segments to churches, chapels and schools throughout the Commonwealth and the United States for a profit of almost £2,500.

The ministry advertised soon after the Coronation that the carpet would be put up for sale and almost 5,000 bids poured in. That caused a problem since the carpet covered only 2,320 square yards and officials were anxious that all requests should be filled.

A government expert came up with a plan allowing the irregular-shaped carpet to be cut into smaller complex patterns with minimum wastage.

LARGE SECTIONS SOLD

Canada's largest single section, a rectangle of the gold theatre carpet 26 feet by 13 feet, goes to the chapel of the Victoria Hospital school of nursing, London, Ont., while a church in St. Stephen, N.B., will receive five pieces of varying sizes of the blue carpet from the Abbey annex.

Most of the sections now have been cleaned and rebound and ministry officials say they hope to have them all shipped before the end of the year.

The carpeting is the last of the Coronation furnishings to be sold. The 1,978 chairs, valued at £14,-835, and 5,202 stools, worth £21,-003, were brought by the peers, peeresses and other British and foreign dignitaries who occupied them during the ceremony.

The two most important chairs, the Coronation chair and the chair of estate, have been sent to Buckingham Palace on permanent loan as souvenirs for the Queen.

The huge coats of arms of Commonwealth countries which decorated Parliament square in front of the Abbey have been sent as gifts to their respective governments.

Grant Application End Bargaining Right

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario labor relations board Saturday granted an application to end bargaining rights of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) at the No. 1 plant of the Savage Shoe Company at Preston.

In a ballot conducted at the plant by the board Nov. 25, workers voted against the union as its bargaining agent. The vote was 189 against the union and 68 for.

Workers at the plant were on strike most of the summer.

A Good Co-Operative University Plan

The city of Rochester used to be a skip and a hop from Peterborough, and there was frequent intercourse between this area and Rochester, because a big ferry ran regularly from Cobourg across Lake Ontario to the American metropolis. In those days it was almost as convenient for Peterborough people to shop in Rochester as in Toronto, or as easy to go for a one-day boat trip and holiday to Rochester as to Lindsay. Now Rochester is isolated from its Canadian neighbours, but a step has been taken which will provide even better intercourse between Canadians and Americans than the Cobourg ferry allowed. The University of Rochester has announced a special Canadian Studies Program.

* * *

This project has come into being because of the growing American interest in Canada and the realization that neither Canadians nor Americans know enough about each other. A university is a fine place to promote an exchange of information. The "Rochester University Canadian Fund" (provided to a considerable extent by graduates of Rochester University living in Canada) is sponsoring the new Canadian Studies Program.

* * *

The University of Rochester will arrange for exchanges and for the collection of books and other source material on Canada to which students from both countries will have access. Part of the project will be an annual conference on Canadian affairs, to be held at Rochester. There will also be undergraduate seminars and courses relating to Canada's economic policies, history, music, social development, literature.

It is an inspiring plan, one which Canadians will approve warmly and with gratitude.

Punishment And Reformation

The prejudice which some members of the Ontario Legislature's select committee on reform institutions are exhibiting foreshadows a negative, repressive report, rather than a positive, reformative one. For instance James Dempsey, Conservative MLA and a member of the committee said this week that he thought life in Ontario's reform institutions was too easy for the inmates. Some old men will give up their old age pensions to go to jail. Mr. Dempsey said reformatories had grown too attractive and that there should be a return to punitive measures and hard work at these institutions.

The chairman of the committee, W. J. Stewart (Conservative MLA for Toronto-Parkdale) cited the case of a 24-year-old vagrant who told the police he wanted to go to jail. Mr. Stewart wants a good work program begun in these places. "Hard work and plenty of it is the answer," said another committee member, the Rev. A. W. Downer (Conservative MLA for Simcoe-Dufferin).

Another member of the committee, Peter Manley (Liberal MLA for Stormont), said that putting men in jail is not any punishment. As proof, he said when autumn comes there is a rush to commit some minor offence to get back into jail.

We suggest that such members of the committee on reform institutions are making rash pre-judgements, and confusing their mission. The proof of the effectiveness of a reform institution is not in the comfort or hard work it offers or the kind of life men and women lead in the institutions, but whether they are reformed while there and never get into police trouble again, or ask to be put back. The Ontario Department's reformatory for men at Brampton is the sort of proof that the Select Committee should be looking for; there 88 per cent. of the inmates are reformed.

The spectacle of lonely old men, drifters most of their lives, seeking the warmth and protection of a jail during the winter is nothing new. They do not invite a jail term because the jails or reformatories are attractive, but because they have nowhere else to go, and only in good weather have they the capacity to look after themselves. There will always be people unable to accept complete responsibility for themselves, who will always be a problem and burden to the state, that is, to the citizens who work hard and pay taxes. Instead of saying: make reformatories less pleasant, make the inmates work hard, the members of the investigating committee should be asking: where can these drifters and hopeless people go other than to jail? What can be done for them other than to encourage them to break the law so that a court will sentence them to a warm jail for three winter months?

A positive, helpful attitude is being shown by a voluntary joint committee of women from nine different women's groups interested in penal reform for women. This committee has prepared a brief to present to the Provincial Government. While most of its recommendations refer specifically to the treatment of offending women, they are the type of thing which one had hoped that the Legislature's select committee would be making itself. Here are several of the recommendations:

1. The appointment of additional probation officers immediately . . . specialized training for all new officers.

2. A special reception wing at Mercer Reformatory where newly sentenced women could be studied . . . and the type of treatment and training best suited for them decided upon.

3. A new institution planned on the cottage system for those classified as capable of earlier reform.

4. Segregation in groups for the remaining inmates of Mercer. Segregation would make group training more efficient and it would reduce the "education in crime" that is a feature of life in a reformatory. Segregation would also mean that all alcoholics and drug addicts be given separate treatment and housing. Those who are subnormal mentally would have their own quarters with regulations and training geared to their abilities . . .

6. Trained parole and rehabilitation officers to guide and assist women released on parole.

These are the type of recommendations which the women's voluntary committee make. It seems to us that they are more helpful, and sounder, than the prejudicial utterings of some members of the select committee charged by the Legislature with investigating the Ontario reformatory system. Judging from some of the activities and talk of the select committee in recent months, many members of that committee are more interested in punishment than in reformation.

Where There's Life . . .

So far we have kept out of the discussion of the doings at the Garrison Ball in Ottawa, because it has nothing to do with us. But several of our contemporaries are discussing it hotly. It appears that at this Ball, at which debutantes are presented to the Governor-General, Canadian press photographers were told that they might take pictures from a gallery, but no nearer. However, photographers from Life magazine were allowed on the floor of the dance, close to the G-G and the debs. Several papers have complained that this is undemocratic.

Frankly, we feel that people who are looking for a high level of social democracy at a dance where debutantes are being presented to the Queen's personal representative are looking in the wrong place. Nor are we sure that we agree that press photographers should be allowed everywhere, at all times, to take pictures. But practical experience in newspaper work has taught us that however annoyed people may be by photographers, they are never annoyed to see their pictures in the public prints, provided that they are shown in some favourable light. This is human and understandable.

Sad though it is to record it, we are also persuaded that Life carries a lot of weight with Canadians, and that they would be very happy to see their pictures in that widely-circulated, popular magazine. If the organizers of the Garrison Ball at Ottawa forgot some of their dignity and Canadianism when Life deigned to take notice of their hop, we are saddened, but not surprised. It is so much easier to be haughty with Canadian papers than with a huge, rich paper in the U.S.A. If a debutante were to get a good picture of herself in Life, who knows but that she might not receive an offer of a job from a model agency, on the strength of it? Where there's Life there's hope; where there is merely the press of one's own country, there is bound to be some snobbery. Let us shed a tear for social Ottawa, and forget the matter.

Payrolls

Statisticians must always lag behind events because it takes time to collect the figures they analyse. We have just received some calculations on employment and payrolls in September in the five counties of Peterborough, Ontario, Durham, Northumberland and Victoria, whose chief centres of manufacture are Peterborough and Oshawa. These show that employment in this area on September 1st was 232 per cent. above the 1939 level and represented an increase of 4.7 over a year ago September.

Payrolls were 646.3 per cent higher than in 1939, and 3.2 higher than a year ago. The average weekly wages and salaries in the industries in this district were $61.89. The average on September 1st a year ago was $62.83, so there has been, according to Ontario statisticians, a drop of 94 cents. The significance of this is that it is the first time since the war, as far as we remember, that the bureau has reported an average weekly wage in the industries of the Kawartha region lower than that of the same period in the preceding year.

A Montreal judge advised a young man who came before him, to get a good girlfriend to steady him. Yes, but what girl is supposed to sacrifice herself in the cause of justice?

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

IT is once again fashionable for composers to write symphonies even though the work entailed is usually out of all proportion to the remuneration. Whether these more recent productions will stand the test of time as the symphonies of the Viennese classics remains to be seen, but the interesting thing is that the symphonic poem, which in the middle of the nineteenth century threatened to supersede the symphony, is now virtually a thing of the past.

Perhaps my readers would like to know something of how a symphony is written; not that there is any danger of their trying their hand at it on the strength of a few general remarks from me, but because nearly everybody is interested in "how it works." Little boys and girls who pull clocks to pieces or practise vivisection on insects are obeying the same urge.

✧ ✧ ✧

MY FIRST observation on writing a symphony may surprise some of my readers: it does not require superhuman genius to write a symphony, in fact it is not really difficult. It is a very hard thing indeed to write a really good symphony, just as it is to write a really good newspaper article. Writing a symphony is rather like writing a novel: it is not so much a matter of inspiration of the moment but of staying power. The sheer physical labour of putting the notes on paper is considerable. In the first ten seconds of Brahms' Third Symphony which I have chosen at random for the purposes of illustration, 196 notes are required; in addition there are clefs, time signatures, key signatures, phrasing and dynamics. The whole symphony takes some 35 minutes to perform. The earlier symphonies are scored for smaller orchestras and are usually much shorter, but since Brahms scores have shown a fairly consistent tendency towards greater complication. Mozart could write three symphonies in the total of six weeks, and Handel could write 'Messiah' in the same space of time, but even the prolific Benjamin Britten could not hope to come anywhere near this.

THE BUDDING symphonist should of course be thoroughly familiar with the craft of composition, from harmony and counterpoint to orchestration. A tremendous amount of detailed knowledge of the capabilities and limitations of the many instruments of a modern orchestra is just one of the things that must be at his fingertips, as an architect must know all about stresses and strains of the raw materials of a building. There is, in fact a decided resemblance between the work of an architect and a symphonist. In both cases they draw up detailed plans of a great undertaking for others to execute. Goethe called architecture "frozen music"; a good description, for there is a resemblance between the patterns and contrasts of both arts that one looks for in vain in sculpture or painting.

We should beware of pursuing the analogy too far. Architecture is primarily subservient to the purposes for which buildings are constructed—worship, administration, the accomodation of families, and so on—and its proportions are influenced by such conditions as the proportions of the average human body. Present-day regulations concerning buildings emphasise certain standards of health and safety, and modern trends in architecture tend to regard beauty of design as a mere by-product of efficiency. More important than this is the time element. A work of music cannot be heard in one moment; it unfolds gradually and always in one direction, like a narrow beam of light shining on a constantly moving tape. A work of architecture, on the other hand, can be approached and viewed from almost any angle in whatever sequence the viewer wishes.

I SUPPOSE that there are almost as many ways of setting about writing of a symphony as there are symphonists. Mozart used to work out his design in his head He had a remarkably retentive memory, and it was obviously a waste of his time to do on paper what he could do so admirably without. When everything (except perhaps the minutae of instrumentation) had been fixed in his mind he wrote out the full score in its final form.

Beethoven worked in a very different way. He used to carry about with him on his walks musical sketch-books, and jot down fragments which he would remodel until he found what suited him. Sometimes this process of remodelling was repeated several times, with the result that the final version of the theme would bear very little resemblance to the original idea. These sketch-books are of great importance to anyone wishing to follow the processes of Beethoven's musical thought. To this I should add the importance of extemporization, for which all the great composers of the classical period were famed. There is little doubt that many of their finest ideas had their genesis in the spontaneous union of will and deed at the keyboard. Not that they discovered a "purple patch" in their improvisation and reached instantaneously for their pen and paper; this hand-to-mouth method of composition has always been looked down upon as the lowest form of musical activity, for all its popularity in Hollywood films. Very often the process was different; an idea was worked out on paper and then tested at the keyboard.

There is one obvious danger in the practice of composing at the keyboard; passages that sound effective on the piano are often ineffective or impossible when translated into orchestral terms.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE COMPOSER of a symphony may establish beforehand a general plan of movements. In the classical era this was more or less fixed. The first movement (with or without slow introduction) allegro in sonata form, the second movement slow, the third movements were sometimes scherzi; the finale usually fast in sonata, ronda or variation form. Naturally there were plenty of variants to this. For example the second and thir movements were sometimes scherzo followed by a slow movement. The movements were generally distinct from one another, but sometimes (as in the last two movements of Beethoven's fifth and Brahms' first symphonies) one movement led into another without a break. Some composers have been known to start by writing a slow middle movement and then writing the remaining movements around this central core.

✧ ✧ ✧

LISZT took a cue from some of Beethoven's later works and developed the so-called cyclic form. The outstanding example of this in symphonic music is Cesar Franck's symphony. Rejecting the older idea of contrast, where each movement of a symphony was more or less self-contained, each with its own group of themes, Franck's symphony is built up around two or three motifs which reappear in each movement in different guises. This trend towards "unification" had a vogue during the last century; it is notable, however, that Brahms rejected it in principle, though his third symphony has a short "motto" theme that occurs in the first and last movements.

Here I have a confession to make to my readers: I have never written a symphony!

An American Opinion: CHANGING U.S. WORLD

Is Killing Off The Killers Overdone?

(HAMILTON SPECTATOR)

IT MAY BE that Dr. Morton S. Biskind of Westport, Connecticut, won't win an especially illustrious niche in medical halls for his harsh clinical judgment of insecticides like D.D.T. He has been looking at these chemicals for some five years now and in the American Journal of Digestive Diseases he gives his verdict. Since D.D.T. came into general contact with people in 1945, he claims, there have been a number of "curious changes in the incidence of certain ailments and the development of new groups of symptoms." Among the disorders he lists as on the increase from that point are hepatitis, which is inflammation of the liver; polio; disorders of the heart and arteries and of the gastro-intestinal tract, cancer, and neuro-psychiatric symptoms.

Until a group of fellow physicians scan and appraise his evidence Dr. Biskind will have only this first flash of publicity, and he may not have much else. But he will at least have stirred the imagination of people who wonder if we are not directly or indirectly endangering ourselves with antiseptics. Or, to put it the only way the layman can put it; is there not a risk, when killing viruses by certain methods, of killing the anti-bodies that nature arrays with such effect against those viruses? In the fantastic and still little understood battle of microbes, of killer against killer, nature works out a balance; it has its own system of inoculation. In the human body it builds a marvellous web of resistance through contact with invaders.

A further "germ-killing" paradox seems to be growing out of the latest observations of antibiotics. Medical men conceded at the start that there might be a boomerang. Nature could, and likely would, develop a strain of virus that would resist penicillin and might strike at humans later with epidemic force. Or humans might develop a resistance to penicillin. so that it would not help fight off infection when needed.

IS THERE any evidence? In St. Louis not so long ago the American Academy of General Practices was told at its annual meeting that penicillin is much less effective than when it was introduced 10 years ago. Dr. W. A. Altemeir, head of the department of surgery at the University of Cincinnati School of Medicine pointed out that a decade ago 96 per cent of all staphyclococci, a germ family, were sensitive to penicillin; now only 49 per cent are sensitive. In general he added about three per cent of all patients are now showing sensitivity to penicillin and in the hospital ward the figure increases to about 10 per cent. Doctors are continually warning of the danger of using penicillin indiscriminately, for example in lozenge form, as it is like exhausting a fire extinguisher on matches and being left with nothing when a real blaze comes.

It was found some time ago that sulfa drugs could seriously affect the kidneys and blood count while killing other infections. These aberrations emphasize that we have known "wonder drugs" for only a short time and that long term effects call for extreme caution. Nature has its own way of flouting what we think are "magic" cures and preventives, and won't for long tolerate interference with its system of balances. Perhaps D.D.T. has destroyed far more than it was expected to destroy and far from providing new armour against disease has created new vulnerability. Dr. Biskind has touched off an intriguing speculation.

A Rye Quota?

(Saskatoon Star-Phoenix)

The U.S. department of agriculture, already seeking authority to reduce imports of Canadian oats, has made preliminary moves in the direction of restrictions on imports of Canadian rye. The value of such restrictions to the people of the United States, as a whole, is questionable. The Winnipeg Grain Exchange, in its study of the U.S.-Canadian grain trade gives figures which suggest that the U.S. ought to be thankful that Canadian farmers grow rye in such quantities that some of it can be purchased by their neighbours to the south.

Production of rye in the U.S. crop years 1935-36 to 1953-54 has averaged 32.4 million bushels annually, according to these figures. Domestic consumption over the 18-year period has averaged 33.9 million bushels, and exports 2.5 million—leaving a deficit of four million bushels. Imports of Canadian rye have averaged about three million bushels a year—or less than enough to supply the gap between U.S. production and U.S. domestic plus export demand. Moreover, the production trend in the U.S. has been erratically, but steadily, downward since 1948.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. And the earth was without form, and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. And God said, Let there be light: and there was light. And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided the light from the darkness and God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And the evening and the morning were the first day. (Gen. 1:1-15.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The Lord reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength, wherewith he hath girded himself: the world also is established, that it cannot be moved. Thy throne is established of old: thou art from everlasting . . . Thy testimonies are very sure: holiness becometh thine house, O Lord, for ever. (Ps. 93:1, 2, 5.)

Letter To The Editor

EVERGREENS OUTSIDE

Sir: In walking down the street the other day, we noticed how bare most houses look since the flowers have gone, and the shrubs have lost their leaves. Many residents set their Christmas trees outside, and it occurred to us that two or three spruce or pine trees set into the ground now would improve the appearance of the lawn one hundred percent.

These trees will stay green all winter, especially if dug into the ground so that they can get some moisture. Sometimes they have to be fastened with wire so that the wind will not blow them sideways. They can be removed in the spring when the flowers are ready to take over their part in making lovelier homes.

ONE WHO TRIED IT.

Pricing Ourselves Out

(Brantford Expositor)

How high is up in the matter of wages? One answer might be, "Up to the point where a company finds it unprofitable to continue operations." Another might be: "To the point where a firm pulls up stakes and moves to the cheaper labor market in the Province of Quebec."

Such a transplanting of industrial plant is not desirable, and it can well be understood that no company would take so drastic steps unless driven to it by desperation. B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company of Canada, Limited, Kitchener, Ontario, has evidently reached that point.

Having been long plagued by "labor trouble", it has announced that it is transferring its footwear manufacturing operations to Quebec in January. More than 400 employees of the Kitchener plant will be affected. What is actually happening is that a working agreement has been effected between the Goodrich concern and a Quebec manufacturer who will produce footwear according to Goodrich specifications.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

An item appeared last week reporting that the Police Athletic Association here had raised $500 at a recent dance, the funds being used to promote a program of sports for kids. Some other cities have alert police forces, too, which employ this method in the continuous combat of juvenile delinquency, and we're all for it. It is worthy work and the big fellows in blue are to be commended. Over the years we've found the Peterborough police sympathetic toward sports and ready to pitch in and help when needed. They know a lot of wild young guys have straightened out when accepted into athletics. Many of our cops were good athletes themselves.

After this week, the pro matmen will likely disappear for the next few weeks as they head for their homes here and there on the continent for Christmas and New Year's. They usually take a couple of weeks off at this time of year. However, they're staging a show here this week, Wednesday night at the Brock Arena, with a tag-team bout topping the card. It'll have Lord Athol Layton and Fred Atkins teaming up against Hombre Montana and Ilio DiPaolo, each of these four huskies claiming a heavyweight championship of a country. England, Australia, most of South America, and Italy, in that order. Should be quite a scrap. Tim Geohagen and Pat Flanagan go in the semi-windup, as Tony Martinelli meets Alan Garfield in the prelim.

No Palms, No Qualms

Ivan Irwin, NY Rangers' colorful rookie defenceman, cuts out the palms of his hockey gloves. Says it's an old lacrosse custom as it gives one a better grip and feel on the stick. Also makes it easier to slip off the gloves when a fight breaks out—Irwin being a ready gee to defend a smaller teammate when trouble erupts. Hm, we hadn't noticed any of the Petes' lacrosse champs with palms cut out of their mitts, and doubt if Ike Hildebrand (also with Rangers and also quite a lacrosser) uses this gimmick. Nor rugged Nip O'Hearn. It might be that local OLA co-managers Mick Magee and Bob Curtin would frown on such destruction to expensive club property.

* * * * * *

Bellevillee Memos are next on the Petes' puck list in a a senior "B" sort of way. These clubs clash here tonight, and we do mean clash. Quinte crew have clobbered the Redmond men recently on the larger ice surface in Bella Villa. They'll have to play hockey on the smaller sheet here or take a good bumping. Petes have a bunch of solid blueline citizens this semester in McMaster, Monty, Munroe, Army and Redmond, and those light Quinte forwards may find it a rocky road in on Goalie Donlevy at Civic. Sounds like an exciting senior struggle, the only one here this week, with plenty at stake as these squads are closerthanthis in the hot race at the moment.

Puck Pace Keeps Hot

Several senior "B" games in the last few days have knotted up the standing pretty closely. Belleville edged Orillia 7-6 to creep to a point back of the fourth-place Petes, who are just a game behind Orillia. Kingston moved up with the leading Oshawa Truckmen by taking two decisions on successive nights. They blasted Belleville 9-6 and then pranced into Bowmanville on Saturday to eke out a 4-2 win o'er the Oshawa outfit. We hear the K's have signed up a couple of the defunct senior "A" players from Sarnia, while the Petes over the weekend signed Buster Jensen and Freddy Garvey. Locals go to Orillia on Thursday and to Kingston on Saturday.

More than 500 fans took in the men's basketball exhibition at St. Peter's gym on Saturday night to see New York Barons capture a 62-33 verdict against Peterborough Regents—formerly known as the Marines. That's one of the best hoop crowds here in years, but the colored cagers proved a worthy attraction. They could sure handle the ball, and young Cobb's dribbling was an amazing thing to see. Against such opposition, the Regents turned in a good showing and they'll do okay in group play after the turn of the year. Joe Stewart led the MacPherson men in scoring, with Hugh Dibben, Bill Edger and Bob Smith also prominent. There won't be much hoop action here from now until early in January, but plenty doing them.

Hi-Lo's Forbes Named Horse Of Year

COLUMBUS, O. (AP) — Hi-Lo's Forbes, a black stallion which brought only $300 in the auction ring as a weanling, today was named harness horse of the year for 1953.

The five-year-old pacer, winner of $52,625 in taking 11 of 17 starts, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wagner of Landoyer Hills, Md.

Hi-Lo's Forbes turned in a number of superlative performances during the 1953 campaign, but the one which sewed up the honors was a 1.58.6 trip at Roosevelt Raceway in New York June 6. By a full second, it was the fastest mile ever registered by a harness horse on a half-mile oval.

Voting on a 10-7-5-3-1 basis in a poll conducted by the U.S. Trotting Association, 112 turf writers accorded the son of Frisco Forbes a 340-point margin over Pronto Don, winner of the No. 1 rating in 1951.

Hi-Lo's Forbes received 653 points to 413 for the trotting gelding from Hayes Fair Acres Stable in Du Quoin, Ill.

Orono Takes Win Over Lindsay, 5-2

LINDSAY (ENS)—The intermediate "C" Orono Orphuns maintained their lead in the Lakeshore Intermediate "A" standings here on Saturday night, as they handed the Lindsay Muskies a 5-2 defeat.

Shetler led the Orono attack with two goals and an assist, as the visitors broke into a 4-0 lead within the first 11 minutes of the game, then coasted to the win. During the final session, the Orphuns were content to let the Muskies carry the play, icing the puck nearly every time they touched it.

Armstrong opened the scoring, from Shetler and Dean West, early in the first. Then Orphuns scored three goals within a minute and a half near the halfway mark, Shetler scoring twice and Keith West once. Two minutes later, Vic Corley broke the goose-egg for Muskies with a hot shot past Heath, on a pass from Davis. Before the period ended, Stew Hicks scored from Corley to narrow the gap.

In the second, the last goal of the game was scored by Mercer, from Keith West and Robinson, to put the Orphuns back into the lead.

Referee Maurice Walsh handled the fast game in good style, dealing out nine penalties, four to the visitors. The home club were short handed through the absence of Bob Lewis, who was busy with a hydro strike incident, and Mark O'Donoghue, who suffered a suspected fractured wrist in the pre-game warmup.

SIGNS WITH PETES—Freddy Garvey, former speedy forward with the Petes' senior "B" puckists, was signed over the weekend to play again for the TPT team. Buster Jensen was also reported to have been signed.

Lakefield Indians Whip Port Hope

Cam Wasson's scrappy Lakefield Indians took a 4-1 OHA lakeshore intermediate "A" victory over Port Hope on the latter's ice Saturday. The win kept them up in second place of the "A" section, a point back of Lindsay, and ahead of Port Hope and Cobourg. The Orono squad, in a different section, leads the pack.

Play was fast and clean, with Lakefield showing some fine checking in front of top goaltending by Ray Harding. Dean Wasson and John Richlark stood out on defence, while Doug Hunter and Tommy Birch shone on the attack. Rocky Wilson is out with a fractured nose from the last game in Peterborough. Port Hope drew two misconducts for arguing too hotly for Ned Vitarelli's crew with Referee Bill Holway.

Hunter scored in the first from Caravaggio. Birch tallied next heat from Gooley, and Hunter got another from Reid. Birch scored in the third before Port Hope got one. Lakefield plays Orono Wednesday in Port Hope and then opens the new Cobourg rink next Monday.

Bill Cook was playing for Saskatoon in the old Western Canada Hockey League 29 years ago tonight when he scored three goals as Saskatoon beat Victoria 4-1. Bill turned professional two years later in 1926 to become one of the great rightwingers of all time on the formidable forward line of New York Rangers that had Frank Boucher at centre and brother Bun Cook at left wing.

Barons Dump Providence In Two Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons continued their drive towards the top of the American Hockey League by defeating Providence Reds twice over the week-end.

The Barons are now only four points behind the faltering league leaders, Buffalo Bisons, and have two games in hand.

At Providence, Cleveland shaded the fifth-place Reds 5-4, paced by sharpshooter Glen Sonmor, who scored three times. It was Cleveland's eighth victory in nine games. Saturday, the Barons overcame Providence 6-2 at Cleveland.

Buffalo salvaged only one point in two week-end outings. At home Sunday, Bisons played a 0-0 overtime tie with Pittsburgh. Hornet defenceman Gil Mayer thwarted numerous Bison scoring efforts.

Saturday, the league leaders were humbled 3-2 by Syracuse with Bronco Horvath and Rickie Hogg pumped in last-minute markers for the cellar-dwelling Warriors.

In the other game Saturday, Hershey Bears dropped to third place when they went under, 5-2, to Pittsburgh Hornets. Earl Balfour and Willie Marshal each had a goal and two assists for the winners.

DeWolfe Rolls High

Stan DeWolfe had high single of 306 and Deb Lucas top three of 728, including 256 and 244, in the Mercantile Bowling League. The 7-0 wins went to Ackison, Combines, Bob & Betty respectively over Canoe, Express and Mustangs; the 5-2 victories were taken by Turner's, Dominion, Pet. Co-Op and Austin's over Loblaw's, Cherney's, United Co-Op and Seabrooke. The 4-3 splits went to Tent & Awning, Charlotte Credit No. 1 against Jets and Charlotte Credit No. 2.

Good triples were: Doug Dyer (265) 723, Joe Wilkinson (261) 658, Bus Manbeck (277) 651, Walt Byrd (248) 692, Ted Williams (252) 648, Marg Storey (238) 661, Marion Julian (250 635, Bill Ackison (228) 631, Bob Martell (222) 629, Roy Lee (225) 615; neat singles: Hazel Davis 271, Lloyd Hancock 256, Stew Brown 233, Elva Hinonen 238, Allan Lee 228, John Young 224, Tex Drury 225, Ken Holbrook 221, Helen Brown 220 and Jean Whiteside 218.

Close Contests A Feature In Church Loop

St. James' defeated George St. 5-3 as Mark St. downed Park St. 7-2 in midget Church Hockey League fixtures on Saturday. St. James' edged Knox 1-0 in bantam play, while a peewee contest between St. James' and Park St. ended in a 2-2 tie at Civic Arena.

Lloyd scored from McInroy and Casey tallied alone for George St. midgest in the first frame, while Rowe and Griffin counted for St. James. McInroy notched one in the second from Lloyd, but Patterson and Rowe hit the mark for the Saints, and Griffin wound it up for them in the third heat. The losers drew five of the eight penalties.

The only markers by Park St. midgets were Scharfe from Kane in the second heat and Davis from Scharfe in the third. For the victors, Hendry and Grills tallied early, the second period seeing Moffitt, Grills and English scoring, as the latter and Grills had an assist each. In the third, Grills and English tallied. The winners were given seven of the eight penalties.

A CLOSE GAME

Henwood lit the lamp on a neat solo thrust for St. James' in the first chukker for the only score of the close-checking game, both goalies going good to keep down the count. There were two penalties a team in this tilt.

Curry put St. James' peewees one up in the first period, but Chambeau evened it for Park St. next stanza. Each scored a goal in the third, Heard for the Saints and Corbett from North for Park St. It was a tight fray, also, with good checking and netminding seen. There was but one penalty a side. Referees were W. Flint, L. Williams, R. Batley, W. Post and J. Hawthorne.

G. Milliken Leads

G. Milliken had high single of 275 and top double of 624 in their league bowling last week, as P. Jackman posted 242 and 204 in a 6-3 total. Bombers won three from Ramblers as Rockets, Happy Gang, Cisco Kids, Tornados and Eager Beavers took two each from Whizz Bangs, Wildcats, Terrors, Dinkies and Playfair. Chickens went to J. Milliken for high single, as blind score prizes were taken by G. Blondin, M. Wray, H. Lallibertes, M. Cook, L. Harris and G. Davis. Money prizes were taken by: F. Armstrong, L. Earnshaw, E. Ranesbottom, T. Hamblin, K. Kokesh, M. Dooley, I. Ackerman, A. Lucas, F O'Connor and J. Tarkington.

Better doubles: T. Heslip and M. Young 572, K. Kokesh 562, J. Casey 545, L. Harris 527, F. Armstrong 519, R. Hewitt 516, O. Watson 514, T. Hamblin 510; neat singles: T. Heslip 218, H. Bleakley 213, M. Pound 211, F. Armstrong 207, R. Hewitt 206, M. Andrews 204, T. Hamblin and M. Cook 202, D. Pacey and G. Blondin 201.

New York Black Barons Defeat Local Regents Before Big Cage Crowd

New York Black Barons defeated Peterborough Regents 62-33 in St. Peter's gym on Saturday night in a lively exhibition basketball contest. It was witnessed by one of the largest crowds ever to view a cage tussle here, more than 500 fans enjoying the show. The touring colored team of hoop experts from the States put on a first-class display of ball-handling, trick stuff and clowning to tickle the audience and amaze their good intermediate rivals. Young Ray Cobb, 16-year-old whizz, proved a dribbling wonder and he could keep possession of the bladder for minutes at a time to draw applause.

The Regents, coached by Doug MacPherson and managed by Gord McIntyre, are awaiting league play after the first of the year, but keeping in shape with practises and exhibitions.

Regents were nervous at the start but gave a good account of themselves during the struggle, showing plenty of promise of cage prowess in the season ahead. They were led by big Joe Stewart who turned in a solid two-way effort, as he scored eight points. Hugh Dibben went good both ways, also, and accounted for seven points. Bill Edger was the best up front to notch six points. Bob Smith had five, Don Ash and Gord Burns getting three each.

Stars for the Black Barons were Cobb with 14 points, Barker with 11 and Stretch Davis with 10, though they all looked good, being very much at home on a basketball court.

The halftime score was 29-17 for the Barons. The local team will be backed in group play by Regent dealers here, and will be known as the Regents. The teams:

Barons: Cobb 14, Scootmore 5, Barker 11, Ferguson 6, Davis 10, Johnson 6, Watkins 10.

Regents: Ash 3, Griffin 1, Langhorne, A. Stewart, Dibben 7, Smith 5, J. Stewart 8, Edger 6, Burns 3, Nicholls, Grafsteni.

Referees, F. Welford and F. Wade.

Greenshirts Shade Hawks In Quick 5-4 Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts didn't waste any time getting back into the swing of things in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Welcoming back several of their regulars who were ticketed for Quebec teams after the sale of the Kitchener franchise to Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, the Shirts celebrated with a 5-4 victory over the Black Hawks in Galt Saturday.

The victory ended the four-game nightmare during the absence of most of their first-string players. In the four games the Greenshirts allowed 45 goals against them while scoring 10.

Now they're on the road to prolonging the hot streak they had before the sale of the team. In their last seven games before the purchase, the Shirts had five victories and one tie. The OHA said the four losses would be erased from the standings.

The upset of the week-end, however, was the 2-0 shutout Quebec Citadelles handed Toronto Marlboros in Toronto Sunday. The victory lifted the Citadelles out of the league cellar.

An 8-4 decision by St. Michael's College Majors over Guelph Biltmores in the second half of the Toronto doubleheader rounded out the week-end action. The defeat dropped the Biltmores into last place.

Trailing 1-0 at the end of the first period, the Shirts took advantage of Galt penalties for four goals in the second stanza.

Glen Cressman scored two for Kitchener with others going to Grieg Hicks, Bud Hillman and Gary Collins. Bob Wilson, John Sleaver, Neil McDonald and Hec Lalonde tallied for Galt. Lalonde scored on a penalty shot.

TOP NETMINDING

A new netminder made the difference for Quebec in Toronto Sunday. Goaltender Jacques Gaignery wouldn't be beaten even though the Citadelles were outplayed most of the game.

Pat Prestley scored the winner for Quebec in the third period while Marlboros were shorthanded. Clermont Doyon added the final goal into an empty Toronto net 25 seconds before the end of the game.

In the second game St. Michael's took a 4-2 edge before the end of the second session and scored four more in the third before Guelph rounded out the total.

OTHER SCORERS

Jack Caffery and Ken Gribbons each scored two for St. Michael's. Dick Duff, Les Duff, Marc Reaume and Jim Logan also scored in the ninth consecutive Irish victory.

Bill McCreary and Chick Chalmers scored for Guelph.

Barrie Flyers visit Kitchener Tuesday while Marlboros are at Quebec and Guelph is at St. Catharines TeePees.

Detroit Edges Habs In Lively 4-3 NHL Victory

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's nothing like a high-spirited, colorful team to revive fading interest and that's just what Montreal Canadiens are doing in the National Hockey League. Fans now expect something out of the ordinary when the Canadiens are involved. It's bound to help the attendance in all the NHL cities, especially those of the United States teams whose smaller crowds over the last few years are causing concern to the league brass. The league is still buzzing about the record 36 penalties for a total of 204 minutes Canadiens shared in when they played Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday.

The recollection of this probably was the big reason why the largest Detroit crowd of the season, 13,831, turned out Sunday night to see the Red Wings play the Canadiens.

The Habitants didn't disappoint them and when the final buzzer went with a 4-3 victory in Detroit's grasp, a near free-for-all exploded.

STARTS THINGS GOING

Maurice Richard crashed Gluen Skov to the ice and players from both benches swarmed on the ice. Before the milling players were parted referee Bill Chadwick slapped a misconduct and a game misconduct on Doug Harvey that will cost the Montreal defenceman an automatic $75 fine.

Earlier, in the third period, Ted Lindsay razzed Chadwick from the penalty box after the Detroit forward was handed a misconduct penalty. The talking got Lindsay a $75 fine also and ejection from the game when the referee tacked on a game misconduct sentence.

The Wings won the game on two goals each by Lindsay and rookie Bill Dineen. Detroit built a 4-1 lead but Canadiens stormed back in the third period to pull within one goal when Maurice Richard and Kenny Mosdell counted within a minute of each other. Eddie Mazur fired the other Montreal goal in the first period.

ON SCORING SPREE

Montreal also was on a scoring spree Saturday, trouncing New York Rangers 7-2 in Montreal. In the other game Saturday night Harry Lumley scored his fifth shutout as Toronto Maple Leafs shut out Chicago Black Hawks 2-0 in Toronto on goals by Harry Watson.

Leafs handed Rangers their second defeat in two nights when they edged them 2-1 in New York Sunday night. Boston and Chicago each salvaged a point in their week-end action when they played to a 2-2 tie before a Sunday night crowd of 5,092 in Chicago.

Dineen was the big triggerman in the week-end action. Besides his two goals Sunday night, he bagged two counters and two assists Saturday night against Boston. Other Detroit marksmen were Gordie Howe, Lindsay, Bob Goldham, Dutch Reibel and Glen Skov. The only Boston goal was tallied in the final period by Dave Creighton.

RICHARD GETS TWO

Richard, the league's leading scorer, picked up two goals during the week-end to boost his total to 18. Besides the one he counted against Detroit Sunday night, he bagged one in the Canadiens' scoring rampage against New York Saturday night.

Canadiens again lost Jean Beliveau, their rookie forward who returned to action Thursday after an ankle injury kept him out of the line-up for seven weeks. He suffered a fractured cheek-bone when he banged into the goal post as he fell to the ice with defenceman Jack Evans of the Rangers.

The Leafs' win over Rangers was their fifth straight. Defenceman Leo Boivin fired one goal and set up Ron Stewart for the other to play a part in both Toronto goals.

Chicago tied Boston Sunday night when Bill Mosienko scored with barely a minute remaining. Gus Bodnar got Chicago's other goal in the second period after Joe Klukay gave Boston a 1-0 first-period lead. Leo Labine counted Boston's second tally.

Mercurys Edge Bulldogs In 6-5 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The monotony was broken Sunday. So was a 12-game home-ice winning streak for Windsor Bulldogs.

Windsor fans saw their team lose its first home game of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series as Owen Sound Mercurys shaded the Bulldogs 6-5.

The loss also helped Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen regain sole possession of first place. The Dutchmen defeated Niagara Falls Cataracts 4-2 in Kitchener Saturday.

In other Saturday games Hamilton Tigers downed Chatham Maroons 5-1 in Hamilton and Stratford Indians blanked the Bulldogs 3-0 in Stratford.

TIGHTEN GRIP

Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds tightened their grip on first place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association by edging Pembroke Lumber Kings 5-4 in Sault Ste. Marie Saturday. Sudbury Wolves and North Bay Trappers fought to a 3-3 draw in North Bay during the other Saturday NOHA game. In Sault, Mich., Sunday, the Lumber Kings tied the Indians 2-2.

Stratford took a 2-0 lead against the Bulldogs in the second period at Stratford Saturday. Windsor was outshot 53-21 during the night.

Ron Ingram fired the winner for the Indians, with Keith Tolton and Lou Bendo adding the insurance markers.

Niagara Falls netminder Don Lockhart saved the Dutchmen from racking up a mountainous score in Kitchener. He turned away 40 shots while his teammates could only hit the Kitchener net with 20 drives.

LEADS MARKSMEN

Rightwinger Jack McKenzie fired two second-period goals to lead the Dutchmen marksmen. Gerry Theberge and Charlie Brooker scored the others.

Jack Taylor scored three goals in Hamilton. Billy Hammond and Lloyd Ferguson notched the other Hamilton markers. Eddie Didone tallied for Chatham.

At Windsor Elmer Skov notched two for Owen Sound. Singles went to Gerry Reid, Tommy Burlington, Bill McComb and Ralph Hosking.

Gord Haidy and Lyle Wiseman each scored a pair for Windsor with Johnny Horeck getting the other.

Windsor and Kitchener go to Niagara Falls and Owen Sound respectively in the OHA Tuesday. The Greyhounds are in North Bay tonight in NOHA action.

George Trafton Plans To Return To Winnipeg

CHICAGO (AP)—George Trafton who said Friday in Winnipeg that he had been fired as coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, said Sunday he'll return to there Tuesday to find out "where I stand."

Trafton, a former centre for Chicago Bears of the National Football League, said he hopes that Tuesday "the whole matter will be cleared up."

In Winnipeg Friday, Bomber president Karl Slocomb denied that Trafton had been fired. Slocomb said the club has decided to hire another man for the new position of "head coach," but that Trafton's job as "coach" is unaffected.

NEVER BEEN HEAD COACH

Trafton noted Sunday that Slocomb was quoted as saying he had never been head coach of the Bombers.

"Well, then, who the hell was, if I wasn't," Trafton said.

Trafton said he regretted that his departure from Winnipeg for Chicago "gave the impression that I was job-shopping." His name has been mentioned as a possible successor to Gene Ronzani, who recently resigned as head coach of Green Bay Packers.

Trafton, who came to Chicago to attend the Bears-Chicago Cardinals' football finale, still has one year to go on a three-year contract as coach of the Bombers. His yearly salary was estimated at $12,000.

STAMPS SIGN VULCAN

CALGARY (CP)—Mike Vulcan, 205-pound guard who starred for Hamilton Tiger-Cats juniors last season, has been signed for a try out by Calgary's Stampeders, it was announced Sunday.

Vulcan, 20, was voted the outstanding lineman on the Tiger Cats.

DODGERS TOPS AT BAT

NEW YORK (AP)—Even though they didn't beat the Yankees, the 1953 Brooklyn Dodgers must be ranked with the most powerful batting clubs in the National League's 78-year history.

Official averages released Saturday by the league's service bureau showed that:

1. Carl Furillo, the team's right fielder, topped the circuit in batting with a .344 mark, edging Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals at .342.

2. Roy Campanella, the league's most valuable player, led in runs batted in with 142, the most ever by a catcher.

3. The Dodgers blasted 208 home runs (only the New York Giants of 1947 had more).

4. The Brooks also finished in front in team batting with .285; runs 955; hits 1,529; total bases 2,545; runs batted in 887 and stolen bases 90.

5. Four Brooklyn players were among the first 10 in batting. Besides Furillo they were: Outfielder Duke Snider (fourth) with .336, Jackie Robinson (tied for seventh) at .329 and Campanella (10th) at .312.

The others among the National League's top 10 were: Stan Musial of St. Louis Cardinals, who finished third with .337; Don Mueller of New York (fifth) .333; Richie Ashburn of Philadelphia (sixth) .330; Monte Irvin, New York (tied with Robinson) .329 and Ted Kluszewski, Cincinnati (ninth) at .316.

TRABERT RANKED FIRST

NEW YORK (AP)—Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, who came back from the navy to win the United States singles title, was given a tentative nod by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association Saturday as the country's No. 1 player.

He takes over the top spot from Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla., who was dropped to fourth in the new rankings behind Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif.

The ranking committee said the rankings are tentative because Davis Cup results in Australia may make changes necessary.

FORD WINS MIAMI OPEN

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Youthful Doug Ford, the most consistent golfer of the 1953 professional campaign, whipped the veteran Sam Snead in a torrid two-man battle over the final 36-hole stretch Sunday to win the $10,000 Miami Open tournament.

Trailing Snead by a stroke at the start of the last round, Ford caught up with the West Virginia slammer on the first hole to launch a see-saw fight in which it was Snead that finally yielded under the pressure.

Ford posted a three-under-par 67 for a 72-hole total of 272, eight strokes under par for the 6,570-yard Miami Springs municipal course, to beat Snead by four strokes and deny him a sixth championship in this tournament.

CHAMP LOSES EXHIBITION

BRUSSELS (AP)—Joseph Janssens of Belgium won a close 10-round decision over Percy Bassett, the interim world's featherweight boxing champion, in a non-title bout Saturday night.

Bassett, holding the crown while Sandy Saddler finishes his two-year stretch in the United States Army, came on fast in the last three rounds but Janssens' early lead was enough to give him the verdict.

C's And Wellington Capture TVL Tussles

MARMORA (ENS)—Two fast and exciting games of hockey were witnessed at the Marmora rink on Friday evening in pre-season Trent Valley fixtures before 400 spectators. Both were refereed and kept in good control by Bob Scriver of Hastings and Roy Moss of Marmora. The only outbreak was a clash between a Wellington and a Point Anne player in the second game of the double-header in the concluding moments of the encounter.

Campbellford and Frankford opened the doubleheader with the former team being lucky in getting the verdict by 4-3. Campbellford had the better of the play in the first period but Frankford became more aggressive in the second and narrowly missed equalizing in what turned out to be a scoreless third. Payne, Eady, Free and Robson showed up well for the winners and Foster, Cooke, Seymark and Williams were outstanding for Frankford.

IN GOOD FORM

Wellington were in rare form in their engagement with Point Anne and the Clement boys had to bow to an 8-1 defeat. Carey, Cousins and Garrison were chief goal scorers, the former having three and an assist to his credit. Cousins got two and an assist and Garrison also beat Twa twice. Seven of the 11 penalties went to the Prince Edward squad. Strahan got the only goal for Pointe Anne on Goyer's assist. The general performance of Wellington seemed to put Point Anne out of their customary stride. Lineups:

Mrs. F.D.R. Impressed

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has praised President Eisenhower's recent proposal for the pooling of atomic energy in an international arrangement supervised by the United Nations. "It opens an entirely new avenue of approach to co-operation, the first in a long time," she said at a press conference Sunday. "It made a tremendous impression on every one at the UN."

Station Wagon Wrecked, Texas Streamliner Derailed

ROYSE CITY, Tex. (AP) — Twisted red-and-silver wreckage and a shattered station wagon today littered the railroad tracks in this little farm town, where a family of five and their maid died in a car-train collision.

The wreck occurred Sunday night as the whistling diesel streamliner slammed the station wagon out of its path.

The hurtling automobile tripped a switch that derailed the twin engines and 10 cars. Five rear cars held to the rails.

Five train passengers were sent to hospitals. An estimated 30 more were bruised or shaken up.

The crash stopped the M-K-T Texas Special's fast trip from Dallas to St. Louis as it pounded through town at 60 miles an hour.

The six dead were identified as: Victor Saufley, 47, Dallas real estate agent and former Southern Methodist University and New York Giants football player; his wife, Harritt, 39, their sons, Bill, 5, and twins John and Jim, 2, and Irma Davis, the maid.

Saufley wore a hearing aid. A cold wind was blowing and it was presumed he had the windows rolled up.

The engineer said he was blowing his diesel whistle.

Byrne Not Interested In Selling Club

QUEBEC (CP) — Frank Byrne, owner of Quebec Citadelles of the Ontario Hockey Association, said Sunday night he is "not interested in selling my club" to Quebec Frontenacs of the Quebec Junior Hockey League.

He was commenting on a report from Kitchener Saturday saying a move will be made at a special meeting of the OHA Junior A council in Toronto Monday to merge the Citadelles and the Frontenacs.

Byrne said he will not be present at Monday's meeting and will be represented by Windy O'Neil, a lawyer and former player with Quebec Aces of the Quebec league. Emile Comutez, president of Frontenacs, will attend the meeting.

Rookie Defenceman Out Of Action Now

BOSTON (AP) — Ray Gariepy, Boston Bruins' rookie defenceman, today appeared out of National Hockey League action for an indefinite period.

When Gariepy suffered a facial cut against the Red Wings in Detroit Saturday night, x-rays revealed he had been playing with a fractured left cheekbone and a broken nose much of the time since Dec. 3.

Gariepy's trouble started when he was hit by a shot fired by Milt Schmidt during practice. He acquired more injuries by colliding with referee Bill Chadwick in a game in Montreal before suffering his Detroit mishap.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookie Bill Dineen of Detroit Red Wings who got two goals and two assists Saturday to help his side rout Boston Bruins 7-1 and, Sunday, chalked up two more markers when Red Wings upset Montreal 4-3.

Harry Lumley of Toronto Maple Leafs who earned his fifth shutout Saturday when the Leafs downed Chicago Black Hawks 2-0.

Harry Watson, Toronto, who scored both goals in the same game.

Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal whose two goals and an assist Saturday helped Canadiens trounce New York 7-2.

Ken Mosdell, Montreal, who scored twice in the same game.

15 Fatalities Weekend Toll

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A light plane collided in mid-air with another aircraft near Montreal and crashed to the ground, killing pilot Pierre Desbiens, 20.

The accident was probably the most spectacular of those that brought violent death to 15 persons in eastern Canada during the weekend.

A Canadian Press compilation today listed eight deaths in Quebec, five in Ontario and two in Nova Scotia. Ten were in traffic mishaps.

An elderly man was crushed under a freight train at Hamilton. Police said he carried no means of identification.

In the Ontario traffic deaths, Ernest Baker, 60, was killed by a radial car near Simcoe; Frank J. Kasperek, 22, of St. Catharines, died when his car hit a tree at Niagara Falls; Mrs. Neil McDougall, 72, was pitched from her husband's car in a collision at Komoka; and Frank Gilles, 44, was struck down by a car in London.

Noted Reporter Dies

PARIS (AP) — Andre Glarner, 71, dean of the British-American press corps in Paris, died at his home Saturday night of an intestinal ailment. The French newspaper man retired last October after 40 years as Paris correspondent for Britain's Exchange Telegraph Agency. He got his first job in San Francisco in 1906 during the earthquake.

5 Groups Named To Enter Drama Festival

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Galt, London, Welland, Grimsby and Hamilton theatre groups were chosen Sunday to compete at the 1954 Western Ontario Regional Drama Festival Jan. 20-23 at Windsor.

The festival executive chose the plays on the basis of the report of Charles Thomas of London, England, the preliminary adjudicator.

The list of plays and groups is:

Jan. 20: "Thunder Rock" by Robert Ardrey, Galt Little Theatre.

Jan. 21: "The Cocktail Party" by T. S. Eliot, London Little Theatre;

Jan. 22: "Come Back Little Sheba" by William Inge, Welland Little Theatre Players;

Jan. 23: Matinee, "I have been Here Before" by J. B. Priestly, Grimsby Players Guild;

Jan. 23, night: "Rebecca" by Daphne du Maurier, Players Guild of Hamilton.

CHOSE FINALISTS

The Windsor festival is one of 13 regional festivals in Canada in 1954. The winning plays in each region have a chance of being invited to compete in the Dominion Drama Festival at Hamilton next May. Evan John, from England, will adjudicate the regional festivals.

Preliminary awards announced by Mr. Thomas included the Meredith Achievement Trophy to the Welland Little Theatre Players for "Come Back Little Sheba."

Individual awards for performances in plays not invited to the festival were best actress—Judge Eric Cross Award to Shirley Berch, as Raina in "Arms and the Man," Kitchener-Waterloo Little Theatre; best set, Dr. K. M. Phillips Award to St. Marys Little Theatre with "Quiet Week-End."

Had Story Rejected

CAIRO (Reuters) — A former Egyptian interior minister, on trial here for corruption and abuse of power, Sunday told a revolutionary court how he planned to blow up a British ship with a mine in 1952. His story was rejected by the court president who said that he himself had taken part in the mine plot and claimed the accused politician had done nothing but hinder it.

Plan Bible Drive

NEW YORK (AP) — A special program for 1954 "to reawaken interest in Bible reading and to supply Scriptures to People who want them," will be haunched by 24 national bible socieities throughout the world, the American Bible Society announced Sunday. The groups intend to increase their annual Bible distribution from the present 20,000,000 copies to 25,000,000 during 1954 and to 50,000,00 by 1960 the announcement said.

Will Train Norwegians

OSLO (Reuters) — Canada has agreed for the next 18 months to train Norwegian Air Force pilots in handling jet planes. An earlier agreement with the United States expired last July. Gen. Finn Lambrechts, Norwegian Air Force chief, said Canada is offering 65 vacancies at Canadian air training schools.

Indians Used Cop per Articles 5,000 Years Ago In Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Primitive Indians who fashioned artifacts of copper—a skill long since forgotten by Indians who encountered the first white men in Wisconsin—roamed the state more than 5,000 years ago.

Proof of the great antiquity of Wisconsin's first known human residents came through study of carbon radioactivity.

Dr. Robert E. Ritzenthaler, associate curator of anthropology at the Milwaukee Public Museum, said Saturday that "carbon 14" tests made at the institute for nuclear studies at the University of Chicago determined that human remains found in a burial ground near Oconto, Wis., last year were those of old copper culture Indians of about 5,600 years ago—plus or minus 400 years.

These, he said, were the earliest people known to have lived in Wisconsin and the earliest date established through radiocarbon tests for human remains found in northeastern North America.

BONES OF 45 PEOPLE

Besides the bones of about 45 persons, copper articles were found in the Oconto burial ground, including seven awls, four crescents, three clasps, a spear point and a bracelet.

Dr. Ritzenthaler said the copper was mined in the Lake Superior region. Oconto is in northeastern Wisconsin near the shores of Green bay.

The site was uncovered in 1952 by Donald Baldwin, of Oconto, then 13, who came upon it while digging in an abandoned gravel quarry.

The Oconto site was the second of its kind found in the United States. The first was found on the other side of Wisconsin near the Mississippi river. Ritzenthaler said both groups of Indians lived about the same time.

Bevan Says Churchill Nostalgic For Past

LONDON (CP)—Aneurin Bevan, leader of the Labor party's left wing, Sunday night called Prime Minister Churchill a "romantic who has no ideas for the future but only nostalgia for the past," and said his government should resign.

Bevan told constituents the Conservative government "is becoming a world disgrace." He said he would make detailed comment on government policies next Thursday when the House of Commons debates on the Big Three Bermuda conference.

Will Address House

COLOMBO (Reuters)— The Queen will address the Ceylon Parliament April 12 from the throne of the late king of Kany in Ceylon, Sir Wilkrama Rajasinghe. The historic throne, once in Windsor castle, will be moved from a Colombo museum into independence hall auditorium for the occasion.

3 Communities Have Civic Election Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

This is civic election day in Port Arthur, North Bay and Orillia.

All three communities have mayoralty contests. North Bay is voting on a proposal to replace its present rink with a larger arena that could be used throughout the year as a community sports centre.

In Orillia, T. G. Beament, manager of Fahralloy Canada Limited, urged his employees not to vote for Mayor Wilbur M. Cramp who is seeking re-election. Mr. Cramp is in a three-way fight with Hugh Johnston and John MacIsaac. Mr. Beament said he disagrees with the mayor's policy in a public utilities dispute.

VOTED SATURDAY

For the first time, St. Catharines voted Saturday on a date other than New Year's Day. Some 45 per cent of the eligible voters turned out, nearly twice as many as last year when there was no mayoralty contest, and they replaced Mayor John Franklin, 39, seeking his third term, with Alderman John Smith, 61, who has served on 11 councils.

Owen Sound, which previously gave Percy England an acclamation as mayor, elected four city councillors and filled the four seats on the board of education.

New Toronto, an industrial suburb of Toronto, Saturday elected Reeve John L. Strath, as its mayor for 1954. Mr. Strath has spent 20 years on the council, 12 as reeve.

3 Durham Youths Injured In Crash

BRAMPTON (CP)—Three Durham youths were injured when their car smashed into the rear of a Toronto-bound bus here Sunday.

Ernest Rowe, 18, who police said was driver of the car, suffered a possible fractured right knee and cuts and bruises. His passengers, Ronald McClyment, 17, and Dorothy Nicol, 21, were treated for head cuts and bruises.

Police said the bus had stopped to discharge passengers and was pulling away when Rowe's car smashed into the rear.

Cleric Out Of Hospital

EDMONTON (CP) — Most Rev. W. F. Barfoot, Anglican Primate of all Canada and Metropolitan of Rupert's Land, was released Saturday from hospital here, where he had been confined since a Dec. 4 abdominal operation.

Nothing Done To Boost "Wonder" Titanium Supply

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Titanium, which has been called the "wonder metal,' is now emerging from a Senate investigation as the "fantastic metal."

Adequate supplies of it are the key to whether Russia or the U.S. might win a World War III, Defence Department officials admit.

It's 58 per cent lighter than stainless steel, about five times stronger than aluminum and extremely resistant to heat and corrosion. But only a trickle of about 2,000 tons per year is being produced today, whereas plane makers say they alone could use 250,000 tons annually if it were available.

Uncertainty over an adequate future supply of titanium is said to have stalled scores of new designs of superfast planes and guided missiles on the drawing boards.

WIDE USE

The Army's need for titanium is second only to that of the Air Force. Ordnance experts say that titanium could be used in just about every large piece of equipment which the Army has. It could be used to make tanks and other weapons up to 40 per cent lighter, or much stronger. Use of titanium in its base has already changed the 81 mm. mortar from a two-man to a one-man weapon, for example. Used in artillery shells it could add 34 per cent to their range.

Because of titanium's resistance to corrosion, Navy ships built with the metal would never need paint nor have to be mothballed.

Titanium oxide, as a pigment, is already widely used in house paints and women's make-up. Other commercial uses are believed almost unlimited. Used for pistons and fenders it could add many years to the normal life of an automobile. It could greatly extend the life of any product which must withstand heat.

An Interior subcommittee headed by Sen. George W. Malone (R., Nev.), is trying to find out why, with the need so great, so little has been done to increase the supply.

MINIMUM NEED

Testimony has revealed that defence officials reported their minimum need for titanium would be 35,000 tons per year by 1955 but that this estimate was cut to 22,000 tons by the Office of Defence Mobilization.

Malone is also outraged by his discovery that most of the ore being handled in the U.S. comes from Australia and India. The same ore forms are found in great abundance in the U.S. and Canada, his committee has been told.

Titanium is the fourth most abundant metal found in the earth's crust, behind aluminum, iron and magnesium. It is silvery white in pure form. The big trouble is that it's extremely dificult to process from ore form into usable metal. This accounts for its almost prohibitive cost of $15 to $25 a pound for sheets and shapes.

Extracting it from the ore requires extreme heat. It's very difficult to weld, too. There are several processes being used for the refining and fabrication of titanium, but none of them is completely satisfactory, the committee has been told. The quality of what is being shipped to users is not uniform and in many cases is unusable.

Titanium was discovered as an element 150 years ago. In 1910 it was first recognized as a workable metal. The first 100-pound batch was produced in 1946 by the U.S. Bureau of Mines when searching for a better heat-resistant metal for atomic equipment. A process invented by a refugee chemist from Luxembourg, Wilhelm Kroll, was used. His is still the basic process being employed.

Since titanium's tremendous potential for aircraft and guided missiles has become known, numerous firms have gotten into the ore and metal fabricating ends of this mushrooming business. They include DuPont, Kennecott Copper, National Lead, the Crane Company, Union Carbide, Allegheny Ludlum Steel and others.

Because of the tremendous cost of processing titanium, these firms are processing cautiously. But they are getting financial help from the government in the form of fast tax write-offs of new plants and guarantees to buy all of the metal that is produced.

In spite of the seeming slow devlopment of titanium, it is pointed out that it has come along faster in the last five years than aluminum did in its first 30 years.

Firm Will Close Mill In Cornwall

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Cottons Ltd., will cease operations at one of its three mills in Cornwall, it was announced Sunday.

J. Irving Roy, president of the company, said a decision to close Stormont mill, where 385 workers are employed, was taken "with the greatest regret."

"For some months past all the company's mills have operated at a very low rate of production resulting in unsatisfactory operating conditions and abnormally high costs of production," Mr. Roy said.

"In an effort to minimize the resulting losses it has been decided to close the Stormont mill, one of the oldest mills of the company."

Elected First Reeve

CHALK RIVER (CP) — Hotelkeeper and sportsman Con Dover will be this atomic research centre's first reeve when it takes on the status of an incorporated village Jan. 1. He defeated Jack Mussell, township councillor, 343 votes to 300.

Seaman Lost On Queen's Escort Ship

ABOARD S.S. [illegible]THIC (CP) — A note of sadness has touched this ship carrying the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh across the calm Pacific on their Commonwealth tour.

Friday night a seaman was lost overboard from the New Zealand naval escort vessel Black Prince which that day had relieved from escort duty the British cruiser Sheffield.

The Gothic turned about and joined the Black Prince in a fruitless search for the 20-year-old sailor. Searchlights failed to find any trace of him in the then choppy seas.

SENDS MESSAGE

The Queen sent a message to the New Zealand naval board expressing sorrow at the mishap. The message said:

"I am greatly distressed to learn of the loss of Ordinary Seaman Marryatt from HMNZS Black Prince whilst escorting the Gothic. Please convey to his relatives my heartfelt sympathy in their loss. Elizabeth R."

The Queen and the Duke watched Sunday as a New Zealand naval chaplain, the Rev. G. F. Senior, was transferred from the Black Prince to the Gothic to conduct service.

Rev. Senior made the transfer standing on a "stirrup" pulled on ropes slung between the vessels 20 feet above the blue ocean.

Bethany WMS Officers Re-elected For 1954

BETHANY (ENS)—The Women's Missionary Society of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. T. J. Jackson.

The Christmas worship service was led by the president, Mrs. G. Waddell, assisted by Mrs. Clarence Rowan and Mrs. Jackson. Christmas carols were sung throughout the meeting.

For the Watch Tower, Mrs. Rowan reported items from India, Mrs. Herb Coppins news of Trinidad and Mrs. G. M. Longfield gave an appeal for clothing and needs in Korea.

Mrs. Donald Lowes read "The Song of Christmas." Mrs. Coppins, Mrs. H. Jakeman and Mrs. W. Rowland each told of how Christmas is celebrated in Japan, India and Trinidad.

The treasurer, Mrs. Coppins, reported that the usual allocation had been topped by $20.

Last year's officers were returned for another year: President, Mrs. G. Waddell; vice-president, Mrs. Clarence Rowan; secretary, Mrs. H. Jakeman; pianists, Mrs. C. Rowan and Mrs. Mervyn Porteous; Christian stewardship secretary, Mrs. T. J. Jackson; friendship secretary, Mrs. W. Rowland; Missionary Monthly superintendent, Mrs. Donald Lowes; supply secretary, Mrs. G. M. Longfield; citizenship convener, Mrs. Mervyn Porteous.

Mrs. Porteous gave a reading and Mrs. Waddell closed the meeting with prayer. Lunch was served by the hostess.

Norwood CGIT Holds Christmas Service

NORWOOD (ENS)— The Norwood CGIT held its annual Christmas candle-lighting service Sunday during the Norwood United Church's evening services.

The address was given by Rev. H. K. Wright of Norwood United Church and was entitled "I Am the Light of the World." He gave a prayer, after which the candle-lighting service began.

The candle-lighting service was conducted by the leaders, Mrs. Don Audas, Mrs. H. K. Wright and Miss Gail Baker. During the responsive reading the three candles were lit, the first one by Mrs. Audas, the second by Mrs. Wright and the third by Miss Baker.

During the recessional hymn, "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," the girls came forward, lit their candles and formed lines on each side of the church. Then they marched to the back again where they lined up, each girl holding her lighted candle.

The service closed with taps and the benediction was pronounced by Mr. Wright.

Golf Pro Dies

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Wendell H. Kay, 63, golf pro at the Hyde Park Country Club here, died of a heart attack at his home Saturday night. Kay had been a member of the Western New York Professional Golfers Association for the last 25 years, and was a past vice-president of the organization.

U.S. Company Announces New Newsprint Production

CLEVELAND, O. (AP) — Kinsley Chemical Co. announced Saturday night it has successfully produced newsprint from a pulp composed 40 per cent of relatively plentiful poplar wood.

Edward R. Timlowski, vice-president and technical director, said previous experiments were unsuccessful when more than 20 per cent hardwood was used.

Hardwood such as poplar, gumwood and cottonwood are so plentiful they are regarded as "waste."

The Cleveland Plain Dealer, one of the firm's owners, sponsored the project. Timlowski said more than 1,000 tons of the new paper were turned out in the experiment at the Hennepin Paper Co.'s mill at Little Falls, Minn.

The Kinsley Company said it believes it can manufacture the paper for slightly less than the present $126 a ton Canadian price. Almost all the newsprint consumed in the United States is produced in Canada.

NOTHING REVOLUTIONARY

In Montreal, general manager Frank Mitchell of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association said Canadian mills have been using poplar wood in varying quantities for some time and there appeared to be nothing revolutionary in the process.

Mr. Mitchell said mills that own extensive timberlands of poplar use the hardwood as much as possible.

He said Canadian companies do not give out exact figures on the composition of their pulp, but that the poplar content is high and in many cases would be higher if more of the hardwood were available.

WEIGHS NEW SEED—A tiny new wheat seed which may save growers many millions of dollars in the event of a rust epidemic is weighed by Herman Brown, head technician in wheat breeding at the cereal crops division of the central experimental farm at Ottawa. He is weighing the new seed named "Selkirk" on a weight-per-bushel tester, which uses a small sample to indicate the weight of a full bushel. The new seed, product of 14 years' research and created to resist the dreaded fungus, race 15-B, is in the larger pile. The smaller pile is a rusted wheat of a susceptible variety.

Brownell, McCarthy Differ On Security Risks Eliminated

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Attorney-General Herbert Brownell says he thinks all suspected Reds have been cleaned out of the United States government. But Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) disagrees.

Brownell said in a transcribed Texas radio speech Sunday night he believes all federal employees suspected of Communist tendencies have been dismissed.

"We think that they are all out of government now," he said.

"But the president has promised that within the coming year we will have completed the employee security program so that the people can be sure that none of them are left in government.

GO AFTER SEPARATELY

"And those that are outside, we are going to go after them separately," he declared.

McCarthy, Communist - hunting chairman of the Senate investigations sub-committee, said on the "meet the press" television program Sunday night that more employees are being fired on loyalty grounds every day.

The administration "is heading in the right direction" in eliminating subversives from government, but "I don't think the job is ended," McCarthy said.

SECURITY PROGRAM

Brownell said "one of the first things that President Eisenhower did when he came into office was to set up an employee security program."

"And I am glad to say when the first report came out about a month ago, it showed that 1,456 security risks have been fired from the government since Eisenhower took office."

Brownell said he "brought out those facts" on the Harry Dexter White case because "the people of this country are entitled to know what goes on in their government."

Begins Sixth Term As Guild President

BETHANY (ENS)—The Ladies' Guild of St. Paul's church were entertained at the home of Mrs. Rupert Woods, with Mrs. Charles Reynolds presiding and Mrs. T. S. Gault leading the devotional service.

The secretary gave a brief report of the year's activities and the treasurer reported a substantial bank balance, the money having been raised by sales of home-baking, a garden party, home cooking and candy table at the bazaar, sale of Christmas cards and several entertainments.

Three were 16 members in attendance. Mrs. William Mark was received as a new member.

It was decided to donate the further sum of $100 to the wardens of the church and to supply flowers for Christmas decorations of the church.

Plans were made to sponsor a fashion show through a Peterborough store as wel as a cosmetic demonstration early in the new year.

Last year's executive were all returned to office, with Mrs. Charles Reynolds beginning her sixth term as president, Mrs. T. S. Gault, honorary president and treasnurer, and Mrs. Charles Smith, secretary.

Members exchanged Christmas gifts. Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Ernest Lamb, Mrs. Emory Smith and Mrs. Morgan Bigelow.

Many Countries Have Stake In Canada's Yuletide Table

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Many of the world's people have a stake in Canada's Christmas table—even the rural folk of Japan.

The traditionally bulging board illustrates that trade can be no one-way street. Traffic must move in and out to make the Christmas feast complete.

The dollars Canada earns through her exports furnish her with funds to buy goods from other countries. On many a Christmas board there will be nuts from South America, olives and spices from the Mediterranean area and the Far East, beverages from Europe and fresh fruits from tropical lands.

There will be the mandarin orange, too, a traditional Christmas delicacy in western provinces. Canada's purchases represent dollars for Japan, the only dollars that country can get for the small, sweet orange.

Japan could easily consume all the oranges she grows, but she also needs dollars to pay for imports. Her dollar market for the orange is in Canada.

Japan buys a lot of Canadian Prairie grain. The Prairies use a small portion of these earned dollars to pay for Japanese mandarins.

The Prairies, British Columbia, and to a limited extent, Ontario, constitute Japan's dollar market for oranges, hte trade department says. These provinces absorb almost all exportable grades.

Year by year the Canadian market for this fruit has expanded. Imports last year reached a peak of more than $1,000,000, doubled from $500,000 in 1949 and a six-fold increase in 15 years from $170,000 in 1937.

This represents only about five per cent of Canada's total orange imports of some $20,000,000 worth annually.

The mandarin, grown in Japan for the last dozen centuries, was the biggest item in the $13,000,000 worth of goods Canada imported from Japan last year.

The Hendersons had a good year in 1953!

"A year of real progress for me and my family... 1953! Early in the year, I decided to go ahead with plans for expanding my garage business. But the job required a substantial outlay—more than I had available. So I talked it over with Pete Bingham, manager of our Dominion Bank Branch. He showed me ways to stretch my capital and between us we decided how much financial assistance I needed.

"The move paid off in increased business and profits—even better than I had hoped! Besides repaying a good portion of the loan and meeting other commitments, I've been able to put aside extra money in our Dominion Bank savings account.

"Yes, 1953 was a good year! It helped me increase my assets—business, savings and so on. And it brought security for my wife and children a big step closer!"

Like you, Mr. Henderson, The Dominion Bank had a good year in 1953. Just as your business expanded, so did ours—maintaining its impressive record of growth. Like your personal balance sheet, our annual statement shows imposing figures—in assets, deposits and loans. During 1953, more people than ever took advantage of the services of The Dominion Bank ... where every account is an important one.

1953's Looney Larceny

Snake In The Grass Steals Same From The Zoo

By MEADER G. PATTINGTON

Things are tough all over, but would you go out and swipe a snake or a headache tablet or a quart of worms? Those are some of the choice bits of loot filched by thieves during 1953, a banner year for looney larceny.

The snake, a six-foot indigo job, was stolen from the Staten Island, N.Y., zoo. The headache tablet, along with $25 worth of other headache tablets, was in a salesman's sample case that vanished in Pasadena, Calif. And a Syracuse, N.Y., bait dealer was the poor fish robbed of 1,000 quarts of worms.

Very enterprising were the Baltimore, Md., thieves who carried off a prefabricated house. Then they came back and stole the flooring and supports. Other crooks with big ideas were the gang that took a 28-by-46-foot house near Leesburg, Va.

In this era of space flight, 1953 saw the first report of the theft of a flying saucer. It happened in New York, and not just one flying saucer, but a whole shipment. They were, of course, toys.

Perhaps the most original bit of law-evading of 1953 happened in Alzey, Germany, where a man got sent away to the pokey for 10 weeks. is crime was buffing the fuzz off gooseberries and selling them for grapes.

Other criminal loot oddities concerned the Sweetwater, Tex., crook who, over a period of a month, swiped one shoe each from 15 pairs in a shoe store; the London, England, robber who hijacked a truck loaded with burglar alarms; and the Lafayette, Ind., thieves who stole $18 worth of boys' sports shirts, each one bearing the motto, "I'm a Little Stinker."

In St. Louis, a hold-up artist encountered a victim who had no cash. The angry bandit put the bite on his target anyhow, and made off with his false teeth.

Even churches weren't safe. In Juarez, Mexico, two pickpockets were kneeling in prayer, and simultaneously relieving the man in front of them of his wallet. Fortunately for justice, a policeman was in the row behind them and that was that. And, in South Bend, Ind., a minister retired to his study after his sermon to find that $48 had been stolen. His topic had been, "Who was the criminal?"

Crime doesn't pay, and it certainly didn't for a few unlucky crooks in '53. There were the two who decided to hold-up a Philadelphia grocery store. The grocer seized a flea spray gun and pumped insecticide at them until they had to flee.

Another gunman tried a Worcester, Mass., variety store. When the cash register was opened, it only contained one dollar, so the robber growled, "It wouldn't pay," and walked out. Then there was the crook who set his sights on a restaurant. He first ate a $1.95 meal, gave a $2 bill to the cashier and, as he was about to pull his gun, became frightened and left. He forgot his change and lost five cents on the deal.

A woman was arrested for shoplifting in Dallas, Tex. Police found ample evidence on her person — a bag of candy, two billfolds, a raincoat, a boy's shirt, two brassieres, five pairs of stockings, a jar of deodorant, a tube of tooth paste, two pints of paint, two flower bulbs, four packages of seeds and three packets of buckshot. That's supermarketlifting.

Perhaps the most unusual—and effective—weapon employed by criminals during 1953 was that used by four Johannesburg, South Africa, thieves. They relieved a gas station attendant of $26, holding him at bay with a live lobster. Later they were pinched.

In Indianapolis, thieves obligingly gave police a precise record of the time they robbed a cabinet company of $1,500 worth of tools. They punched in and out on the concern's time clock. And in Los Angeles, a thief left a complete description of himself when he stole $60 worth of clothing. He'd taken only things in his size.

According to a survey made by the Birmingham, Ala., public library, one of the most frequent items stolen is calorie charts. That's why so many crooks don't even have a fat chance of success.

Poor Turnout

ST. GEORGE (CP)—Three trustees turned up for a nomination meeting Friday night but there were no citizens present to nominate them or anyone else. Earl Tansley, chairman of the trustee board, said it was not unusual in this police village. He recalled one year when three meetings were held before enough candidates were nominated to fill the three seats.

HOPE HE'S TAME—Trainer Alec Kerr shows he has plenty of faith in "Khan," as he shares a kiss with the tiger during a circus-training session in Ascot, England. Khan has been in an extremely good mood as the circus prepares for an appearance in London during the Christmas season.

Two Obstacles Still Remain Before Seaway Started

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The $750,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway-power project seemed to have sound prospects of a 1954 start as this year closes.

After a half century of controversy and inertia—largely south of the river—this greatest of all Canada-United States peacetime enterprises had come up to the last two visible hurdles.

And Canadian officials were hopeful these would be cleared in time to get the huge navigation and hydro development into construction within the year.

OPPONENTS' LAW SUIT

The two remaining obstacles:

1. A lawsuit by opponents before the United States Court of Appeals, on which final hearings were due to start Dec. 23.

2. An expected appeal by the same opponents to the U.S. Supreme Court in the event they lose out before the lower body.

Seaway advocates are confident of winning any appeal to the top U.S. court, but it is believed here a final verdict would be needed by late May or early June to ensure a 1954 start. After that, the court would be in recess for the summer.

Meanwhile, Canadian authorities looked back with satisfaction on the second year in a row in which long strides have been made.

MAJOR DEVELOPMENT

During the year, the U.S. Federal Power Commission took the major move of naming the New York state power authority as the U.S. entity to share with the Ontario hydro-electric power commission the $450,000,000 cost and the 2,200,000 horsepower of the power phase of the seaway.

That was one of the biggest steps ever taken on the seaway in the U.S. And it is the decision that now is under challenge in the American courts.

After the action, Canada and the U.S. got together in the fall on the naming of a joint board of engineers to give over-all supervision to the hydro construction job. The board is one of three top appointive bodies that would have a hand in the project.

Others—still to be named—are an "authority" to build and operate the $300,000,000 deep navigation system around the International Rapids section of the river, and a board of control to regulate the use of water with an eye to levels in Lake Ontario and in the river below the development.

PRELIMINARY WORK

Along with these moves, the federal transport department and Ontario Hydro launched preliminary work in the seaway area, to clear the decks for actual construction as soon as a definite go-ahead is received.

Apart from the question of a final clearance from the U.S. courts, one more big question mark remained:

Who will build the navigation facilities to route deep-sea ships into and out of the Great Lakes past the hydro development?

The Canadian government, after waiting more than 10 years for Congress to ratify a Canada-U.S. treaty for a joint job by the two federal governments, decided last year to go ahead on her own.

This year, Congress once more had before it legislation for joint participation. Once again, the legislation was pigeonholed.

President Eisenhower, addressing Parliament here Nov. 14, expressed the hope Congress will vote next year to have the U.S. go in jointly with Canada.

If it does not, the Canadian government is ready to finance the waterway part of the development. In fact, it would be just as happy to do the work alone and thus retain control over the canals, which then would be built on the Canadian side of the river.

One worry in this respect is that, should Congress fail to act in 1954, there might develop pressure from Washington on the Canadian government to "wait until next year" in the hope of getting joint action.

Whether or not a start is made in 1954, completion of the seaway is still some years in the future. The hydro construction will take about four years. The waterway's finish will take a year or more longer.

East Germany Now Vast Prison Camp

By TOM REEDY

BERLIN (AP)—In bone-chilling winter fog, Communist police of Germany's Soviet zone are patrolling in pairs.

Night-riding squads burst into a luckless German's home and drag him off to a dungeon. Red courts may send him to the gallows or to backbreaking labor without hope of reprieve.

Sullen men and women plod daily to their jobs and do only what they have to.

From the Elbe to the Oder, from the Baltic to the Czech border, East Germany is a vast prison camp, far grimmer today than ever before. The reason: six months ago, June 17, German workers threw off the yoke of Red dictatorship for one day and defied Russian tanks and guns, ripped open jails and freed political prisoners.

Fifty thousand secret police, a "people's army" of another 125,000 and a regular beat-patrolling force of 200,000 "volkspolizei" stand between the Communist bosses and the population. Behind the German vassal force is the 300,000-man Soviet army which smashed the June revolt.

STILL GOING ON

In the minds of many, June 17 may turn out to be the longest day in modern German times. Without being jocular, Germans will tell you June 17 is still going on. There is considerable evidence to back them up.

The lid blew off June 16 when workers on the model Stalin allee housing project in East Berlin marched on the government and were rebuffed. They called a general strike.

The next day 50,000 men and women swarmed toward the government headquarters. Word spread to Magdeburg, Chemnitz, Halle, Leipzig, Rostock. In the next 24 hours there were 2,000,000 on the streets. Soviet army tanks took over, martial law was declared.

In two days 569 were killed, 1744 wounded. Fifty thousand were arrested. Police Chief Wilhelm Zaisser was fired; so was Justice Minister Max Fechner.

For two weeks, Russian martial law was imposed. That meant death for any infraction. But the boiling pot continued to simmer and no policeman or Communist official dared walk the streets alone. During this period, 12,000 East Germans fled to West Berlin.

PRODUCTION FALLS

The regime unlocked its food supply safes. Shops suddenly were loaded with fruit, vegetables and meat. Prices were cut as much as 10 per cent. Work quotas were rolled back.

Even that failed. Everywhere, work slowed down. The government admitted production had fallen in some big plants as much as 50 per cent.

Allied intelligence reports:

The winter in the East zone will be a tremendous test for the Reds.

"Evidence indicates the Soviet zone labor force is still strongly opposed to the regime. Workers now are working unenthusiastically."

A final bugaboo for the East is the crop situation. The harvest is 20 per cent below last year and 70 per cent of pre-war level. There are severe local shortages, especially of the German diet staple—the potato.

Hogs Reported Stolen

BRANTFORD (CP) — Pig rustlers are operating in the Brantford area. Alex Hajas reported the loss of six hogs from a pen on his farm, the third such theft in three days. Previously, Arthur Hunter reported nine hogs stolen and Harold Fawcett, nine young pigs.

U.S. Government Owns Biggest Business In World

By HARRY S. PEASE
Of The Milwaukee Journal

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The biggest business in the world is owned by the U.S. government. From a $6,000 beginning less than 14 years ago, the industry of the atom has grown to twice the size of the largest privately owned company.

The Atomic Energy Commission owns some 3,000 square miles of land. Incidental to its operations, the commission owns and runs cities. It finances and directs a co-ordinated research program operating on fronts from the cause of cancer to the reasons flowers bloom, from the shape of an atom to the way a pump behaves at 1,500 degrees.

This program thus far has cost about $11,000,000,000. Its budget for this fiscal year is $2,400,000,000—roughly $3 out of every $100 the government will spend. The average taxpayer will pay about $15 toward the year's atomic energy development.

GREAT REWARDS

But despite its size, the program has only about 6,800 people directly on the federal payroll. For the most part, they make policy and supervise activities. Actual operations are in the hands of private contractors.

From the huge investment there have already been great rewards. So high is the cost of battle—an estimated $230,000,000 a day—that the atom bomb paid for itself if it shortened the Second World War by 10 days.

The peaceful uses of the atom, though, are hardly more than the jet-propelled utopian dreams they were when the civilian Atomic Energy Commission took over from the military seven years ago. The atom is reaching the point where it can work for man instead of against him, but its practical constructive applications arre both few and small.

Everything in the atomic energy business depends on uranium, the heaviest basic substance found in nature. There is lots of it in the earth's crust, but unfortunately it is spread out so much that getting usable quantities is a hard task.

SUPPLIES RUSSIANS

Africa leads the world in uranium ore production. One rich source the United States cannot reach. It lies in the mountains of eastern Czechoslovakia and it supplies the Russians.

The A.E.C. has pushed hard for development of American possibilities. A m[illegible] its success came in its announcement two years ago that the United States had supplanted Canada as the second ranking producer of uranium. Whether that balance still holds, A.E.C. does not say.

The Commission operates no mines. Either it buys ores from private miners or buys ore concentrates from private processors.

Oak Ridge, Tenn., is a sort of pilot plant for the whole atomic business. Within its 94 square miles it holds a unique production facility, a gaint national laboratory, a mighty education institution and an atom city.

Its scientists operate a cancer hospital, experimenting with the effects of radiochemicals on malignant growths.

Picking atomic needles from uranium haystacks is big business at Oak Ridge, the first place in the U.S. where nature's one bomb material was refined. Some months ago another plant, near Paducah, Ky., began producing. A third is being built near Portsmouth, O.

Reindeer Thrive In Texas Wonder Drugs Aid Health

GOLDTHWAITE, Tex. (AP) — Thousands of Texas children are seeing real reindeer pulling Santa Claus and his sleigh this Christmas season thanks to a deep south reindeer herder.

Grady Carothers, a six-foot-one Texan with hazel eyes and a ready smile, has proved that even animals from the frozen north can thrive on his sun-baked ranch.

Most of Carothers' deer came from the Alaskan wilderness. But two of the young animals on his ranch have never seen a snowflake. They were born this spring in central Texas.

Wintering in the south became possible for reindeer when wonder drugs were developed for animal use. Reindeer were so delicate even zoos couldn't keep them alive in warm climates. The principal hazard was pneumonia. Penicillin has licked that.

The cold country reindeer, also called caribou, are kept comfortable here, even when July and August temperatures hover at 100 degrees, in a covered corall cooled with giant fans.

Nearly three years of negotiating with the U. S. department of the interior preceded the rancher's first trip to Alaska to buy a few animals. Since Eskimos depend on the reindeer for food and clothing, only a limited number can be sold from the herd of 4,000. Grady went on his first round-up in 1949.

ESKIMOS DELIVER

In all he has made five trips beyond the Arctic circle to the seacoast village of Kotzebue in northwest Alaska. Carothers camps on the tundra and waits for Eskimo herders to bring the deer to a round-up point.

Carothers finds reindeer exceptionally easy to handle in crowds. One team was in a Christmas parade in Amarillo, Tex., less than a week out of Kotzebue village. The animals showed no nervousness or fear in the surging crowds of children.

In Corpus Christi the animals paraded before 50,000 persons. Motorcycle patrolmen rode on each side of the team.

"The Stanley Cup Series of 1928 featuring the New York Rangers and the Montreal Maroons will always stand out in my memory as having been the most thrilling of them all—right from the era of the famous Kenora Thistles—Ottawa Silver Seven—Montreal Wanderers to the present time. This was a series in which incidents were numerous, skill was paraded and almost everything that could happen did occur. It was during this set—all games being staged in the Montreal Forum—that Manager Lester Patrick replaced injured goalie, Lorne Chabot. Though he was 45 years old and had never played goal before, Patrick sparked the Blue Shirts to a triumph that prevented the Montreal forces from capturing Lord Stanley's battered trophy."

eport Russians ttempted o Scale Everest

STOCKHOLM (AP) — A noted edish explorer said Sunday a ssian expedition tried a year o to scale 29,002-foot Mount Evest, world's highest peak, but lled and left six dead climbers hind.

Anders Bolinder, 29, Swedish alnist and leader of a Swedish-alian expedition to the South nerican Andes in 1952, told the ockholm newspaper Svenska gbladet the Russians made a ell-planned attempt in the fall of 52 to beat the British climbers the peak, situated on the Tibet-pal border.

Last may a British party headed Col. John Hunt made the first ccessful ascent to the top of Evest. Two members of Hunt's rty who actually reached the ak were Edmund Hillary, New ealand beekeeper, and Tenzing, palese guide.

Bolinder said the story of the unccessful Russian climb leaked rough the Iron Curtain when two the party's Tibetan guides, Osin and Batisong, fled over the imalaya mountains and reported authorities in Katmandu, Nel's capital.

THE CEREMONY of laying the cornerstone of the new St. Giles' Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon was performed by James Dutton (centre). Mr. Dutton is chairman of the Board of Administration of the Presbyterian Church and one who was interested in the forming of a second Presbyterian congregation in Peterborough. The Rev. Gilbert Smith, minister of St. Giles', is on the left and the Rev. C. G. Boyd, minister of St. Paul's, right.

Cornerstone Of St. Giles' Church Laid

In bright sunshine and with weather more like mid-October than mid-December, the cornerstone of the new St. Giles' Presbyterian church on Park St. south was laid on Sunday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by James Dutton, chairman of the Board of Administration of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Mr. Dutton has taken a very active part in the congregation, since it first commenced holding services in Confederation public school in October, 1952.

Several hundred members of St. Giles' and friends of the congregation were present. The Rev. Gilbert D. Smith, minister of St. Giles' was in charge and he was assisted by the Rev. Charles G. Boyd, minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

TROWEL PRESENTED

Mr. Smith opened the service with prayer and read a portion of Scripture from The Epistle of Paul to the Ephesians. Douglas Melville, secretary of the building committee, presented to Mr. Dutton a trowel and expressed thanks to him for his work in organizing St. Giles' and his consenting to lay the cornerstone. Then as two workmen of the construction firm of Charles Huffman Ltd., the builders, moved the stone into place, Mr. Dutton "well and truly laid it". Mr. Dutton in a short address referred to the story in the Bible of the building of King Solomon's Temple and how it was built without sound of workmen's tools. While the stone was a thing of beauty and strength it also meant much more to the congregation of St. Giles, for it was the foundation on which a new Christian outlet in the community was being laid.

PLACED IN STONE

In the stone of grey granite, a gift to the congregation by one of its members, John Pirie, was placed a copper cylinder. The sealed cylinder contained a history of the organization of the congregation, its Sunday school and various societies; a list of the membership; coins of the realm; momentos of Presbyterianism in Peterborough and a picture of Queen Elizabeth in St. Giles' Cathedral, Edinburgh, when earlier this year she received the recognition of nobility and the Scottish Crown. The last was a gift from a lady in Ottawa, who is a friend of St. Giles. Engraved on the face of the stone was the year "1953".

Mr. Boyd offered the prayer of thanksgiving and dedication. The congregation sang "The Doxology" and Mr. Smith pronounced the benediction.

Lakefield Urges Bank Loans For Houses

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Lakefield Chamber of Commerce will send a resolution to the Federal Government, the local member of Parliament, the Canadian and Ontario Chambers of Commerce, and to Chambers located in smaller centres, urging the proposed legislation that will allow chartered banks to make mortgage loans on real estate, under the supervision of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, be expedited.

This resolution was drafted at a recent meeting of the Board of Directors, with the newly-elected president, Walter A. Killoran presiding.

Such legislation could be very important to the villages and small centres, because the loaning agencies are not operating in these localities. From a practical standpoint, this has denied the villages the use of government-sponsored mortgage money, and as a result the construction of new houses in the villages has been badly restricted, further increasing the concentration of population and wealth in the big cities and the retrogression of the small ones.

As the chartered banks have branches in the small centres, this legislation, if enacted in such a way as to permit these branches to grant mortgage loans under the same conditions as at present granted in the larger centres, would supply a very definite and long felt need and would relieve the present unhealthy financial situation that exists in villages.

RE-OPEN PLANT?

Industrial Chairman, E. H. Northey, reported that he had opened correspondence wtih persons connected with the Canada Cement Co., with the view of investigating possibilities of the re-opening of the Lakefield plant, but had nothing definite to report as yet.

Ralph Beavis stated that the arrangements for the Santa Claus parade and the decoration of the business section were in good order. The parade will be held Saturday afternoon, December 19. A subscription list has been circulated among approximately 50 merchants.

B. F. Blake, chairman of Health and Agriculture reported that he had contacted Clarence Coons, Howard Beavis and R. C. Darling, president of the Fair Board, and met favorable reception to a co-operative plan for improving the parade and other suitable projects for increasing interest in the Lakefield Fair. He also will write the Secretary of the fair board asking that body to nominate representatives to join or act jointly with the Chamber's committee toward this objective.

Bulletin editor, Donald Hendren, requested committee chairman to report activities to him regularly, so that the paper could be effective. He suggested Feb. 1, 1954 as the next date for the publication of same.

Presbyterian YPS Plan Leadership Weekend

NORWOOD — (ENS) — The executive of the Peterborough Presbytery Presbyterian Young People's Society met at the home of Arden McNaughton near Warkworth.

The Rev. W. H. Heustin, B.A., of Millbrook opened the meeting with prayer.

It was moved and seconded that Bob Duncanson be the registrar for the leadership training weekend to be held in Norwood on January 9th and 10th, 1954; that Leona Gordon be the billets convener for the weekend; that Pat Atkinson of the Norwood Society be asked to be the arrangements convener for the weekend; that Mary Lou Hermiston of the Warkworth Society be asked to be the song leader for the leadership training weekend.

Glenna Hall of Centreville society will be asked to take over the position of song leader in the event that Miss Hermiston would be unable to take that office. It was moved that Nancy White be asked to be pianist for the weekend and decided that worship convener of the executive; Gerald Finnie, fill that office for the weekend.

The Rev. Heustin moved Ruth Steinkrauss assist the fellowship convener on the executive, Bob Duncanson, for the weekend, as the latter is also registrar.

Members also moved that Arden McNaughton be the banquet chairman on the Saturday night of the weekend, and that the Rev. E. W. B. McKay of Cobourg be asked to select a song leader for the weekend from the society in Cobourg. Mrs. Harry Kavanagh of Norwood will be asked to be pianist for the banquest on Saturday night, Ruth Curtis will be the skit manager.

It was moved by Arden McNaughton and seconded by Ruth Steinkrauss that district presidents of other denominations be asked to be present or to have somebody in their place to bring greetings from other denominations.

Vice-president Edgar Kee will take the scripture and Bob Duncanson, the prayer at the church service to be held in the church Sunday morning. Honorary president of the executive the Rev. Gilbert Smith of St. Giles' Church in Peterborough will be asked to be the guest sepaker for the service and the Rev. R. D. Duncanson of Norwood, asked to be the supply for the Rev. Smith for the morning.

U.S. Steel Mills Set Record

CLEVELAND (AP) — United States steel mills have set a one-year production record despite a decline in output that started last June, Steel magazine reported Sunday.

The metal-working weekly says the year's output last week reached 107,353,000 net tons, breaking the old record of 105,199,848 tons set in 1951. Last year's production was cut considerably by an eight-week steel strike.

Last week's output slid down another two points to 85 per cent of rated capacity, or 1,916,000 tons. Steel says the continuing decline is intensifying competition among steel sellers and increasing freight absorption.

Prices on finished steel declined, too, from $114.95 a ton to $114.64.

Will Grant Amnesty To War Prisoners

ROME (Reuters)—An amnesty for crimes committed during partisan warfare toward the end of the Second World War may free nearly half of Italy's prison population in time for Christmas.

The amnesty bill, which will come before Parliament for the second time this week, would give freedom to 25,000 last-ditch Fascists, quick-triggered Communists and other political warriors who fought a savage civil war in the shadow of the main contest between Allied and German forces.

It also covers thousands of unconvicted war criminals in hiding on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

22 Americans Stall Talks Second Day

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Indian Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya said today he believes the 22 United States prisoners of the Korean war who refuse to quit the Communists are attempting to stall permanently Allied attempts to coax them home.

Thimayya said the Indian command will make every effort to get the explanations started, but there was little possibility they would get under way in less than four or five days. The explanation period ends Dec. 23.

Before they were scheduled to meet with U.S. explanation teams, the 22 balky Americans refused to meet with interviewers. They said they won't leave their barbed wire compounds unless fellow pro-Communist South Korean prisoners also agree to attend the sessions. This South Koreans have refused to do for three days.

The neutral nations repatriation commission, headed by Thimayya, met for an hour studying protests filed by both the South Korean and U.S. prisoners.

COMPLAINT ABSURD

Thimayya labelled absurd some of the South Korean complaints and said they only could have been made to stall the explanations.

The Korean PoWs, Thimayya said, were insisting on the right to make counter - explanations and long statements to explainers.

He said 21 of the 22 balky Americans signed a petition asking that "several points be clarified" in the South Korean PoWs stand.

Thimayya said he couldn't understand why the Americans suddenly changed their position and refused to go to the explanations.

Meanwhile, the mother who flew across the Pacific from her Minnesota home in an effort to see her prisoner son received a letter from him bitterly attacking the United States.

READS SON'S LETTER

Mrs. Portia Howe of Alden, Minn., read the letter from her son, 20-year-old Pte. Richard B. Tenneson.

"Don't misunderstand me," it said, "I still love my family, my people and my country, and whether you are able to understand it now or not, believe me when I say that it is for them that I am fighting and it is impossible for me to live in the United States because I want to live as I wish.

"United States authorities . . . have probably told you that I was forced, doped, brain washed or some other horse manure that they use to slander and defile people like myself who will stand up for his own thoughts and the rights."

Her face showing the strain of the last few days, Mrs. Howe said, "where did I fail—I don't know where I failed. . . .

"I still want to see my son—I still want to see him."

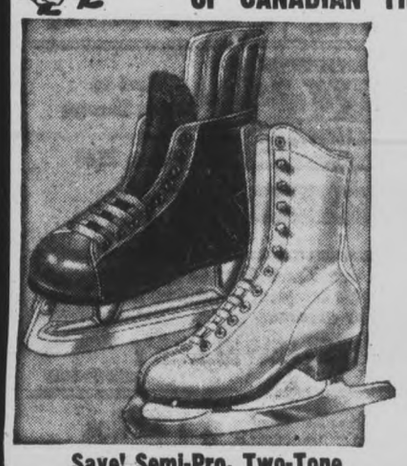
The Next Step...

Just how many Canadians now own Canada Savings Bonds, we do not know . . . but we do know that over a million people in this country have already bought more than a half billion dollars of the Series VIII issue.

For many, this was a first step in the building of an investment portfolio . . . and a better start could not be made. Any investment account needs a firm base of high-grade fixed income securities . . . and for this purpose you can't beat Canada Savings Bonds.

In getting started in successful investing, like getting started in so many other things, the first step is often the most difficult. Many people are so afraid of making a wrong step that they don't step at all. But if you have started your investment program by buying Canada Savings Bonds, you're on your way . . . successfully.

But what do you do next? Well . . . if you are interested in investment . . . would like to go on now that you've started . . . here is a suggestion.



There's a little booklet just put out by the Investment Dealers' Association called "To Help You Share In Canada's Growth." In an easy-to-read, personal way it outlines the fundamentals of investment . . . the difference between investment and speculation . . . the objectives to keep in mind . . . and gives some examples of portfolio planning. We would like you to read this little booklet and shall be glad to send you a copy with our compliments . . . just drop us a line.

After you have read it, you may have some questions . . . or want information . . . or want to talk about what you've read. All right . . . come in to see us and in a personal way we will talk over your next investment step. This is your invitation.

You will be welcome in any of our offices. If you are too far away, perhaps we can talk by mail.

Atomic Stockpile Is Present Day Chamber of Horrors

By DON WHITEHEAD

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has given the world a glimpse into the "dark chamber of horrors" of the atomic age:

A single atomc bomb packing the explosive power of more than 500,000 tons of TNT.

The stockpile of potential destruction is increasing daily. In this stockpile lies what the president called "the awful arithmetic of the atomic bomb."

What does the United States have today in this "chamber of horrors" as compared with 1945 and 1946?

BIKINI IN 1945

A little more than seven years ago I rode in a B-29 which cruised just outside Bikini lagoon in the Pacific. We were waiting to see what happened when the world's fifth atomic bomb exploded beneath the waters of the lagoon.

A fleet of warships and smaller vessels rode at anchor, the "guinea pig" fleet for testing the destructive power of the bomb.

Then came the explosion. A massive column of water, perhaps a half-mile wide, shot into the sky. The lagoon was transformed into a cauldron of flame and smoke and steam. Battleships and cruisers were pitched about like playthings.

The water column rose several thousand feet. Then the lagoon erupted with clouds of steam, vapor and gases as though it were boiling over the fires of hell.

The toll: one-fifth of the fleet of 75 ships either sunk or damaged.

NOW 25 TIMES STRONGER

Yet that sight was produced by the early "Model T" bomb—perhaps the only finished bomb in the American stockpile at that time. Today it is believed the United States has a stockpile of more than 1,000 bombs in the "chamber of horrors." The old model which produced the eruption at Bikini now ranks as a comparatively puny thing. It is staggering to think what an atomic bomb 25 times more powerful would have done inside that lagoon.

But the scientists and engineers have not stopped with the building of the new bombs. They also have been busy perfecting the means of delivering those bombs to their targets by planes, rockets, guided missiles and the whole range of fantastic new weapons.

President Eisenhower said: ". . . atomic weapons have virtually achieved conventional status within our armed services. In the United States services, the army, the navy, the air force and the marine corps are all capable today of putting this weapon to military use."

KNOWN ADVANCES

Secrecy still hides much of the development in the field of rockets and guided missiles. But here are a few of the known developments:

The Navy "Viking"—a rocket that two years ago had reached an altitude of 135 miles and attained a speed of 4,100 miles an hour. An improved version of the Nazi V-2 but vastly more destructive because it can carry an atomic warhead.

The Navy "Regulas"—a fat, stubby, cigar-shaped jet aircraft with swept wings which can be launched from land, ships or specially-equipped submarines. Flies at the speed of sound and can be controlled in any kind of weather by radio from sea, shore or a pilot plane.

Air Force "Bomarc"—a pilotless fighter designed to locate, track and crash into an invading bomber, all automatically. Said to be capable of speeds over 1,500 miles an hour. In addition, the air force has developed guided aircraft rockets.

The Army "Nike"—a fully automatic anti-aircraft weapon equipped with fins to control flight. Specially trained battalions have been organized for launching the Nike against invading aircraft.

The Army "Corporal"—a pencil-shaped missile with a 100-mile range, guided electronically.

Also an artilery piece which fires an atomic shell.

More than $1,000,000,000 is being spent this year to improve weapons in the field of guided missiles.

A few months ago, J. H. Kindleberger, chairman of North American Aviation Corp., said: "Intercontinental missiles are just over the horizon" and they will "deliver accurately to any part of the earth infinite destruction in a few hours."

It was after looking into these depths of potential destruction that President Eisenhower told the UN: "So my country's purpose is to help us move out of this dark chamber of horrors into the light and fine a way by which the minds of men, the hopes of men, the souls of men everywhere, can move forward toward peace and happiness and wll bing."

Man 47, Held After Attack

WALLACEBURG (CP)— Police said Sunday John Furo, 47, of Wallaceburg has been charged with attempted murder following a quarrel Saturday night in which a visitor to his farm was attacked with a hatchet.

Joe Nagy, of Wallaceburg, was reported in serious condition in Chatham hospital with head injuries, body cuts and a broken left leg, as a result of the attack. Police said Navy identified Furo as his assailant.

No reason was given for the quarrel.

Police said Furo surrendered quietly when he was found in his car on a sideroad about two miles from his farm. Furo also gave up a shotgun from the luggage compartment of the car.

Furo was taken to jail at Sarnia and was scheduled to appear in court today.

DONATE BLOOD—Melvin Keupfer, 11-year-old Mennonite boy, is pictured in Victoria Hospital at London, Ont., with some of the bottles which will hold blood donated by farmers of the surrounding Middlesex County area. Melvin, badly burned in a gasoline explosion, received 47 transfusions. The farmers will replace the 100 pints with their own blood out of gratitude for help give them by their Mennonite neighbors when a tornado damaged county farms last spring.

Ask Murdoch Acting Minister

LEAMINGTON (CP)—A delegation of vegetable growers and farmers will meet with Premier Frost this week to ask that William Murdoch, member of the legislature for Essex South, be appointed to aid Agriculture Minister Thomas.

Mr. Thomas has been in hospital for an extended period. A spokesman for the group said Saturday they will not seek his replacement but that Mr. Murdoch be appointed acting minister or parliamentary assistant.

The delegation to approach Mr. Frost will be representative of agriculture throughout Ontario, including men from the Niagara peninsula, Brantford marsh and southwestern Ontario.

The spokesman said the group feels the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Act needs revision.

Saw Meteor Fall Into Plowed Field

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Madeleine Hill of nearby Whyton said Sunday that she and four school children saw a meteor that appeared to fall into a plowed field Friday night near her home.

She said: "It looked like a green aircraft flare that was just petering out."

Airmen at nearby Crumlin airport reported Friday they saw something that looked like a falling star and visitors at an observatory here also noticed the object.

Mr. Hill said he intends to look in the field today for a meteor. meteor.

Governor-General Opens Art Gallery

HAMILTON (CP) — Governor-General Massey Saturday officially opened the Art Gallery of Hamilton.

"Hamilton has lived up to its great reputation for enterprise and teamwork in the way you have raised your funds," he said.

The public was admitted Sunday to the new building, constructed after 39 years of effort on the part of many citizens.

ONE FIRE ALARM

Firemen had only one alarm Sunday. They went to Wonder Bakery, 225 Stewart St, when an automatic alarm came in. They found it was a faulty sprinkler.

FIVE ACCIDENTS

Up to noon time today, continuing snow was responsible for at least five accidents on Peterborough streets. All were of a minor nature and no injuries resulted.

HOSPITAL NEEDS $1,000,000

Oshawa is planning an appeal to its people for $1,000,000 to finance the building of a new wing and additional service buildings of its General Hospital. Ernest Marks is chairman of the hospital board. A canvass will be made early in the new year.

APPEAL DEADLINE

Today is the final day for property-owners to file appeals to the court of revision against their 1953 assessments. Appeals will be accepted through the mail Tuesday provided they are postmarked not later than today. No date has yet been set for the beginning of sittings of the court of revision.

CAR OVERTURNS

A slippery highway is blamed by Kenneth Hall, 22, of RR 3, Peterborough, for an accident today near the Hitching Post on Highway 28 in which his car turned over on its side. Damage to the 1947-model car is $75. Hall was uninjured.

REHABILITATION

The establishment of rehabilitation and educational programs will be the objective of the National TB Association for 1954. Members of the Peterborough and County TB Association attended a provincial meeting in Lindsay recently to discuss this future program. Pre-employment X-rays taken in Peterborough during November totalled 103.

Will It Last?

Prospects of a white Christmas looked good today as large flakes of snow began falling in the early daylight and continued steadily into the afternoon. Many motorists were caught unprepared for slippery pavements but, with memories of a previous short-lived snowfall this year still fresh in their minds, they hesitated to undertake the exasperating task of fitting chains to their automobiles. Merchants and children were happiest of all. Merchants had long been hoping for some typical yuletide weather to stimulate Christmas shopping. The kiddies peppered one another with snowballs and rushed to take toboggans and sleighs out of storage.

Security Rules For GE In U.S. Not In Canada

Security regulations of the Canadian government apply in employment for defence production in Canada, I. F. McRae, vice-president of CGE, said in explaining a difference in policy between GE in the U.S.A., and the Canadian Company.

Operating key atomic installations for the U.S. government, General Electric has announced a rigid new security program for its 250,000 employees. This action followed strictures of Senator J. R. McCarthy that some GE plants have been infiltrated by Communists. The Company has decided to dismiss all admitted Communists, spies and saboteurs refusing to testify under oath before a competent U.S. government authority on such matters.

GE criticized Washington's security program as "not fully adequate in the present condition of world affairs", and called for a procedure under which private business can have government help in identifying suspected subversives.

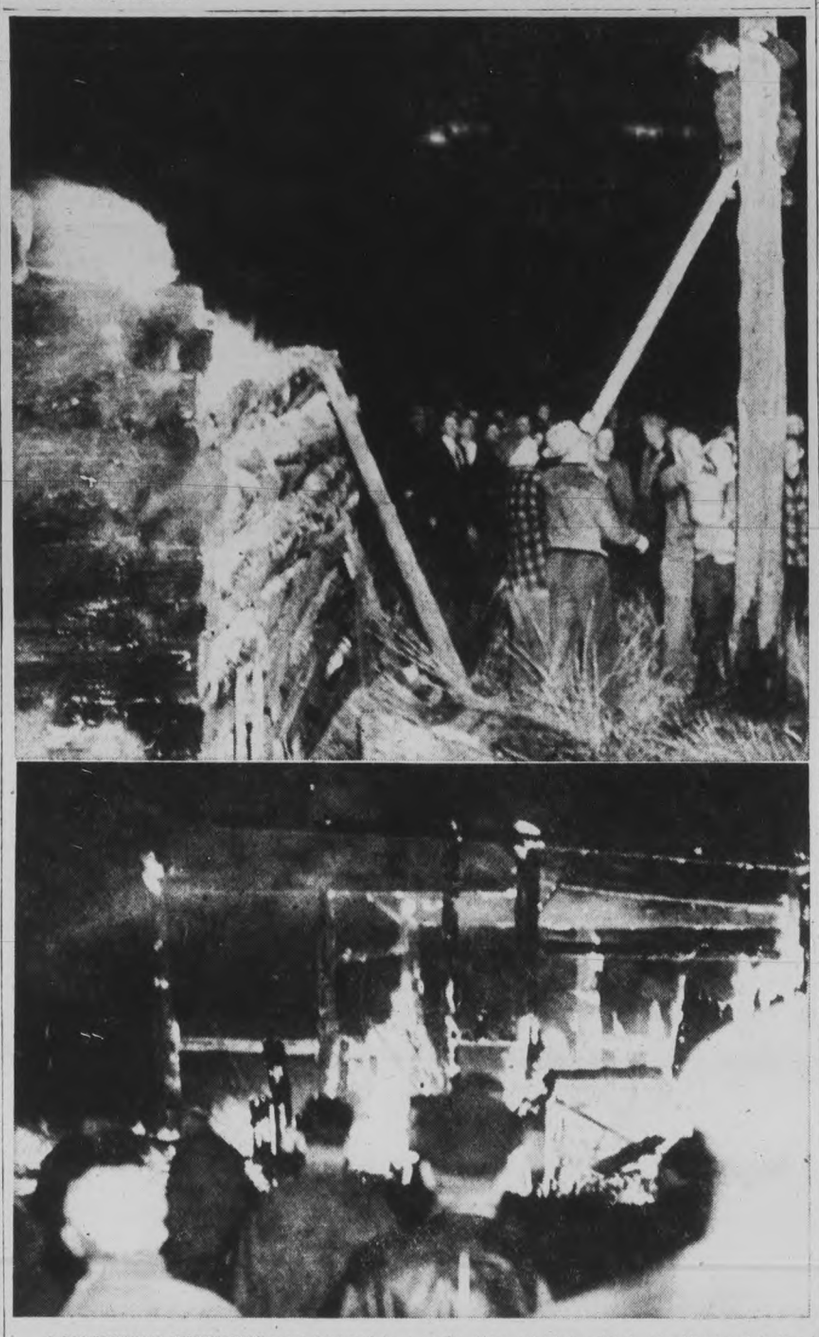
DOES NOT APPLY

Mr. McRae said in Toronto: "Defense production of a classified nature is carried out by Canadian General Electric Co. under the security regulations of the Canadian government. The policy announced by GE in the United States therefore does not apply here."

The kind of government supervision proposed by GE in the U.S. has been in effect in this country, according to Mr. McRae's statement.

A Toronto reference to the McRae explanation says: "While bargaining rights at CGE are held by the Communist-led United Electrical Workers, the loyalty of the vast majority of the company's employees has never been doubted."

Tuggey May Ask For Recount



Fred T. Tuggey, unsuccessful aldermanic candidate in last Monday's civic election, told the Examiner today he had not yet decided whether to ask for a recount of the votes.

In the race for five council seats, Mr. Tuggey ran sixth, coming only 39 votes behind W. Gordon Powell, who was elected. Mr. Powell's official vote was 4,132 while Mr. Tuggey's total was 4,093.

Mr. Tuggey has until Tuesday of next week to ask for a recount. The election act provides that a candidate may apply to the county judge to have the ballots counted again within 14 days after the city clerk has declared the results of the election. City Clerk E. A. Outram made the official declaration last Tuesday.

In order to obtain a recount, Mr. Tuggey would be required to present an affidavit to the county judge setting forth his reasons for the request.

"I haven't made up my mind about a recount yet," Mr. Tuggey said today. "But it was pretty close—only 39 votes. There might well have been some error in the counting."

9 Morals Charges Against Man All Dismissed

John Randolph Brown, 37, an Oshawa steamfitter, was today acquitted on nine morals charges involving a 15-year-old Peterborough girl.

He had elected speedy trial before Judge Kennedy on Nov. 24 and pleaded not guilty to the charges. The three-day trial began November 24.

The nine counts were carnal knowledge, attempted carnal knowledge, and indecent assault over an eight-month period ending January 31, 1953.

Judge Kennedy found that there was not sufficient corroborative evidence to arrant a conviction; though he said he believed Brown had sexual intercourse with the girl and was the father of her child.

A couple of friends of the girl testified they had seen him kissing the girl, that's all.

The attempted carnal knowledge cases were thrown out because it was part of the Crown's case that Brown was the father of the child born to the girl.

The indecent assault charges were thrown out because "consent" is a defence when the girl is more than 14 years of age. And the judge ruled that there had been consent by the girl.

Pedestrian Hit By Truck, Hurt

Earl Davies, 44, of 193 Romaine St., was treated for minor injuries at Civic Hospital Saturday evening after he was struck by a truck at George and King Sts.

He had been crossing from the south to the north side of King on George when he was hit by a westbound truck driven by Hugh Rose, 21, of RR 11, Peterborough.

Taken to the hospital, he received treatment for shock, facial cuts and abrasions to the face and knees.

Two cars colliding Saturday night on Charlotte St., near a road excavation sustained damage totalling $280.

H. G. Meerking, 37, of Port Hope and Earl Carveth, 31, of 374½ George St. N. were driving in opposite directions when they collided near the barricade at the CNR track.

Find Youth Passing Split £1 Bills

SUNDERLAND, Eng. (Reuters) Police and shopkeepers are on the watch for a youth who is doubling his money the wrong way.

He is passing out split £1 bills. One was given at a movie theatre Saturday night, but when the cashier turned it over, she found the reverse side blank.

The youth ran away—to another theatre 100 yards away, where he succeeded in passing a bill.

Splitting a pound bill — printed on slightly heavier paper than the Canadian dollar — is a delicate operation. One way is to soak it in warm water and then split it with a needle.

"Y" Swimmers Place Second

Peterborough YMCA's junior men's team placed second in the relay event at Hamilton's municipal pool, losing to the Hamilton Aquatic Club by less than two seconds. The meet took place Saturday to mark the 21st Annual Christmas Water Carnival of the Hamilton club.

The Peterborough team composed of, Wilton Tranter, David Pryde, Brian Bell, and Terry Northrop, went the distance in one minute and 53 seconds, fastest yet for a local team.

A second Peterborough team composed of Terry Reid, Ross Dobbin, Lorne Hale and Stuart Lamers, placed fourth in a field of six.

David Pryde placed third in the junior men's 100 yard back stroke heat and qualified for the final. Wilton Tranner had the third fastest time in the junior men's free style, but failed to qualify for the final.

In the 14 and under relay race, the Peterborough team, minus its two fastest men, placed third in a field of four. Participants were, Barry Baker, Peter Salonius, Bill Bonney and Donald Wilson.

Spend 10% Less On Armed Forces

PARIS (Reuters)—France will spend 10 per cent less on armed forces and slightly increase civil expenditure under the 1954 budget voted today by the National Assembly.

The assembly approved by 394 votes to 226 a total expenditure of 3.7 trillion francs (about $10,500,000,000) in 1954, about $225,000,000 less than this year's budget.

Military expenditure will drop to 1,100 billion francs (about $3,100,000,000) from 1,233 billion francs (about $3,450,000,000) this year.

Bride Stunned At Decision Of PoW Husband

By FRED SAITO

TOKYO (AP) — A bewildered Japanese wife of one of the 22 American war prisoners who spurned repatriation said tonight she cannot understand why he stays behind.

As she talked she clasped a packet of love letters from Claude Batchelor of Kermit, Texas.

"Claude always wrote he would come back to Tokyo—that he would go dancing again—that we would be the happiest people in the world," said little Kiyoko Araki.

She showed the letters—all written from North Korean prison camps by Batchelor, who was captured by the Reds in 1951.

"There is something wrong—he would never act like that by himself," Kiyoko said.

"They must be forcing him. I know him through and through. He would never stay back unless they made him or had some power over him."

"Just before he was moved to Panmunjom during the post-war prisoner exchange, she said, he wrote "in the same old tone—that he would come back to me."

This last letter she has mislaid, but the earlier ones were tender outpourings of a lonely boy writing to his sweetheart.

The couple, already married in Japanese eyes, had just completed their last forms and were to have registered their marriage with the American consul here when Batchelor went to Korea.

He was captured in the October-November retreat when the 1st U. S. Cavalry Division suffered heavy losses.

Greek Flagship Fouls Rudder

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (Reuters)—The liner Olympia, flagship of the Greek line, fouled her rudder, two miles outside Southampton early today just after leaving for Canada and the United States.

She dropped anchor off the English coast, unable to steer, and divers went out to examine the damage.

The 12,000-ton luxury liner, only eight months old, is carrying about 800 passengers, including Christmas travellers and emigrants.

The accident is reported to have followed an electrical failure which plunged the ship into darkness and affected the steering motor.

Found Guilty Of Abducting Young Girl

Trial On 2 Charges Procedure Wrong Judge Kennedy Says

Fred Blaby, 23, of 554 Romaine St., was today convicted of abducting a 10-year-old Peterborough girl last June 13 without her parents' knowledge or consent. He was remanded for sentence to Dec. 16.

His trial on two charges—one, abduction; the other, indecent assault—was marred by what Judge John de N. Kennedy described as "two mishaps".

First of all, both charges were tried together. The evidence heard applied to both. At the time Judge Kennedy queried the legality of this procedure but both Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, C, and W. J. Arthur Fair, QC, assured him it was all right.

PROCEDURE WRONG

After an independent study of legal authorities Judge Kennedy decided that the procedure was wrong. But by that time the trial was over and judgment was pending.

Secondly, Blaby was found to have never elected speedy trial on the indecent assault count. He had elected trial on the charge of abduction and it was assumed he had done the same on indecent assault.

This, too, was not discovered until after the trial. And it came as a surprise to Judge Kennedy when he prepared to give judgment on Nov. 27. He adjourned the court again to consider whether or not the remaining charge of abduction could be considered, and whether Blaby's case had been prejudiced.

Today Judge Kennedy ruled that Blaby's had been legally tried on the abduction charge; the indecent assault charge was a nullity because the accused man had never elected the speedy trial he finally got.

Referring to the "two mishaps", Judge Kennedy said: "In mentioning them I don't want counsel to feel that I am being critical. It could happen in any court as busy as the Peterborough county court."

He then gave his reasons for judgment in finding Blaby guilty of abducting the young school girl and keeping her against her will in his car all night.

WILL APPEAL

Mr. Fair immediately said he would appeal the conviction. He asked Judge Kennedy for immediate sentence so he could get the appeal underway and so his client, Blaby, would not have to go to jail and be kept in a state of tension about the possible sentence.

"There's no suggestion that this man is a sex fiend or pervert," said Mr. Fair. He added that Blaby had been "tried and convicted by the newspaper".

Judge Kennedy demurred at giving sentence right off. He wanted a couple of days to think it over.

"I take the view that sentencing is a very serious matter," said the judge. "I want to give this matter some thought."

Things were further complicated, if this was possible, when Crown Attorney Bradshaw said that he could not consent to a suspended sentence.

Blaby was convicted of picking up the schoolgirl before dark one Saturday evening when he drove up in his car to the Chamberlain St.-Monaghan Rd. intersection. He then drove out onto a concession road in North Monaghan township after making one stop for gasoline.

ASKED TO GO HOME

The girl repeatedly asked to go home and, according to her testimony, was frequently in tears. When he attempted to turn around on the muddy road his car became stuck. The two of them spent the night together in the car and walked back to Peterborough the next day along CNR railway tracks.

Blady did not testify and no witnesses were called for his defence.

In a statement admitted as evidence, taken by detectives of the Peterborough police force, Blaby said he had been drinking beer in the afternoon. He claimed he did not remember picking up the girl but found her next day beside him in the car.

"I don't know if I touched this little girl or not," he said.

Judge Kennedy said their was no evidence that Blaby was so drunk as to be incapable of forming intent.

Mr. Fair said he would base his appeal on the grounds that there was no intent to deprive the parents of their child.

Christmas Cheer

A preview of the coming Christmas season, nine men appeared in magistrate's court this morning where they were charged with being intoxicated over the weekend. Additionally, one youth was charged with obtaining liquor while under 21, another with impaired driving and a third with drunk driving.

Capacity Crowd Enjoys Carols

Bad weather or not, citizens of Peterborough still love to sing the Christmas carols with accompaniment by the Salvation Army Band.

A near capacity crowd was in the Collegiate auditorium Sunday evening for the annual carol singsong arranged by the Friday Night Club of the YMCA as a fund-raising project for their world service work.

Song leader Quirt McKinney was again on hand to lead the singing, as he has done for many years past, and Mr. and Mrs. Charlton McBride again assisted by projecting illustrated slides with words of the carols on the screen. They, like the band, have become invaluable in making this popular service so enjoyable.

The band played classical selections between groups of carols, and the Salvation Army male voice party contributed two selections. Appreciation of their presentations was so loud and prolonged that both bandsmen and songsters decided to break the Army rule and comply with encores.

Bandmaster Gerald Routley led the band in the special selections and in the carols, and the songsters were led by Ben Smith with Mrs. Smith at the piano.

President Fred Huffman opened the program and members of the club acted as ushers and took up the collection. An explanation of the work that the money will be used for was made by Mr. McKinney when the expected speaker, Alderman J. A. Dewart, chairman of the World Service committee of the YMCA, failed to appear.

Benediction was said at the close by Major Horace Roberts of the Salvation Army.

To Board Up Old Hospital, Protect Panes

Young Vandals Blamed For Breaking 42 Window Panes

Persistent vandalism resulting in the breaking of several windows at the Queen Mary isolation hospital has led city council to have the windows boarded up with plywood. Tenders for the work will be called shortly.

Deputy City Clerk Murray Thomas, who inspected the building, found 42 windows had been broken. The fact that some second-storey windows had been broken indicated that the damage was the result of stone-throwing, probably by boys.

STORMS TOO

Most of the windows are fitted with storm sashes and in some cases only these have been broken; but in other cases, both the storm and permanent windows were broken, Mr. Thomas reported.

Although no other vandalism was apparent, there was evidence that the building had been entered, probably by children, because the fire hose had been unrolled and left lying around the floor.

The damage has occurred since July, City Clerk E. A. Outram stated. An investigation was made then and few if any windows were broken at the time. Efforts of city police to apprehend whoever caused the damage were said to be of no avail.

New Front Church Dedicated In Ceremony In Omemee

OMEMEE (ENS) Trinity United church was filled beyond seating capacity Sunday morning on the occasion of the re-opening following renovations and the building of a new entrance and front to the church.

The service was conducted by the pastor the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, with a former pastor, the Rev. F. G. McTavish of Bradford as guest speaker.

The new front on the building was dedicated by Mr. Zufelt, as was also a new communion table in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Connell and given by their son Irvine and daughter Mrs. Orril Grandy; and a pair of lantern lights in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Balfour donated by their daughter Mrs. J. Rehill. The Rev. E. W. Rowland of Peterborough was to have been present to perform that ceremony but was taken ill. Mr. Rowland was born in the village and received his recommendation for the ministry from the Omemee church. Returning as its pastor in 1923, he was here when church union was consummated in 1925. Mr. Rowland, Mr. McTavish, and Rev. J. F. Chapman who is retired in Toronto and in failing health are the only former ministers of the congregation now living.

Anthems sung by the choir were: "With a Voice of Singing" by Shaw, and Fletcher's "I Love Thy Kingdom Lord". Soloists were: in the morning—Mrs. Donald Palmer of Highland Creek and in the evening—Mrs. Dorothy Connell and Mr. Sherman Harrison.

The Omemee church was formerly Wesleyian Methodist and it dates back to 1843. Available records begin with 1854, but William Wood, who died in 1868, was then recorded as having served on the quarterly board for a quarter of a century. In 1854 Rev. J. Musgrove was circuit superintendent and Rev. L. Vanderburgh his associate. Stewards appointed that year were Messrs. William Cottingham, William Beatty, Thomas Matchett, William Guthrie, Isaac W. Reid, Robert Jones and Thomas Trotter and class leaders Messrs. William Wood, John McNealy, John Switzer, John Morgan, Isaac Rea, Henry Sherin and Robert Jones.

The minister that year was allowed: For table expenses, £35; wood, £5; horse feed, £10; moving expenses, £3, 10s; travelling, £1; rent, £3, 10s; and for quarterage, £50. Total, £108.

Until 1857 the name of the village was Metcalf. On that date the Metcalf circuit became known as the Omemee circuit. In 1858 there is reference to a village newspaper, The Omemee Warder.

The present church building was erected in 1876 by contractor John Kincaid, who lived in the house now occupied by Austin Hayes. The building committee was Messrs. William Beatty, Samuel Magee, Thomas Matchett, W. Balfour, Samuel English, C. Laidley and Dr. Annis.

There were in early days two other branches of the Methodist church in Omemee. The Methodist Episcopal church held services in the second flat of the house afterwards occupied by the late T. C. Ivory. The church was entered by an outside stair the lower flat being used for a parsonage. The new Connexion Methodist church building was in the neighborhood of the present Grange Hall, and the parsonage was the cottage now occupied by Mrs. Geo. Fee. After their union with the Wesleyans in 1876 the church was torn down.

The Omemee circuit was large in the early days. At the time the new church was built, outside appointments included Middle Road, Bethel, Third Line, Orange Line, Lebanon, Ops and Mount Horeb. The circuit superintendent, the Rev. R. Godfry, was assisted by the Rev. J. A. McIntyre and several local preachers.

In 1878 there were eleven local preachers and soon after, John Morgan and David Balfour entered the ministry. In 1895 the circuit was divided into several smaller ones and Omemee and Lebanon became a circuit. In 1921 Lebanon was closed and the membership transferred to Omemee. Bethel was then taken on to form the existing Omemee-Bethel charge.

ENTERED MINISTRY

The turn of the century saw several young men entering the ministry; in 1897 Walter Nugent; 1898, Wesdey Morgan; 1901, Edward Rowland; 1903, George McQuade; 1909, Harry Wilkinson; 1910, Wm. Smith; 1913, Dewey Stinson. In the same period of years commencing study for the ministry from the Omemee Presbyerian church were P. B. Thornton and Cecil Best, who afterwards entered the United church. Then after 40 years, during which there were two world wars, the Omemee church produced a candidate for the ministry, Donald Raffan.

Young people's work has flourished during the pastorate of Mr. Zufelt who, following the death of the Rev. R. M. Patterson, commenced supplying in January, 1946, little more than a month after his return from overseas, where he had served as chaplain to the First Anti-Tank Regiment of the First Canadian Division and later to the Second Canadian Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment. Before the end of the Conference year he accepted an invitation to become pastor and has served since.

ON SAME SITE

The first church was on the same site, close to the road and a little farther east than the present one. Beside it was an old graveyard. It is told that at some burials the water collected so in the graves that the rough boxes had to be weighted to sink them. When Emily cemetery was established the remains were moved to it. The old building was bought by Wm. Bradburn and used for a concert hall. Later it was owned by T. C. Ivory until 1910, when Lady Eaton bought up all the former Bradburn property for the erection of the John McCrea Memorial parsonage. Incidentally John Roy Zufelt, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Zufelt, is the only child who was born while its parents occupied that parsonage.

In 1936 because of a noticeable sagging of the north-east corner of the church, the officials had it inspected. A new front was considered and estimates submitted. But other authorities pronounced it safe for some years, and alterations were postponed. Four years later they followed the advice of experts who blamed the weight of the tower for the trouble. Besides strengthening the northeast foundation, they removed the spire, took the top off the tower and finished it with parapets.

Now the tower has been completely removed, foundations strengthened and a new front added.

SUNDAY WAS A VERY IMPORTANT occasion in the life of the Omemee United Church when a new entrance and front to the building was dedicated as well as a new communion table and several lights. Above is the new entrance to the church with a part of the congregation standing outside, while at the left are the two ministers, who took part in the service, the Rev. F. G. McTavish, of Bradford, a former minister of the congregation, who preached, and the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, the present minister, who conducted the dedication ceremonies. At the right is Lady Eaton, of Toronto, who was present, and who has down through the years made numerous gifts to the church of her girlhood.

McGinness Plant Now Vacant Ready Factory

Peterborough's long lack of vacant factory floor space has been temporarily supplied by a building of 20,000 sq. ft. on McDonnel St.

In moving out a few days ago, H. B. McGinness Co. left a fire in their furnaces. Even to the detail, everything is comfortably supplied for anyone to take over and set up in productions. The factory has a railway siding, and generally a good location.

Mr. McGinness said today that he had "a number of enquiries from people who said they were interested", but nothing has come of them so far.

TWO MONTHS LATE

The change from the old nest to the new plant on Lansdowne St. west dates definitely from Monday, December 7, and occupancy was two months behind schedule, caused by delays in deliveries of some building materials. Operations have been begun, but the production line will hardly be in full efficiency until the end of the year.

Jigs, dies and other production equipment are being arranged since the transfer, and new models of trailers will be rolling early in January.

Of fresh interest to the industrial committee of the city council is the McDonnel St. building which has now become available for sale, rent, use.

French Railroad Deficit Of $457,143,300

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP) — Pity the poor French Railroad and the taxpayer who has to support it.

The state-owned system's deficit next year will be a record 160,000,000,000 francs ($457,143,00). By comparison, the French navy next year will spend about 169,000,000,000 francs ($482,857,580).

The railroad is paying more pensioners than workers. The pension roll covers about 381,000. The list of active permanent workers is about 370,000.

Strangely, efficiency has contributed to the troubles. Since 1938, traffic has gone up by about 50 per cent and increased productivity has permitted elimination of about 25 per cent of the workers. But the employees declared surplus couldn't be fired.

The railway is stuck with a pension system that was set up in 1909. Engineers and firemen may retire at the age of 50, others at 55, with pensions that go up to 70 per cent of salary.

The state took over this system when it nationalized the railroads, which were mostly losing money, in 1938.

PENSIONS PAID LONGER

Since 1909, the life expectancy has gone up sharply so that the railroad must pay pensions for a longer time. Efforts to raise the retirement age always have been rebuffed. That was the big issue in the strikes which tied up France last August.

The government helps to keep the deficit big. The National Assembly has passed a law that French salaried workers get a 30-per-cent reduction in rail fares on their annual holiday. Disabled war veterans get reductions of 30 to 75 per cent. Members of large families get reductions, too.

In spite of all its troubles, the railway management can point to technical progress. The Paris-Lyon line's time has been cut by one-third from the pre-war figure, in spite of a 50-per-cent jump in traffic. The number of diesel and electric locomotives has been built up.

On-time arrivals run about 96 per cent.

70,000 On Waiting List Of Ohio Gas Utility

By WALTER BUSSEWITZ

NEW YORK (AP) — One Ohio gas utility reports it has a waiting list of 70,000 householders for natural gas heating. In Chicago, more than 135,000 names are on file from consumers who want to heat with natural gas. A Brooklyn, N.Y., utility says it started the year with 30,000 gas heating customers, picked up 10,000 in 10 months and now is aiming at adding 50,000 more in the next 10 years.

Natural gas, one of the fastest growing businesses since the end of the war, is still expanding at a breath-taking pace.

The gas industry has been adding about 1,000,000 new customers a year and now serves almost 27,000,000 homes. Of that figure, 12,900,000 customers now use gas for home heating, an increase of 100 per cent in less than five years.

House heating greatest sudden sharp, high peaks in the use of gas. One company uses 15 times as much on a zero day as on a summer day.

STORAGE RESERVOIRS

As one means of meeting this problem, the gas companies have invested millions of dollars to develop underground storage facilities in depleted and partially depleted gas fields in the northern states. Gas is piped into these fields during the summer and taken out in winter.

But this presents only a partial answer to the problem of supplying enough gas to meet heating requirements. More than $650,000,000 has been spent this year to extend and expand the 350,000 miles of gas pipeline in existence. There already is enough natural gas pipeline now buried in U.S. soil to encircle the globe 14 times.

American Natural Gas Co., which serves the Detroit and Milwaukee areas, plans a $130,000,000 pipe-line from Louisiana to Michigan. The company completed a similar pipe-line from Louisiana to Detroit four years ago, but demand outstripped the supply.

American natural gas subsidiaries in Detroit and Milwaukee have been forced to put sharp limits on the addition of gas-heating customers and large volume industrial loads until the supply is increased.

Firemen Douse Fire In Churchill's Barn

WESTERHAM, Kent (Reuters)—Firemen battled for an hour Sunday night and successfully doused a blaze in a hay barn near here.

Just before they left the scene, a station wagon drove up and out stepped the farm's owner, a chunky, cigar-chewing figure in heavy overcoat and grey homburg hat.

"You have done a fine job," said Sir Winston Churchill to the firemen. "Thank you."

During the fire-fighting operation, the prime minister's daughter, Mrs. Christopher Soames, came over from her farm home nearby and gave the firemen a lunch of hot soup, sandwiches and tea.

See Gussy's Influence At Cup Matches

MELBOURNE (AP) — Gorgeous Gussy Moran's influence will be seen at the Davis Cup challenge round matches at Kooyong Tennis Club here Dec. 28-30.

The 150 school usherettes will wear "Gussy panties" trimmed with lace beneath brief white-pleated skirts, reminiscent of the costume with which Miss Moran shocked the tennis world at Wimbledon in 1950.

Dr. E. W. Young Former Minister St. Andrew's Dies

The funeral was held this afternoon in Ottawa United Church of the Rev. E. W. Young, DD, a former minister of St. Andrew's United Church, Peterborough. Dr. Young died in hospital on Friday in Windsor following a short illness. He was 74.

REV. E. W. YOUNG, DD

Dr. Young was minister of St. Andrew's during the first years of the Second World War, leaving here for Brantford where he served until three and a half years ago when he went to Victoria United Church, Windsor.

The funeral service was in charge of the Rev. G. A. Wishart, the Rev. C. L. Lewis and the Rev. Harry Mick and burial was in Windsor Grove cemetery.

During Dr. Young's ministry in Peterborough, he was a frequent contributor to the Examiner. He served as chairman of the Peterborough Presbytery.

BORN IN IRELAND

Born in Sligo, Ireland, he came to Canada some 25 years ago. He came to Windsor from Brantford to take over the pastorate of Victoria United Church when the people of the church were unable to secure a minister. Dr. Young also held a pastorate in Centennial United Church, London.

A graduate of Queen's University, Belfast, Ireland, he also received his MA in Ireland. He studied at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., where he obtained his BD, and the United Theological College, where he received his Doctor of Divinity degree, in Montreal in 1936.

Surviving besides his wife, Sara Louise Musgrave Young, are three sons, Percival M. Young, BA, MD, of Sturgeon Falls, Ont., Rev. Arthur E. Young, of Pickering, Ont., and Alexander T. M. Young, of St. Catharines, Ont.; one daughter, Mrs. Fred A. Burr (Dorothy), of Windsor, and eight grandchildren.

10 Million Visitors Tour Historic Sites At Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Where thousands of soldiers once fought for control of the Niagara frontier, millions of tourists now throng the biggest maintained park in Canada.

Canadian and United States visitors—and many from abroad—came in record numbers this year to explore the forts used in the war of 1812, and to review the beauty spots of the Niagara parks commission's 35-mile stretch of parkland along the Niagara river.

More than 10,000,000 persons visited the parks in 1953. Last year, visitors numbered 8,000,00.

The commission's annual report said today that almost 2,000,000 automobiles, Canadian and American, were counted in Queen Victoria Park overlooking Niagara Falls during the year.

HISTORIC BATTLEGROUNDS

Old Fort George at Niagara-on-the Lake, destroyed in the war of 1812 but since rebuilt, attracted 48,673 visitors. Old Fort Erie drew 37,000. Thousands of school children saw the old battlegrounds and useums on conducted tours.

At Queenston Heights, where Gen. Sir Isaac Brock was killed in battle, 57,750 persons climbed the long spiral staircase to the top of his 185-foot monuinent.

A public 18-hole golf course on the scenic Niagara boulevard attracted 18,000 persons during the year.

Commission chairman Charles Daley, also Ontario labor minister, said the most popular attractions of the parks system are the scenic tunnel and observation plaza at the Canadian, or horseshoe, falls. The tunnel winds 140 feet below the lip of the river gorge.

During the year some 262,590 persons stood on the plaza to watch the masses of water rushing down from the falls.

Mr. Daley said the commission will continue its policy of "preservation, restoration and beautification" of the 3,000 acres of park land. Estimated value of the park lands now is $7,000,000.

Hillary Back In Himalayas Between April And June

By J. C. GRAHAM

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (CP) — Everest conqueror Sir Edmund Hillary will be back in the Himalayas between April and June of 1954 leading a New Zealand expedition.

Originally it was planned to climb Mount Makalu (27,790 feet) the world's fourth highest peak, but a United States party has obtained prior permission to attempt the climb.

The New Zealanders then decided to explore Barun valley, one of the wildest and most spectacular regions in the world, which has been visited by only four Europeans. They are Hillary himself, George Lowe and Charles Evans, members of the recent successful Everest party, and Eric Shipton, leader of the 1952 British Himalayan team. These four forced a passage back to India through the Barun valley in 1952.

ATTACK SEVERAL PEAKS

It is believed that Hillary plans to attack several unclimbed and almost unknown peaks of more than 20,000 feet which were sighted by the party during the previous visit. Much of the valley is still unexplored.

Lowe, a fellow New Zealander, and Evans, an English doctor, have joined the expedition which will include six other New Zealanders and an Englishman not yet selected.

OBITUARY

ALEX C. BOYD

A private ambulance operator in Peterborough since September of this year, Alex C. Boyd of Chemong Rd., died in hospital today following a short illness. He was born in Ayrshire, Scotland, 62 years ago and has been in Canada for a number of years.

Mr. Boyd came from Toronto to Oshawa in 1949 and started an ambulance service which he continued to operate until March 1953, when a municipal ambulance service was established.

He went from Oshawa to Etibocke and, in September, came to Peterborough where he was engaged in the same business. Mr. Boyd was a veteran of both World Wars and a former member of the Canadian Legion. He attended the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Boyd leaves his mother, in Toronto, and his wife, the former Doris Alexander. There are two daughters, Mrs. James Woodward (Grace of this city and Mrs. Fleming (Rose) of Niagara Falls and two brothers, James of Curtice, Ont., and Andrew of Toronto.

Funeral arrangements are to be announced later.

Council Passes High School Debentures

MILLBROOK (ENS)—The village council decided to give consent to the united counties of Northumberland and Durham's request to authorize the issue of debentures for $610,000 to build a new high school in Port Hope and $430,000 to build an addition to Bowmanville High School.

Letters were received from Dr. M. E. Hobbs asking that someone else be appointed to serve the remainder of his terms, both on the local public school board and the Durham county High School board. Dr. Hobbs said he found it necessary to tender his resignation because he had been asked to accept a position on the executive of the Ontario Medical Association and the time at his disposal would not allow him to carry on with these appointments.

He has been on the Durham county District High School board since its formation in January, 1951. Before that he served on the local board which then looked after both public and high schools. For a number of years he was chairman of that board.

The clerk was asked to send Dr. Hobbs a letter of appreciation for his fine service and to express regret that at the present time he was not able to continue this work.

A cheque for $52.65 was received from the department of municipal affairs, the balance of the one-mill subsidy, amounting in all to $277.27, on the home for the aged, fire and police protection, children's protection act and other items.

NEW COMMISSION

Resignations were received from G. F. Harrington and Stewart Snelgrove, hydro commissioners. In the New Year, a new utilities commission of four members, handling both hydro and water, will be formed. The members for this commission will be elected on December 18.

The coal shed situated on CNR lands and assessed to Burton Russell at $100 had been torn down in December, 1952, so taxes assessed to it for 1953 of $7.85 were deleted from the tax roll.

The Rev. L. R. Pocock was appointed to the library board.

The clerk was asked to send a letter of thanks to the Lady Lions club for the gift and installation of new velour stage curtains for the auditorium of the town hall.

Accounts totalling $9,582.20 were ordered paid. Among the items were $1,543, balance of 1953 grant to the public school; united counties' levy of $3,371.08; firemen's grant of $255; Farrell Construction Company, $768.50 for culvert; balance to Millbrook public library, $73; second instalmeent to Durham District High School board, $1,489.77; Bank of Toronto school debenture, $530; arena debenture, $261.75.

Belgian Girl Seeks Canadian Ship Job

OOSTENDE, Belgium (Reuters) Liliane Soudemonte, 23, the Belgian girl who masquereded as a seaman to get to Canada, was looking for a job—on a Canadian ship.

She sent a job-hunting letter to Senator R. B. Horner (PC—Saskatchewan) saying that her heart's desire is to "make the sea my career."

Liliane's ingenuity in getting across the Atlantic to Canada so moved Senator Horner that he offered to pay her passage if she wanted to try again, as a passenger.

Canadian immigration officials sent her home to Belgium because she was using her father's passport, with her own picture pasted in where his should have been.

Charge Laborer With Murder

VANCOUVER (CP) — William Wakefield Gash, 19-year-old laborer was charged with murder Saturday night in the "case of the corpse on the 13th fairway."

Police said he was arrested at Chilliwack, 40 miles east of here, but gave no details of his capture.

Gash was taken into custody by detectives investigating the slaying Friday of Frank Pitsch, 45-year-old "ball-shagger" at fashionable Langara golf course.

Pitsch's body was found just past the 13th tee. The head had been battered with what an autopsy showed had been a club or block of wood.

The victim had been a familiar figure around the course for three years, making a meagre living by finding lost golf balls, repainting and selling them.

Fenella WI Donates Money To Three Funds

FENELLA (ENS) — Fenella Women's Institute met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Marcus Lonsberry with 23 members and six visitors present.

Ten dollars was donated to the Children's Aid Society of our counties; $5 to the TB fund; $15 for "Care" parcels for Korea.

Guest speaker the Rev. J. R. Wheeler, Roseneath, spoke on "Neighbors." Mrs. Gordon Jewell thanked Mr. Wheeler.

It was decided to have a card party in the hall the Wednesday between Christmas and New Years.

It was decided to remember some shut-ins this Christmas.

Program conveners Mrs. B. McDonald and Miss Ruby Adams called on the following program: Readings by Mrs. Carl McNaughton and Mrs. Jim Curtis; contests by Mrs. Clifton Rogers and Mrs. Heber Adams. An exchange of Christmas gifts followed.

Mrs. Hugh Sherwin thanked the hostess.

Lunch was served by the hostess and her daughter, Mrs. Everett Hie, Bailieboro. The January meeting is to be held in the hall with Mrs. Tom Madge hostess.

She is survived by two sons, Aubrey, member of Parliament for Yukon-Mackenzie, and George, of Carcross, Y.T.

B.C. Liberal Leader Arrested For Drinking

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arthur Laing, leader of the British Columbia Liberal party, was arrested here Saturday night and charged with being intoxicated in a public place.

Police said Laing was charged after an automobile in which he was riding was stopped by traffic officers. He is to appear in court Tuesday.

Chinese Building Wall On Shore Opposite Formosa

By FRED SPARKS
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

HONG KONG—(NEA)—A new Chinese Wall has been under construction along the mainland facing Formosa since the Korean truce.

Large coastal sections—in spots 100 miles deep—have been cleared of civilians and declared a Zone of Security.

The Communists do not expect a full scale Nationalist invasion. They know Gen. Chiang Kai-shek hasn't yet enough military muscle to bull his way into Peiping.

But ugly raids have lost the Communists more face than a massage with broken glass. Diplomats who study such things tell me:

"If the Nationalists could seize and hold a section for three or four months, they'd win millions to their cause."

These diplomats represent lands (not America) that recognize Mao. They shuttle in and out of Red China and insist that 80 per cent are fed up with Communism.

The captive people would not aid the invaders until there seemed a slight hope—not because they love Formosa more but because they've learned to love Communism less. They're pro-Formosa to the extent that they're pro-American—which is plenty.

RAIDED ISLAND

Last July, Nationalists hit Tungshan, a busy island off the mainland south of Amoy. In this raid (hardly reported before) several hundred parachutists dropped at dawn and engaged the garrison.

But the main body of 7,000 shipborne Nationalists were stalled 12 hours by tricky tides. A strong mobile Red group ferried over and slaughtered the 'chutists.

Despite this, the main body fought ashore and stayed 48 hours. They destroyed radio stations, railroads, shipyards and killed piles of Communists. They themselves suffered very high casualties.

Wounded Reds were brought into Amoy and word-of-mouth broke censorship to spread this proof that Formosa was still a threat—and a hope.

Military attaches say the Nationalists were efficient and courageous, two things often lacking in former efforts. But at best Formosa could hurl 12 divisions (of 12,000 each) into China proper.

In the Zone of Security, thousands of coolies are pouring cement pillboxes on flat coastal strips, recalling Hitler's West Wall.

Many Chinese Wall coolies are slave laborers, a particular employment feature of Communist paradise states. They're classified "reactionaries" because their families were in trade or couldn't swallow Karl Marx on an empty stomach.

Mountainous coastal regions are being pockmarked with deep bunkers and the Red Chinese are beating their Korean records as human moles. They are building with an eye on growing Nationalist sea and air vigour.

There are strong mobile groups behind the coast in the Zone of Security ready to race to troubled spots — like Tungshan Island — with fire department dispatch.

The atmosphere in the Zone of Security resembles Britain's Dover coast in 1940 when the Wehrmacht was expected to drop in for conquest.

Road signs have been removed, entire farm populations have been shifted outside the zone, army units work the rice paddies, and anything that moves after the dusk curfew will be buried at first light.

The spies Peiping keeps on Formosa — complete with excellent radios—flash news of new arrivals of potent American weapons, and of more young Chinese escaping from the mainland to join the Nationalist army.

Every regiment digging in along the coast (and that includes some of the fittest who served in Korea) is one less regiment available for possible pressure against Indo-China or Burma, two beauty spots Communist "tourists" want to visit.

After her awful material losses in Korea, Red China is like a boxer clouted to the canvas who wants to take advantage of the full nine-count before getting up again.

It's been a long time since the chest-beaters promised invasion to cream Formosa. The junks they assembled around the Pearl River to transport Communist shock troops are back fishing the China Seas and the Straits of Formosa.

The Reds fear that if they tackled Formosa they'd tangle with the U.S. Seventh Fleet, which would be like a swimmer attacking a giant octopus underwater with a nail file.

The Salvation Army Band, under Bandmaster Gerald Routley, spent an hour at the Anson House on Sunday afternoon playing the favorite Christmas carols. In the evening, following services at the Temple, they played for a two hour program in the PCVS auditorium for a capacity audience, accompanying for a carol sing-song led by Mr. Quirt McKinney and entertaining with classical band numbers and songs by the male voice party.

❖ ❖ ❖

Little Women's Club opened their meeting at the YWCA Saturday afternoon with games and later there was entertainment provided by Ann Foster, ballet dancer, and songs by Tina Poole, Marlyn Monk and Rosemary Hayward. A pantomime quizz was enjoyed and then the girls exchanged Christmas gifts and had lunch. Tina Poole was elected secretary.

❖ ❖ ❖

Residents of the Anson House had quite an entertaining evening on Saturday. They were first entertained by members of the Police Athletic Association of Peterborough with musical selections and solos, and then by the Commercial Travellers Association members who presented a fashion show depicting the coming styles for women at the beach, in college, at school and at the wedding.

The 20 Plus Club's weekly dance at the YWCA Saturday evening was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gilmore and more than 50 young people enjoyed the program. Prize dances were won by Miss Jean McIntyre and Burritt Mann, Miss Marilyn Bowles and Bill Porter and Miss Ruby Leach and Harry Clark. The annual Christmas party will be this Saturday evening and the admission charge has been increased to 75c for this occasion, instead of the usual practice of having each guest bring a toy, the extra 35c to go into a fund for some form of aid to Miss Marion Foster in her Y work in Suriname.

Fallen-Shaughnessy

The marriage was solemnized in Peterborough on November 25 of Norma Shaughnessy, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester S. Shaughnessy, to Mr. James Fallen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon J. Fallen, all of Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. Fallen are spending their honeymoon in Washington, D.C. and Miami, Florida.

Numerous Prizes Won At YPCA Christmas Ball

About 50 guests enjoyed the Christmas Ball of the Young Progressive Conservative Association on Saturday evening at the Colonial Room.

Social convener Mrs. William Phillips was in charge of the arrangements, assisted by Miss Hope Douglas, and the program including dancing, refreshments and a buffet supper, was handled by Miss Joan Curtis and William Nicholls.

There were door prizes, dance prizes and draw prizes to keep everyone in happy anticipation throughout the evening. The door prizes were boxes of chocolates and were won by Mrs. Paul Thompson, William Phillips and Henry Batten.

Spot dances were won by Miss Marilyn Hamilton and Bob Thain, Miss Joan Krogh and Roy Armstrong, Miss Shirley Anderson and Roy Armstrong again, and Mrs. Phillips and Frank Foster. Elimination dances were won by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Holt, Miss Hope Douglas and Gord Lupton and Miss Joan Krogh and Bud Jensen.

Draw prizes were an eletcric kettle, won by Mrs. Jim Lillico, a Christmas cake, won by Mrs. John Foote, Christmas tree lights, won by Mr. Jack Smith, and a cigarette case won by H. Dafoe.

Holly Tea Held By IODE Chapter With Success

A crowd of more than 200 attended the Holly Tea held on Saturday afaternoon by the girls of Edith Carleton Chapter, IODE.

Very happy with the splendid success of this annual event are the conveners, regent Mrs. D. G. Donaldson and Miss Beverley Martyn, who received the guests to the YWCA Green Room, assisted by Miss Mary Medd, regent of the Municipal Chapter of Peterborough.

Tea table decorations were in silver and blue, highlighted with white candles, and the tea room was enhanced with silver boughs and blue candles. Filling the tea cups were Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, Mrs. Meyer Cherney, Miss Mary McRae of Toronto, a past regent of the chapter, and Mrs. W. Nelson.

Tea arrangements were in charge of Miss Wanda Deyell, assisted by Mrs. C. Stevenson, Miss Beverley Goodman, Mrs. William Bunker and Mrs. "Bunny" Shaw of Omemee.

The traditional red and green decorations and lighted Christmas trees were in the bazaar room. Baked goods and sewing were for sale and "touch and take" parcels were on the Christmas tree. Mrs. David Addyman and Mrs. Roy Mounce were in charge assisted by Miss Joyce Campbell, Miss Rosemary Parker, Mrs. Peter Brokenshire, and Miss Diane Jordan.

Mrs. Donald Barrett sold tickets on the steam iron which is to be drawn for at the chapter Christmas party this Wednesday evening.

A very attractive display of locally-made cosmetics drew considerable attention, and guests took the opportunity to purchase distinctive Christmas gifts or gift certificates for their friends, while having the expert in charge give them a skin analysis to aid in choosing the proper skin care in future.

A baby-sitting service was provided for guests by Mrs. John Bowes and Mrs. Keith Alton.

Ticket convener Miss Edith Miller attended the door.

RANDY ROBERT MILLER, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Miller Jr., of 504 Stewart St., was christened on Sunday afternoon at All Saints' Anglican Church in the presence of his great grandmother and grandmother of the maternal side, as well as other friends and relatives. He was wearing a hand-made gown in which his paternal great-great-grandmother was first christened, followed by the children in successive generations. The four generations were pictured at the reception following the ceremony on Sunday, and are (left to right) Mrs. A. C. Simmons, great grandmother, Mrs. R. J. Miller Jr., and Randy, and Mrs. E. K. Smart, grandmother.

First Party Gown Requires Careful Shopping

That wonderful time of gaiety, of good cheer, and partying is here. And for some of you teenagers, this year it means the buying of your first party gown.

Whether it's waltz length or floor sweeping, you want it to be the most beautiful thing you could possibly wear. You will never forget it, no matter how many wonderful creations take its place through the years. So give your selection serious thought.

TAKE SELF INVENTORY

Remember, no matter how lovely the gown is itself, it will be a poor investment if it is not becoming to you in either line or color.

Before setting out on your shopping expedition, consider your weight, height and complexion. Is your figure just right for your age? Or do you still have a little baby fat? Perhaps you have added inches, but too few pounds.

While you may admire strapless or off-shoulder gowns, they are not for you if you have a weight-problem. Soft material framing your shoulders will tone down bony angles and a tiny jacket topping the gown will play down the baby fat.

ADD TO LOVELINESS

If you haven't grown much yet, don't select a dress you will be lost in. Leave the tremendously bouffant skirts to the girls who can look good in them. After all, you want a gown that will add to your loveliness; you don't want merely to serve as a showcase for the dress.

If you decide on a conservative style, you can be liberal in your color choice.

Pink, blue and white are perennial favorites for first formals. Pass them by and look for something in a really special color—one that people might think of as "yours." Violet, emerald and ruby are lovely. A subtle blending of shades also can be quite pretty.

Fashion Flashes

An icy look that is warm is the pleasing paradox presented by a hat of white capeskin, a tucked helmet that works into a twisted peak that is encircled with rings of rhinestones and pearls.

As always, there' a wealth of white in resort clothes. White jersey, with pipings of white satin, makes a handsome sheath dress that is worn with a novelty popcorn-stitch wool sweater jacket that boasts a white satin collar and white, satin-covered buttons.

Appearing everywhere in smart resort collections, and a surefire thing for spring, is the fox-trimmed wool coat. Very pale loose nub woollen, in palest pink, is used for an interesting coat made with a collar that opens wide at the neck, spans the shoulder line and curves into a fly-front closing. Enormous muff cuffs of white fox finish the bracelet-length sleeves.

Brightly youthul nicely describes a sheared raccoon jacket lined with brown taffeta with chenille embroidered yellow poodles dotted here and there. Identical poodles cavort on the alternate ribs of a matching brown taffeta umbrella, the fabric especially treated.

Colorful dresses mark the holiday season. Geranium-red silk taffeta has been deftly worked into a handsome dinner dress, the bodice with a V neckline, fore and aft, that widens to the shoulder tips where there are two Victorian puffs forming a sleeve. The folds of the full skirt are drawn to the waistline in back and finished with a brief but full bow.

German Play Makes Hit With London Audience

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP) — Actor Gordon Tanner of Toronto and Winnipeg plays an American newspaperma in "The Devil's General", the first play by a German author to get top-flight west end billing since the Second World War.

The critics forecast a long run for this story by Carl Zuikmayer of a German resistance movement in Berlin at tne height of wartime Nazi power. There had been some doubts. Plays with a wartime angle such as the broadway hit "Stalig 17" folded after 10 days when tried in London.

But "The Devil's General," with screen star Trevor Howard making his first stage appearance since 1947, had a rousingly successful first night at the Savoy Theatre.

CRITICS' PRAISE

Audience and critics applauded Howard's performance. "All acting is of the highest order," said the News Chronicle. Such comments covered most of the cast including 35-year-old Tanner and film actor Wilfred Lawson, who plays the general's batman.

Tanner's role is a secondary one, but he says "any part in a good production is important in stage business."

Tanner started his acting career in a stock company at Bala, Ont., playing summer seasons in Bala and winters in Winnipeg, home of his parents. After four wartime years with the RCAF he was a sound effects man with the CBC in Toronto for two years.

SOON BEGAN WORK

In November, 1948, he came to London with his Ottawa wife, Iris, and stepson John Alden. Within weeks he was acting in the west end production of John Priestley's "Home is Tomorrow," starring the late Leslie Banks and Irene Worth. It lasted five weeks.

Since then he's acted on radio, films, television and the stage. His film parts include a small role in "The Third Man," "Golden Arrow," with Burgess Meredith and "State Secret" with Glynia Johns and Douglas Fairbanks.

Earlier this year Tanner appeared with Gladys Cooper in Noel Coward's "Relative Values."

Hosiery Entering Fashion Picture

Head-to-toe color harmony is needed to create the unbroken line of the season's slim silhouette. Consequently, stockings are taking a big step forward in the fashion picture.

Deeper shades that blend with specific costume colors have been introduced and are destined to gain prominence. The new hues appear as flattering mists on the legs since the sheet construction of the latest nylons permits the skin tone to show through.

Hosiery manufacturers have found several ways of color cueing so that women will not be confused by the variety offered.

One manufacturer prints the name of the costume color on the welt of the stockings that complement it. Another uses a narrow stripe in a blend of the colors with which the particular stockings should be worn.

Charts age also used to help the costumer make the correct color selection. One of these has swatches of fashionable shades with the recommended stocking shades opposite each color.

Discreet Make-Up Enhances Eyes

Some older women, realizing that eye make-up can give one a hard look, use none. Yet, when applied with discretion, eye make-up brightens the face considerably. And it is the older women who particularly can benefit from this help.

Using a pencil, for example, will bring out the character of eyebrows that have become sparse through the years. Short strokes made back against the hair will give the most natural look.

The brow line should be followed, of course. Nothing is more hardening than a heavy, straight line slashed across the brows. Since the natural eyebrow is most popular today, it should not be necessary to pluck more than an occasional stray hair.

A light stroking with mascara will make the lashes look longer and more luxuriant. Black mascara should be used only if the lashes are dark. And the excess should be brushed away carefully when the lashes have dried.

Petroleum jelly can be used quite successfully on dark lashes as a substitute for mascara. And used instead of eye shadow, it adds lustre to the lids.

To help your night cream smooth lines around the mouth, puff out your cheeks, then release the air slowly. Do this often.

DOROTHY DIX

Girl Advised Not To Tell Of Foolish Past

DEAR MISS DIX: While I was a high-school junior, eagerly looking forward to a career in nursing, I fell in love with Lew. His reputation was not too good, but I wouldn't listen to my parents or friends, and we ran away to be married. The elopement, however, turned out to be nothing but a cheap affair. I came home in a few days, with friends under the impression I had been visiting an aunt. It wasn't long before Lew told me he didn't love me, and, in fact, was dating someone else. Naturally, I thought my heart was broken, but soon realized it wasn't. Since I left school, in the belief that I was to become a married woman, my chances for a career are gone. I'm working in an office where I have met a fine boy, of whom my parents highly approve. We're dating, and my question is: Must I tell him of my foolish mistake?

PENNY Q.

KEEP QUIET

ANSWER: Assuming that no one but you and Lew know of your recklessness, it's better to keep still. Perhaps your young man would magnanimously forgive all, and proceed with the wedding. So far, so good. But time passes, discord creeps in, as it does in practically every union, and the first thing your husband will bring up is your past indiscretion. If he's inclined to be jealous, he'll never be convinced completely that there isn't a trace of wantonness in your make-up, he'll question your moves, all telephone calls you receive and every letter you open. Almost everyone has nooks and crannies of past experiences, emotions, thoughts or desires that are completely private. When these harm no other persons, in fact, have no effect on anyone else at all, there's no reason to reveal them, unless, of course, they are told to responsible persons for essential reasons.

Sticklers for strict conformity may differ with this conclusion, but, in this not-too-perfect world, compromise is often best. The present and future are more important than the past; there's no need to revive your indiscretions, and less need to have someone else share them.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For eight months I've been going with a very nice woman. We love each other. The difficulty is that she's a bit temperamental and always wants her own way. I'm 38, and she's two years younger.

S. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: From your writing, I judge you weren't raised in this country, and perhaps the independence of American women is something you weren't brought up to understand. Are you sure you don't want your way all the time, too? Remember, you both have had time to get set in your ways. If you intend to marry, the two bears of marriage, "bear and forbear," will need considerable exercise.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My cousin recently confided to me that she's not sure if her marriage is legal or not. Her husband had been married before and, though his wife was supposed to get the divorce, he's not sure if it was ever granted. How can my cousin find out?

CONNIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your cousin certainly takes her time. After ten years of marriage, and with two children, it really is a good idea to check up on the legality of her marital status. This can only be done through a lawyer. I suggest that she consult a lawyer instead of just "wondering".

Begin Report On Sex Life

LONDON (Reuters)—A 29-year-old model has started making a report on the sex life of British women.

When Rita Marshall read Dr. Alfred Kinsey's report on the American females she thought: "Why not one for Britain?"

She formed a panel of two student doctors, a nurse and a journalist. They sent out 200 circulars, with 35 questions, to selected women.

"This is only a pilot survey," she said, "when we get the results and analyze them we shall submit our report to the British Medical Association."

Miss Marshall began her survey by knocking on doors—but all she got for replies were embarrassed titters.

"You just can't quiz the British woman on her sex life," she reported. "You must do it by questionnaire. Even then you might not get answers back."

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Birthday Party For A Young Lady

"Dear Mary:...Ihave a daughter who will be eighteen, just thirty seconds after midnight. . .I expect this will be her last birthday at home for some time. . .she enters nurses' training next year. . .the guests will be mostly teen-agers who are not rowdy but like lots of fun. . .I want a menu that is not sandwiches. . .and any games that will appeal to this crowd of thirty. . .Mrs. Roy P."

That letter arrived the day after my Marianne's 21st birthday and since she is just finishing her second year of nurses' training you can imagine how happy I am to have a hand in the party for an 18-year-old embryo nurse.

Let me steal the show for a minute to tell you how we celebrated.

The 29th of November was a Sunday and by good fortune a day off at the Maternity Hospital. (The day after she saw her first baby born. To her it was such a world-shaking event you would think the baby was her own.)

I know the manager of the beef department of a packinghouse. I knew this packing plant had bought prize beef carcasses at the Royal Winter Fair so I naively telephoned to see if I could have a small part of one of those prize carcasses, and to my utter surprise the answer was "yes" So I ordered a 4-rib standing rib roast which weighed 9 lb. This I roasted at 325 deg. Fahr. for 3 hours, then sifted it to the warming oven and poured into the pan a 6-egg Yorkshire pudding, but had raised the temperature to 450 deg. Fahr. meanwhile.

Marainne chose the menu all through: Duchess potatoes, spinach, green salad with cucumbers and tomatoes, fruit cup with "big gobs of grapefruit in it" and a professionally frosted birthday cake (courtesy of her doting Aunts) decorated with "Happy 21st Birthday Marianne".

I ran through that because Mrs. Roy P. might pick up an idea (and because I wanted to tell you about the prize beef which was certainly a hit), but my suggestion for her 30 late-teen-agers for a midnight supper is as follows:

Chicken Casserole (see below) Oven Toasted French Stick, Celery Hearts, Carrot Sticks, Stuffed Olives, Birthday Cake (see below) Cocoa.

CHICKEN CASSEROLE

(This is given for a double reason: it serves 10 to 12 adequately. Mrs. Roy P. will have to make 2 or 2½ or these. Many of you will be serving 12 during the Christmas entertaining season. It may be made the day before the party, kept in refrigerator and baked when needed. It definitely is an extra -good party dish. The national president of the Women's Press Club is serving it at a pre-Christmas party in a menu we arranged together.)

Four tablespoons each butter and flour, 1 cup chicken stock, 1½ cups evaported milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 cups cooked rice (1½ cups when raw), 1 7lb. boiling fowl, ¼lb. sliced mushrooms, ¼ cup each chopped pimiento and green pepper, ½ cup sliced blanched almonds. make a white sauce of the first 5 ingredients. Boil chicken until tender and take meet from bones in rather large pieces. Add mushrooms, pimientoes and pepper to hot sauce. Arrange in large pieces. Add mushrooms, pimientoe and pepper to hot souce. Arrange in large casserole in layers: some sauce, rice chicken, repeat-casserole in layers: some sauce, some rice, some chicken, repeating until all are used, being sure to have sauce, then almonds on top. Bake for 35 to 40 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr.

If you want to make a "different" birthday cake, make an angel cake, frost it with sweetened whipped cream into which you have folded sliced red and green cherries and shaved Brazils. Out line the number 18 in deep colored candles on top.

Games: Charades and Twenty Questions. Be sure to make them dificult-for the more obscure they are the more fun the folks have.

You can remove rain spots from suede shoes by rubbing them lightly with an emery board, the kind you use for filing your nails.

To separate sticky dates, figs or raisins, place them in a warm oven for a few minutes.

How to KEEP FIT after 50

In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down—take things easy—watch your diet—get more rest. It's still good advice. But these days you can face fifty with many interesting and active years ahead,—active, that is, if you can avoid backache and the "tired-out" feeling, due to kidney and bladder disorders, that often develop around that age. For more than 60 years Dodd's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women of all ages to keep kidneys and bladder in good order,—helping them to feel better, to work better, and get more fun out of life. If you are approaching fifty, or past it, Dodd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dodd's. 54

New! Scientific Medicated Formulation

CLEARS PIMPLES

SKIN-COLORED

... hides pimples while it works

Now at last! A new medicated formulation called CLEARASIL developed especially for pimples! CLEARASIL has such remarkable drying action it has proved amazingly effective to bring relief to pimple sufferers.

Greaseless and fast-drying in contact with pimples...dries pimples surprisingly fast. And CLEARASIL's antiseptic action stops the growth of bacteria that can cause and spread pimples. Skin-colored to hide pimples and end embarrassment. CLEARASIL is pleasant to leave on day and night for uninterrupted medication.

Reader's Digest reported on clinical tests using CLEARASIL type medication.

Now the largest-selling special pimple medication in America...because CLEARASIL has helped so many teenagers and adults. Must work for you or money back. Only 69¢ and $1.19.

Russ Editors Told To Let Readers Write

LONDON (AP) — The official Communist newspaper Pravda advised Russian editors today to discard some of their own pet ideas, and pay more attention to letters they get from their readers.

Newspapers must become more "sapid," said the Pravda article, broadcast by radio Moscow.

(The dictionary's definition of "sapid"—having a strong savor or flavor, palatable, hence agreeable to the mind.)

An earthy letter from an earthy reader should be discussed with "Communist party or local government officials, economic leaders and production innovators," and the writer should be helped to improve his style, so he could make regular contributions, Pravda advised.

DULL AND DREARY

But regrettably, it continued, many editorial office workers "arm themselves with some details and information and write the articles themselves. Such literary hacks, who are ready to write for everybody and any-old-how, produce dull and dreary would-be articles, lacking in direct observations on life."

Editors must be close to the masses, Pravda continued.

"There are still editors," it said, "who assume that in so large and responsible a task as the publication of a newspaper or a magazine one can do without a large circle of authors, and that it is enough to have glib journalists, prepared to tackle any task. It's a harmful delusion. Life and experience show that an editorial board which does not carry out its work in close relation with the masses unavoidably ends up in a cul-de-sac and finds itself incapable of publishing a militant and sapid paper."

Senator Charges Fund Mishandled

NEW YORK (AP)—A state senator charged today that the National Kids Day Foundation, which solicited funds over the names of Bing Crosby and Mrs. Bob Hope, raised $2,931,000 last year but spent only 10 per cent for charity.

The charge was made by Senator Bernard Tompkins, chairman of a joint legislative committee which today began a series of public hearings into charity rackets and what happens to money contributed by New Yorkers to philanthropic organizations.

Tompkins said he has affidavits from Crosby and Mrs. Hope detailing their efforts to dissociate themselves from the foundation after they learned that about 90 cents of every dollar was going for fund raising and administrative expenses.

The senator said the foundation, which has headquarters in Los Angeles, is sending its counsel here to testify at a committee session Wednesday.

Boy 2, In Vault Nearly Two Hours

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A two-year-old boy was rescued unharmed Saturday night after an hour and a half in a large locked vault.

While safe experts drilled away on the combination to free Danny Stanley, his mother and grandmother alternated with a running torrent of encouraging words.

The safe is in a former office which now serves the Joe Stanley family as an apartment. Danny ran into the vault to play as he had many times before, but this time he managed to lock the door.

When the safe was opened, the wide-eyed tot was perched on a shelf in the vault. He literally fell into his mother's arms and clung tightly to her neck.

Robbed In Car

BLIND RIVER (CP) — George Fleron of Thessalon was robbed of $20 Sunday night by two men who pressed a gun into his back while he slept in his car. The men shoved him out, drove off and later abandoned the car near this town midway between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie.

"HOT" MONEY ISN'T TEMPTING — Take a good look—that's some $500,000 going up in flames at the Federal Reserve Bank in Cleveland, Ohio. It may make your hands itch, but it doesn't bother Joseph Ostendorf. He burns the stuff daily. The bills are discarded because they are dirty or mutilated. The currency is burned in a special 7½-ton incinerator, perfected last July.

British Government Plans Modernize Aldershot Camp

LONDON—There are a few people in Canada—approximately a quarter of a million, all ex-servicemen—who will have some sort of a nostalgic pain with the intelligence that something is to be done about the military barracks in Aldershot, writes David Legate in Montreal Star. There the first Canadians of World War II gathered in 1939, there they and those who followed lingered there, in camps which dated from the Crimea War and they often wondered if it was really worth while to fight for King and country if the best His Majesty and his country could do was Aldershot!

For the umpteenth time things are going to be different for the troops, though. True, improvements will not be noticeable until at least 1955 but this month a committee is being set up by the Aldershot Military District Headquarters to prepare plans, the War Office having decided to do a spot of modernization. It won't be much to start with, just a little consideration here and there for the Other Ranks, but it is promised there will be up-to-date washing facilities and mayhap bedside reading lamps for the troops. And the number of men in each barrack room will be reduced from thirty to eight!

However, Aldershot, Hampshire, will remain unchanged. Any of you who know it could hardly imagine it otherwise — and likewise steer clear!

MENU IN ENGLISH

With de-rationing swirling all the way along the line in cafes, restaurants and hotels, English menus can still stand a deal of improvement. There is not as much pork as there should and could be in pork sausages, for example. And the bacon is awful. Naturally, one doesn't expect kidneys in steak and kidney pie. Where else in the world do you find such?

A campaign to have hotel and restaurant menus written in English is being waged by Sir Alexander Maxwell, head of the Travel and Holidays Association. He contends, with considerable exactitude, that even the waiters don't know what the French terms mean, and that every year there are scores of complaints from American and Canadian tourists who are mystified by the English menus. In France it's different. Frequently it's better not to know.

Sir Alexander's main complaint is over the specially highfalutin' names given to some dishes. He found one the other day called "fruits forestieres," which turned out to be what he describes as "the ennoblement of rhubarb."

LIGHTED TREES

At Christmas Westminster Abbey will be surrounded with nearly two dozen lighted Christmas trees and the Abbey windows will be lighted from inside. This will be the climax of the £1,000,000 appeal, nearly three quarters of which has been realized. Dr. Alan Don, the Dean, thinks there is a good chance of attaining the objective by the end of the year. About £650,000 will be enough to secure the fabric of the Abbey for fifty years and the balance is needed as a reserve and to endow the choir school.

Further east, at the lovely All Hallows Berkyngechirche-By-the-Tower, that fabulous fellow, its vicar, Rev. P. B. ("Tubby") Clayton shows no signs at the age of 76 of relaxing his hold on the citizens of the Borough of Stepney, (and throughout the world, for that matter). The other day he put on a Christmas party for hundreds of youngsters, who danced about a Christmas tree brought from Windsor Great Park as a gift from the Queen Mother. This Founder Padre of Toc H is an amazing person. He wears cowboy boots, knows everybody in this most ancient of London's broughs, has the history of the metropolis down to any date you care to test him on and delights in a book which relates the horrible executions which have taken place on Tower Hill where his beloved church, virtually gutted in the blitz, now stands almost fully rebuilt.

ROYAL BAGGAGE

When the SS Gothic, now bearing Her Majesty and the Duke of Edinburgh across the Pacific, reaches New Zealand, ten tons of baggage will be unloaded to look after the Royal party. One individual here has good cause to know this. He's Freddie Smith, an hotel-keeper at Sway in Hampshire, who was called from his retirement to superintend the packing of the Queen's luggage and to make sure that she had everything for every stage of the journey. It was Freddie or no one else because he had been the Royal family's valet for twenty-five years. He did the same job for the late King and for the Duke of Windsor when he was Prince of Wales. It is due largely to Freddie that the Queen, though living out of suit-cases, looks as perfectly groomed as if she had stepped from Buckingham Palace.

To help Miss Margaret Macdonald, the Queen's dresser, and Bennett, the Duke's valet, Freddie worked out a remarkable system of numbers. At each stopping place on the tour the dressers simply consulted an index which gives its number. This leads them to a group of boxes and trunks in which Freddie has packed everything the Queen and the Duke need there, from clothes and uniforms to needles and shoelaces. He also packed large quantities of such things as gold cigarette cases, tie-pins, cuff links which the Queen will present in the course of her journey.

More and more people of Great Britain are becoming road-safety conscious. Despite the fact that they are probably the politest drivers in the world, they are concerned about mounting road casualties. This week I submitted myself to a driving test in Wood Green in North London. The Ministry of Transport examiner was a delightful kind of a Mr. Chips, but never for a moment did one think that he was missing a trick. He put one over the jumps for nearly an hour—forty minutes under all sorts of road conditions and about fifteen minutes of an oral grilling on the highway code.

Until one passes the driving test it is impossible to drive a car without a "Learner" plate fore and fat on the car and never without a qualified driver sitting next to you. On the slightest pretext the examiner will—always politely, of course—fail you. Then you wait for months for another test. It's tough for a Canadian trying to get used to the right-hand drive and the left-hand side of the road. But my Mr. Chips was as kind as he was firm and the "L" plates are now languishing inside the garage.

From the "Church Times":

The vicar of a small village received an invitation to dine one evening with the squire. As the village was sparsely lighted his reverence took a lantern to light him through the dark lanes. He had a very enjoyable time and returned home safe and sound.

Next morning he received a note from the squire:

Dear Vicar — If you will kindly return the parrot in its cage you can have your lantern."

Israeli Premier Retires To Desert Village

TEL AVIV, (AP) — "Goodbye Tel Aviv—and let thy sons follow me and settle in the Negeb."

This was the farewell message of Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion to hundreds assembled outside his Tel Aviv residence when he left this morning for the tiny Negeb desert settlement of Sdeh Boker.

Before dawn hundreds began gathering outside Ben-Gurion's Tel Aviv home—Mapai party leaders, personal friends, Tel Aviv citizens, Ben - Gurion's neighbors and school children—to bid goodby to the retiring premier.

A large truck waited outside, fully laden with Ben-Gurion's belongings, books, including Einstein's theory, Hindu and Buddhist philosophy, bibles, The Decline of the Western World, histories of the Roman Empire and Greece, poetry, were Ben-Gurion's major choice as his companions in the desert. There he expects to meditate, rest and write.

Plan Investigation Into British Market

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's trade union federation today announced an inquiry into workings of the British investment market to see if the national interest is being properly served.

The general council of the Trade Union Congress stated that a careful check will be made on banks, trusts and insurance companies.

Findings will be placed before the Labor party—the congress provides its biggest bulk membership—at its next convention.

The TUC stated that it wants to find the best way of ensuring that the control and direction of investment is in accord with public responsibility.

Churchill Calls Cabinet Study Strike Threat

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP) — Santa Claus found himself a key issue today in Britain's biggest strike threat since the general strike of 1926.

The immediate issue is whether the railway men are entitled to a pay raise, but an important factor is the old man with the whiskers.

The National Union of Railwaymen has called on its 400,000 members to strike next Sunday midnight.

Prime Minister Churchill called an emergency cabinet meeting for tonight to discuss the strike threat. The fact that discussion was to be on such a high level underlined the government's anxiety at the possibility of the first major rail strike since 1926.

A strike on the state-owned railways would paralyze this nation of close to 50,000,000 persons looking forward to their gayest Christmas holiday since before the war—with plenty of food and drink and unrationed things to buy.

"Railway scrooges," shouted The People, Labor party Sunday newspaper, in a front-page headline denouncing union leaders.

"You'd almost think the leaders of the NUR had no children of their own and never believed in Santa Claus."

DEMANDS CABINET ACT

The Sunday Pictorial cried out in big black headlines: "Cabinet Must Stop Christmas Rail Strike."

Interjection of Santa Claus into the dispute broughtt his sharp report from an NUR organizer at a meeting of union members:

"You are not to feel ashamed of yourselves when people say of the strike you are spoiling the kiddies' Christmas. There will be little or no Christmas festivities in the homes of railway men on the wages they are getting."

The chairman of the British Transport Commission, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, was reported ready to ask for government intervention if the union refuses to compromise.

Eat $24,636,000 Breakfast Food

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians crunched their way through a record $24,636,000 worth of breakfast foods in 1952, the bureau of statistics reported today.

This compared with $23,696,000 worth of prepared cereals in 1951, and capped a steady rise in consumption nearly four times as great as the $9,209,578 worth used in 1939, when the bureau began keeping track.

Ontario produced nearly 90 per cent of the breakfast foods, which included some 72,225,000 pounds of corn flakes, bran flakes, wheat flakes, puffed grains and shredded wheat. Production of unprepared breakfast foods totalled 8,983,000 pounds, valued at $1,094,000.

Settlement Of Strike At Aviation Plant

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Settlement of the strike at North American Aviation, Inc., which began more than seven weeks ago, was announced today by a company spokesman.

E. D. Starkweather, company director of industrial relations, said the economic terms were the same as the company offered before the walkout of 33,000 began Oct. 23 at plants in Los Angeles, Fresno, Calif., and Columbus, Ohio.

The company stood firmly on a wage increase offer of four per cent—eight to 20 cents an hour. The CIO-United Auto Workers Union originally asked 26 cents, then scaled down the demand to 20 cents for skilled workers, 10 cents for others. Pre-strike wages ranged from $1.42 to $2.32 an hour.

Seaway Plan Aid To Lumber Industry

TORONTO (CP) —The St. Lawrence seaway will give Canada's lumber trade "an entirely new outlook," Col. J. Jenkins, head of the federal government's forest products laboratories at Ottawa and Vancouver, said here Saturday.

In an address to the Royal Canadian Institute, Col. Jenkins said the seaway could have "an economic impact of major importance on this vital Canadian industry."

He said rail transportation costs from the west coast to Ontario are three times the water rate from Vancouver to England. The seaway would make it economically possible to ship lumber products from the West through the Panama canal to Great Lakes ports.

Car Hit By Train, One Man Injured

KITCHENER (CP)—John Burghardt, 25, of Toronto was injured Sunday night when his car was struck by a Canadian National Railways train at a level crossing.

Three passengers in the car escaped injury. Hospital officials said today Burghardt suffered extensive face cuts.

Gerald Adamson

KEENE (ENS) — Funeral services were conducted today for Gerald Adamson from his Keene residence. He died suddenly on Friday.

Officiating at the service was the Rev. D. G. Smith, of the Keene Presbyterian church. Burial was in Keene cemetery.

Pallbearers were Earl Ore, Russell Davidson, Percy Adamson, William McFarlane, Gordon McFarlane and Roy McFarlane.

French Ready For Showdown Fight With Reds

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The French high command said today "everything is ready" for a showdown battle with the Vietminh troops closing in on Dien Bien Phu, France's last big stronghold in the mountainous Thai country of northwest Indo-China.

The army spokesman said Vietminh Division 316, the threatening enemy force, was still 12 miles northeast of Dien Bien Phu's fortified plain and had made no move indicating an attack was imminent.

PARTISANS AID FRENCH

French and Viet Namese soldiers, aided by partisan fighters of the Thai mountain tribes, continued wide reconnaissance patrols in the area.

French fighters and bombers flew 90 sorties against the rebel positions.

Reinforced by 1,000 fresh troops and cargoes of war equipment flown from Hanoi, 200 miles to the southeast, the French Union troops were termed fully ready.

NEGOTIATION OFFERED

As the opposing forces manoeuvred, Red leaders of the Vietminh made another roundabout offer to negotiate an end to the seven-year Indo-China war.

Moscow radio broadcast a Shanghai dispatch quoting Vietminh chief Ho Chi Minh's information agency as saying he "will be ready to accept" French proposals for peace if "the French government really respects the independence of Viet Nam and is ready to start negotiations."

Ladies Guild Bazaar Successful Event

MARMORA (ENS) — The annual bazaar was held by St. Paul's Ladies' Guild in the parish hall on Fridal afternoon.

Christmas decorations added to the brightness of the hall's interior.

The bazaar stall was staffed by Mrs. William Leonard, Mrs. Earl Leonard and Miss Maud Robinson. The apron stall was attended by Mrs. R. G. Winters, Mrs. R. E. Bonter and Mrs. I. B. Nichol. Mrs. Percy Gray Sr. looked after the post office and Mrs. Gordon Eggett sold candy. Mrs. D. B. Robertson and Mrs. A. Eggleton were in charge of home cooking.

The G.A. table, on which various articles made by the girls were for sale, was supervised by Mrs. Roy Frost and Mrs. Fletcher Clark.

Mrs. C. R. Whittemore was in charge of afternoon tea, assisted by Mrs. C. H. Buskard, Mrs. John Reynolds, Mrs. Clinton Nickle, Miss Jennie Jones, Mrs. M. J. Corrigan and others.

In the evening, a card party was held. Winners at bridge were E. D. O'Connor and Mrs. Roy Frost. Top scorers at euchre were E. Hewitt and Mrs. Milton Campbel. Door prizes went to E. Hewitt, Mrs. W. D. Lavender and Mrs. M. Campbell.

Three draws were won as follows: pair of chickens: James Travers, Belleville; Quilt, Mrs. Charles McInroy, Deloro; china tea service, Mrs. W. H. Gould, Port Colborne. More than $200 was realized.

Ceylon Resells Rice

HONG KONG (AP) — An American diplomatic source said Sunday Communist China still is shipping rice to Ceylon in exchange for rubber despite acute food shortages at home. Ceylon, meanwhile, has built up a surplus and is reselling 30,000 tons of China rice to Japan, he added.

Says Tests Reliable

CHICAGO (AP) — Breath tests for intoxication have proved reliable, the National Safety Council said Sunday. The council said proof of their reliability had been established in scientific research at Michigan State College. The project was sponsored by the council.

Terrorists Kill Two

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (Reuters) — Five Communist terrorists singled out and stabbed to death a 21-year-old Chinese girl and a 42-year-old man from among 60 tin mine laborers whom they ambushed in Upper Perak, reports received here said today.

Fiji Natives Try Out Spear Dances In Full-Dress Rehearsals For Queen

SUVA, Fiji (Reuters)—Ceremonial drums throbbed and natives swirled around in primitive spear dances today as more than 2,000 islanders staged a full-dress rehearsal of Fiji's welcome to Queen Elizabeth.

The Queen and Duke of Edinburgh will arrive here Thursday on the royal Commonwealth tour.

Queen Elizabeth can expect a magnificent, if silent, welcome. Fijian tradition demands that honored guests be received with a respectful tribute of silence. Handclapping and cheering are regarded as insulting.

A veritable mountain of typical south sea food—pigs, turtles, yams, bread, fruit, bananas, coconuts—will be presented to the Queen upon her arrival. The fact that the Queen is to live aboard the Gothic during her two-day visit to Fiji doesn't make any difference; the food is a gesture of welcome in accordance with ancient Fijian tradition.

The huge mound of food, which will reach from ground level into the spreading branches of a banyan tree, probably will be taken aboard the Gothic and the New Zealand escort cruiser, Black Prince.

The governor, Sir Ronald Garvey, conducted the rehearsal here today. Lady Garvey played the role of the Queen while governmer[illegible] epresented the duke and other members of the royal household.

ISLANDERS EXCITED

Excited islanders watched as the guard of honor paraded and 500 Fijian and Indian regular and reserve police, bolstered by all available men of the Fiji military forces, took up crowd-control positions as the make-believe royal procession drove through the streets.

The thermometer recorded 83 degrees in the shade.

A state ball will cap the first day's program.

Today's rehearsal included the solemn kava bowl ceremony, an ancient Fiji rite in which guests are offered a drink from the community bowl.

A LITTLE DIFFERENT

Anyone interrupting a ceremonial welcome risks punishment. One Fijian remarked, "In ancient times, anyone who stepped between the kava bowl and an honored guest would be killed."

Then he added thoughtfully, "But of course, we were cannibals then."

Suva's population is about 15,000 but it will be trebled for the ceremony by visitors from outlying points.

N. American Man Existed At Least 20,000 Years Ago

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Dr. Frank C. Hibben, University of New Mexico anthropologist, announced Sunday there is "incontrovertible proof" man existed in North America 20,000 years ago—10,000 years earlier than any previously proved date.

Hibben said the tusk of a mammoth found in Sandia cave 16 years ago established the new date after a radiocarbon test at the University of Michigan.

"This is not geological guesswork," Hibben said. "It's an exact, mathematical method of dating.

NOW HAVE PROOF

'A great many skeptics did not believe man existed in the new world prior to 10,000 years ago. We now have incontrovertible proof."

Dr. Volney H. Jones, University of Michigan anthropologist, wrote Hibben:

"The Sandia date is a pretty prime morsel in that it is just about double any previous date for man in the Americas."

"Prof. H. R. Crane, who is in charge of the radiocarbon project," Volney wrote, "says that it (the tusk) dates somewhere in the range of 20,000 (years) plus."

The tusk was found in Sandia cave near Albuquerque by Ken Davis, a university student, in 1937.

Surplus Judge Holds Court

FRANKFURT (AP)—Suspended Chief Justice William Clark presided defiantly—and alone—today in the U. S. appeals courtroom in Germany.

Continuing his opposition to state department orders suspending him for insubordination and dismissing him Jan. 8 as "surplus," the judge read a statement to photographers and reporters, heard two cases argued briefly and said he will not hold court Tuesday.

"There wouldn't be any point in doing it all over again," he added.

He said also he had not yet decided whether to appear for duty Jan. 18 when Acting Chief Justice Carl W. Fulghum of Glenwood Springs, Colo., named by the state department to succeed Clark, has scheduled the court's next session.

Clark contends he was ordered fired because of his frequent criticism of U. S. high commission policy in Germany. He asserts he can be ousted only for a legal reason.

No Conspiracy Judge Rules

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — United States district court judge Paul Leahy ruled today that the cellophane operations of the Du Pont company was not a monopoly or conspiracy in restraint of trade as charged by the government.

Leahy dismissed the complaint, filed six years ago under the anti-trust laws by the U. S. justice department. He said that the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Co., Inc. —America's largest chemical-making firm—should not "be punished for its success."

Specifically the government accused Du Pont of:

Controlling manufacture and sale of cellophane, limiting production, excluding competition, fixing prices, retaining tight hold on patents.

Judge Leahy said "the facts destroy the charges."

Transfer Young Mother To Prison Farm

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Alberta Brown, 25-year-old mother of three children, was transferred to Oakalla prison farm at suburban Burnaby Sunday, charged with the rifle-slaying of a railway linesmen at her Mission, B. C., home Saturday.

Dead is Ollie Johnston, 40, of Vancouver. Police said Mrs. Brown admitted she had shot Johnston "because he had been bothering me."

She has been remanded to Dec. 21 for preliminary hearing.

Police said Johnston died of a rifle bullet in the abdomen. The shot was fired through the door of Mrs. Johnston's home.

House Tackles Problem Of Housing Before Dec. 25

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons this week will tackle the thorny problem of housing before it adjourns for the Christmas recess.

The matter won't be cleaned up before adjournment Thursday or Friday but at least the House will get a start on what is likely to be one of the major pieces of legislation to come before this session.

The government will first place on the order paper a resolution proposing that it amend the National Housing and Bank acts to carry out its intended legislation.

Debate on this resolution probably will last at least a couple of days. Many members have signified that they have plenty to say about the housing situation.

LONGER LOAN PERIODS

The government plans to provide for smaller down payments for homes built under the National Housing Act and for a longer period in which to repay loans. It also plans to permit banks to enter the mortgage lending field for the first time.

The contemplated legislation is believed to provide for down payments of 10 per cent on the first $8,000 of the lending value of a new house and 30 per cent for the portion above $8,000. Builders now are required to make a 20-per-cent down payment.

It is believed builders would have 25 or 30 years in which to repay loans on houses instead of the current 20. But interest rates would be raised from 5¼ to 5½ per cent.

The legislation is expected to benefit mostly builders who can put up a home for $8,000.

Opposition members have already indicated they will seek a 10-per-cent down payment on the first $10,000 with 30-year mortgages and no increase, or a drop in, the interest rate.

Says Four Fears Replacing Four Freedoms

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson told Democratic followers Saturday night that four fears have replaced the four freedoms in the United States and "fear is poison."

The 1952 Democratic presidential nominee said fear of depression, fear of communism, fear of ourselves, and "fear of freedom itself" now are on the loose and he broe down hardest on what he said is the real fear of depression.

In an address to a fund-raising dinner of Democrats from 11 eastern states, Stevenson asserted that his own party's "fortunes have suddenly improved." Then he went after the Republicans on the issues of how they have handled Communists in government, Soviet espionage disclosures, and how they have dealt with alleged violation of secret files.

"If the administration is looking for a good crusade," Stevenson said, "I would recommend a crusade to combat the Communist conspiracy without resorting to Communist methods to do it."

The Democratic party chief took a direct swipe at Attorney-General Herbert Brownell and a fling or two at Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.) but omitted any vigorous direct criticism of President Eisenhower personally.

Oak Heights WA Hold Christmas Meeting

WARKWORTH (ENS) — The Women's Association of Oak Heights United church held their Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. Edward Covert with an attendance of 30 women, 19 children and three men.

Mrs. L. Tucker, president, opened the meeting with the WA Ode and the Lord's prayer in unison.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. S. Lawrence who read a Christmas poem and the Christmas story for the children of pre-school age, illustrating it with Bible pictures, joined in singing "Away in a Manger."

Mrs. Herbert Pratt read the Christmas story of St. Luke.

Mrs. Tucker presided over the business period.

It was decired to increase the donations to the missionary and maintainence fund. Mrs. W. H. Porter reported two cards sent for the good cheer committee. The visiting committee reported one call made and Mrs. Bruce Porter reported $6.59 spent in buying goods. Mrs. Sisco thanked the WA for the sympathy card.

The children of pre-school age were presented with Christmas gifts by Mrs. W. H. Porter on behalf of the WA.

A fancy cup and saucer were presented to Mrs. W. H. Porter, senior member, in appreciation of her past record and as a birthday gift. All sang "Happy Birthday."

Mrs. A. McMurdo, program convener, conducted the program, which consisted of Christmas carols, with Mrs. Clarence Ferguson as organist, and readings by Mrs. Jack Potter, Mrs. Douglas Langford, Mrs. A. P. Sayles and Mrs. Clarence Ferguson. Two duets were given by the junior children, Jerry and Linda Langford and Susanne and Jane Potter. Miss Eleanor McMurdo sang a solo.

The Rev. A. L. Sisco spoke briefly and closed the meeting with prayer.

There was an exchange of Christmas gifts. A bazaar was held, followed by lunch, served by the hostess and lunch conveners.

Wayne-Fellows Studio Makes Films Pay

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — At a time when some major studios are making one picture or none at all, a lusty young independent has two movies in the works. And both in Cinemascope.

The outfit is called Wayne-Fellows Productions. One partner is John Wayne, star of the movies and the courts. The other is Robert Fellows, veteran of the movie mills.

This pair is breathing new life into the shattered ranks of independent producers, who have been hard hit by the revolution in movie economics.

In business only a year and a half, Wayne-Fellows now is producing its fifth and sixth pictures. One is "Ring of Fear," a circus yarn with Clyde Beatty, Mickey Spillane and other characters. It is shooting in Phoenix, Ariz.

DISTINGUISHED CAST

The other film is the Ernest Gann best-seller, "The High and the Mighty." The air picture features one of the most distinguished casts in recent times: Wayne, Claire Trevor, Laraine Day, Jan Sterling, Robert Newton, Paul Kelly, Robert Stack, Phil Harris, David Brian and Sidney Blackmer.

Asked how his independent company managed to succeed while others failed, Wayne said:

"Because we have the best deal in town. I went into this thing with my eyes open. I spent a lot of years at Republic apprenticing for production. And I've profited by the mistakes that friends of mine—stars, directors and producers—have made with their own companies.

"Other companies have failed because they haven't been able to buck the big companies. They make deals that look swell on paper. But when they finish up, they're taken for all kinds of hidden charges. You just can't make a go of it unless you can keep the companies from piling up the costs on you.

WORKING WELL

"That's what's great about our deal with Warners. We agree to bring in a picture for a certain cost, and they put up the money. They are limited to a certain figure on the charges for distribution, advertising and prints.

"The deal has worked out well for both parties. Warners got back 33 1-3 per cent on its investment on our first picture, 'Big Jim McClain,' which wasn't my idea of a very good movie. They also made money on 'Plunder in the Sun.'"

Find Romance On Yule Voyage

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters) Two lonely hearts, aged 80 and 52, beat as one last week on a "home for Christmas" sea voyage from Canada to England.

William H. Coburn, 80, Vancouver, was sailing on the Empress of Australia for Belfast, Ireland, where he was born.

Mrs. Dorothy G. Carpenter, 52, a widowed hospital attendant from Saint John, N.B., was going to Plymouth, England, to spend Christmas with relatives.

Both were feeling lonely as they sat down at the table in the tourist class dining hall.

Three days later he proposed. When they left the Empress at Liverpool Sunday they said their new plan is to visit Belfast and Plymouth together—as Mr. and Mrs. Coburn.

Then he'll take her back to Vancouver with him and buy her the house he promised her when the Empress was four days out of Saint John.

RESCUE—It's boys to the rescue on the Monk farm near Seattle, Washington, after the rain-swollen Green River suddenly flooded the area a few days ago. When the torrent came, first thoughts of Jeffery Monk, left, and his friend, William Hagerdorn, were for their pets and away they went to the rescue. Many householders in the region prepared to move out until the water began receding later in the day.

Louis' Mother Dies In Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—Mrs. Lillie Barrow Brooks, 69, mother of former world heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis, died Sunday night.

Louis was at her bedside when the end came. She had been suffering from a heart ailment for more than a year.

Last September, Mrs. Brooks was critically ill in hospital here. But when her condition improved she returned to the home Joe bought for her shortly after his fight career began to pay off. About a week ago she went to stay with a daughter, Mrs. Emmarell Davis, and it was at her home that she died.

Born in the most humble of circumstances in Lafayette, Ala., Mrs. Brooks bore 18 children in two marriages.

She and her large family came to Detroit in 1925.

Though she was her famous son's No. 1 fan, she refused to attend many of his fights.

"I just can't stand to see Joe get hurt," she would say.

Era Ends In Russia With Stalin Death

By LLOYD McDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The death of Joseph Stalin in 1953 brought a nominal end to the Stalinist era of Soviet Russia. The year was young and the snows of the Russian winter sparkled under the lights of the Kremlin when the world heard on the night of March 5 that the enigmatic figure who had ruled for three decades was dead.

Another death, that of Queen Mary in London, also ended an era. As the stately old lady passed from the scene, Britain, long harried by war and economic difficulties, stood on the threshold of the new Elizzabethan age, with the pomp and color of the Coronation greeted as a symbol of brighter days ahead.

But the 84-year-old Queen did not live to see her grand - daughter crowned. A link between the golden age of Victoria and the new age of Elizabeth, she died March 24, with her last wish that the June 2 Coronation go ahead as planned.

The year also brought death to other royalty and former royalty. Ex-King Carol of Romania, scapegrace Balkan monarch of the '20s, died in Estoril, Portugal, April 4, at the age of 59. King Ibn Saud, 73, Arab ruler, died Nov. 9. Prince Chichibu, 50, brother of Emperor Hirohito of Japan, died in Tokyo Jan. 4. Princess Irenee of Prussia, sister of Germany's deposed Kaiser Wilhelm, died Nov. 11—by coincidence on the anniversary of the end of the war that ended the rule of the Hohenzollerns.

SPORTS GREAT DIES

Bill Tilden, 60, who dominated tennis in the golden sports era of the '20s, died June 5. He was winner of the AP poll as tennis star of the half-century. Mrs. Constance Wilson Slatkin, 42, five-time winner of the Canadian women's figure-skating title, died March 1 in Kansas City, Mo. Frank Leavitt, "Man Mountain Dean" who was a colorful figure in wrestling with his 319-pound frame and long flowing beard, died May 29 at 63. William Woodward, 73-year-old New York banker whose horses had won three Kentucky Derbies, died Sept. 26.

In the world of the arts, the American stage lost one of its greatest playwrights in Eugene O'Neill, who died Nov. 27 at age 65. He left behind two unpublished plays—one with the stipulation that it not be produced until 25 years after his death. Lewis Stone, 73, long-time Hollywood character actor best known as the "Judge Hardy" of the family movie series, died Sept. 12.

Others prominent in the world of the arts who died in 1953 included Dylan Thomas, 39, Welsh poet; Nigel Bruce, 58, whose best-known role on stage and screen was Dr. Watson in Sherlock Holmes movie roles; Frank Munn, 58, radio tenor who broadcast weekly for almost 20 years; author Jan Struther, 52, best known for "Mrs. Miniver"; Hilaire Belloc, 82, British author; Albert Spalding, 64, violinist; Raoul Dufy, 75, French modernist painter; Serge Prokovieff, 61, Russian composer; Ben Ames Williams, 63, American novelist and magazine writer; Osa Johnson, 58, American explorer and author.

Another link with Europe's vanished monarchies was the Duke of Alba, one of the Continent's wealthiest and most titled nobles. He died Sept. 24 at age 74.

MANY PEERS DIE

One of Britain's wealthiest peers, the Dukek of Westminster, lied July 19 at age 74. Only a few months before his death he had planned a huge development in British Columbia. Other prominent British peers who died in 1953 included the Duke of Abercorn, 83, long - time governor of Northern Ireland; the Duke of Bedford, 64, eccentric land-owner who died in a hunting accident Oct. 11; Lord Strabolgi, long prominent in the Labor party; Lord Kenilworth, 87, airplane and automobile manufacturer; and Lord Aberconway, head of the John Brown shipping firm that built the Cunard "Queen" liners. The leading designer of the "Queens," George McLeod Patersch, died Nov. 30 at the age of 62.

The world of sport lost several prominent figures. Jim Thorpe, named in the Associated Press athlete of the half-century, died March 28 at age 64. Mike Jacobs, 72, who ruled the boxing world for many years and promoted the great Joe Louis, died Jan. 24. James J. Jeffries, heavyweight champion many years ago, died March 3 at 77.

TAFT DIES IN JULY

Robert A. Taft died July 31 at age 63. The Ohio senator, son of President William Howard Taft, was a powerful figure in the Republican party. A political boss in the New York Democratic party for many years, Edward J. Flynn, 61, died Aug. 17.

Charles A. Eaton, a native of Pugwash, N.S., who was the dean of the U.S. House of Representatives, died Jan. 24. Other American political figures who died in 1953 included Robert La Follette, Jr., former Wisconsin senator; Robert F. Wagner, 75, New Deal senator under Franklin D. Roosevelt and author of the Wagner labor act; Maurice Tobin, 52, secretary of labor under President Truman; Senator Charles W. Tobey, New Hampshire Republican senator, and Kim Sigler, 59, former Republican governor of Michigan, killed Nov. 30 in a plane crash.

Among the military deaths of 1953 was that of Field Marshal Gerd Von Runstedt, 77, whose "battle of the bulge" offensive in December, 1944, was Germany's last big attack of the Second World War. He died Feb. 24. Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, 69, Greek war hero and post-war premier, died July 26. Other military leaders who died in various countries included: Gen. Andre Corap 75, French infantry leader whose forces collapsed in 1940 when the Germans broke through; Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, 70, American hero of the Japanese capture of Bataan; Vice-Admiral Gordon Campbell, 67, VC-winning submarine hero of the First World War; Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, 75, Far East commander at the fall of Singapore who once was British air attache in Ottawa; Vice-Admiral Earl Granville, 72, uncle of the Queen; Lt. - Col. Michael Claude Hamilton Bowes-Lyon, 59, brother of Queen Mother Elizabeth.

PRESS LOSES LEADERS

Prominent newspaper men who died in 1953 included: Bert Andrews, 58, Pulitzer prize-winning New York Herald Tribune Washington correspondent; Clark Lee, 49, Far East correspondent; Don Ezequiel Paz, 81, former editor of the Buenos Aires La Prensa; Malcolm Bingay, 68, widely-read columnist for the Detroit Free Press; Arthur George Waters, 65, editor of London's News of the World; Milt Gross, 58, cartoonist. Steve Hannagen, one of the most publicized U.S. publicists, died Feb. 5 at 53.

Among other deaths of the year were: Mrs. Grace Wilson Vanderbilt, 82, American social leader of the early years of the century; Dr. Cyril Joad, British philosopher, 61; Hans Isbrantsen, 61, shipping magnate who was in the news during the Chinese Nationalist attack on his Flying Arrow and Capt. Kurt Carlson's fight to save his Flying Enterprise; Rene Fonck, French ace of the First World War who shot down 75 planes, three more than Canada's William A. Bishop; Michael Borodin, fabled Red secret agent in the Far East; Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, executed in the U.S. for passing American atomic secrets to Russia; Sir Benegal Rau, 66, Indian judge of the World Court and a United Nations figure; Boris Grekov, 72, Soviet historian.

Three New York Papers Set Record In Publishing

By WATSON SIMS

NEW YORK (AP)—A flood tide of printed news, unique, probably, in all newspaper publishing history, rolled down on New York Saturday night and Sunday morning.

In the first regular publication of Sunday newspapers after an 11-day strike which ended Thursday after it had almost completely halted the city's presses, five Manhattan papers got out editions totalling 1,698 pages.

This gargantuan effort in a city normaly noted for bulky Sunday editions set records for the Times News and Mirror.

The Journal American said its 160-page edition was one of the largest, if not the largest, it had ever published.

The 380-page Herald Tribune also was one of the biggest ever.

STRIKING CONTRAST

This was in striking contrast to last Sunday, when only the Herald Tribune published and that newspaper contained only eight pages with no advertising.

The News, a tabloid, alone totalled 532 pages, including a number of regional sections. A spokesman for the News said this was some 130 pages more than the largest number published by the News previously.

In advertising, the News said, the edition contained 23,000 more lines of department store advertising than on the comparative Sunday last year.

WEIGHT RECORD

Newsboys tottered under The Times, each edition of which weighed five pounds and five ounces.

The Times said this was a weight record and said the 1,300,000 copies required 3,927 tons of newsprint, representing 3,960 cords of wood.

The ink alone, the Times said, amounted to 45 tons, not including color compound and special solvent used to print the book review and magazine sections.

Also listed as Times' records were the 748 columns of news and 615,000 lines of advertising.

The news sections alone of the Times ran to 152 pages, another record.

The Herald Tribune's news section totalled 112 pages.

The Times noted that its total of 436 pages had been exceeded on three other occasions, but said the previous editions were fattened by a larger proportion of tabloid-size special sections.

CHRISTMAS ADS

The Sunday editions published were jam-packed with Christmas advertising. The strike of photo-engravers came at the start of the Christmas buying season, and its end found the merchants splurging to make up for precious lost time.

The make-up for lost time motif was sprinkled throughout all the newspapers.

The Herald Tribune, News, Mirror and Journal American each carried two sets of comics, one of which was dated Dec. 6.

The Times, which carries no comics, had a supplement of 10 two-page editions, each to make up for the days lost during the strike.

The Times, which prides itself as the newspaper of record, said the sheets were prepared "for the record," during each day of the stoppage.

The Times book review section alone contained 64 pages.

The Herald Tribune included book review sections for this Sunday and last, the two totalling 72 pages.

Ex-Deputy Defends Mossadegh's Rule

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ahmad Razavi, who was former premier Mohammed Mossadegh's deputy speaker in parliament, gave a spirited defence of the aged dictator's rule Sunday as the Mossadegh treason trial completed its 29th day.

Razavi told the court: "Mossadegh was a political leader. A number of people gathered around him with extreme interest. We do not regret co-operating with him nor are we sorry for the services we rendered him. It is not shame but glory for all of us."

Mossadegh nodded his head vigorously as Razavi paid this tribute.

Kidnapped Girl's Friend At Office Found Slain

WHO SAID, "NO WINTER THIS YEAR?" —District amateur weathermen predicted bright sunny warm weather until at least Christmas following thunder and lightning storms two weeks ago. But Mother Nature fouled up their predictions Monday and today when she blanketed the ground with seven inches of snow (up to 9 a.m.) It's what children have been wishing for in order to use their skis and sleights. It's also turned the district into a winter wonderland, transforming the usually dreary looking Jackson Park creek into a black and white contrast (above) for photographers. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Pearson Says NATO Unable Halt Work

North American Defence Important Conference Told

PARIS—(CP)—L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister, said Monday the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is at present engaged in a long-distance race and cannot afford to halt its progress and come to a point of inertia.

Speaking during a session on international politics at the three-day NATO conference here, Pearson said this meant settling down to the "long haul" and developing the non-military co-operation of NATO members.

He recalled the declaration made by President Eisenhower on his recent visit to Ottawa, when the U. S. president said Canada and the United States should work together for the defence of the North American continent without reducing their pledges to their European allies.

AWARE OF DANGER

Pearson, told the NATO council Monday that Canadian and U.S joint defence plans are being speeded to meet the possibility of a Soviet atom attack over the North Pole.

Pearson did not disclose details but he indicated both Ottawa and Washington were alert to the new dangers inherent in Soviet possession of atomic weapons and that defence measures were being enlarged to cope with the new situation.

He emphasized the strategic importance of North America as a NATO territory and said the protection of North American defence plans was vital to NATO's military potential.

Pearson spoke briefly and extemporaneously.

He strongly supported U.S. Secretary of State Dulles' insistence on the vital necessity of creating a European Defence Community without delay.

Pearson said Canada supported the EDC from its inception and knew of no other plan for German rearmament within the framework of Western European security. He said German rearmament within the EDC was necessary and inevitable.

He warned against complacency, but expressed satisfaction with NATO's achievements. He said that in his opinion NATO had won the first round of its efforts to maintain peace and now must settle down to the long pull.

Have 30 Accidents

BRANTFORD — (CP)—At least 30 traffic accidents occured in less than 12 hours Monday when the season's first heavy snow fall snarled traffic and caused a power failure in Brant county. The accidents caused an estimated $4,500 damage and injuries to three persons.

Snow, Sleet Snarl Traffic Across Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—The first cold snap of the winter gripped southern Ontario and Quebec today, while parts of the Maritimes recorded near-record highs of 55 degrees.

Thermometers in many southern Ontario cities hovered at the freezing point of water—32 degrees.

Weather officials said the Maritimes' warm weather won't last. The warm air there will be replaced by cooler air from the east by Wednesday.

SCATTERED SNOW

Meanwhile, clear skies with scattered snow are predicted for Ontario today, after a snow and sleet storm which sharled traffic and contributed to at least three deaths Monday.

Alexander Muir, 49, died after his automobile skidded on wet pavement in Hamilton and crashed into a tree. Gerald Michaud, 20, was fatally injured near Bathurst, N.B., while trying to free a logging truck that stalled in the snow. At the height of a snowstorm at Barrie, 50 miles north of Toronto, Mrs. Maude Gibbons, 50, was killed in a collision.

The storm swept northward from the Mississippi valley and brought rain and wet snow. The wintry weather extended from the Great Lakes region, which had snowfall of up to 12 inches, to the East Coast where Monday afternoon snow turned to night rain and where continuing snowy and windy weather was forecast.

POWER FAILURE TOO

In Toronto, which previously had only one other snowstorm this season, travel difficulties were compounded by power failures which disrupted street-car service in parts of the east end of the city during the Monday evening rush hour.

The snowfall was continuous throughout southern Ontario Monday, except in the St. Lawrence valley where rain kept roads bare and wet. The fall was lighter in Northern Ontario.

Telephone lines toppled in some sections near Toronto and Windsor. Telegraph lines in the Sarnia district of southwestern Ontario were hit, as were high tension wires at Leamington and Kingsville.

PLANE GROUNDED

A Trans-Canada Air Lines plane landed at London after running into fog and snow on its regular Toronto-to-Cleveland flight.

Sanding crews and road patrols helped keep traffic moving but Ontario motorists reported driving "heavy" in many areas. There were countless minor accidents.

Heaviest snowfall reported in Ontario was in the Woodstock area and the Wyoming district east of Sarnia. Reports from there said the snow measured 12 inches.

Police Hold Husband For Murder

Investigation Shows Woman Strangled; Row Over Marion

TORONTO — (CP)—Police said today a man arrested for questioning in the death of his wife is also being investigated for a possible connection in the two-week-old disappearance of pretty, blonde stenographer Marion McDowell

Chief Wilfred McLellan of suburban Scarborough township police named Joseph Schreiber, 30, as a suspect in the McDowell abduction case.

TORONTO — (CP)—Joseph Schreiber, 30-year-old brokerage clerk, was charged today with the murder of his wife and police said he is also being investigated for a possible connection in the disappearance of Marion McDowell.

Schreiber, a stock brokerage office worker, was taken into custody Monday night after his wife, Norma, 23, was found dead in her East-end apartment. She had been strangled.

QUARRELLED OVER MARION

Police investigation disclosed that Mrs. Schreiber worked in the photo-engraving firm's office where Marion had worked as a junior typist prior to her disappearance. They knew each other well.

Detectives said another office worker, whom they did not identify, had told them that Mr. and Mrs. Schreiber had "quarrelled over Marion" prior to the young stenographer's disappearance.

Chief McLellan, confirming his men were questioning Schreiber about the McDowell case, said "They certainly were friends and we're investigating any possible connection in the case."

SPARKED BIG SEARCH

Disappearance of Marion McDowell Dec. 6 set off one of the biggest hunts in the Toronto district, with scores of police, firemen, volunteers, dogs and spotter planes taking part.

Mrs. Schreiber's body was found in her apartment Monday night by her father-in-law, Collingwood Schreiber. He called police. Their suspicions she had been strangled

Dulles Ultimatum Infuriates France, Britain

PARIS—(AP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Council of Ministers today heard more discussion of Europe's political situation amid a storm of protest aroused by John Foster Dulles' warning that France must ratify the European army pact soon or face a United States "reappraisal" of its European policies. French officials were reported furious over the U.S. state secretary's blunt remarks, which implied that any reappraisal might involve a shift of U.S. troops and aid from Europe. Paris newspapers termed his statement a "brutal ultimatum".

In London, British newspapers of varying political shades also sharply criticized the remarks as "folly" and "best left unsaid."

Most officials were guarded or refused comment on Dulles' declaration, though Italian premier Giuseppe Pella termed it "a very courageous statement." J. W. Beyen, Dutch foreign minister, called it "very important."

"I have nothing at all to say," snapped Foreign Minister Bidault of France. Britain's Anthony Eden refused comment.

Bidault reported on the Dulles statement at a meeting of the cabinet. There was no indication, however, of the ministers' reaction. The foreign minister and Premier Laniel also reported on the recent Big Three talks in Bermuda.

Dulles spoke Monday to a press conference after addressing the opening meeting of the NATO council gathering. Informants said he made the same points to the council.

U. S. WARNING

In the strongest language yet heard at a NATO meeting, Dulles warned:

1. Unless the European Defence Community treaty is ratified quickly, the U. S. will have to "restudy" how to implement its obligations to NATO, and the disposition of U. S. troops "would, of course, be a factor in the reappraisal."

2. If the Western countries, "especially France and Germany" decide to "commit suicide" by failing to unite, "they may have to commit it alone."

AIMED AT FRENCH

Dules' threats were aimed mainly at the French, who first proposed EDC and then turned sour on the idea. They fear that the pact, which would bring 12 West German divisions into a six-power European army, would give German troops a new chance to invade France.

Yet many French leaders agree that a European army including West Germans is necessary to defend western Europe against possible Soviet attack.

Accident Delays Plane Clue, Renew Search

EDMONTON (CP) — A new clue —delayed almost three weeks by an automobile accident—today led to a renewed RCAF search for a light plane missing in northwestern Alberta with three men aboard.

The RCAF dispatched two Norseman aircraft to investigate reports of farmers in the Mayerthorpe area, about 80 miles west of Edmonton, that a small plane was seen flying in a southwest direction at tree-top level Nov. 22.

That was the night the Cessna 180 disappeared on a 275-mile flight from Grande Prairie to Edmonton. Aboard were pilot Gordon McDonald of Edmonton, Dr. Don Wilson of Grande Prairie, and Lloyd Williams, a seriously-ill polio patient for whom the trip was made.

UNLUCKY MOTORIST HAILED

When the farmers saw the low-flying craft, they hailed a passing motorist to carry the news to the RCMP at Whitecourt, 30 miles west of Mayerthorpe.

En route to Whitecourt, motorist Ralph Wagner was involved in a traffic accident and wound up in hospital.

The report did not reach the RCAF in Edmonton until Monday. They said Wagner either figured someone else had carried the report to police or that he forgot about it.

The RCAF had earlier called off its "active" search for the plane. In the first week of the hunt, about 30,000 square miles was scoured several times daily by upwards of 25 planes—both military and civilian.

Trio Attempt Kidnap Gavilan

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—The newspaper Alerta said today three men attempted to kidnap world welterweight champion Kid Gavilan Monday night and that one of the men has been arrested.

The newspaper said the attempt occurred when the Cuban boxer was leaving the Havana theatre in which he is appearing.

Police authorities confirmed that one man was arrested but refused to identify him in order not to hamper the search for the other two. The police said only he was a "very strong Negro."

Alerta says Gavilan received a letter several days ago demanding $3,000 or his daughter would be kidnapped.

BULLETIN

PARIS (Reuters) —A NATO spokesman said today that American Defence Secretary Charles Wilson told the NATO council the United States government "is prepared to seek the necessary legislative enactments that will permit the United States to share with her NATO allies pertinent information on nuclear and other new weapons."

Italian Labor Calls Second Strike In Rome

ROME (AP)—Italian labor threw another sharp strike punch today in its running battle for higher pay. Millions of industrial, construction and utilities workers walked off their jobs for 24 hours.

However, in some areas large numbers ignored the strike call, although the unions involved claimed the strike nearly 100 per cent efficient.

Police said they picked up "a few" people for causing disturbances, but otherwise no violence was reported.

It was the second general strike in five days and the third of the fall. The walkouts are held to 24 hours because neither the workers nor their unions, both Communist and anti-Red, have the money for a long strike.

Industry and building projects were the first to feel the effects of today's walkouts. These workers were ordered to stay out from 6 a.m. until the same hour Wednesday.

Construction projects in Rome were idle but some factory workers in the capital and in the industrial North reported for work. In Genoa, a government spokesman said most industries along the Ligurian coast, including Italy's largest shipyards, were idle.

Throughout the peninsula streetcars and buses halted at midmorning for the first of two three-hour stoppages. In Rome, Milan and other cities, however, the government called out special buses.

Newspapers Win First Round

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—An Australian state Supreme Court judge today rejected the first official attempt to force confidential information from a newspaper under a new law attacked as a "press gag" by its critics.

Justice William F. Owen of New South Wales struck a body blow at the presumed intention of the act by refusing to order the crusading Sydney Morning Herald to disclose the names of two city aldermen. The newspaper had reported charges of city council corruption made by the aldermen without identifying them.

In his statement today Owen said the new act did not provide a legal basis for a court order requiring the newspaper to reveal the names. Police had applied for such an order in the first attempt to make use of the new legislation.

The judge said the act gives him no authority to demand non-documentary information from the newspaper. He added that the names of the two aldermen are not documents and are allegedly known only to one or two employees of the newspaper.

ADOPT NEW CARTRIDGE

PARIS (CP) — The Atlantic alliance announced today that five of the 14 NATO nations are adopting the controversial American .30 calibre cartridge as standard small arms ammunition.

Two U.S. Air Lines Given Month Longer To Explain

OTTAWA—(CP)—Two United States air lines Colonial and Pan American, have been granted a month's extension to give reasons why their single Canada-U.S. air rotues should not be broken into two separate flights, an air transport board official said today. The airlines had been asked early last month to "show cause" why the changes should not be made. Dec. 15 was set as the deadline. However, the air lines said they could not have their cases ready by that time and the extension was granted, the official said.

The Canadian order, stemming from the Canada-U.S. controversy over a TCA Montreal-Mexico City air route, requested:

1. Pan-American World Airways system to show why its route from Seattle, Wash., to White Horse, Yukon, and on to Fairbanks, Alaska, should not be broken into two routes—Seattle to Whitehorse and return, and Fairbanks to Whitehorse and return.

2. Colonial Airlines to show why its route from Washington to Ottawa to Montreal to New York and back to Washington should not be flown as two separate routes—Washington to Ottawa to Montreal, and New York to Montreal to Ottawa.

Meanwhile, Canadian and American officials are meeting informally in Washington to resolve the air routes difficulties between the two countries.

Highway Drivers Ignore Appeal For Aid

VERNER, Ont. (CP) — Zephir Landry stood in the centre of a busy highway with his severely injured son in his arms for 15 minutes Sunday night, trying to flag down a car.

One finally stopped and took them to hospital where Maurice Landry, 12, died on the operating table.

The boy had been directing his father's truck into a lumber yard near this community 44 miles east of Sudbury when a wheel ran over a log, lifting one end into the air and pinning the boy against the wheel.

Aid To Asia "Well Spent"

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's cold-war cash aid to Asia under the Colombo Plan is "money well spent," Fisheries Minister Sinclair said Monday in an interview. He has just completed a 78-day tour of Asian countries.

Though Mr. Sinclair did not say so directly, he indicated that Canadian Colombo Plan aid won't be increased next year.

Other officials have said the government would like to increase its contribution but the money isn't available.

GIVEN $75,000,000

To date, Canada has put $75,000,000 into the Colombo Plan, Parliament voting $25,000,000 a year for the last three years. It is the biggest cash contributor to the scheme. One of the chief aims of the plan, financed mostly by Western Commonwealth countries, is to thwart communism by helping democratic Asia to improve living standards.

Mr. Sinclair headed Canada's delegation to the Colombo Plan conference at New Delhi, India, which ended Oct. 17.

Pro-Egyptian Party Wins In Sudan

KHARTOUM, Sundan (Reuters) The pro-Egyptian National Unionist party completed its electoral victory in the Sudan today with announcement of final returns for the Senate.

The Unionists won 21 of the 30 electoral seats in the upper House. Figures already announced following last month's election gave them 50 of the 97 seats in the inner chamber.

Only Digging In

Says Red High Command Not Preparing Resume War

SEOUL (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor today said the Communist high command apparently is not preparing for resumption of the Korean war.

The American commander of the 8th Army, which takes in all United Nations forces in Korea, told a press conference that Red forces evidently are digging in and preparing defensive positions on their side of the demilitarized zone.

"They are doing the same thing we do," he said.

Taylor said of his own plans in the event war does break out:

"You can assume we have plans to go north, south, east, west and up and down."

MUST CARE FOR POWS

Taylor, in a review of the problems that have faced his army since the armistice, said one unsolved difficulty is the fate of 22,500 Chinese and North Korean prisoners who have renounced communism. These PoWs, along with 335 South Korean, 22 American and one British pro-Communist captives, are held in Indian custody in the neutral zone near Panmunjom.

Taylor said he assumes the North Korean anti-Reds will be cared for by the South Korean government after Jan. 22. The Chinese, Taylor said, probably will be asked to go to Formosa, and the problem will be a matter of transportation.

Taylor conceded that prisoners requesting to go to a neutral nation "would be a problem." No plans had yet been made to settle it.

Thick Fog Grips South England

LONDON (AP) — A thick fog gripped most of southern England today, grounding planes, disrupting shipping and slowing road and rail traffic.

Unseasonal temperatures warmed much of western Europe.

In Switzerland, tourist officials and hotel keepers saw their winter sports bookings melt away before a continuing warm southerly breeze. Every Swiss ski resort is completely snowless for the first mid-December since 1922.

Berlin and Austria, however, today had freezing temperatures and prospects of a white Christmas.

Norwegians either basked or shivered. Oslo temperatures were the highest for December in 75 yars but farther inland and along the Russian border it was below freezing.

In Britain, France, Denmark, Sweden, the Netherlands and Italy, temperatures were above the pre-Christmas normal.

Two Ships Reported In Trouble Off Coast

HALIFAX (CP) — Two ships were reported in distress off the stormy south coast of Newfoundland today. Both had lost propellers.

The 697-ton Blue Prince said she was two miles off Great St. Lawrence island with her starboard engines idle. Her skipper said he would need assistance if the wind shifted to northwest. Otherwise, he indicated, he could make port with reduced speed.

The Siemering, unidentified further, was reported hove to 40 miles south of Ramea island and the United States coast guard cutter Castle Rock was speeding to her side.

Withdraws Request To Meet Gouzenko

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Pat McCarran (Dem. Nev.) has withdrawn his request to sit in on the questioning by United States Senate investigators of Igor Gouzenko, former Soviet code clerk who tipped authorities off to the Red spy ring in Canada in 1945.

McCarran, senior Democrat on the Senate internal security subcommittee, today said he had discussed with chairman William E Jenner (Rep. Ind.) the possibility of his accompanying Jenner to Canada.

"Senator Jenner said they had had a great deal of difficulty in arranging for the interview through the state department and I didn't want to add to these difficulties by insisting that I accompany them," McCarran said.

McCarran said he hopes that limitations are not placed by Canada on Gouzenko's testimony that will make it valueless. He said that such limitations took all the value out of information given in 1949 by Gouzenko to a Senate immigration sub-committee of which McCarran was chairman.

Allow Spain To Buy Arms

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain has withdrawn a ban on the export to Spain of some modern military equipment, the foreign office announced today.

This will allow Spain to buy older British jet fighters but not the latest supersonic models, the spokesman said.

Since July last year the British government has allowed Spain to buy from Britain only obsolescent and "common use" military materials.

Selwyn Lloyd, minister of state for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons Monday in a written reply that the government had decided "to relax to some extent the restrictions on the export of arms to Spain," but gave no other details.

The foreign office today said the ban has been withdrawn "for commercial reasons."

Plane Crash-Lands On Boat On Land

PRESTWICK, Scotland (AP)—A United States Air Force air-sea rescue plane crash-landed early today—on a boat on dry land. All 10 men aboard escaped injury although the boat was smashed and the plane badly damaged.

The plane, a modified B-29 Superfortress carrying a 34-foot lifeboat slung under the fuselage, developed engine trouble on a training flight over Scotland. A propeller flew off, tearing a big gash in the fuselage and knocking out the craft's electric and hydraulic systems.

Unable to let down the landing wheels, the pilot skidded in at Prestwick airport for a belly landing atop the lifeboat. The aircraft slid 1,000 yards along the runway before stopping.

First Public Potlatch Since 1880

200 Indian Chiefs Sing Songs To Dead

VICTORIA (CP) — Songs and chants to the Indian dead rose in downtown Victoria Monday as 200 chiefs from 30 British Columbia tribes gathered for the opening of Chief Napapenkim's tribal house.

It is the first public potlatch held among B.C. Indians since 1880. They were outlawed because lavish gift-giving, an integral part of Indian ceremonies, was impoverishing the tribes.

The tribal house, built by the Kwatkiutl chief—Mungo Martin in everyday life—was open only to Indians and selected guests. Outside the public listened to the chants.

Four songs were sung to the memory of each tribesman who has died since 1951, when the last private potaltch was held.

Inside, guests sat with eyes smarting from the smoke of the council fire.

MINISTERS GUESTS TODAY

Cabinet ministers, government officials and a wide range of selected guests will be admitted today. The public will be invited tomorrow.

After the mourning songs, the Indians put on cedar - bark headdresses, signalling that the "winter dance" season had begun. With the headgear, the Indians also adopted their winter names by which they will be called until the summer dance season opens next year.

After the mourning and "winter dance" ceremony, came the cradle ceremony, performed by a granddaughter of the chief. A huge, brightly-painted cradle hung over the heads of the singers, rocked back and forth by men pulling long ropes.

Then men and women, red-eyed from the smoke, filed across the street to a cabaret, where the ceremonial banquet was held.

Martin is one of the few totem pole carvers left in B. C.

In the tradition of his tribe, Martin climbed to the roof to announce the potlatch and housewarming. A modern machine was employed to hoist into place in front of the house an imposing, 38-foot totem pole, carved with the assistance of his son, David.

Oats Exports To Be Cut Next Year

Canada Reluctantly Takes Move On Shipments to U.S.

OTTAWA—(CP) — Canada has agreed, reluctantly, to cut oats exports to the United States by about half next year. The decision, announced Monday in the Commons by Trade Minister Howe, will limit shipments of Canadian oats to the U.S. to 23,000,000 bushels between Dec. 11, 1953, and Oct. 1, 1954. In the corresponding 1952-53 period, Canada exported about 50,000,000 bushels.

Mr. Howe said the government had been forced to make this decision "as the lesser of evils." It followed a recommendation to President Eisenhower by the U.S. tariff commission that because of domestic surpluses and U.S. price-support programs, imports should be restricted.

Mr. Howe tabled an exchange of notes between the two countries and noted that the matter had been discussed at a preliminary meeting here Dec. 4 of the newly-formed Canada-U.S. joint economic and trade committee.

U.S. SUGGESTION

The U.S. suggested the 23,000,000 bushel limitation and noted that Canada supplies nearly all U.S. oats imports.

Canada agreed to the quota, though it "attaches the greatest importance to the extension of mutually profitable trade between our two countries and to avoidance of restrictions which would interfere with such trade."

The Canadian note added: "The Canadian government wishes to make clear that it will reconsider the decision . . . in the event that substantial quantities of oats are imported into the U.S. from other countries during the period in question."

Mr. Howe said "it is not a limitation which should cause significant concern to the producers of oats during the short period it is in effect. Oats are not in over-abundant supply in Canada."

Canada reaped a 466,000,000-bushel oat crop in 1952, of which about 373,000,000 bushels were used in Canada. This year the crop was 405,500,000 bushels.

Daley To Talk Over Mine Situation

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Labor Minister Daley said today he would talk over the Timmins mine situation with several individuals on both sides of the dispute this week.

He said he planned to "find out what they're thinking" about the deadlock caused Monday by opposition of Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines to Mr. Daley's formula for settlement. After these individual discussions he would consider further moves.

He has set no date to meet either management or union representatives formally.

Speared Fish Three Fined, Lose Boat, Gear

Three members of a fishing party who chose the wrong method and wrong time to go fishing, each parted with $106 in fines and costs in the magistrate's court Tuesday.

A further penalty was the confiscation of a large boat, 22 h.p. motor, cushions, paddles, spotlight pitchfork, spear and a tarpaulin, by the Conservation Department.

The accused were Donald LaFonte of Peterborough, Gordon Finlay, Rockcroft and Gerald Simmons of Katchacoma lake, who were convicted by Magistrate W. R. Philp, Q.C., on charges of fishing out of season and of using artificial light to take fish.

Conservation Officer Ray Simpson said that on the night of November 2, in company with Deputy Game Warden Carl Adams, he had apprehended the three men fishing for trout off the spawning beds in Lake Katchacoma. They were using an artificial light and spears and admitted their guilt.

5 Change Plea To Guilty

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (AP) — Five youths, accused of third-degree assault in connection with the beating of a fellow prisoner at the Niagara county jail, changed their pleas Monday from not guilty to guilty.

County judge Frank J. Kronenberg ordered them jailed pending sentencing. They were Pte. Miles Brewer, 20, of Endicott, N. Y. and Pte. Clyde H. Sanders, 19, of Bennington, Vt., soldiers stationed at Ft. Niagara; Ernest Burning, 17, of the Six Nations Indian reservation, Brantford, Ont.; James R. Mordick, 20, of North Tonawanda, N. Y., and Charles D. Cather, 18, of Franklin, Pa.

All were accused of beating Theodore Lear, 16, of State College, Pa.

7½ inches of snow.

Official forecasts issued by the Dominion public weather office in Toronto at 9:30 a.m.:

Synopsis:

The first real cold snap of the season is starting to grip southern Ontario this Tuesday morning.

The storm which brought Monday's snow is now a large whirlpool of air with its centre in southern Quebec. Northerly winds circling around the west side of the vast low pressure area will bring Arctic air from Northern Ontario down into the lower lakes regions, and temperatures will drop steadily during the day. Wednesday will see continuing cold weather but winds will diminish during tonight.

Regional forecasts valid until Wednesday midnight:

Lake Erie, Lake Ontario and Niagara regions; Windsor, Toronto and Hamilton: Cloudy and cold with occasional snowflurries today; mostly cloudy and continuing cold Wednesday, winds northwest 20 today, light on Wednesday; low tonight and high Wednesday at Windsor, and St. Thomas 20 and 32, Toronto, Trenton, Hamilton and St. Catharines 25 and 32. Summary for Wednesday: Continuing cold.

Northern Georgian bay, Haliburton, Kirkland Lake and Timmins-Kapuskasing regions, North Bay and Sudbury: Mostly cloudy and very cold with occasional light snowflurries today and Wednesday; winds northwest 20 today, northwest 15 Wednesday; low tonight and high Wednesday at Killaloe 5 below and 10 above, Earlton 15 below and zero, North Bay and Sudbury 10 below and 5 above, Kapuskasing 13 below and 5 below.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2⅞ per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Monday's noon rate was 97 3-16 cents. Pound sterling $2.73 1-16, against $2.73¼.

Textile Industry Shows No Improvement

MONTREAL (CP)—Business in the Canadian cotton textile industry in 1953 showed practically no improvement from 1952 when domestic mills obtained less than 50 per cent of the home market, J. I. Roy, president of the Cotton Institute of Canada, said today.

Addressing the institute's annual meeting, Mr. Roy said a recovery in late 1952 and early 1953 was not sustained and production and employment figures were much the same now as they were last year.

"In 1952 we supplied 49 per cent of the Canadian market for cotton fabrics . . . compared with 60 per cent in 1951, 62 per cent in 1950 and 1945-49 average of 54 per cent."

Mr. Roy said cotton is still the most popular of all fibres and an increased Canadian population is bringing about an increase in the volume of cotton goods used in this country.

IMPORT TRIPLED

"But the Canadian industry has not been able to increase output in keeping with the growing market. Expansion . . . has been filled by imports.

"The Canadian industry now is supplying no more than it did in pre-war days while imports have almost tripled."

Referring to U. S. imports, Mr. Roy said even a small proportion of U. S. production "looms large" when unloaded on Canadian markets.

In 1952, he said, U. S. mills obtained some relief by sending to Canada only two per cent of their 9,500,000,000-yard fabric production. To the hard-pressed Canadian industry this represented 215,000,000 yards of business and "equalled 90 per cent of our own cotton fabric output."

ADEQUATE SAFEGUARDS

Mr. Roy forecast an aggressive effort by the Japanese industry to push its textiles here once a trade treaty, now being negotiated, is signed.

"The Canadian cotton textile industry does not seek unreasonable protection from fair and healthy competition. Our tariffs now are among the lowest in the world. This makes it all the more necessary for us to have adequate safeguards to ensure that the terms of trade are fair."

Contractors Plan Registration

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Electrical Contractors Association decided Monday to set up a registration system for its own members.

George Risedale of Niagara Falls announced after a closed meeting that it was decided there should be some form of control over electrical contractors.

He said members will have to pass examinations on their ability and the quality of their work and will be graded according to their qualifications.

Licence Granted To Sell Milk, Meat

Margaret H. Lewis, operator of Marg's cabins, at the north end of Water St., has had her application for meat and milk vending licences approved by the city finance committee.

The licences were granted Monday night after MOH Dr. J. P. Wells presented favorable reports concerning the facilities at the store. Previous criticism of this establishment by Dr. Wells did not include the meat and milk vending facilities on the basis of their sanitary condition, but because these products were being sold without a licence, Dr. Wells told the Examiner today.

Dulles

HITS ITALY, BRITAIN

Dulles' blast also appeared aimed at Italy and Britain. The Italian government has threatened to hold up action on EDC until settlement of its dispute with Yugoslavia over Trieste. Britain has turned down French pleas that she ally herself unreservedly with the pact to prevent German domination of the organization.

The Paris newspaper l'Aurore, normally pro-American, described Dulles' statement as "heartbreaking" and accused him of "a complete lack of diplomacy."

In Britain, The Manchester Guardian, a Liberal paper with independent views, commented: "It would be folly, simply because of failure to agree immediately on arming Germany, to tear down the defences which have been built in Europe since 1950. The suicide would be America's as much as Europe's."

The pro-Conservative London Daily Telegraph said Dulles' "outburst" would have been "better left unsaid." The Daily Mirror said by wielding a "big stick Mr. Dulles has given a boost to Russia's ambition" of wooing West Europe from the U. S.

Hitler Planned To Let Stalin Have Castle

FRANKFURT (Reuters)—Hitler was so impressed by the Red army's stand at Stalingrad that he decided to let Stalin live in captivity in "the most beautiful castle in Germany."

An extract from Nazi foreign minister Jachim von Ribbentrop's memoirs, published here today, mentions the plan.

Ribbentrop wrote his memoirs, "between London and Moscow," while on trial and later awaiting execution after his war-crimes trial.

He says he tried several times in 1942 to persuade Hitler to negotiate with Stalin. Hitler refused, but after the German defeat at Stalingrand he spoke of Stalin with great respect. Stalin was his "great opponent, militarily and in his conception of the world."

Russia Has Developed Rocket-Driven Fighter

LONDON—(AP)—Jane's "All The World's Aircraft," unofficial but authoritative annual publication, said Monday Russia has developed a rocket-driven fighter plane to defend vital targets from fast, high-altitude bombers. Jane's also said the Soviet aircraft industry now has about 360 factories at its command, plus factories in some of its satellite countries.

The publication said the new Soviet interceptor is a single-seat monoplane powered by an improved version of the Walther rocket motor produced in Germany during the Second World War. It is obviously aimed as a chief defence against strategic bombers which could attack key Russian centres with atomic bombs, such as the U.S. air force's B-47s and the new B-52s.

It is believed to have been inspired by the Messerschmitt 163 which Germany turned out near the end of the Second World War.

The Russians are known to have got hold of this plane when they took over the area of Eastern Germany where it was being produced.

Jane's substantiated previous reports that the Russians are producing a long-range bomber big enough to carry atomic bombs. The publication said the plane has a range of 7,650 miles and a speed of 415 miles an hour.

Snowfall Makes Salesmen Pause Before Trip

Conversation took on a familiar note of midwinter among district salesmen of General Motors in concern today about motoring conditions, and road effect on attendance at a two-day conference at the Empress Hotel.

On Sunday people were motoring in all directions including Bancroft and Minden. This morning it had become a question of wisdom in taking off from the district fringes for Peterborough.

R. J. Kerr, Toronto, field supervisor for the district, said attendance would probably be somewhat fewer than Monday, although late arrivals were expected. The area from which these sales staffs were meeting was generally from Bancroft to Oshawa and easterly to Colborne.

Discussion of the 1954 models of Chevrolet took up Monday, and today's lunch was sandwiched between talks on the Pontiac.

21 PARTIES

Incidentally, Empress has booked twenty-one dinner and luncheon parties for this week. The range in the number of guests is from ten to 300, indicating a festive activity of the Christmas and year-end season.

Clearing ouse staff dinner is listed for 30 guests, Comstocks party and dance 60, both Wednesday evening. Chamber of Commerce 20 guests.

The annual Golden Mile party of the Soroptomist Club, for elderly guests, is Thursday for 60 covers. Automobile Club 15; Our Lady of Fatima division of the Catholic Women's League is for 50.

Two of the affairs for Friday are the luncheon of the Life Underwriters, and in the evening CGE Foremen's Association dance in the Kawartha Room at 7 p.m.

Wire and Cable Club of CGE expect 300 for their dance Saturday night. The others for the week are private luncheons and dinners some women have arranged for guests.

Rotary Club's Ladies Night Monday, Dec. 21 is for 200; a Quaker Oats group is for 25. A Massey-Harris dealers dinners and dance on Dec. 22 is for 40 guests. Miss Lois Carnhan will be hostess to 25 guests.

Canadian Sealrite dinner-dance, Wed., Dec. 23 will have an attendance of 100.

Office Parties Said Illegal

TORONTO (CP) — A warning against office parties during the Christmas season was issued today by officials of the Ontario liquor control board.

It is not always the drunk driver who gets into trouble, officials said. Often it is the driver who has consumed one or two drinks while celebrating the season at an office party.

The board will continue its two-year-old policy of refusing to issue banquet permits for parties in offices or other business places.

Office parties at which liquor is consumed are illegal, officials declared and the organizer and those attending the party are breaking the liquor laws although they may not be aware of this.

Propose Great Britain Take Neutral Role

LONDON (Reuters)—A group of 30 back-bench Labor members of Parliament today proposed that Britain take a neutral role in the cold war—like India—and disclaim the United States policy of negotiating for peace from a position of strength.

"Every week makes it clearer that the Americans cannot negotiate this kind of interim agreement from the strength that has been build up," they said in a statement issued at a House of Commons press conference.

The group is led by left-wingers Fenner Brockway, Sir Richard Acland and Leslie Hale.

The group urged that Britain cut down on her "unnecessary" defence spending, and thus cut the "inescapable economic bonds" with the United States.

Six Missing Now Presumed To Have Died

OTTAWA (CP)—The army today transferred the last six names on its list of soldiers missing in Korea to the category of "presumed to have died of enemy action."

The transfer is undertaken when an exhaustive investigation indicates no trace that the missing man still is living. It is made so that it will be legal to release the estate of the missing man to his beneficiary.

Today's list was No. 206 of the Korean war and left 15 names on the presumed dead listing.

ARMY TOTAL IS 1,543

The army's list of casualties suffered by Canadian troops now stands at 1,543. This includes 256 killed in action, 15 presumed dead, 38 dead of wounds, 1,101 wounded, 101 injured in action, and 32 returned from prisoner-of-war.

In addition the RCAF has reported one officer—Sqdn. Ldr. A. R. (Andy) MacKenzie of Montreal—missing, and the navy reported two killed in action, one dead of wounds, three injured in action, one accidentally drowned and two missing at sea.

The list of those previously reported missing, now officially presumed dead:

Bear, Marcel, Pte., RCR, Leask, Sask.

Burak, John Nicholas, Pte., RCR, Calgary.

Cusson, Florian Wilfrid Aurey, Pte., Royal 22nd Regiment, Sutton, Que.

Girard, Hermel, Pte., Royal 22nd Regiment, Kenogami, Que.

Keating, John Paul, Pte., RCE; Mrs. Theresa Keating (mother), 6 Bertmount Ave., Toronto.

Walker, Gordon William Morrison, Sgt., RCR, Montreal.

Prices Move Lower On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP)—Prices moved lower in light early afternoon stock market trading today.

Utilities, agricultures, banks, steels and foods were the strong industrials. Papers, refining oils and manufactures showed mixed.

Holding companies were the lowest golds as Placer led them downward with a 50-cent loss. McIntyre was the strong senior with a 75-cent gain.

Uraniums were much lower. Bathurst-area base metals were also lower in light trading.

Western oil price changes were slight. Merril continued upward with a five-cent gain. Calvan led with a 20-cent gain.

Base metal seniors led the group downward with losses ranging to Noranda's 75 cents. Jnior losses were smaller.

were confirmed following an autopsy by Dr. E. C. Fielder who said her death was due to asphyxiation through strangulation.

SEPARATED RECENTLY

The Schreibers were married about two years ago, police said, but had separated about three weeks ago.

Investigating officers said Mrs. Schreiber's body lay on top of an unmade bed. It was clad in a grey skirt and a blue sweater.

Bruises police found on her throat made them suspicious about the cause of her death.

Detectives who were called to the Silver Birch avenue apartment said they found Schreiber in the apartment building and immediately took him into custody for questioning.

Richard Tranter Winning In Burleigh Vote

APSLEY (Staff) — Richard Tranter of Woodview has a substantial lead over Vernal Young of Apsley for the fourth council seat on the Burleigh-Anstruther township council.

Two of the three township polls have been heard from and the total, at press time today, gives Mr. Tranter 122 votes and Mr. Young 57. Even if everybody eligible voted Monday at the third poll — Fred Hull's home, north Stony lake region—it would not be sufficient to reverse the present standing. There are only about 40 votes there.

The three other councillors were returned by acclamation at the nomination meeting on Nov. 27. They were Earl Trotter, Albert Bolton and Douglas Dunford, all former councillors.

SPECIAL MEETING

As only three of the four vacancies were filled at the Nov. 27 nomination meeting, a special nomination meeting had to be called Dec. 5 to fill the single vacancy. It was contested by two newcomers to Burleigh-Anstruther politics — Mr. Tranter, a storekeeper from Woodview, and Mr. Young a trucker from Apsley.

In the election Monday the village gave Mr. Young only a slight edge, 56 votes to 52. But the growing community of Woodview loyal to Mr. Tranter, gave him an overwhelming majority of 70 votes to one.

This makes a total of 122 Tranter votes and 57 Young votes.

Elected officials for 1954 in Burleigh-Anstruther:

Reeve—Sidney McCauley (acclamation).

Council—Earl Trotter, Albert Bolton, and Douglas Dunford (acclamation), and Richard Tranter.

Trustee—Donald Fowler (acclamation).

Norman Wilson, reeve of the township for the last nine years, dropped out of the running this year. And Mr. McCauley, a car salesman in Apsley, was acclaimed.

Mine Company Rejects Gov't Proposal

TIMMINS (CP)—Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines has rejected a government-backed plan to end a strike by 1,500 of its workers.

An official of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), which called the strike 11 weeks ago to enforce demands for a "substantial" wage increase and the checkoff of union dues, said Monday night the union is prepared to continue the walkout until next summer if necessary.

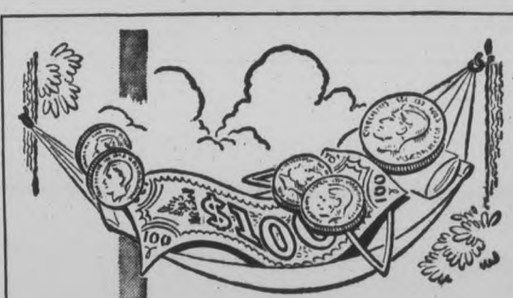
The settlement proposal, accepted last week by the union and turned down Monday by Hollinger president Jules Timmins, called for a general wage increase of five cents an hour and the setting up of a provincially-appointed committee to inquire into the economics of the gold mining industry.

Mr. Timmins said the company wants a two-year contract rather than the one-year term proposed in the settlement plan. He refused to agree to a proposal that working conditions "remain in status quo."

MINISTER DISAPPOINTED

Labor Minister Daley said Monday night the company's past practice of depositing cheques in banks for about 40 per cent of its employees was one of the things he hoped to see continued by the proposal for the "status quo." The union had suggested it might arrange for the banks to switch dues from the workers' to the union's account.

Mr. Daley said in Toronto he was disappointed by the company's rejection, which Eamon Park, a union official, Monday night described as an act of nose-thumbing at Premier Frost and the provincial government.



"I'm going to see some more people," said Mr. Daley. "I'm going to see if I can't change their thinking."

COSTLY BUSINESS

Mr. Park, addressing the Toronto Labor Council (CIO-CCL), accused the operators of Hollinger and seven other struck mines in the Timmins district of trying to use the severe northern winter to starve out the 5,000 miners. He said the strike is costing the union upwards of $100,000 a week and costs are going to rise.

"The miners will fight as long as necessary," he said. "Have no fear of the solidarity of the striking miners."

Prospects of a merry Christmas in this gold camp dimmed with the Hollinger rejection. William Mahoney, assistant national director of the union, said the dispute "now becomes one between the company and the people of Ontario as represented by the government."

Roseneath WMS Meets '53 Allocations

ROSENEATH —(ENS)— Roseneath W.M.S. met their Allocation for 1953 in full," reported Mrs. J. A. Nichol, treasurer at their December meeting. The money has been sent to the treasurer of Cobourg Presbyterial WMS.

Receipts from the bazaar held the previous week assisted greatly in meeting the Allocation.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. A. J. Campbell, president Mrs. J. N. Lovelace presided with Mrs. C. W. Varcoe as pianist.

Mrs. J. N. Lovelace conducted a Christmas meditation, with scripture readings by Mrs. Fred Lewis and the singing of Christmas carols.

"Stewardship" was the theme of the talk given by Mrs. T. S. Coyle. Mrs. A. J. Campbell, temperance secretary, presented a report of that department.

Plans were made for the monthly meetings for 1954 and the members offered their homes for the various meetings through the coming year.

During the program period Christmas readings were given by Mrs. Delbert Brisbin and Mrs. A. J. Campbell. Misses Mary Halstead and Carloe McMillan played a piano duet.

The hostess served afternoon tea.

Pupils Guests At WA Christmas Meeting

ROSENEATH— (ENS) — The pupils of Woodvale public school, S.S. 1 and 25, were guests of Centenary W.A. at their Christmas meeting in the church.

The vice-president, Mrs. Silas Sherwin presided and welcomed the children.

A devotional period in keeping with Christmas was in charge of Mrs. Arnold Elder.

The treasurer, Mrs. Reginald Timlin reported a balance on hand of $71.14. Mrs. Leo Timlin, good cheer convener, reported having remembered twenty-nine persons. Reports were presented by conveners of talent money, birthday money and aprons. A number of cash donations were received.

The Rev. J. R. Wheeler gave a talk on being good at Christmas.

The program was as follows: chorus by the school pupils; vocal solo by Cathy Davidson; story by Mrs. Ernest Burrison; Christmas poems by Mrs. Walton Lean, Mrs. Hilton Lint on and Miss Emma Sherwin.

Mrs. Silas Sherwin and Mrs. Ernest Burrison were in charge of the exchange of Christmas gifts. Mrs. Bruce Arthur and Mrs. Walton Lean looked after the children's treat. Lunch was served.

Douro Assessor LeavesFor Petawawa

Douro Council last week accepted the resignation of the township assessor, Joseph Moher, who is moving to Petawawa.

Fred Crowe was appointed to the Peterborough High School Board, and Max Wilson a member of the Lakefield District High School Board.

The following accounts were passed for payment: General accounts of the township, $1,356.56; relief, $254; roads, $707.23.

Council agreed to transfer a part of the road allowance to Thomas Lawlor, who in turn is to grant a sufficient piece of land to provide a right-of-way 66 feet wide. Costs are to be borne by Mr. Lawlor.

Willing Workers Hold Christmas Party

HALLS GLEN (ENS) — The Willing Workers held their Christmas meeting in The Hall.

President Mrs. Wm. Crowe welcomed the neighbor's and friends and conducted the business period.

Mrs. Henry Little, secretary, read cards of appreciation. Baskets of fruit and Christmas cards were authorized to be sent to the shut-ins.

George Dyson led in prayer and Mrs. Crowe presided over the Christmas program which included singing Christmas carols. Piano, violin and accordian selections were played.

Lunch was served including a Christmas cake made and donated by Mrs. Garfield Crowe.

Appeal Denied By Judge Of Driving Fine

An appeal against a magistrate's conviction on a charge of careless driving was dismissed in county court Monday in a written judgment by Judge John de N. Kennedy.

As a result of the dismissal, John Loucks of 301 Townsend St., remains convicted and must pay a fine of $15 and costs.

It was the first appeal in Peterborough County court since Mr. Justice Gale of the Ontario Appeal Court ruled that the standard wording of the careless driving charge was, in effect, two charges.

The wording was "driving without due care and attention or without using reasonable consideration for other persons using the highway. Driving "without due care and attention" was a different charge than the "without rasonable consideration" for others provision, Mr. Justice Gale ruled.

Latching onto this, W. J. Arthur Fair, QC, defence counsel, appealed on the newly-established grounds of duplicity.

NOT AT TRIAL

However, Judge Kennedy turned down a move for outright dismissal of the case when he heard the appeal. He said that while it was true the two sections were quoted in the careless driving charge, and there was duplicity in the wording, Mr. Fair had not objected on these grounds at the original trial in magistrate's court.

Judge Kennedy said that the Crown counsel must decide which of these two provisions Loucks was to be charged under. So the information, on which the charge was listed, was amended to read "without reasonable consideration for other persons using the highway."

Loucks was held responsible for a chain reaction accident on the night of June 19 when four cars and a truck were in collision on Highway 7, a mile north of the city. Two women received cuts and bruises and damage was assessed at about $1,400.

The appeiant was driving south on the highway, passed a pickup truck driven by Alvin Stoneburg of 611 McKellar St., struck the left front fender of an oncoming car driven by William E. (Cy) Green of 731 Donegal St., and bounced back to the west side of highway, striking Stoneburg's truck. The car then veered over to the east side of the road again and hit Francis King's car which was also northbound. Loucks' vehicle finally ran off the east side of the road and crashed into an elm tree.

A third northbound car, driven by Bernard Langen of 623 Little St., ran into the rear of Green's car, and King ran into the rear of Langen's car.

Loucks blamed the blowout of a front left tire for making his car go out of control. He also claimed that the Stoneburg truck had bumped him.

"I'm not prepared to accept the evidence of the appelant as to what happened," said Judge Kennedy. And he confirmed the conviction and fine by Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC.

WHO'S EXCITED? — Safe in the arms of a fireman, Glenna Bayless, winsome 14-month-old miss, enjoys a bottle of warm milk, apparently oblivious to the fact that only a few minutes before she had dived from a third storey window and landed on a concrete porch at her home in Cincinnati, Ohio. At right, the diagram shows the course of her fall from which she miraculously escaped with a leg injury.

Deliver Half Carload Of Fall Wheat Daily

Farmers of the district centring upon Peterborough are averaging half a carload of fall wheat in daily deliveries to the Quaker Oats Co. The price is $1.53 in market that is finding flour sales slow around the world. Until recently the price was around $1.55.

There are nothing to report this morning at the mills on the action of the government in limiting to 23,000,000 the export of Canadian oats to the United States from now until Oct. 1, 1954. The action by trade minister C. D. Howe is evidently designed to disarm demands by U.S. grain growers for limitation of import oats, and also the U.S. government's concern for its agricultural program.

The larger part of the volume of Canadian exports is from the western provinces. Exports to the U.S. for the first nine months of this year were 41,015,589 bushels of the total export of 44,366,600.

Dies At 113

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP)—Stephens Hawes, believed to be 113 years old, died Monday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Eddie Lowery. Mrs. Lowery said she understood her father was born Feb. 29, 1840.

Hurry Up!

COBOURG (ENS)—Monday's snow was not the only omen of the rapid approach of Christmas and a warning to shoppers to get on with it. By coincidence, the large Christmas tree, placed in front of the town hall every year, was put up on the first day of a definite break in the weather.

Will Remember Girl In Blue

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio (AP) — Willoughby's lonely "girl in blue" will be remembered by a cemetery visit this Christmas Eve, just as she has been for 20 years.

Dec. 24, 1933. The girl, who was never identified, threw herself in front of an express train. This year, as they have every year since, townspeople will spread flowers on her grave.

Wearing a dark blue topcoat, a navy blue skirt, a light blue sweater and a dark blue turban hat, the girl got off a bus from Cleveland that depression year and took a room at the home of Mrs. Mary Judd.

Later, she went to the door and wished Mrs. Judd a "Merry Christmas." Those were the last words anybody reported hearing her say.

Residents, failing to learn her identity despite widespread reports of the tragedy, buried her and marked the grave with a three-foot granite headstone. It read:

"In memory of the girl in blue, killed by train, unknown but not forgotten, December 24, 1933."

Annexation Protest Threatened By Reeve

HAMILTON (CP)—Reeve Burton E. Corman, of Saltfleet township, said today he believed that the township and the residents affected by the city's proposed 2,600-acre annexation would carry their protest to the Ontario legislature if the Ontario municipal board approved the application.

It appeared possible also that the controversial issue would come before Hamilton city council once more—it passed last year by one vote—and that the outcome might be different this year.

Hope Priest Still Alive In Arctic Area

WINNIPEG (CP) — Somewhere in the Arctic vastness, among the Eskimos whose tongue he speaks, is Oblate Father Joseph Buliard. If he lives.

More than a year has passed since supplies have reached the French missionary of the Roman Catholic Oblate Order, a message received here from his superiors says.

A note was sent from Churchill, Man., for broadcast to Father Buliard on the CBC's "Northern Messenger" program Friday night.

Since that time nothing more has been heard here, although it's possible the missionary has since been found alive and well in his vast Northwest Territories domain.

FOOLED FOLKS BEFORE

One before Father Buliard, who is about 39, fooled those who believed he had perished in the north.

For seven months in 1949 he was unreported as he treked over thousands of miles with an Eskimo tribe.

Father Buliard was located by a bush pilot and flown to Churchill for medical treatment. His arms and legs were frozen. After recovering he returned to the North.

Break Store Window; Two Face Charges

COBOURG (ENS)—Charged with damaging property, Alex Ferguson, 25, and Edward McKenzie, 19, of Cobourg, were remanded for a week.

The two were jostling one another in front of a Main Street store window Sunday afternoon and one of them fell against the window and broke it. Police said the pair fled, but a passerby saw what had happened and notified the police.

During their remand period they are to see about restitution.

Medical Society Hears Toronto Doctors

COBOURG (ENS)—The Northumberland-Durham Medical Society was addressed by Dr. George Smith, who is on the staff of the Toronto General Hospital. He gave a talk on the management of diabetes.

A second paper was given by Dr. McAllister Johnston, also of the staff, on the management of overactive thyroid in general practice.

The speakers were introduced and thanked by Dr. J. B. Benson, Port Hope, president of the Medical Society.

6 Months Co-Op Sales Of Houses $500,000

Co-operative selling of real estate totalled $500,000 for the six months ending Nov. 30. At that rate the experiment of last June may build up a business of $1,000,000 for the round period of one year.

Co-op sales in November amounted to $136,000, stimulated by mild weather.

One of the slogans of the realtors runs like this: "It's no cinch to sell a house in a snow-storm." Not that it is actually a seasonal business, but fine weather is a big help.

Suspension Of Talks Called US Manoeuvre

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio today claimed the American suspension of the Panmunjom talks on a Korean peace conference as part of "the long-term manoeuvres of the United States for wrecking the armistice in Korea."

A broadcast heard here stated: "The talks in Panmunjom on the convocation of a political conference lasted for over a month and a half.

"The U.S. delegation tried all the time deliberately to prolong the talks and lead them into endless pettifogging and discussion.

"It did not stop at anything, from slander to direct threats. The Korean-Chinese delegation displayed, in the circumstances, exceptional peaceful intentions."

Prize-Winning Writer M. Rawlings Dies

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings, 57, Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist, died at a hospital here Monday night. Over the week-end she complained of indigestion and was taken to hospital.

The native of Washington, D. C., won the Pulitzer Prize in 1939 with her novel, "The Yearling."

Confidence And Income Tax Papers

An interesting case at present before the Supreme Court of Canada brings up a point which is of public concern. Comment on the case would be out of order, but we may fittingly rehearse the outlines of it: a British Columbia court ordered Income Tax officials to produce tax returns relating to several people who had been charged with keeping a betting office, which the officials refused to do; the B.C. Appeal Court insisted that the papers be brought forth, and the Department of National Revenue thereupon asked the Supreme Court to decide the matter. The question is: should the Department of National Revenue, under any circumstances, reveal information which has been given to it in confidence?

* * *

There is a great deal to be said on both sides, and it is pretty well established that courts should be empowered to demand any documents which may be relevant to a case in hand. But there is also the assurance which has been built up over many years by the Department of National Revenue that information which reaches it on tax returns is as secret as any information can be which must pass through many hands. It is extremely important that public confidence in this secrecy should not be shaken. It is also a fact that if this secrecy is not inviolable, much more widespread dishonesty than any which now exists would affect income tax returns. At present, to put the matter bleakly, it is easier for a crook to admit to his crooked gains and pay taxes on them, than it is for him to run the risk of concealing some of his income. If he thinks that the Department of National Revenue, as well as the law, will be against him if he is caught, he will try to conceal some of his income, and the Department will have the trouble of tracing the missing money, and making him pay up.

* * *

Admittedly this is not a particularly savoury situation. Nobody likes to think that a government department winks at dishonesty so long as it gets its money. But this may be a lesser evil than what would result from making Income Tax returns available to courts on demand. If the Income Tax Act should be revised to give the courts wider privileges in this matter we may hope that something will be done to protect the secrecy of the Revenue Department in all except the most vitally necessary instances.

When Is A Wheelhorse Not A Wheelhorse

Although Senate reform is a hardy perennial topic for editorial discussion, we have never known so much to be written about it as during the past three months. The ideas are familiar enough which our contemporaries express; they all want the Prime Minister to break away from the custom of appointing supporters of the party in power to Senate seats, and they all urge upon him the moral grandeur and patriotic desirability of appointing men and women to the Senate who are not known for their political affiliations. As the press is predominantly Conservative in Canada, we think that the first of these suggestions does the utmost credit to their generosity of spirit. If they wanted to be petty they would wait until a Conservative Prime Minister had to make some Senate appointments, and then they would urge him to take the opportunity to show himself superior to party considerations. The other suggestion seems to us to be impracticable: we have never heard of a Canadian of any talent whatever who did not have some kind of political affiliation. Just as there is no Canadian who is not an adherent of some religious faith, there is no Canadian who is without politics.

Another characteristic of these editorials which interests us is the interesting phraseology which is used to describe Senate appointees under the present system. They are all, it appears, 'party wheelhorses' or 'party hacks'. May we enquire whether the eight Senators who sit on the Opposition side of the House are also wheelhorses, or is it only Liberal appointees who are entitled to that humble description? Suppose that Mr. St. Laurent were to yield to the pleas of the press, and appoint several gentlemen and ladies to the Senate who had been active in the Conservative cause—would these appointees be wheelhorses? We ask, because the term is used so often that we should like to have it properly defined: is any man who has devoted much of his time and energy to a political party a wheelhorse, or is he only a wheelhorse when he is a Liberal Senator? If the latter is correct, we suggest as a riddle for the Christmas Season, When is a wheelhorse not a wheelhorse? Answer: when he's a Tory statesman.

The Flag Issue Dropped

On Wednesday last the matter of a distinctive flag for Canada was raised by Mr. Bona Arsenault, M.P. for Bonaventure, and dropped by vote of the Commons after three hours of discussion. On Monday of this week Mr. Arsenault entered a new bill on this subject which will be debated after Christmas. We wonder what the member of Bonaventure thinks he will achieve?

Talk of a Canadian flag merely exacerbates the feelings of people who have some sort of nationalist axe to grind. It rouses those who are determined that, whatever happens, there shall be no Union Jack in a new design; it rouses to equal heights of fanaticism those who insist that a Canadian flag without a Union Jack in it is unthinkable; it rouses people who want a beaver, a maple leaf, a fleur-de-lis or some other symbol incorporated into a flag design; it rouses those who want the Red Ensign recognized as our official standard; it rouses those who want the Union Jack, and nothing else. It does nothing whatever for Canadian patriotism; it is, at present, simply an annoying and divisive parliamentary time-waster.

The best flags are those which grow. There are flags which, devised in the white heat of some national crisis, are quickly covered with glory and loved for their associations. There are other flags which, like the Union Jack, have evolved, without much attention having been paid to the gradual process, and which are loved as symbols of accumulated glory. We cannot, at the moment, think of a flag which was devised by a designer and approved by a legislative body, which counts for very much in the world. Canada, which is a great and growing country, will probably evolve a flag of her own, given time. Meanwhile, the flag issue merely serves to waste time and create bad temper.

It All Depends Who Says It

Sir Winston Churchill says some very amusing things. We were somewhat astonished, however, to read that during the Bermuda conference some photographers approached Churchill, Eisenhower and Laniel, and when Sir Winston said, "Don't come too close, this land is mined", there were roars of laughter. Monsieur Laniel looked puzzled, though Mr. Eisenhower laughed heartily. Bystanders split their sides, and the remark was much quoted in the press as a prime example of the Winstonian wisecrack.

Beside its inherent wit, the timing of a joke has much to do with its success, and so does the previous reputation of the person who makes it. There are people who have become so famous for saying funny things that everything they may say is greeted with laughter. Mark Twain often complained that he was the victim of his own reputation; whenever he spoke, people laughed, just to be on the safe side. But Churchill is not a professional humourist; he can do better than his very mild Bermudian bit of fun suggests, and we think it would be courteous to save our guffaws for his superior efforts.

The Faithful Sentry

The case of Private Raymond L. Cote, of the U.S. army in Germany, has been widely discussed during the past week. During some recent manoeuvres in the Frankfort district he was put on duty to guard some pontoons on the Rhine. Whoever posted him forgot about him, and he remained at his post for two days and nights without a relief, by which time he had eaten all his rations and was showing fatigue. It was another forty-eight hours before he was relieved, during which time neighbouring Germans helped him out with food and drink.

There has been a tendency to regard him as a joke, but we think that he is to be admired. He carried out his orders, which he probably knew to be the result of a mistake, with a deep sense of responsibility. His colonel has commended him for his "strong sense of duty, judgement and dependability".

Mistakes are common enough in armies, but no army can survive if every soldier begins to debate the wisdom of what he has been ordered to do. Cote did his duty. We are certain that whoever forgot about him for four days was severely reprimanded.

Disarmament And Atomic Control

by
of the Manchester Guardian

THE disarmament question - or, to give it its full title, the question of the regulations, limitation and balanced reduction of all armed forces and all armaments — has again come up for discussion in the United Nations. This question has been on the agenda of the U.N. Assembly since its inception and more time and discussion have been devoted to it than any other subject. It is not, of course, the first time that the nations have attempted to reduce and limit their armaments by international agreement. The attempt was made in the years between the two world wars. But no progress was made; and perhaps little could have been expected at a time when, of the world's great powers, three—Germany, Italy and Japan—were patiently conducting a policy of aggressive expansionism under totalitarian Governments. And this same problem has clearly been responsible for preventing progress during the past eight years in the United Nations. Soviet policy has never given more than a passing glimmer of hope that she would put her signature to a programme of disarmament and the limitations of armed forces based on an effective system of international inspection and control. And it has long been obvious that this is the only possible basis for dealing with this subject. International confidence is the essence of the problem of disarmament. Such confidence palpably does not exist today between the Soviet Union and the western powers. Nor does recent history do anything to convince the free world in the genuineness of Soviet peaceful intentions or her reliability in carrying out her international obligations. Since the end of the war we have seen the extension of Soviet control through political-military coups sponsored and directly assisted by Russia over a vast area of western Europe and the Far East. We have seen the failure of Soviet-assisted groups to size power in Persia, Greece, Malaya and Indo-China. In Korea the United Nations itself has had to take up arms against communist aggression supported from the Soviet Union. Russia still refuses to implement her wartime commitments and conclude peace settlements with Germany, Austria and Japan. We can read in official publications such sentiments as "We do not intend to abandon the war theme—We must write of war so that the generation of young people that comes after us can love arms."

✧ ✧ ✧

NONE of the facts and statements leads the western powers to risk the safety of their peoples by basing their disarmament programme on nothing more reliable than the Soviet word of Soviet good faith.

✧ ✧ ✧

NO MORE encouraging is the fact that in the discussion of no subject do Soviet spokesman so resort to invective and propaganda as over disarmament. Mr. Vyshinsky employed more immoderate, bellicose language during the recent debate on disarmament at the United Nations than has perhaps been used by any Soviet spokesman since the death of Stalin, and the rise of hope in the free world that a new policy of limited Soviet co-operation might have opened has been dampened. Mr. Vyshinsky made great play with the contention that it was the west and not Russia which was today so energetically building its armed strength. It is perhaps something that Mr. Vyshinsky recognizes the great efforts that the free world is making in this direction. But, of course, he failed to mention that the Western powers carried out a massive reduction in their armed forces after the war and that Soviet Russia did not. The United Kingdom, for instance, reduced her forces from over five million in 1945, to over three quarters of a million in 1948; and the United States from over eleven and a half millions to under one and a half million. Russia has taken great care to prevent the world from knowing the size of her forces. They were estimated in mid-1951 at over four and a half million. The North Atlantic Treaty Organization has come into being to try and re-establish the balance that had ceased to exist in Europe.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANOTHER major point made by Mr. Vyshinsky was that the plan of the Western powers did not provide for the simultaneous prohibition of atomic weapons and the establishment of effective control. But Mr. Vyshinsky himself made it clear that what he was really demanding was that the declaration of the prohibition should come first. Since no wise Government passes a law before it has assured itself of the means of enforcing it, it seemed clear to the Western powers that the control system had to be functioning before states could undertake solemn moral declarations which would depend entirely upon the effectiveness with which they were carried out by all parties parties concerned. Contrary to what Mr. Vyshinsky claims the Western disarmament plan does contemplate the unconditional prohibition of atomic weapons. Indeed the British Minister of State two years ago gave a solemn assurance on this point to Mr. Vyshinsky on behalf of the three western powers. Mr. Vyshinsky can hardly expect the Western powers to accept his verbal assurance when he refuses to accept theirs.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE difference between the Soviet and the Western Government is clearly in substance the same as it was when the discussion of the disarmament problem was first begun eight years ago. It is simply that the Western powers insist that an effective system of international control and inspection shall be in force before they can promise any moral undertaking concerning the specific prohibition or reduction of arms, since such an undertaking could only be effective and therefore acceptable to them if supported by international control and inspection. The Russians want to bind the Western powers to the prohibition of atomic weapons and a one-third reduction in armed forces without effective international control or inspection. In other words they want to use the natural desire for disarmament to increase and perpetuate their own military advantage over the West.

'Chubby' Shows Them How

(Ottawa Journal)

Mr. Charles ("Chubby") Power stood up in the Commons the other night, thrust his hands into his pockets and spoke for 20 minutes. A report says that "his notes were a few pencilled lines on a page of the Order Paper and that he referred to them only twice."

It is too much to hope that this example of how parliamentary debate should be carried on will reinforce Mr. Speaker Beaudoin's reported resolve to curb speeches from manuscripts?

The practice of reading speeches, shown by Mr. Power to be unecessary, is making a mockery of debate, helping to reduce Parliament's prestige, already all too low.

An American Opinion:
ALL-DAY—PARDON; ALL-YEAR SUCKER

Behind McCarthy

(VICTORIA TIMES)

MR. Eisenhower has finally broken with Senator McCarthy. But in his statement through Mr. Dulles, this week the President has not repudiated merely a manoeuvre of domestic politics designed to win the next Congressional election. He has repudiated, as Mr. Dulles says, an attempt to destroy the whole foreign policy of the United States and the alliance of the free world.

To make sure there would be no misunderstading of the Executive's position, Mr. Eisenhower declared shortly after his minister's remarks that, "I am in full accord with the statements made by . . . my Secretary Dulles."

The nubbin of the statement issued by Mr. Dulles on behalf of the President is to be found in these word: "I welcome constructive criticism. But the criticism (by Senator McCarthy) I refer to, attacks the very heart of U.S. foreign policy."

This is the whole point. And it involves the whole world of free men.

The foreign policy of the United States is different from that of any great power similarly placed in the past. It is not built primarily on power and compulsion. It is built on co-operation with our friendly nations. It is built on agreement and consent.

That precisely is why Senator McCarthy rejects it. As Mr. Dulles says, the McCarthys complain that 'we spoke too kindly to our allies and sent them 'perfumed' notes instead of using threats and intimidation to compel them to do our bidding." Mr. Dulles replies this his Government believes in treating allies as friends, not as "satellites" and "these principles will stand."

They can stand only at the cost of a deep schism in the Republican party, now in the open. They must stand because there is no alternative but the destruction of American foreign policy and of the community of the free world.

Senator McCarthy and his friends imagine that they are advocating a practical policy and they are impatient with the impractical idealism of the Government. In fact, their policy is not only impractical but quite impossible. For the United States, with all its power, cannot compel the obedience of other great states, or even of many minor states which happen to hold areas on the world map essential to American defensive strategy.

The United States cannot make a satellite of the Commonwealth for a moment or of France, Germany, Japan and the little nations of the Middle East for long. If it were mad enough to try, it would soon deplete its own resources, great as they are. It would shatter the world alliance. It would create the very situation on which all Russian thinking is based. It would invite the avalanche. And the avalanche would not be long delayed.

That is what Mr. Dulles means. He is not thinking of the breach in his own party, of the squalid Dexter White affair—the immediate cause of these disputes—or of the Congressional elections next autumn. He is thinking of something far more important than any government, party or individual. He is thinking of the free world's advice to survive, and he knows that it can survive only by unity based on agreement, simply because unity cannot be achieved otherwise. For that Mr. Eisenhower evidently is willing to risk his Administration and his political life. With his principles he has no alternative.

Jail Until Cured

(EDMONTON JOURNAL)

A new departure was made in the treatment of sexual crimes in Alberta when Mr. Justice Wilson sentenced an accused to "indeterminate" imprisonment on a morals charge. The man was convicted of offences involving two young girls. Psychiatrists who examined him testified that he was a "psychopath of the criminal sexual type." The judge accordingly sentenced him to six years' imprisonment in the penitentiary, and further directed that after the expiration of his sentence he should be kept in detention at the pleasure of the minister of justice. This means, in effect, that he will not be released until the authorities are satisfied that his perverted tendencies have been corrected, and that he is no longer a danger to the public.

This type of preventive detention was authorized by an amendment to the Criminal Code back in 1946, but this is apparently the first time that it has been imposed in Alberta.

This procedure is obviously much more sensible than the usual method of dealing with criminal perverts. In most such cases the accused is simply sentenced to a few years' imprisonment. When his term is up, he comes out unchanged and unreformed, probably to commit other and perhaps more serious crimes of the same type. The records are full, for example, of cases where horrible murders have been committed by men who had been repeatedly imprisoned—and then released —for earlier sex offences. The preventive detention of dangerous perverts gives far more effective protection to the public, and especially to children and young people who seem to be their favorite victims.

Now that Mr. Justice Wilson has shown the way, we hope the precedent will be followed in all similar cases in Alberta.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters. And God made the firmament, and divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament: and it was so. And God called the firmament Heaven. And the evening and the morning were the second day. (Gen. 1:6-8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. Day unto night sheweth knowledge. There is no speech no language, where their voice is not heard. Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world. (Ps. 19:1-4.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven . . . Through thy precepts I get understanding: therefore I hate every false way. (Ps. 119:89, 104.)

"Ottawa, C'est Moi"

(Letter in the Ottawa Citizen)

Editor, Citizen: I see by a news item that City Council, at a closed meeting (reminiscent of the robing rannygazoo), has set aside the really extraordinary sum of $2,000 for "research and art work" on a new civic coat of arms. The tag "cui bono" is almost irresistible.

Leaving aside for the time being the question as to whether a revision of the city achievement might not better be left to the decision of the citizens at large (who have never, to my knowledge, expressed any desire to abolish the historic and high symbolic design that has served Ottawa for nearly a century), it is perhaps pertinent to point out that there already exists a body constituted for just such purposes—the College of Arms in London. I do not know just what their charge for drawing up a correct heraldic achievement for Ottawa might be, but I feel certain that it would leave quite a lot of change out of $2,000.

Assuming that the closed-Council plan is to be carried out, may I venture to suggest that something along these lines may be appropriate?

Shield: Gules, a city council, proper, erased.

Crest: A Whitton rampant.

Motto: "Ottawa, c'est moi".

The question of supporters may, one would hope, be safely left to the next election.

Subsidizing Art In Britain

(London Times)

The state spent, through the Arts Council in the last financial year, £500,000 on subsidizing opera, ballet, music drama, and painting. The French government spent £500,000 in a recent year on the Paris Opera and the Opera Comique alone. British taxpayers will react to this comparison in markedly diverse ways and the ensuing controversy is of fundamental interest. Some civilized citizens argue that the arts wither in the sunless atmosphere of an official committee. Others would like to see the state more generous in its patronage and a small minority would even welcome the setting up of a Ministry of Fine Arts on continental lines.

The Arts Council has to steer its way through these treacherous cross-currents and, as its annual report shows, it has proved in its seven years of navigation to be a wise pilot.

A BRITISH OPINION

"But you MUST look. That's the B.B.C. television on the right . . . and now look at that terrible sponsored stuff on the left there."

1953's Dizzy Divorces

A Cat In The Face Produces Two In The Court

By RICHARD KLEINER

The path of true love can be pretty bumpy at times, but it is positively smooth compared to the path of true hate. When two lovebirds turn into battling bantams, it's every man (and woman) for himself.

Consider the grounds for divorce that turned up in United States divorce courts in 1953. It's a perfect example of man's inhumanity to woman, and vice versa.

Let's start with Mrs. Doris Lindsay of Boston, who had a pretty good reason to want a divorce.

It seemed she told the judge, that her husband had hit her in the face with a cat, rubbed her face with a fish and locked her in the pantry with a mouse.

Less direct, but equally emphatic, was Mrs. Benjamin D. Brown. Her husband, Pvt. Brown, told the judge in Detroit about a letter he got from her after he was wounded in Korea. It read, in part, "I'm sorry that your wound was only slight."

Animals play a big part in divorces. In Los Angeles, Walter Sprinkel got a divorce when he told the judge his wife insisted on taking her cats to bed with her. But the cat was on the other foot in Detroit, where Mrs. Retha Drenning said that her husband took the cat to bed with him. To compound the feliney, when the cat bit her on the foot, Drenning forced her to apologize to the cat.

"I thought that was unreasonable," Mrs. Drenning said.

It was a dog that shattered the martial bliss of the Boos. Mrs. Goldie Boo, of St. Petersburg, Fla., said that her husband insisted on having Tootsie, the little Boo pup, sit at the breakfast table and lap up his coffee.

And another type of living thing sen Cupid scurrying for his life from the Kenneth Norton household in Detroit. Mrs. Norton said that her husband spent all his paycheck on food for his 10,000 earthworms.

Sometimes these things reach the violent stage. In Los Angeles, after she had filed and later dropped divorce actions in 1942, 1943, 1944, 1945, 1946, 1947, 1950 and 1952, Mrs. Harry Harshman filed another one. Her husband, she said, struck her, knocked out her teeth, scratched her, kicked her—and also threatened to kill her.

London policemen James Goss got his divorce when he told how his little woman kicked him, bit him, threw a poker at him, broke a pot over his head and stuck a knife in his back.

In Houston, Merrick Gillory was a little apprehensive when he noticed that his wife went to bed with a butcher knife tucked handily beneath her pillow. Gillory said he couldn't sleep. He got his divorce.

Cruelty often assumed strange shapes. In Miami, Mrs. Doris Denio sued for divorce because her husband dyed his hair green. Denio is an entertainer, but his wife said that green hair, no matter what the excuse, doesn't contribute to the peace and happiness of a marriage.

A Chicago wife got a divorce because she swiped her husband's toupee. After Mrs. Helen Lucas took it—as a precaution so he wouldn't date other women—her husband beat her when she wouldn't tell him where she hid it.

Also in the Windy City one marriage had a close shave — then lost. Mrs. Frank Brown told the judge that her husband forced her to shave him every day for 13 years.

Husbands' laziness was frequently cited as grounds for divorce. Mrs. Erma Gentle of Denver said her husband exercised so much with barbells he was too exhausted for anything else. Mrs. Willie Ann Dottore of Detroit said her husband wouldn't put up the screens, claiming "that was a job for peasants." And Mrs. Bessie Sigel of Paterson, N.J., said her husband made her serve him his meals, cut into bite-size morsels, as he reclined on the couch.

In Lincoln, Neb., the "bowling widower" got justice. The bowling enthusiasm of Mrs. Geraldine Schwarting was blamed for the marriage break-up. Her husband said she bowled Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Sunday nights and Sunday afternoons. She bowled to relax from her job. Her job was a bowling promoter.

Among the oldest couples to split were the Kochs of Golden, Colo. Mrs. Marie Koch, 80, won a divorce by testifying that her 80-year-old husband let her lie without help for four months after she fell down stairs.

"Those things add up," she said.

And probably the shortest-lived marriage to end in 1953 was that of the Hughletts of Detroit. Mrs. Lillian Hughlett won her divorce when she told how her marriage went sour a few hours after they were united. It happened as they began their honeymoon trip and stopped to eat.

Her husband wouldn't let her put lemon in her tea. Divorce granted.

Canada Goose New Worry For Farmers

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP)—Farmers in this southwestern Ontario district think the Canada goose is a beautiful and graceful bird but it eats too much.

Ten years ago, migratory geese began landing on the farm of Henry Rebidoux. He fed them and the area around his pond quickly became an unofficial sanctuary with more birds each year.

People came to visit the farm, just to see the geese and Mr. Rebidoux and his sons increased the size of their pond.

This year the situation was out of hand. About 5,000 geese a day were landing on the pond and the Rebidoux family could not longer afford to feed them.

FORESAW DANGER

Farmers of the district suddenly saw danger. If food is not found at the Rebidoux farm, the geese will forage for themselves. Crops will suffer and the alkali content of the droppings lowers the value of the land.

Darwin Wismer, a real estate broker and farmer, said the same thing happened in the Kingsville area after the famous Jack Miner established his sanctuary.

About 40 farmers in this area protested the unofficial sanctuary in a letter to William Murdoch, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for Essex South. The member said the government is anxious to forestall a situation similar to the one at Kingsville.

Senator Ready To Pay Passage

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator R. B. Horner said Monday night he will stand behind his offer to pay the passage of a young Belgian girl who came to Canada disguised as a seaman and was shipped back home by immigration officials.

Senator Horner said in an interview that he also will be happy to get a job for Liliane Soudemonte, 23, on a farm. However, if she prefers making the sea her career, Senator Horner said he'll see what he can do in that field.

A news report of the girl's exploit first prompted Senator Horner to make his offer in the Senate last week. The report said she was handy with her fists and her captain said she was the best helmsman he has had aboard his ship.

A senior immigration official said there is nothing in Canadian immigration regulations to prevent Senator Horner paying the girl's passage to Canada. However, she must meet requirements of good health and no criminal record.

MP Has Objected To Socred' Label

OTTAWA (CP)—A social Credit member of Parliament Monday night objected to his party being called "Socred."

John Blackmore (SC — Lethbridge) raised the objection during debate on a private member's resolution urging a federal-provincial conference on conservation.

Jean Francois Pouliot (L—Temiscouata) said such a conference would be a violation of provincial rights because natural resources came within the jurisdiction of the provinces. He suggested that the "Socred" premier of Alberta would object.

"Social Credit," interjected Mr. Blackmore. "It is 'Social Credit' not 'Socred.'"

Forced Wife To Be Prostitute

L'ORIGNAL, Ont. (CP)—Emile Beaulne, 32, was convicted Monday on charges of keeping a common bawdy house, compelling the prostitution of his wife and endangering the morals of his child. His wife was convicted on two similar charges.

Beaulne was sentenced to 10 years on the first charge, three on the second and one on the third. The terms are to be served concurrently.

His wife Gabrielle was sentenced to an indefinite term of two years less one day in Mercer Reformatory, Toronto; on both charges against her of being an inmate of a disorderly house and of endangering the morals of her child.

The Beaulne's 18-month-old child is in the care of the L'Orignal Children's Welfare Society.

In sentencing Beaulne, Magistrate Leopold Lalonde said, "I have searched in vain for words to describe your conduct."

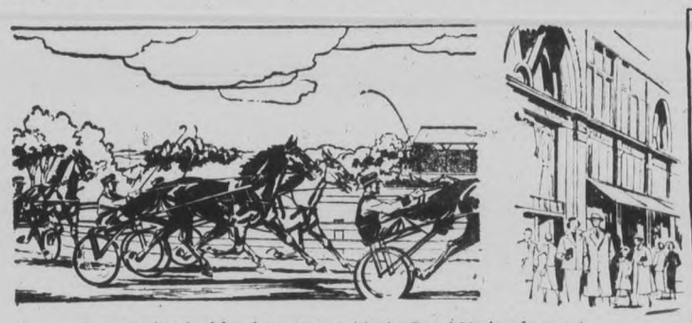
A beautiful lunch was served by the ladies and a social hour followed.

May Extend Deadline For PoW Benefits



OTTAWA (CP)—State Secretary Pickersgill indicated Monday in the Commons that the government may extend the Dec. 31 deadline for application for prisoner-of-war benefits.

Replying to Thomas M. Bell (PC—St. John-Albert), the minister said he will find out if there are any considerable number of former prisoners who have not applied. If that were the case, he would be prepared to ask the cabinet to extend the deadline.

Destroyer Sails

HALIFAX (CP)—The destroyer Haida sailed for Bermuda Monday on the first leg of a trip back to Korean waters for a second tour of duty. The warship will spend Christmas in the Canal Zone, where seamen will break out holiday fare, including turkey and 280 pounds of cakes and puddings packed by navy cooks in Halifax.

Chum Fryia Scores Three As Petes Win, 6-5 Over The Quinte Puckists

Chum Fryia's goal at 14.55 with his side a man short in the third period gave the TPT Petes a 6-5 OHA senior "B" triumph over Belleville Memos here last night before a small crowd. It was Fryia's third marker of the night. The win pulled the Petes up into a tie with Orillia in the standing and left Belleville in the cellar. Red Doran's bunch rolled to a 3-1 lead in the first period but the Redmond men came back to outscore them 4-1 next heat for a 5-4 margin going into the third. Memos tied it early in the last chukker but Petes got the odd counter for the game. Goalie Rollie Sarrault was pulled in the last 12 seconds of play as Belleville fought fiercely but vainly for a draw, Petes checking desperately to maintain their margin.

GENERALLY CLEAN

Play was speedy over the route and generally clean, though 16 minor penalties were passed out, eight to a side. Young Dave Jones of Belleville and later Jud Semark were injured but returned to play again. Both goalies made some fine saves in hot action, with Jack Donlevy very tough to beat after the first period.

Fryia's three goals was a stellar performance for the home team but Toodie Greenlaw was high on points with four assists. Denny Peterson was another star with two timely markers, and Bill McMaster aided on a pair. Coach Ed Redmond scored a goal, while an assist each went to Rod Belisle, Freddy Garvey, Gus Leonard and Jim Munroe.

Peter Jones stood out on the Belleville attack with two goals and an assist. Jackie Wardaugh and Erwin Duncan each notched one and helped on another, as Keith McDonald lit the lamp once. An assist apiece was chalked up to Jake Wade, Ed Duncan, Don Hull, Ted DeGray and Schreider.

A HOT SHOT

Erwin Duncan was serving an early hooking penalty when Redmond scored on a hot angle shot from McMaster and Greenlaw. Collins went over for hooking and Prentice followed for playing with a broken stick. One was back when Erwin Duncan tied it up on a ganging play with Wade and Peter Jones. McMaster got it next for interference as Dave Jones hurt his knee. Memos cashed in on the penalty as Peter Jones rapped in one neatly on passes from the Duncan brothers. Semark drew the nod for interference and was back when Dale got it for too many men on the ice. Ed Duncan followed to leave them shy two, but all were back when Wardaugh checked, recovered and waltzed in to score. Bastedo was penalized later for holding and McMaster for interference.

Fryia got two quick ones next heat for Petes, Greenlaw and Munroe aiding on one, and Greenlaw and Leonard setting the next up. Semark was back for an interference sentence when Peterson tallied in a scramble on a play with Garvey and McMaster. Munroe went over for holding and Schreider got a similar penalty. All were back and Semark limped off injured. McDonald slapped one home for Memos from Hull and Wardhaugh, but Peterson's goal from Belisle put Petes up again. Fryia was gated at the last for interference.

GOT THE WINNER

Early in the third Peterson sat one out for interference. He returned and the Petes were pressing for a spell, but Peter Jones tied it up on a play in close with DeGray and Schreider. The latter then climbed the wall for slashing, and McMaster for holding. Memos were at full strength and Petes short a man when Fryia banged a long hard one from Greenlaw. It was partly screened and went in off Sarrault's glove for the winning tally. Belleville tried hard toward the end but were unable to sew it up. Teams:

Belleville: Goal, Sarrault; defence, Wade and Schreider; centre, Ed Duncan; wings, Erwin Duncan and Dale; alts., P. Jones, D. Jones, DeGray, Wardhaugh, McDonald, Hull, Bastedo and Semark.

Petes: Goal Donlevy; defence, Redmond and McMaster; centre, Leonard; wings, Fryia and Greenlaw; alts.: Hill, Crowley, Collins, Prentice, Belisle, Peterson, Munroe, Montgomery and Garvey.

Referees: M. Walsh and J. Crombie.

GET DAD'S MEDAL—Bud McDougall will receive his late dad's CAHA medal in a presentation at the junior hockey game here Friday. His father, Harold (Shrimp) McDougall, earned it back in 1927 when with Owen Sound Greys, Memorial Cup champions, but he never received this medal. It was located recently in the OHA office and will be given to young Bud of the Junior Petes.

Curling News

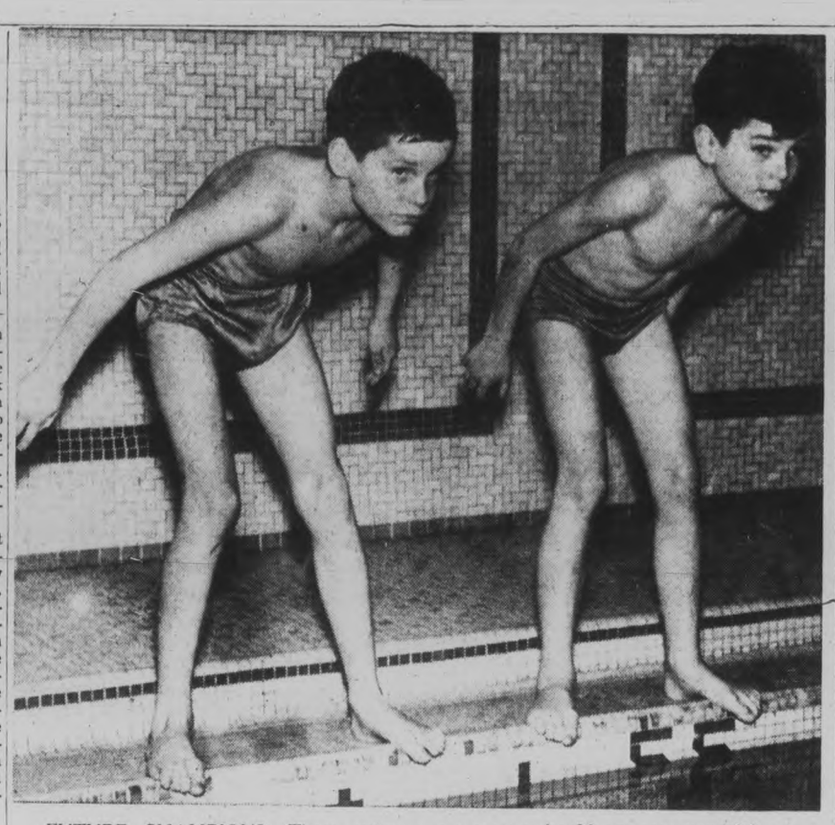
The ladies completed the first part of this season's schedule yesterday, when Mrs. J. Watts' rink defeated Mrs. O. M. Steer's rink 10-6 in the final game of the Ostrander Trophy.

We did not see the game, but understand it was a well-played one. Some real good curling. Congratulations to all, winners and runners-up.

Ostrander Trophy — Mrs. C. Campbell, Mrs. L. Calvert, Mrs. A. Jones, Mrs. J. Watts, skip.

Runners-up — Mrs. A. Ingram, Mrs. L. Reynolds, Mrs. A. Malby, Mrs. O. M. Steer, skip.



Today the ladies begin play for the Gibson Trophy. It will run right through till March 4.

The men continue their schedule games this evening at seven and nine o'clock.

FUTURE CHAMPIONS—These swimmers' father, Gord Minty, has coached two Peterborough youths, Al Marshall and Bill Lech, to Canadian swimming championships during his years as coach of the YMCA Swimming Club. Leonard and David Minty are among the 20 or more youthful swimmers now in the club. Coach Minty said there is championship talent in these swimmers and hopes to bring the YMCA more honors through their work.

An item from Port Hope says they'll have "Young Canada Night" for minor hockeyists there on Jan. 28, and that Peterborough is expected to ice a team in the Little NHL series. Other district clubs will be in, too. Meantime, PMHA games listed for Dec. 24 have been moved up to this Wednesday eve at Civic, starting at six, as follows: Shamrock bantams vs. Aces, the midget Shamrocks vs. Aces, IOOF vs. juvenile Aces, midget Shamrocks vs. Norwood, and the Aces vs. juvenile Norwood. The Thursday eve program is: bantam Aces vs. Optimists, midget Aces vs. Shamrocks, Norwood juves vs. IOOF, midget Aces vs. Norwood, and the juvenile Aces vs. Norwood lads.

As mentioned the other day, Frank Buckland has located a CAHA medal which should have been presented many years ago to Shrimp McDougall. He sparked Owen Sound Greys to the Memorial Cup back in 1927, but never received his medal as a member of the Canadian junior hockey champs. Shrimp later went pro and wound up his playing career back in amateur ranks here. He died some time ago. This medal will be presented his son, Buddy McDougall of the junior Petes, at the OHA junior "B" game here Friday eve. A "father and son night" affair between Midland and Peterborough. Coach Red Creighton of the Young Petes is Buddy's uncle, so the boy has a solid hockey background, and the presentation will be a fitting gesture.

They Don't Get a Dime

It would be nice to see a full house at this junior joust. The club is strictly amateur, no player, official or coach getting a dime all season. Club officers drive the boys to games in Collingwood, Midland, Port Perry and Lindsay, and won't take a cent for gas. They want to keep junior hockey alive here, so it's up to puck fans to do their bit, also. The executive? President is Doug Miller Sr., with Bob McCabe vice-prexy. Doug Landon is secretary and Bill Sims the treasurer. Others are Red Creighton, Moon Wootton, Myer Cherney, Curly Alberico, Jack McNamara, Dr. Jack Epping and trainer Gunner Lynch. The team, containing several boys being watched by Detroit Wings and Boston, is fighting it out for top spot in the lively group race now.

Quinte columnist partly explains Orillia's recent upsurge in senior "B" play writes this remark: "The potent Pontiacs are the only team in the group that can toss three goalkeepers into action without breaking the rules. Coach Vic Grigg has been experimenting with his three-man doorstep defence and it is paying off. When attackers race in, the defence backs up so far that both players flank the goalie in an effective closed-door stance. This kitty-bar-the-door defence would have been the envy of the old Ottawa Senators in their palmiest days." Yes, we recall that old Ottawa team when King Clancy was a young squirt in NHL company, and rival clubs found it mighty hard to score on 'em. Maybe Orillia has learned the lesson well.

Chum Blinks the Bulb

Chum Fryia fattened his batting average for the TPT Petes here last night by firing home three goals in the locals' 6-5 win o'er Belleville. His last marker proved the winner, but it was a ding-dong duel all the way. Ed Redmond's men spotted the Quinte crew an early lead but came back in the mid-session to move ahead. Toodie Greenlaw was in on four tallies, while Denny Peterson counted two and Bill McMaster aided on a pair between trips to the sin bin. Goalie Jack Donlevy came up with some steady net-minding, especially when Memos threatened to knot it up again in the late stages. Pete Jones, the Duncan twins and Jake Wade showed well for the visitors, who were minus a couple of key players this tilt.

* * * * * * *

Present OHA senior "B" group standing has Oshawa and Kingston tied for top spot with 18 points, K's having played one game less than the Truckmen. Orillia and Petes tied next with 13 points, Petes playing three more jousts than Pontiacs. Belleville rests in the cellar with 10 points in 14 games, one less than us. Don Murray of K's and Erwin Duncan of Belleville lead scorers so far with 28 points each while Chum Fryia is best for Peterborough with 24, two more than Greenlaw and three ahead of Gus Leonard. Oshawa is at Orillia tonight, Petes go there Thursday and Kingston treks to Bella Villa on Friday. The Saturday scraps are Petes at Kingston, and Orillia vs. Oshawa in Bowmanville.

Red Sullivan Still Leads AHL Scoring

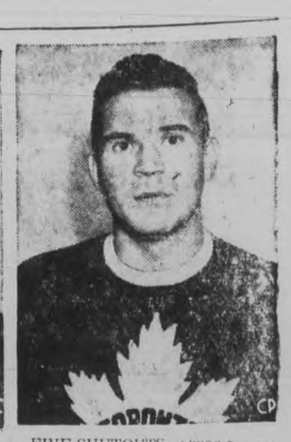
NEW YORK (AP) — George (Red) Sullivan, 23-year-old centre for Hershey Bears, solidified his scoring lead in the American Hockey League last week with a goal and pair of assists.

Sullivan, who has seen brief service with Boston Bruins, has collected 44 points on 13 goals and 31 assists in games through Sunday.

Jackie Gordon of Cleveland has moved into a second-place tie with rookie Don Marshall of Buffalo with 36 points apiece. Marshall, a contender for rookie of the year laurels, has scored the most goals, 19, and Sullivan is tops in assists.

Jacques Plante of the league-leading Buffalo Bisons continues his goaltending supremacy with an average of 2.55 on 74 goals in 29 games.

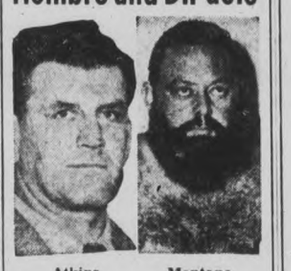
INVESTIGATE RUNNERS



NEW YORK (AP)—Mal Whitfield and Wes Santee, two of the United States most brilliant runners, are under investigation for alleged violation of the amateur rules, Dan Ferris, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, said Monday night.

If the charges are proved the runners could be barred for life, Ferris said.

The reports originated from Europe where Santee, the fastest U.S. miler and Whitfield, world half-mile champion, toured this summer.



DETROIT GOALIE — Terry Sawchuk, 23, Winnipeg-born goalie with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, is battling Toronto Maple Leafs' Harry Lumley for the Vezina trophy this season. Both had five shutouts in their first 29 games. Sawchuk, NHL all-star goalie for the last three years has won the Vezina trophy the last two seasons. He turned professional with Omaha in the United States Hockey League in 1947 and played all his major-league hockey with Detroit.

FIVE SHUTOUTS—Owen S[illegible] born Harry Lumley, 27, is having a good season in goal for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League with five shutouts in the team's first 29 games this season. He has allowed 43 goals for an average of 1.47 goals a game. A veteran of 10 years as a professional—he joined the Leafs last season—he turned professional with Indianapolis of the American Hockey League in 1943. He has played with Detroit and Chicago in the NHL.

Layton and Atkins Teamed Against Hombre and DiPaolo

Atkins Montana

That hammering ring twosome of Lord Athol Layton, the bruising Briton, and his partner, Fred Atkins, the mallet-elbowed Australian, will have plenty to worry them in the wrestling feature at the Brock Arena on Wednesday night.

They've signed to meet the high-powered combination of Hombre Montana, the 325-pound South American giant, and Ilio DiPaolo, the talented and popular Italian champion. DiPaolo's skill and Montana's heavy artillery look like a big order, even for the dour duo of Layton and Atkins.

In the semi-final, Timothy Geohagen will wrestle Pat Fanagan. This one should prove a gem as both men are fast, clever and clean grapplers.

The first match brings together Tony Martinelli, a newcomer against Alan Garfield of England.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

When these lines were written, there very fortunately had not been in recent National Hockey League battling any such disturbing injuries as the skull fractures suffered in the past by Ace Bailey and Elmer Loch, and it is devoutly to be hoped that no such near-tragedy will dot the annals of the game.

But if such an accident does befall, it will be in part the fault of the victim, because he, like all other hockey players, refused to wear a helmet. In baseball there is nothing like the contacts or the physical dangers that are constantly present in hockey. But during the past summer, Frank Lane of the Chicago White Sox revived the idea of compelling all batters to wear protective headgear at the plate. And, of course, he was 100 per cent correct.

Serious consequences have followed "beaning" of batters, whether purely accidental or the result of trying to "dust off" the hitter, just as falls on the ice, or headlong crashes into the boards, whether from checks or trips, lay hockey players open to similar injury.

Ballplayers are like hockey players, and said to oppose this safety device, however. "False pride" is the explanation offered. "Pride goeth before destruction" is a proverb recommended to the attention of potential beanball victims of baseball, or head injuries in hockey.

In other sports, where head injuries are always a possibility, protection is accepted and in some cases mandatory. Jockeys, football players, auto race drivers and fighters in training all use protective headgear. Some football players even wear face masks, not only in scrimmage practice but in games.

After the Ace Bailey crash, there was an edict that all hockey players must wear helmets. The teams provided these, but after a few weeks they were tossed into the discard. Players said they were too hot. But the truth is, the players were too proud of their physical toughness to wear them. They considered helmets effeminate.

But if those exposed to danger in other sports wear helmets for safety, why should hockey players be too proud to do likewise?

Your comments and suggestions for this column will be welcomed by Elmer Ferguson, c/o Calvert House, 431 Yonge St., Toronto.

Leafs Gain Most Ground In NHL Scramble During Last Week's Play

MONTREAL—(CP)—What with it coming Christmas and all that, it seems fitting that the three teams scrambling for the National Hockey League leadership won't have to cut each others' throats this week. Montreal Canadiens, Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs have merry little meetings only with the three low-placed teams. Of course there's nothing to stop Boston Bruins, New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks from smacking the daylights out of the snooty trio and putting an end to this Santa Claus business in a hurry.

The schedule this week also gives Detroit and Toronto a chance to make the most of one of those three games "in hand" each club has over Montreal. The Red Wings are only two points behind Canadiens' leading 40 and the Leafs four behind. Those two clubs have three games each coming up; Canadiens have only two.

The Red Wings are at home to the Black Hawks and play on the road at Chicago and Boston. The Leafs meet Rangers in Toronto and play at Boston and Chicago. Canadiens are idle until Saturday, when they meet the Bruins in Montreal. They play in New York Sunday.

LEAFS SHOW BEST

The Leafs gained most ground last week. They won their three starts, putting all six possible points on the credit side. The Red Wings won two, tied one and lost one in four starts for five of eight possible points. Canadiens won two games and lost two, earning four points.

Detroit's Gordie Howe put together three goals and five assists for eight points, highest for the week, to maintain his lead in the point-scoring standings with a total of 38.

Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal displaced Ted Lindsay of Detroit for second place. Geoffrion had two goals and four assists, for 31, one better than Lindsay who had three goals and one assist.

Maurice Richard of Montreal banged in five goals and counted two assists. The Rocket leads the goal scorers with 18, followed by Geoffrion with 16. Richard's splurge jumped him from sixth place to fourth in the standing. Red Kelly, Detroit ace defenceman, bounced from ninth to fifth place on one goal and six assists. His total is 26.

TWO NEW FACES

A couple of new faces bobbed up among the 10 leaders. Ken Mosdell, veteran Montreal centre, collected three goals and three assists, moving up all the way from 17th place tie to 10th. He shares 10th spot, at 21 points, with John Peirson of Boston. Peirson's single goal and three assists lifted him a notch from an 11th place tie.

Harry Lumley of Toronto was scored on only once in three games last week and now has a remarkable goals-against average of 1.48. Terry Sawchuk of Detroit, in a virtual tie with Lumley a week ago at 1.60, now has 1.83. Gerry McNeil of Montreal is in third place with 2.09.

Remember When—

Montreal Canadiens beat New York Americans 3-1 in the first professional hockey game played at Madison Square Garden, New York, 28 years ago today. Canadiens of that era had Aurel Joliat, Howie Morenz and Sprague Cleghorn, with the great Georges Vezina in goal, but Montreal Maroons won the Stanley Cup for the 1925-26 season.

Que. Citadelles Disbanded In $26,500 Deal

TORONTO (CP)—Quebec Citadelles, who pleaded to get into Ontario's junior hockey circuit this season after they were disowned by the Quebec league, were disbanded Monday in a $26,500 deal.

The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A council announced Monday night that Quebec Frontenacs of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association had bought the Citadelle franchise. The sale left eight teams in the Ontario loop.

The Citadelles, who have been losing money all season, will be used to strengthen the Frontenac roster. All games involving Citadelles will be washed out and OHA teams now will play an interlocking schedule with Quebec clubs to fill in the gap.

Citadelles played only 26 games in the OHA and were in eighth place with eight victories, 17 defeats and one tie.

WON'T LOSE BOND

The OHA decided that Frank Byrne, owner of the Citadelles, would not lose his $25,000 bond, posted before the season to guarantee that the Citadelles would complete the schedule. OHA clubs will be reimbursed $17,000 for games they were to have played in Quebec City.

Frank Selke, managing director of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, said the Canadiens would pay the $17,000.

"We agreed to pay $17,000 because the entire junior hockey setup in Quebec is in a chaotic condition, with arguments about players and teams going on for the last six months," Selke said.

He said the Canadiens felt they were partly responsible for all the haggling because of the Ron Atwell case last year, which apparently started the fuss.

Atwell left the OHA last year and joined a team in the QJHA. The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association ruled that he belonged to the OHA but the QJHA refused to relinquish him.

The CAHA suspended the Quebec branch and Citadelles pulled out of the Quebec league to side with the CAHA.

When the matter was cleared up the Quebec league refused to take back the Citadelles. That's when they applied for entry into the OHA. They were replaced in the Quebec league by the Frontenacs.

ATTENDANCE DROPPED

Byrne was represented at the meeting by lawyer Tommy O'Neill. Robert Martineau and Emile Couture attended for Frontenac owner Gerald Martineau.

Frontenacs must also pay the salary of Citadelle coach Phil Watson for the remainder of the season. They must also attempt to persuade the Quebec Coliseum to return a $5,000 bond to Byrne.

Last year Citadelles played to average crowds of 9,000 a game. This year, although drawing better than Frontenacs, the attendances dropped by more than half.

O'Neill said Byrne wanted to continue in the OHA.

"Unbelievable, phenomenal pressure has been put on Frank Byrne by political groups and others in Quebec but he wants to continue in the OHA" O'Neill said.

Ontario teams will each make one trip through Quebec to fill in the gap of the remaining scheduled dates with Citadelles. They will play in Montreal against the Royals and Canadiens, Trois-Rivieres, Quebec City and Jonquiere.

World's Strangest Athlete Runs 9,500 Miles This Year

By STERLING SLAPPEY

LONDON (AP) — Every night after the sun goes down and England's damp winter air settles in, an angry youngster goes out and runs 25 miles.

Gordon Pirie, who is, to say the least, one of the world's strangest athletes, will run about 9,500 miles this year.

Where is all that mileage getting him? What's his aim?

Pirie wants his name in track record books in the place of two other pretty fair leggers—Gundar Haegg and Emil Zatopek.

Pirie is an unorthodox type, but potentially he may be the world's greatest distance man in the making.

Determination is a necessary thing in a distance man, for who else but a determined man will run six, 10, 15 miles or the Marathon distance? And determination is Pirie's specialty.

For several months Pirie's 28-19.4 time for the six-mile run was the world's best. Then, the magnificent Czech, Zatopek, shattered it last month with a 28:08.4 performance.

The news crushed Pirie and he's still fuming. "The breaking of my record is temporary, only temporary," the bony-legged 22-year-old said.

HOPES MEET ZATOPEK

Pirie will take his vacation from his bank clerk job in August and go to Bern, Switzerland, hoping to run against Zatopek in the European 10,000 and 5,000-metre championships.

Recently Pirie said, "The four minute mile shouldn't be too difficult for me."

He hasn't specialized in the mile but on Aug. 8 gave Wes Santee of Kansas University a sound beating in London with a 4:06.8 timing. Last September he ran the third fastest two miles on record in 8:47.7.

Mixed among such performances and feats are "Pirie incidents." They include such things as his withdrawal from a three-mile race "because I was too sleepy to run" and the missing of a big British meet because he got mixed up on the day of the month.

Pirie goes on a three-hour, or 25-mile jaunt every night. Through it all he's dead serious and easily angered. His mind is on Haegg and Zatopek and he doesn't even like to quit thinking about them long enough to answer the telephone.

Haughton Wins Racing Titles

COLUMBUS, O. (CP) — William Haughton, 30-year-old driver from Massapewua, N.Y., won the two top harness racing titles for 1953, the United States Trotting Association announced Monday.

Haughton won the most money for the second straight year with $374,527, and scored the most victories, 115.

Johnny Chapman of Toronto and Hamburg, N.Y., was second in the victory column with 107. Two Canadians, Joe O'Brien of New Glasgow, N.S., and Clint Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont., ranked fourth and fifth in the money-winning ranks with $269,579 and $233,732 respectively.

Other Canadians among the 25 top money-winners were Earle B. Avery of St. Stephen, N.B., 19th with $113,525, Del McTavish of Laand Chapman, 25th with $98,549.

Also listed among the leading winners were O'Brien, eighth with 85 victories, Laurie J. O'Brien of Halifax, 11th with 82, Harold Wellwood of Stratford, 16th with 73, William Gilmour, Ridgeway, Ont., and Frank G. Daniels of Lawrencetown, N.S., tied for 21st with 67.

To Represent Hamilton In Ontario Tankard

HAMILTON (CP)—Mrs. Chilvers Gooch of the Hamilton Victoria Club and Mrs. K. M. McLaren of Hamilton Thistles will represent this district in the Ontario Ladies' Tankard curling playdowns at Owen Sound in January.

Both skipped their rinks to two victories in regional playoffs Monday.

Mrs. Gooch, trailing 10-1 going into the fourth end, staged a comeback for a 13-10 decision over Mrs. H. F. Gorrie's Thistle Club entry.

Mrs. McLaren's rink had no trouble in defeating Mrs. C. E. Howard's Welland quartet 13-2.

Earlier, Mrs. Gooch's rink downed a St. Catharines group skipped by Mrs. J. W. Preston, 8-7 and Mrs. McLaren's crew downed Mrs. T. J. Breen of Welland 10-6.

Spahn, Roberts Voted Top Baseball Pitchers

NEW YORK (AP) — Warren Spahn and Robin Roberts, the National League's top pitchers last season with 23 victories apiece, finished one-two in the earned-run ratings, with the Milwaukee southpaw officially winning the title for the second time.

Spahn, who lost only seven games, gave up only 62 earned runs in 236 innings for an earned-run average of 2.10, lowest figure since Howie Pollet's identical mark in 1946. Spahn also had the baseball circuit's best ERA in 1947, 2.33.

The official pitching averages released today also disclosed that Roberts, ace of the Philadelphia Phillies, posted a 2.75 average on 106 earned runs in 347 innings. He lost 16 games.

Statistics compiled by The Associated Press and released last October also listed Spahn as the National's earned-run leader at 2.10, with Roberts the runner-up with 2.75.

ROOKIE THIRD

Bob Buhl, Milwaukee's rookie righthander, finished third with 2.98. He allowed 51 earned runs in 154 innings, while winning 13 and dropping eight.

An earned run is one in which a fielding error plays no part. Runs resulting from hit batters, wild pitches and balks are scored as earned.

Carl Erskine of Brooklyn had the highest winning percentage among National League hurlers—.769 with 20 victories and six setbacks. Johnny Lindell, who pitched for Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, gave up the most walks, 139, and Chicago's Warren Hacker tossed the most home-run balls, 35. Roberts led in strikeouts with 198.

The 32-year-old Spahn made one of the league's finest comebacks. He had a 14-19 record in 1952 after winning at least 20 games in four of his previous six seasons with Boston Braves.

U.K. Authorities Divided On Horse Issue

LONDON (CP)—British authorities still are divided on whether horses are being bled to death to provide restaurants with white meat resembling veal.

The issue was revived in a BBC broadcast, "Horses can't Talk." An Irish horse dealer, later identified as J. C. Brady of Tara, County Meath, claimed that the horses were bled to death by a device known as the electric pump.

Brady said this happened at a slaughter-house near London.

In a statement Nov. 30, the Horses and Ponies Protection Association said the charges made by Brady were justified. It said the electric pump is also being used secretly in the Midlands and North of England.

DENIES CRUELTY

The Daily Telegraph, on the other hand, quoted a veterinary surgeon as saying he was "quite certain" no such cruelty took place in Britain. Even if the pump were used, the veterinary said, the horse would remain alive or conscious only a few seconds.

The pump question came to the forefront in November, 1952, after a series of articles on horse-slaughtering written in the Manchester Guardian by Patrick Keatley of Vancouver, a young newspaper man here on an exchange plan.

Community Christmas Party Largest Ever

MARMORA (ENS) — Sponsored by Marmora District Chamber of Commerce, with the assistance of Branch 237, Canadian Legion, and other public-spirited citizens, a larger Christmas party than ever delighted the children of Marmora village and township and Deloro on Saturday afternoon.

Free treats for an additional 100 children had to be requisitioned.

Madoc Citizen's Band played a number of selections at the party for children of pre-school age in the town hall.

A large illuminated Christmas tree, surrounded by a big gleaming star, had been erected on the nearby lot of C. Ross by the Bethlehem Steel management.

As the children left the hall, Santa Claus and a clown gave them their treats. These two individuals later turned up at the Plaza theatre where school-age children were enjoying a free picture show and gave them their treats in the lobby.

Laniel Candidate For Presidency

PARIS (Reuters) — Premier Laniel announced today that he will enter the race for the French presidency.

He is the fourth candidate named in the election, to be conducted in the National Assembly Thursday.

The presidency in France exists mainly to provide a figurehead chief of state, though it entails some political power at moments of government crisis. The president is elected by parliamentarians instead of by popular vote.

Thursday's poll will choose a successor to Vincent Auriol whose term is expiring.

The other three candidates are Marcel Nagelen, a Socialist, Senator Andre Cornu, who is not endorsed by his Radical party, and another Moderate Conservative deputy, Jacques Fourcade, who is also without the endorsement of his party.

TOP ROOKIE

NEW YORK (AP) — Harvey Kuenn, brilliant shortstop with Detroit Tigers, Monday was selected by the Baseball Writers Association as the American League's rookie of the year.

The only dissenting vote was for Tom Umphlett, Boston Red Sox outfielder.

Kuenn made a fine big league debut with the second-division Detroit team. He had a fielding percentage of .973 with only 21 errors in 770 chances. He batted .308, finishing sixth in the league.

MIDDLESBOROUGH, Eng. (CP) —All 36 crew members of the new Greek ship Dimitris were rescued Monday night after the 5,200-ton freighter ran aground on the East Scar rock near here. A lifeboat set out after the ship radioed that she was rapidly filling with water.

Declare Hitler Big Reason Germans Lost

FRANKFURT (AP)—Eleven of Hitler's former generals and admirals say he was the big reason Germany lost the Second World War.

A 472-page German book by some of the Third Reich's senior military and civilian experts gives Hitler's military talents a rough going over.

Here are some of the collective views in the book, entitled "Bilanz des Zweiten Weltkriegs" ("Balance of the Second World War):

Hitler started with an understrength air force, a navy even worse prepared, and 90 per cent of Germany's business tied up in peacetime production.

He toyed with an impossible plan for invading England but let slip an easy chance to seize Africa and the Middle East.

He outblundered Napoleon by his campaign in Russia.

Although German invention perfected jet fighters ahead of the Allies, Hitler passed them up, although they might have wrecked Allied air power.

DUCE LEFT ALONE

Former field marshal Albert Kesselring, who commanded German forces in Italy, blames Hitler for letting Mussolini run his own show in the Mediterranean until it was too late.

Former vice admiral Kurt Assmann describes Hitler's conception of naval warfare as "extremely primitive," with his attention focussed "exclusively on the Continent."

Former infantry general Kurt Von Tippelskirch declares that almost on the eve of the Russian campaign Hitler regarded the Soviet army as "a colossus of clay without a head."

The book estimates German war casualties at 6,500,000 service men and civilians killed and 2,000,000 partly or totally disabled.

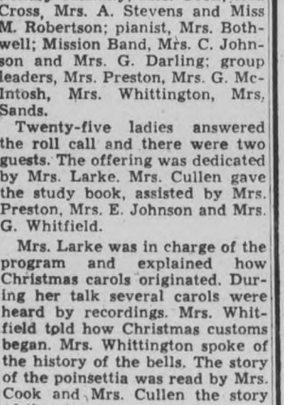
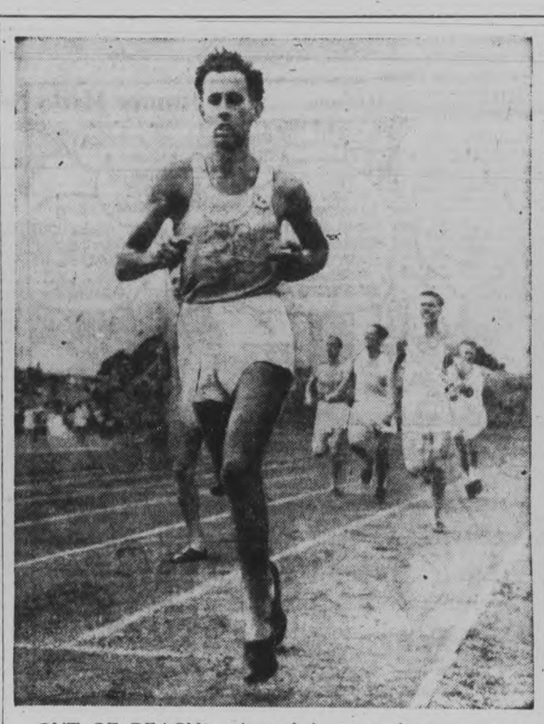
Darling; group leaders, Mrs. Preston, Mrs. G. McIntosh, Mrs. Whittington, Mrs. Sands.

Twenty-five ladies answered the roll call and there were two guests. The offering was dedicated by Mrs. Larke. Mrs. Cullen gave the study book, assisted by Mrs. Preston, Mrs. E. Johnson and Mrs. G. Whitfield.



Mrs. Larke was in charge of the program and explained how Christmas carols originated. During her talk several carols were heard by recordings. Mrs. Whitfield told how Christmas customs began. Mrs. Whittington spoke of the history of the bells. The story of the poinsettia was read by Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Cullen the story of the star.

Hear Whip-poor-will



APSLEY (ENS) — While Chas. Smith was sitting in his home in the village on Thursday night, he heard a whip-poor-will calling from a large pine tree at the side of his home. Later during the evening both Mr. and Mrs. Smith heard the bird again in the same tree.

Churchill Picks Design

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill has chosen one of his favorite paintings—a flower study painted several years ago—for his personal Christmas cards this year. The prime minister for many years has used his own paintings to adorn his cards. He usually chooses one of his colorful landscapes.

FURILLO TOPS—Carl Furillo, Brooklyn Dodgers' slugging outfielder, has been awarded the National League's batting title, according to official batting averages computed for the 1953 baseball season. He ended the season out of the line-up, however, because of a hand injury suffered during a skirmish with the New York Giants on September 6.

OUT OF REACH?—Australia's great distance runner, John Landy, is getting warmer in hjs quest for the miracle mile. He stopped the watches at 4.02 at Olympic Park, Melbourne, on Saturday for the mile spurt. It was the third fastest mile on record in the world. Only Sweden's Gunder Hagg and Arne Anderson have slightly faster clockings. However, Landy says now he doesn't believe he can make it.

Seguin Loses Appeal For New Trial

TORONTO (CP)—Henri Seguin, 28-year-old Cornwall laborer, has lost his appeal for a new trial on a charge of murder in the shooting of a Cornwall district taxicab operator.

The Ontario Court of Appeal ruled unanimously Monday that evidence against him was so overwhelming that any interference with the verdict "would be impeding the cause of justice."

Seguin is under sentence to be hanged Jan. 19. If he dies on the scaffold, the hanging will be Cornwall's first in 29 years.

His counsel, E. J. Houston of Ottawa, said after the appeal court handed down its verdict that he will seek permission to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Seguin was convicted Oct. 29 of the shooting Aug. 26, 1952, of taxi driver Leonard Hurd, 41, of Maxville, who was found riddled with bullets in one of his taxis on a sideroad near Cornwall. Hurd had been robbed of $1,700.

LINKED BY FINGERPRINTS

Four months after the slaying, Seguin was shot and wounded by the RCMP near Williams Lake in the Cariboo country of British Columbia following an attempt to hold up the Williams Lake Branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. He was later sentenced to 20 years in penitentiary for attempted murder of the bank manager.

Police said fingerprints linked him with the Ontario killing and he was brought east for trial.

Two vital bits of evidence at the trial were presented as connecting Seguin with the crime. One was a pouch containing his army discharge papers and the other was a gun with the name "Henri Beaudry" marked on the inside. Beaudry was the name of Seguin's mother and he occasionally used that name.

Chief Justice J. W. Pickup said the appeal court of five judges was unanimous in the opinion that Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow, the trial judge, correctly charged the jury. He also said the Crown's evidence was presented at the trial "in the most impartial manner."

One of the main points of appeal concerned trial testimony of Douglas McKibbon, a bookkeeper employed by Hurd at the Maxville garage and taxi stand. McKibbon testified Seguin told him "it would be very easy to hit Mr. Hurd on the head and take his money."

Mr. Houston said the trial judge did not clearly tell the jury that McKibbon, who had a criminal record, was "an unsavory character and his evidence should have been accepted with reservation."

Chief Justice Pickup said the appeal court found that the trial judge's actions were adequate in the case.

"Even though the judge's attitude may have seemed partial, there was evidence of overwhelming guilt."

Will Discuss National Flag

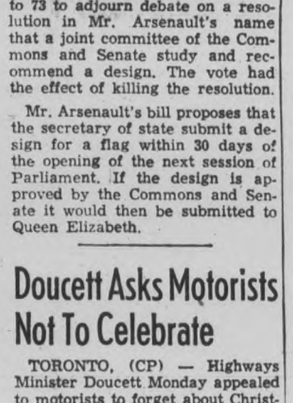
OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons early next year again will discuss a private member's proposal that Canada adopt a distinctive national flag.

The House Monday gave first reading to a bill submitted by Bona Arsenault (L—Bonaventure) which would instruct the secretary of state to prepare a suitable design.

Last week the House voted 137 to 73 to adjourn debate on a resolution in Mr. Arsenault's name that a joint committee of the Commons and Senate study and recommend a design. The vote had the effect of killing the resolution.

Mr. Arsenault's bill proposes that the secretary of state submit a design for a flag within 30 days of the opening of the next session of Parliament. If the design is approved by the Commons and Senate it would then be submitted to Queen Elizabeth.

Doucett Asks Motorists Not To Celebrate



TORONTO, (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett Monday appealed to motorists to forget about Christmas shopping and celebrations while driving.

"With the Christmas season rapidly approaching, it is inevitable that preoccupation will increase." Mr. Doucett said that next to excessive speed, preoccupation of motorists and pedestrians contributes most to motor accidents.

Thirty-nine persons died in Ontario traffic accidents during Christmas week last year.

Blame Yule Decorations

TORONTO (CP)—A short circuit in wiring on Christmas decorations was blamed Monday night for sending Milton Carr, 37, plunging to his death. An electric shock caused him to lose his balance. He fell 10 feet to the rotunda floor of the 25-storey downtown Bank of Nova Scotia building and his head struck the floor.

ADMITS SLAYING—Mrs. Rose Leibel (above), after lengthy questioning by Newark, N.J., police, admitted that she had hacked her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hattie Bobker, to death with an ax. Mrs. Leibel, mother of four children, told police that she had an argument with her brother's wife who grabbed an ax and started to swing at her. She said she wrested the ax from her sister-in-law and struck her with it several times.

Can't Dispute Claim

OTTAWA (CP)—A former chief of the department administering Canada's northland said Monday night in the Senate that Canada's claim to the Arctic cannot be disputed. Senator T. A. Crerar, minister of mines and resources from 1935-45, said the presence of United States troops in the north has raised concern among some people. However, their presence was essential to defence and they were welcome.

Protests Amount Of Pulpwood Used In Weekend Newspapers

OTTAWA (CP) — A. J. Brooks (PC—Royal) protested in the Commons Monday night against what he described as the huge quantity of Canadian pulpwood used by publishers of week-end newspapers in Canada and the United State

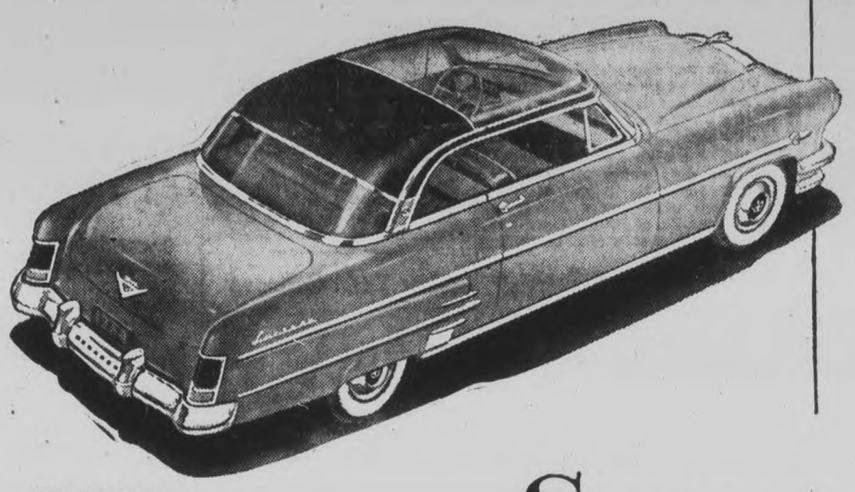
He said:

"I am not referring to the Canadian daily newspapers, but rather to the Sunday issues, some of which weigh three or four pounds.

"I am told that it requires the pulp from 100 to 200 acres of Canadian forest land to produce one of these issues.

"Surely this is a great waste and I believe the time will come when we will realize that this production has been used wastefully.

"One buys lumber to put up a building or a house that will last for many years. On the other hand the lumber used in the production of these weekly newspapers is a complete waste, once the newspaper has been read.



"It is, to use a common expression, 'gone with the wind,' and there is nothing left to show for it."

Elmore Philpott (L—Vancouver South) said it would be poor conservation policy to decrease newsprint supplies merely to save pulpwood.

There was no greater need in the world than education and newspapers were the "poor man's university." Mr. Philpott is a columnist for the Vancouver Sun.

Canadian pulp and paper companies would take a "very dim view" of any orders concerning how much pulp they could cut.

India Warns Won't Retain PoW Custody

By STAN CARTER

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya today said Indian troops will not retain custody of war prisoners who have refused to go home after Jan. 22—clearing the way for their release as civilians.

The Korean armistice provides that unrepatriated prisoners are to be released 120 days after they were turned over to Indian custody —or Jan. 22. The Communists, however, have argued that the prisoners should be held in Korea's neutral zone until a peace conference decides their fate.

Thimayya said in an interview that Indian troops will have to have approval of both the Communists and the Allies to keep custody of the prisoners after the Jan. 22 deadline.

Thimayya is chairman of the neutral nations repatriation commission which supervises the almost 23,000 Chinese, Korean, American and British PoWs who have refused repatriation.

CUSTODY ENDS

"As the agreement stands, my legal custody ends that day (Jan. 22)," Thimayya said. "Either both sides must authorize us to continue or our legal custody ceases."

Prime Minister Nehru of India has been quoted as saying that if the political conference is not held, the Allies and United Nations command must agree on what should be done with the prisoners. It was understood here previously that Nehru meant the Indians would keep custody of the prisoners until the two sides reach an agreement.

But Thimayya told reporters today:

"The prime minister clarified it to us."

Disgusted Safecracker

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP)—Calvin Gallant, 42, of Corner Brook, Nfld., tried in vain for two hours to open a safe in a store here Sunday. Disgusted, he left his equipment and gave himself up to police. Gallant was sentenced Monday to four years in penitentiary after pleading guilty to a charge of breaking and entering.

Watch Crew Hunt Female Cockroach

ABOARD S. S. GOTHIC (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh Monday watched the crew of the New Zealand escort cruiser Black Prince search their ship from stem to stern for a female cockroach.

The all-out scavenger hunt is one of the Royal Navy's time-honored methods of testing a ship's efficiency.

The men won a "welcome" from the Queen despite the fact they found only one and not two female cockroaches as ordered.

Gets $146,500 For Accident

NEW YORK (AP)—The largest accident settlement in the history of Bronx Supreme Court—$146,500 —was awarded Monday to a luncheonette worker who lost both legs as the result of an automobile accident.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. will pay $96,500 and the Royal Indemnity Co. $50,000 to Harry Levine, 49. The settlement was made on the second day of Levine's negligence suit for $780,000 brought against the Metropolitan and one of its employees, Harry Berman, whose automobile figured in an accident involving Levine's car in 1952.

The Indemnity company was responsible for the accident insurance on Berman's car.

Helped Spy, Jailed

SEOUL (AP) — An influential member of the South Korean National Assembly today was sentenced to seven years in prison on charges of knowingly protecting a Communist spy. Yang Woo Gung was convicted by court-martial of protecting Chung Kook Eun, recently sentenced to death.

Japan Seeks Support

VIJAYAWADA, India (Reuters) Cheddi Jagan, deposed prime minister of British Guiana, Monday asked India to boycott British goods to emphasize support of the Guiana people. He was addressing a public meeting here.

A DIGNIFIED PICKET LINE—It was the teachers who stayed home from school at Newark, N.J., after they went on strike for higher wages. The teachers, members of the AFL, march in front of a school building but they do not carry placards in their picketing because they considered it "undignified."

"Drunkest Man" Still Standing Jailed 7 Days

Describing the accused's condition in rather emphatic terms, an officer concluded his testimony Monday by calling Elmer Faux, 34, of 501 Parkhill Rd., as "about the drunkest man I've ever seen that's still been walking around.

The description followed evidence on an accident December 5 on Hunter St. E., and Faux was subsequently found guilty on a charge of drunk driving. He was sentenced to seven days in jail while Magistrate W. R. Philp in addition impounded his truck for three months.

Two vehicles, one driven by Gerald Black, 19, and the other by Faux, collided head-on shortly after nine o'clock that night. Constable William G. Scott found the two vehicle's in Black's traffic lane.

"The accused was staggering around in a very drunken condition," he told the court, "weaving, practically leaning on me, smelling strongly of liquor."

An empty quart bottle of whiskey, an empty ginger ale bottle and a cup smelling with alcohol was found in the truck.

PC Bert Howden who along with Constable Jack Wilson escorted Faux to the station agreed with Constable Scott's testimony.

Faux appeared to be very repititious, asking the same question "five or six" times. At one time he would have fallen over if the officer hadn't caught him, PC Howden said.

Black, the other driver, said he had been driving east when the accused's car pulled out of the westbound traffic lane and struck his car head-on. As both of the drivers were nearly stopped, however, little damage resulted.

William Cannon who had been with Faux all afternoon and evening said they had been up to his Beverly St. residence following a visit to Port Hope. Both had consumed three ounces of liquor and in his opinion they were both "perfectly all right."

The accident occurred as Cannon bent down to the floor of the vehicle to pick up some papers which had dropped as he gave the accused a sandwich from his glove compartment.

Faux agreed he had three drinks but didn't feel he was affected to any extent by them. He explained the accident by saying he was unwrapping the sandwich and his car had veered into the eastbound traffic lane, causing the crash.

STRONG ENOUGH

Magistrate Philp decided, however, the evidence was strong enough to convict the accused and imposed the sentence.

Also appearing in court Monday, Barry Kilborn, 23, of 856 George St. pleaded to a charge of impaired driving.

He was apprehended by police Friday night after a 60 mile an hour chase down George St. during which the accused ran through the stop light at McDonnel St. He paid a $75 fine and $2.50 costs.

Pleading guilty to charges of being intoxicated and obtaining liquor while under 21, Joseph Collins, 20, of 119 Robinson Ave., was fined a total of $25 including costs.

James Jordan, 36, Trenton, and Clarence Elliott, 48, of 782 Fairburn Ave. pleaded guilty to drunk charges and were each fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

W. J. R. McGill, 22, 247 Westcott St., pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving and was sentenced to seven days in jail. A second charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence was dismissed.

Mrs. Campney Again Heads Trent River WA

TRENT RIVER (ENS) — The anuual meeting of the United church Women's Association was held in the church auditorium.

Mrs. R. Campney was re-elected president for a second term of office. Other officers are: vice-president, Mrs. Harry Jewett; secretary, Mrs. Jack Henry; Treasurer, Mrs. R. Prentice; deaconess, Mrs. W. C. Inkster; pianist, Mrs. Bert Robson. The Rev. R. G. Newman officiated.

The groups handed in the proceeds of their year's work, amounting to upwards of $1,400. This money was realized from the proceeds of bazaars, pot-luck dinners, catering, annual fowl dinner, sale of quilts and personal donations.

During the year the kitchen of the church was renovated and built-in cupboards with two separate sinks were installed. The association was also responsible for other repairs to the church and dining hall.

Mrs. R. Campney presided for the devotional period: scripture reading, Mrs. Roy Fleming; poem, Mrs. H. Jewett. Mrs. Gordon Shear gave the topic. Two hymns were sung.

The president, Mrs. R. Campney, thanked the members for their support and hoped during her next year of office as much could be accomplished. Lunch was served.

5 Below Zero Temperature In Minnesota

CHICAGO (AP)—Wintry weather hit wide areas of the eastern third of the United States today. Snow or rain fell from Lake Michigan to the east coast, with heavy falls of snow over the Ohio valley.

The coldest weather of the season chilled the central part of the country. It was five below zero in International Falls, Minn., on the Canadian border. Temperatures were in the 20s in parts of Kentucky and Tennessee. Colder weather appeared in prospect for the mid-continent tonight.

Rain ended along the eastern seaboard after heavy falls Monday from North Carolina to southern New England. New York City's rainfall measured nearly two inches.

SLUSHY ACROSS BORDER

The blast from Old Man Winter left much of New York state plastered with slush.

In most areas, air, rail and road traffic was back to normal this morning, although airline flights in and out of Buffalo had been cancelled.

Light snow was expected in western and central New York today.

Six inches of snow fell in the western part of the state Monday.

Soviets Train Germans

BERLIN (Reuters) — The anti-Communist "information bureau west" said Monday that Soviet instructors have begun training East German air police to fly MiG-15 jet fighter planes. The bureau said the police are being trained at the Soviet-occupied airfield at Erfurt Bindersleben in Thuringia.

Macey Tramps Round Pub On Pogostick To Win Bet

CROWBOROUGH, Eng. (Reuters) — Golf professional Charlie Macey Monday added another crazy feat to his record—jumping around a pub on a pogostick for more than 1½ hours to collect a £1 bet.

All the time, he crooned his theme song—"Charlie boy is slightly mad. Charlie boy is crazy. Charlie boy is hopping mad. That's poor Charlie Macey."

"Poor Charlie Macey," 39, only had to make 1,000 hops or stay aboard the pogo stick for a half-hour to win his bet, but he was feeling "fresh as a daisy" and continued for 12,000 hops in an hour and 35 minutes.

At the end, he was stiff and panting, but later played a round of golf to "walk it off."

He turned over his winnings and another £4 collected from his audience toward the village children's Christmas party.

When he's not acting in his official capacity as professional at the nearby Beacon Golf Club, Macey is always on the lookout for something out of the ordinary to do.

Once he raced a passenger train down 3,560-foot Mount Snowdon, highest mountain in England and Wales.

Last year he walked 16 miles from here to Lewes prison backwards. It took him three hours, 55 minutes.

Plan Early Mass

HANOI, Indo-China (Reuters)—French troops in dangerous battle positions in Indo-China will celebrate midnight mass six hours early as the sun is setting Christmas Eve. This is a security precaution, because last year the Communist - led Vietminh rebels launched several local attacks just after midnight on Christmas morning.

Oil Firms Look For New Gains, Output Jumps

The U.S. petroleum industry hopes to boost output and sales in 1954 and its Canadian counterpart expects to record striking new advances, leaders in both countries made clear last week, relates Alfred Russell, financial writer for The New York World-Telgram and Sun.

Despite recent cuts in production allowable and some paring of prices, the U.S. industry expects demand for its four major products to total 7,162,800 barrels a day, up about 3½ per cent from 1953, American Petroleum Institute officials said, citing views expressed at its Chicago convention.

VARYING U.S. GAINS

With demand for distillates showing marked gains, sales of gasoline, kerosene and residual fuel also should help record an over-all rise of about five per cent in the first 1954 quarter from the like 1953 period, it was predicted.

Gains in demand probably will dip to some two per cent in the second quarter, approximately 3½ per cent in the third and decline again to about three per cent in the fourth quarter.

Gasoline sales for the year were envisioned at 3,602,100 barrels a day, up 4.31 per cent from 1953; kerosene 370,300 barrels, up 2.59 per cent; distillate 1,570,000 barrels, up 6.92 per cent and residual, 1,623,500 barrels, off 1.03 per cent.

For the first quarter, gasoline demanded was put at 3,265,500 barrels a day, for the third 3,816,900 and for the fourth 3,552,900.

Kerosene demand in the first quarter was put at 524,900 barrels a day, up 6.58 per cent from 1953. But the second quarter will see that cut to 233,000 barrels, off 3.71 per cent from 1953, it was predicted.

CANADIANS CONFIDENT

Meantime, Canadian confidence in the 1954 outlook was evidenced by John F. Fairlie, manager of the co-ordination and economics department of Imperial Oil, Limited, the country's top producer.

Observing that Canada has made enormous strides since the 1947 discovery of oil on the western prairies, he said that reserves then were 1/50th and output 1/11th of what they are now. Canada then depended on imports for 90 per cent of its needs; now, he said, Canada "is the second highest consumer in the free world," yet provides more than 45 per cent of its needs on an average output of 230,000 barrels a day.

Expansion and construction of new pipes lines should "spur" the lifting of daily production in 1954 to 325,000 barrels, he said.

OUTPUT SOARING

Production this year should top 1952 by 35 per cent and advance another 33½ per cent in 1954, he said, noting that since 1947 "a net addition has been made to our crude stores equal to the entire national needs for two or three years."

The significance of Canada's output plans, he said, is indicated by the fact that the "much-talked-about" St. Lawrence seaway will generate two million horsepower while Canada's prairie oil in 1954 will have an energy content 14 times greater. Oil or gas discoveriees have been made in 1953 at the rate of one every two days, a ration of one discovery for four wildcats drilled, he noted.

British Matches Are Changing Shape

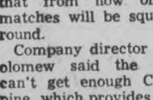
LONDON (CP) — Lack of fine Canadian white pine is changing the shape of British matches.

One large company announced that from now on its wooden matches will be square instead of round.

Company director Gilbert Bartholomew said the company just can't get enough Canadian white pine, which provides the best round splits for match making.

The only solution, he said, is to make square matches using plentiful aspen poplar.

Village Stays Dry



BURFORD, Ont. (CP)—This village near Brantford voted Monday to stay dry. On the question of beverage rooms for women with men escorts, the vote was 613 in favor, 1,253 opposed. On the question of beverage rooms for men, it was 620 in favor, 1,237 opposed.

Shortens Route

SARNIA (CP) — Nine railway freight cars were ferried from here to Port Huron, Mich., Monday on the first trip of a $1,000,000 carferry service across the St. Clair river. The service will cut 28 miles from the route from the mid-west to Buffalo. The old route ran through Windsor.

U.S. Prisoners Refuse To Attend Interviews

By GEORGE McARTHUR

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Allied efforts to win back United States war prisoners who stayed with the Communists remained stalled today as the PoWs spurned a personal appeal from the chairman of the Korean repatriation commission to attend interviews.

There is a mounting belief that none of the 22 Americans and one Briton will appear for explanations before the 90-day period for interviews expires in eight days—Dec. 23.

Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya talked for 90 minutes today with two prisoners identified as leaders in the compound, Sgt. R. G. Corden of the United States Army, and the British prisoner, Andrew Condron of the Royal Marines.

An Indian spokesman said both were unmoved after their private conference with Thimayya in a Korean hut outside the barbed-wire compound where they are held by the repatriation commission.

WON'T COME OUT

The PoW spokesmen said the Americans and Briton will not come out for face-to-face talks with United Nations explainers until the neutral nations repatriation commission settles a dispute with pro-Communist South Korean prisoners who also refuse to attend explanations.

Thimayya earlier said he personally felt the Americans simply did not want to attend the explanations. He called some of their reasons for stalling the interviews absurd.

The UN command said it is ready to interview any prisoner of any nationality who comes out Wednesday.

This latter move leaves it squarely up to the prisoners. Although it is officially a request to the Indian command, the Indians normally defer to the wishes of the prisoners.

The UN command has indicated that it will renew its request every day.

There was no meeting today of the repatriation commission, which is considering the lengthy protest filed by the South Koreans who refused repatriation.

Sapper Hegardoren met his wife Renata in Hamelin where he was serving with the 27th Infantry Brigade. About 350 soldiers and 80 of their wives and children returned in the draft

Lesage Opposes Soil Conservation Meet

OTTAWA (CP)—Resources Minister Lesage opposed a CCF suggestion Monday that a federal-provincial conference be called to study a national policy on soil, forest and water conservation.

The government does not think such a conference at present would produce any great results, Mr. Lesage said during a Commons debate on the proposal of H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West).

Government policy was to work for "steady progress" under present federal-provincial agreements on conservation.

"So far as extending these activities is concerned, the federal government would not wish to take any step which might appear to trespass upon the jurisdiction of the provinces over their natural resources."

NEED LEADERSHIP

Mr. Herridge said the federal government should give leadership in conservation "if the march of disaster is to be halted."

It should establish standards for the management and use of national resources, finance research work and teach conservation to all Canadians "from early school days onward."

Later, Rodney Adamson (PC—York West) moved an amendment to the resolution, urging that the Commons committee on mines, forests and waters study conservation matters at this session and that "free enterprise" develop national resources in collaboration with the provinces.

Frank E. Lennard (PC—Wentworth) said the longer-settled sections of Ontario need reforestation to prevent soil erosion during spring run-off. Federal support would solve the problem in 20 to 25 years.

Most People Now Hunting Uranium In Quebec Area

QUEBEC (CP)—More people are hunting uranium in Quebec than ever before.

Latest figures show that in the first 11 months of this year, 8,062 persons or corporations took out provincial mining certificates at $10 each, nearly a 15-per-cent increase over the corresponding period last year.

They staked an average of 2½ claims each—their certificates entitle them to five claims of 40 acres each.

Official records do not show what percentage involved uranium prospecting, but an official of the provincial mines department said:

"Almost all of them are looking for uranium. That might not be their original intention, but they all keep their eyes open for it."

Most of them, he said, are equipped with geiger counters.

Much of the present activity is centred around the Portneuf area, just west of here, and Maniwaki, north of Ottawa. There was great activity in the latter area between March and August. Provincial records show some 200,000 acres were staked there during that time.

Quebec provincial laboratories submit an average of 3,000 samples of ore annually to tests for radioactivity.

The mines department offers five-week courses in prospecting at both Laval University here and Montreal's Ecole Polytechnique.

Author Of Sarah Binks Retires From Winnipeg College Post

By DAVE STOCKAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Saskatchewan sodbusters had their chronicler and her name was Sarah Binks.

And while we are told death has claimed the "sweet songstress of Saskatchewan," her poems live on, thanks to one man. Otherwise Sarah's works, awfully close to the soil, would have been furrowed under and forgotten.

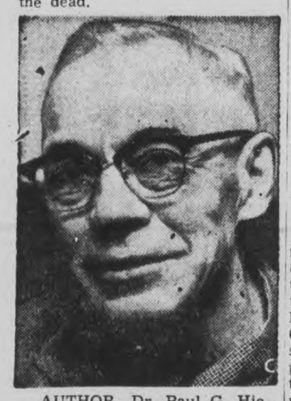
The poems were collected a few years back by Dr. Paul G. Hiebert, associate professor of chemistry at the University of Manitoba.

First, though, he had to write them. Because, as anyone who has read the book knows, Sarah Binks never lived—although the reader might not have caught on to the fact for quite a few pages.

SUBTLE HUMOR

The book "Sarah Binks," which won for Dr. Hiebert the 1947 Leacock Medal for humor, is dead-pan all the way. It pokes fun at the Prairies and at critical biographies of real authors. There are footnotes and foreword, a list of literary awards and all the trimmings as well as the weird and wonderful poetry attributed to the Prairie miss who found beauty in the barnyard.

Sarah sings of an Ojibway maiden thus:



"Patrick O'Neil O'Connell
Late of the Mounted Police
And moon-in-the-eyes Macdonald
Are blessed, but not by the priest."

What brings all this up is that Dr. Hiebert paid a visit to the Winnipeg Free Press the other day with some news.

"I'm retiring Dec. 30," he said, "And I just thought some of the students I've taught in the last 30 years might be interested."

END OF SARAH

Which brought the conversation to literature and word that it's unlikely Sarah will come back from the dead.

AUTHOR—Dr. Paul G. Hiebert, associate professor of chemistry at the University of Manitoba, is the author of the book "Sarah Binks" which won the Leacock medal for humor in 1947. The book pokes fun at the Prairies and at critical biographies of real authors in the story of the "sweet songstress of Saskatchewan." Dr. Hiebert plans to retire December 30 to move to Carman, 52 miles southwest of Winnipeg, and write "important" books.

There will be no more of her literal translations of German verse such as Heine's "Du Bist Wei Eine Blume:"

"You are like one flower,
So well, so good and clean
I look you on and long,
Slinks me the heart between;
Me is as if the hands I
On head your put them should,
Praying that God you preserve
So well, so clean and good."

Dr. Hiebert's retirement plans: To move to Carman, 52 miles southwest of Winnipeg, and write books. What kind? "Important books," he says.

"But you don't want to know all that stuff," he added. "Just say I'm going out to count the stars."

After studying at Wesley (now United) College here and doing newspaper work for a while, Dr. Hiebert took post-graduate work in philosophy and then chemistry at the University of Toronto and McGill.

Thirty years ago he returned here to teach. And now, like his Sarah, he is moving out into the country, where he and his wife have had a summer home for many years.

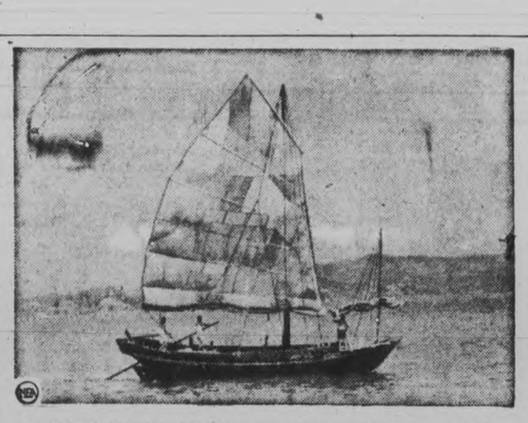
Strike To Delay New CGE Plant

HAMILTON (CP)—Members of Local 105 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) voted Monday night to go on strike after 11th hour negotiations with six electrical contractors collapsed.

The union, with a membership of 300, has called a meeting for today to fix a strike date.

Cec Dibble, union business agent, said the members could not accept last company offers of a 15-cent raise retroactive to Nov. 16 and another five cents next June 30.

A strike would mean delays on several projects, including the $12,000,000 General Electric plant at Guelph.



The union has demanded a general 50-cent raise to $2.50 an hour for journeymen.

To Investigate Act

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Farmers from nine southwestern Ontario counties Monday set up a committee to investigate operation of Ontario's junior farmers loan act. Delegates to a zone meeting of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture said only two out of every 40 applicants were granted loans, and these went mostly to farmers already established.

Criticize Beaver Symbol

TORONTO (CP) — Mazo de la Roche, author of the Jalna stories, said Monday the beaver should never have been chosen as a symbol of Canada. "Who wants to work like a beaver, look like a beaver, delve continually into the mud?" she asked during an address to the Canadian Club. "The deer, graceful, symmetrical, would be a much better symbol."

ARMED JUNKS, like this one plowing the waters of Hong Kong harbor, have attacked ships bound for Red Chinese ports. Some of these junks, carrying no national flag, are believed to be sent by the Nationalist Chinese to prey on blockade-runners.

Sea War Between Formosa, U.K. Looming Over Shipping

By FRED SPARKS

HONG KONG—(NEA)—In the months ahead, England and Nationalist China might be fighting a small, vicious war on the high seas.

Lately, Chinese warships and planes from Formosa have been increasing the shelling and strafing of British freighters bound for Red Chinese ports.

Although there is an official blackout, it's known that on a few occasions British warships "unofficially" have appeared on the ocean scene to "escort" endangered freighters back to the safety of Hong Kong.

With British determination to increase trade with Red China growing daily, there is a strong possibilty London might order armed convoys. British naval officials here already have an air and sea convoy plan worked out.

And each week Nationalist China grows stronger on its diet of U.S. supplies. One of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's primary weapons is the sea and air blockade of Chinese ports. In 1948, when the mainland fell to the Reds, Nationalist China proclaimed a blockade of all ports.

BOTH GET HELP

The U.S. is like a man trying to keep two wives happy at the same time—even when they know about each other. For England and Formosa are both our allies and are both receiving U.S.-made weapons.

We do not consider the Chinese civil war over. As far as we're concerned, the legal Chinese Government still sits in Formosa. We forbid all U.S. trade with Red China and finance Chiang Kai-shek for a possible comeback.

The British consider the Chinese civil war finished, with General Mao the winner and Formosa merely an irritating pimple. They recognize and do business with the Communists in Peiping—aim to do much more.

American military men are charged with organizing the Nationalist forces for a comeback. Naturally, having this assignment, they do not want to curb the weapon of blockade.

Meanwhile our State Department people wish the Nationalists would please look the other way when British ships pass. It just complicates matters at this sufficiently complicated time.

NOT MUCH CHANCE

But if British shipborne trade with Red China increases, our ally in Formosa and our military mission there will insist on a "gloves off" policy. And frankly, Chiang has the same chance taking on the British fleet as he has taking on a tiger with a table fork.

Other allied nations—like the Scandinavians — are carefully watching England. They're already doing a slight seaborne business with mainland China and would like to do more, but are hardly anxious to sail their ships to the bottom.

The Danish steamer Henrik Jensen was stopped on the high seas and forced into a Formosan port. After much diplomatic huffing-and-puffing she was released and today she's back on the same anti-blockade run.

Recently there were three attacks on British coastal, shipping off China in four days. The steamer Hydrolock was riddled with bullets from an aircraft and went back to Hong Kong for repairs.

The steamer Rosita was fired on near Shanghai by a Nationalist warship, but managed to scoot under the protective cover of Red coastal cannon.

This is the second attack on the Rosita. Last December 1 her skipper was shot dead as he stood on the bridge. The bullets were fired by a Nationalist warship, also near Shanghai.

These China Sea sailors have no shortage of courage when a cash bonus is involved.

Naturally these assaults make the merchant-citizens of this town boil like mid-afternoon tea and scream for convoys.

MANY ASSAULTS

There have also many assaults on ships bound for Red China by armed junks carrying no flag, somewhat in the pirate tradition. There is good reason to believe that some of the armed junks are from Formosa; another way of harassing shipping without getting too involved politically.

At present, ships making the mainland run from Hong Kong hug the coast as close as possible to come under the protection of Red Chinese air patrols.

Others coming cross-seas zigzag to avoid detection and sail at night blacked out.

Present U.S. plans for beefing up Formosa call for an increase in naval and air muscle. How can the U.S. label these gift planes and ships: "Not to be used against our allies who trade with your enemy"?

I have also learned that the Nationalists are determined to build up their submarine strength—and a sub is a dandy weapon for clobbering blockade runners.

In this Oriental muddle the U.S. is on both sides and, as usual, will probably be caught in the middle.

Reserves Judgment

TORONTO (CP)—Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court reserved judgment Monday on a $15,400 damage action brought by Norman Bradshaw 43, against a surgeon he claims left part of a surgical instrument in his abdomen after an operation. Bradshaw said the detachable tip of an instrument was left in him during a kidney stone operation performed by Dr. Charles Robson last June 25.

Queen Crosses International Date Line

ABOARD S.S. GOTHIC (CP)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh are on the most confusing part of their six-month Commonwealth tour with the crossing of the international date line scheduled for tonight—or was it Monday night or will it be Wednesday night?

For the last few days this royal liner has been steaming closer to the 180th meridian, where the 12-hour difference from Greenwich mean time results in different days on each side of the imaginary north-south line.

As of this morning, from the point of view of eastern standard time, the Gothic was six hours behind. But Wednesday morning, again from the point of view of EST, the Gothic will be 18 hours ahead.

As the liner crosses the date line from east to west those on board are precipitated, as far as their calendar is concerned, from Tuesday into Wednesday.

CROSS NEAR SAMOA

The Gothic's crossing is set for some time before midnight, in the region of the Samoa group of islands where the British author Robert Louis Stevenson lies buried.

Monday, from their private deck, the royal couple watched a Royal New Zealand Air Force flying boat and the cruiser Black Prince, New Zealand naval escort for the Gothic.

The white hull of the flying boat, gleaming in the sunshine, was sighted for more than half an hour as it flew near the Gothic and the Black Prince in wide circles.

Two Mayors Defeated In Elections

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A civic election in Orillia, one of the Ontario municipalities which voted Monday, resulted in a dead heat in the mayoralty race.

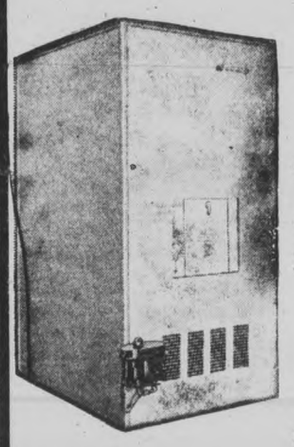
Reeve Hugh Johnston and Deputy Reeve John MacIsaac were tied with 1,226 votes each. Mayor Wilbur M. Cramp went down to defeat with 1,163.

The mayor for 1953 also lost out in North Bay. Mayor Arthur Beattie lost out to Merle Dickerson in a four-way contest.

MAYOR RE-ELECTED

At Port Arthur, however, Mayor F. O. Robinson was re-elected after an election battle with Ald. Harold Blanchard.

Elected mayors of towns were: Lorne A. Smart, Napanee; Elmer McQueen, Essex; John A. Reynolds, Kincardine; Louis Lessard, Mattawa; Jack Armstrong, Georgetown; B. Harper Bull, Brampton; J. J. Carmody, Pembroke; Herbert T. Guess, Fort Erie.



At North Bay a bylaw for a $400,000 arena debenture issue carried.

INAUGURAL MEETING

The inaugural meeting of the 1954 city council will be held Monday, January 4, at 3 p.m. A reception will follow in the mayor's parlor at city hall.

WINDOW AWARD

A $25 prize was awarded to Eric Howard Monday by the Examiner for presenting the window display which best promoted the Peterborough Merchants' Christmas Shopping Jamboree.

MORE POLIO

Another case of polio was reported Saturday. The victim, a 39-year-old woman was taken to the isolation wing of Civic Hospital. Her condition was so bad she was taken to Toronto Saturday night.

BOXING DAY

The finance committee of city council Monday night authorized Mayor Hugh Waddell to declare Saturday, December 26, Boxing Day and a civic holiday in Peterborough.

CLEAR THOSE STREETS

A special drive will be made tonight to clear main streets on which there are parking meters, said Police Chief John Thompson. The chief asked that drivers make sure that their cars are taken off those streets.

FUNERAL SERVICE

Funeral services for Alexander Boyd, who died Monday in Civic Hospital, will be held from the Kaye funeral home on Wednesday at 2.00 p.m. The Rev. C. G. Boyd will officiate and burial will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

FREQUENT ACCIDENTS

By 1.15 p.m. today city police had investigated seven motor collisions in Peterborough. Continued falls of snow had rendered the streets especially difficult to manoeuvre and many drivers had near escapes. Just before noon there were three accidents within the space of 10 minutes. No injuries were reported.

SAFETY PATROL PARTY

Guests Saturday of the Paramount theatre management were the 358 members of the Peterborough schools' safety patrols. They were treated to a special movie program, prizes and gifts. In addition, boys from St. Peter's school presented a safety patrol skit for the other children. Police Chief John Thompson drew for door prizes.

NO LABOR QUORUM

Apparently the snowstorm was too much Monday night for delegates to the December meeting of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL). Only president Alfred Barber and four or five of the most faithful attenders turned up. So there was not enough for a quorum. President Barber decided to postpone the December meeting for a week—to 8 p.m. December 21.

THAT WHITE STUFF IS HERE AGAIN—tons of it—to make children frolic and shout, to make city fathers wrestle with snow-removal problems, and merchants to ring up sales happily on cash registers. Snow has quickened the lagging Christmas spirit, at last. It also is making it tough for motorists whose cars spin out of control when visibility is poor and streets icy. Since last night there have been 14 accidents investigated by city police.

Oil Company Asks Again For Location

Contentious Corner At Parkhill, Water Back In Question

An application by the Imperial Oil Co. for a building permit to erect a service station at the north-east corner of Parkhill Rd. and Water St. was referred to the 1954 council by the finance committee of city council Monday night.

Ald. T. D. Miller, committee chairman, said he was not in favor of dodging the issue but he predicted next year's council would be faced with deputations opposing issuance of the permit and he didn't think council should saddle their successors with a decision made this year.

T. J. Carley, QC, spokesman for the company, reminded council that when a previous site had been expropriated to make way for the new city hall, the company had obtained permission to erect a service station at the location for which they were again seeking a permit. There had been opposition to it at the time. The district was zoned as R2-residential and permission was rescinded.

COMMERCIAL

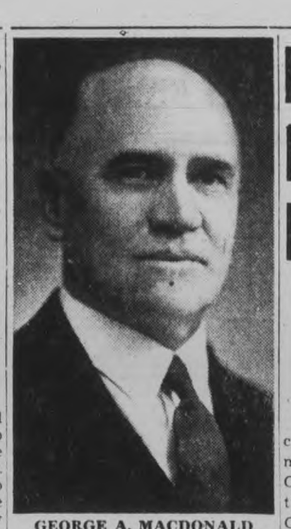
But, he argued, the immediate area contained tourist homes, apartment houses, refreshment booths, service stations, shoe repair shops, and drug and grocery stores. He said the district could be seen to be a commercial development, especially Parkhill Rd.

He said much of the opposition to the previous application had come from Dennistoun Ave. residents, many of whom would be six or seven hundred feet away from the site, so that the value of their property would not be affected by construction of the service station.

Cost of the service station would be 25 to 30 thousand dollars. One house would be demolished but the Mason residence would remain. There would be 21½ feet between the service station and the Mason residence.

The company would give the city 25 feet at the apex of the triangular property, making the corner "much less dangerous than it is at the present time." The rear corner of the station would be against the north lot line, making it a "daylight" corner.

Mr. Carley emphasized that the service station would not be operated as a repair garage and noise would be kept to a minimum. Company officials promised that the lot would be separated from adjacent properties by an ornamental fence or hedge not more than five feet high. There would be no sign boards and air pumps would be as close to the gasoline pumps as possible, probably at the side of the building.



CHANGE OF IDEAS

Asked by Ald. A. B. Burrows if the company expected opposition, Mr. Carley said they felt there had been some change in sentiment but some people would probably still be in opposition. He asked council to take into consideration the fact that the company had withdrawn its application for a service station on Hunter St., next to Mark St. United Church, in deference to an assurance by the congregation that they intended to use the property to extend their Sunday school facilities.

"We do appreciate that," Ald. Miller said.

Company officials stated that the service station would be rented on an annual lease and there was no possibility it would be used either for parking or as an automobile sales lot.

The decision to refer the application to the 1954 council was taken on a motion by Ald. J. A. Dewart, seconded by Ald. H. S. Longhurst. Agreement was unanimous.

GEORGE A. MACDONALD

Fish, Game Men Re-elect Hugh Plowman

Hugh Plowman was re-elected president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association at the annual election of officers on Monday evening.

First and second vice-presidents will be Stan Purser and Gil Downer, respectively. Victor Bruce was appointed secretary and Ray Thebarge, treasurer. Honorary president is the Hon. Harold R. Scott.

Norman Bradley, for his long years of faithful service to the club, and conservation in general, was made life member.

Other executive members elected for the following year will be Frank Adam, Don Blondeau, Bert Carter, Scott Elmhurst, Bud Fisher, Fred Marsden, Dan Potipco, George Walton, George Wilshaw, Jim Weyer and Eric Johnson.

GIVE GUIDANCE

Special speaker of the evening was regional forester of the Department of Lands and Forests W. B. Greenwood. He thanked the club for past co-operation and stated that his department looked to all fish and game clubs for guidance in establishing governmental policies.

He told something of a new training scheme being planned for Ontario guides to ensure that they may become well qualified and equal to guides anywhere throughout the province.

"Picnicking areas in the Kawarthas are becoming scarce", said Mr. Greenwood. And to correct the situation he said that the department were acquiring suitable sites and that American authorities were being asked for advice on their establishment. He was given honorary membership to the club.

Chairman Hugh Plowman was presented with a suitable piece of fishing equipment for his continued good work in club matters. The door prize, a Christmas turkey, was won by Ed Coss.

Recommend Macdonald For Utilities

Will Fill Vacancy Caused When Dr Langley Resigned

The finance committee of city council Monday night recommended the appointment of George A. Macdonald to the utilities commission to succeed Dr. G. R. Langley, whose resignation is to take effect December 31.

Two years ago, in the civic election of December, 1951, Mr. Macdonald ran second to Dr. Langley, in a four-man contest for a seat on the commission, the first election in years for a PUC post.

In that election, Mr. Macdonald obtained about 51 fewer votes than the successful candidate. The results were: Dr. Langley—2,263; Mr. Macdonald—2-212; James Juby—1,396; Charles K. Hurst—1,341.

EFFORTS FAILED

After serving two years of his three-year term, Dr. Langley walked out of a commission meeting, charging that all his efforts to persuade the other commissioners to operate in a more business-like way had failed. His written resignation from the commission was accepted at a special meeting on December 7.

Mr. Macdonald, who came to Peterborough as a boy, has been prominent in the public life of the city since his youth, when he starred at outside wing on the local football team.

ELECTED TO COUNCIL

He first entered municipal politics in 1925, when he was elected to city council. After serving as an alderman from 1925 to 1935, he was elected mayor in 1936 and acted as the city's chief magistrate for two years.

After a two-year respite from civic affairs, Mr. Macdonald was elected to the utilities commission and served on that body for 11 years until his defeat by Dr. Langley in the 1951 election. He was for many years plant superintendent of the De Laval Co. Ltd. and is now personnel manager of the same firm.

Mr. Macdonald will serve the one remaining year of Dr. Langley's three-year term. Richard Raine, who was elected in 1952, will serve two more years before his term expires. This year's chairman, Fred Hills was re-elected by acclamation to his fourth three-year term on the commission at the civic nomination meeting last month.

Driver Injured As Car Collides With Dump Truck

A collision Monday afternoon between a dump truck and a 1952 Buick car on the Stony Lake road in Dummer township caused facial injuries to a Toronto man.

Lloyd T. Shaw, 44, of 135 Courcelette Rd., Toronto, received bruises on his upper lip and nose, the result of being thrown forward against the windshield of his car after it collided with the dump truck at the "school corner", two miles west of Crowe's Landing.

Shaw was driving the Buick north on the Stony Lake road about 2:10 p.m. and tried to make a right turn at the crossing at the same time as the southbound truck, driven by William Hamilton, 37, of RR 2, Lakefield, was making a left turn.

The front wheels of Shaw's car didn't turn in time on the hard-packed snow and the car ran into the dump truck's left rear dual-wheels. The springs were broken on the dump truck and the 1952-model car received $700 damage.

OPP Constable Harold Armstrong investigated.

To Issue Debentures

KITCHENER (CP)—The Ontario municipal board has granted permission to the Waterloo school board to issue debentures totalling $190,000 for the erection of the Empire school.

Committee Denies Requests Of Two City Dep't Heads

The finance committee of city council Monday night turned down applications from two department heads for salary adjustments: a request from the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. J. P. Wells, that his increase in salary, granted in November, be made retroactive to the first of the year, and a request from Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis that he be given two weeks' extra salary in lieu of a vacation.

It was recommended to the 1954 council that Dr. Wells' salary be reviewed, along with those of other department heads, in the new year. No action was taken on Mr. Davis' request, which, if it were granted, would be setting a precedent. Several attempts were made to get around this obstacle but none succeeded.

Ald. J. A. Dewart, chairman of the board of health, presented Dr. Wells' request as a recommendation from the board. He regretted that the matter had to be brought up again but admitted that he had not discussed the matter sufficiently withthe MOH when his salary increase was originally granted.

TAKEN FOR GRANTED

Dr. Wells had taken it for granted that his raise would be made retroactive, just as those of other department heads who had been granted increases earlier in the year. He had agreed to join the department of health last year at the same salary as his predecessor, Dr. Kelly, but expected that his salary would be reconsidered early this year.

Several salaried employees had been put on straight salaries this year, eliminating the cost of living bonus, but this had not affected Dr. Wells, whose cost-of-living bonus had dropped from 19 to 12 per cent. If Dr. Kelly had remained, he would have drawn $7,200, including allowances and $6,820 salary.

Dr. Wells' salary had been increased to $7,500, effective November 14. By the end of the year he will have drawn $6,730.75. To make the increase retroactive would mean payment of an additional $769.25.

30% MORE WORK

Ald. Dewart said that undertaking the school health services had ment a 30 per cent increase in Dr. Wells' work. He was also well on the way to a solution of the problem of pollution of Jackson Park creek, Little Lake and the Otonabee River. He had not taken any holidays because of the reorganization of his department. Dr. Wells had been a medical officer of health for five years and the provisional department of health recommended that an inexperienced MOH be paid a starting salary of $7,000.

"I think we all remember the trying time Dr. Wells had when he first came here," Ald. T. D. Miller said. "I think he has come through with flying colors."

"Dr. Wells has given good value and I think this move would be well warranted," Ald. A. B. Burrows stated.

Ald. W. J. Beggs asked if Dr. Wells hadn't agreed to accept his predecessor's salary for one year.

Mayor Hugh Waddell said he thought the only understanding was that, when the budget was being prepared, Dr. Wells was asked to wait for about a year before having his salary reviewed.

Ald. Burrows asked if there had not been a saving effected by amalgamating the school health services with the board of health.

Ald. Dewart replied that spending in his department was about $7,500 below the budget estimate. Grants of $6,000 were expected this year and these would amount to about $20,000 in 1954, so that health costs would diminish considerably.

Ald. Miller suggested council might consider making Dr. Wells' salary retroactive for six months, as he hadn't worked very long on his starting salary.

Have No Faith In Reds-Duffus

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator J. J. Duffus, Peterborough, said Monday night in the Senate that the Western nations should have no faith or confidence in Russia or Premier Malenkov and should continue to build their defence forces.

He said during the throne speech debate that communism since Stalin's death continues to be cruel, ruthless and evil, destroying morals and placing a premium on cunning and savagery.

Senator Cairine Wilson (L—Ontario) urged that the government soon appoint women to the unemployment insurance commission and the civil service commission. The new women's bureau of the labor department was welcome but appointment of women to the two commissions had been sought for many years.

She said she is disappointed that first-class postal rates are being increased. In sending all first-class mail by air wherever air service is available, she said she hopes this does not result in delays. In some cases second-class mail was delivered in 24 hours while first-class mail sent by air took 48 and even 72 hours.

High Returns

Christmas Shopping coupons returned to the Chamber of Commerce to date, are well into the three-quarter million mark, with 49 towns and villages in the district represented. A coupon is issued with each purchase at any of the merchants listed in the Jamboree. These are signed and sent to the Chamber of Commerce, and each week a draw is made for a television set. Another television set will be drawn Wednesday and the last one on Dec. 29. Coupons for it will be issued by the stores up to and including Dec. 24.

Minor Accidents Do Damage, No One Injured

Seven minor accidents, involving $790 damage to vehicles, were the result of Monday's heavy snow storm that coated roads with slippery slush. No person was reported injured.

An unknown vehicle caused damage to the rear and front of a car, owned by Gordon E. Thomas, Fraserville, parked in Monaghan Rd. Cars driven by Kenneth Hutton, 777 Lock St., and Raymond Hill, RR 1, Peterborough, were involved in a minor collision at Murray St. and Armour Rd.

Fairly substantial damage to fenders and grills was suffered by two cars which collided at Aylmer St. and Aberdeen Ave. Drivers were Donald Danford, Sturgeon St. and Ernest W. Beatty, 256 Wolsley St.

Very slight damage was reported in a collision at Monaghan Rd. and Albert St. Drivers were James P. Withers, 547 Douglas Ave., and Mrs. Margaret Harrington, 272 Hunter St. When vehicles driven by James A. Woodcock, 139 Stewart St. and Robert W. Armitage, 203 Park St., collided at Townsend and Rubidge Sts., only minor damage to the fronts was inflicted. A collision on Monaghan Rd. between cars driven by James Weyer, 585 O'Connel Rd., and Aubrey Morrison, 130 Perry St., caused slight damage. Kerman C. Tippett, 735 Secord Ave. and William Purvis, 725 McKellar St., were drivers of cars which collided in Clonsilla West and Western Ave. There was no serious damage.

Car, Truck Skid On Hill, Collide

A car and a truck, both skidding on the slippery road surface Monday afternoon, collided on a hill a mile east of the Indian River turn.

Neither driver was injured and damage totalled $100.

Robert J. Mighton, 24, of 110 Simpson Ave., Toronto, was driving east along Highway 7, and tried to get up a slushy hill. He couldn't make the grade and began to skid.

A truck following him, driven by Robert Livingstone, 25, of 29 Victoria Ave., pulled to the north side of the highway to pass the skidding car. The truck, owned by Braund Home Food Markets, then went into a skid also and came into collision with the left rear fender of the car.

OPP Constable James Healey investigated.

Get Cars Off Streets Police Chief Warns

Police Chief John Thompson today issued a warning to drivers who are in the practice of parking their cars on city streets overnight. Bylaws rule that six hours is the longest period a vehicle may be parked in one position and between midnight and 8 a.m. only four-hour parking is permitted.

The bylaw is intended to keep streets clear during the night so that snow plows may operate. Already police have issued a considerable number of tickets for this offence and charges are being laid against owners.

Former District Man Killed In Accident

Hugh Anderson, a former Lakefield and Bobcaygeon man, died in St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto, Monday night following a car truck accident earlier in the afternoon.

His mother, Mrs. Ben Bolt and her husband have left Lakefield for Toronto.

Mr. Anderson leaves his wife and one daughter, Shirley.

Newfoundland's Chief Justice Last Canadian Named A Knight

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Sir Brian Edward Spencer Dunfield, a merry-eyed knight of 65, refers to himself as the "last of the Mohicans."

He means by this that he was the last Newfoundlander to be knighted before Newfoundland became a Canadian province in 1949—five days before, March 26, Confederation made Sir Brian a Canadian. Since Canada does not receive such honors, at her own wish, he is the last Canadian knight.

As president of the Community Planning Association of Canada, Sir Brian was in the capital recently for a round of conferences. He has been mixed up in such affairs for so long people find it hard to believe that he also carries on a full-time job—a justice of the Newfoundland Supreme Court.

CONFEDERATION BENEFITS

Newfoundland-born Sir Brian has never made any bones about his belief that Confederation is good for Newfoundland. He thought that before Confederation, he says and he still thinks so.

When upholders of the responsible government cause sought an injunction from him to prevent the Confederation referendum, Sir Brian wrote a decision which probably stands, in the legal world, as a prime example of unequivocation. Sir Brian ended his rejection of the injunction application by saying: "Legally, practically and logically this is nonsense."

Sir Brian says Confederation has worked a "social revolution" in Newfoundland, particularly among old people. The old-age pension has cancelled their complete dependence on young members of the family once they are too old to work.

Sir Brian probably has unequalled qualifications for presidency of the community planning association, to which post he was elected in October for one year.

He was graduated from London University in 1908 and was called to the Newfoundland bar in 1911. He was made a King's Counsel in 1932 and from that year until 1939 he served as secretary of justice. He was appointed a Supreme Court justice in 1939.

He was chairman of the commission on housing and town planning for St. John's until 1944 and chairman of the St. John's Housing Corporation from 1944 until 1949. He has been a member of the St. John's town planning commission since 1945. He was also secretary of the rural reconstruction commission from 1935 to 1948.

NEWFOUNDLAND KNIGHT—Sir Brian Edward Spencer Dunfield, 65, a justice of the Newfoundland Supreme Court and president of the Community Planning Association of Canada, was the last Newfoundlander to be knighted before Confederation in 1949. Because the Dominion Government now does not recommend Canadians for such honors, Sir Brian is the last of the Canadian knights. (CP Photo)

AIRLINES ADOPT UNIFORM CARGO LABELS—Shown above is the first standard set of labels for restricted cargoes to be adopted for worldwide use by any form of transport. They are part of a code agreed upon by scheduled airlines of the world in the International Air Transport Association Traffic Conference held in Montreal. The labels, designed to eliminate language difficulties and other problems, are expected to come into use early in 1954.

World Tensions Have Eased Peace Prospects Brightened

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prospects for peace brightened and world tensions generally eased during 1953. Not since the end of the Second World War had a year brought as many encouraging developments toward settling world conflicts.

The cold war was still far from over. But the hot war in Korea ended after more than three years of inconclusive fighting. A new approach had been made to the problem of controlling atomic energy. And a new regime in the Kremlin was compelled to devote at least part of its energy to domestic problems.

The Commonwealth crowned a new Queen and hoped for a new Elizabethan age. Four days before her Coronation, New Zealander Edmund Hillary and Sherpa guide Tenzing scaled the hitherto unconquerable Mount Everest. Hillary won a knighthood for his feat.

Also knighted was Prime Minister Churchill, who strove in his 80th year to join leaders of the western world in building a lasting peace to follow his achievements in war.

Dweight D. Eisenhower assumed the presidency of the United States and closed the year with a dramatic appeal to the United Nations General Assembly for the pooling of world atomic resources for peaceful ends.

MALENKOV SUCCEEDS STALIN

While Eisenhower's Republican administration was taking root in Washington, the death of Joseph Stalin brought Georgi Malenkov to the helm in Moscow and the western world tried to assess the effects of the change.

Within four months after his accession, Malenkov had put down bloody riots in East Germany and Czechoslovakia and purged his most powerful vice - premier, former police chief Laventry Beria, for "criminal anti-state activities."

A year of cautious sparring on global issues between East and West ended as Russia, the U.S., Britain and France agreed to a conference of their foreign minister in Berkin to take up again such long-standing questions as the German and Austrian peace treaties.

Signing of a Korean armistice July 27 followed three years and 32 days of war. The truce talks themselves had lasted two years and 17 days and there were indications that the wrangle over peace terms would continue.

The armistice itself nearly foundered when President Syngman Rhee of South Korea released 27,000 anti-Communist North Korean prisoners in June. The truce terms called for all prisoners unwilling to return to their own side to remain in neutral custody and to submit to "explanations" inducing them to change their minds.

Only a small percentage of the unwilling prisoners consented to return after the "explanations." And there was further disagreement as to the fate of those who still resisted repatriation.

DISAGREE OVER RUSSIA

The peace conference also was snarled in preliminary disagreement. The Reds demanded that Russia, India, Burma, Indonesia and Pakistan participate as "neutrals." The United States originally objected to neutral participation but later consented, on condition that Russia take part as a voting participant rather than a non-voting "neutral."

While the Reds insisted on Russia's "neutral" status, Rhee objected to India's inclusion, insisting that the Nehru government is "pro-Communist."

Relations improved between the West and Middle Eastern countries.

Iran's Shah ousted Mohammed Mossadegh, the fiery, 70-year-old premier who had expropriated the British-owned Anglo - Iranian Oil Company and vehemently denounced the western powers. Mossadegh was jailed and charged with treason against the royal family.

Britain's dispute with Egypt over the fate of the Sudan and British occupation of the Suez canal zone also appeared headed for peaceful settlement.

There was trouble in other British colonies, chiefly the South American state of British Guiana, where the colonial office ousted Premier Cheddi Jagan's government on charges of Communist domination, and the East African colony of Kenya, where warfare continued against the anti-white Mau Mau society.

TRIESTE TROUBLE SPOT

A joint British - American announcement that troops were to be withdrawn from Trieste, of which the two powers are the unappointed trustees, caused friction between Italy and Yugoslavia.

The Italians, promised eventual ownership of the Adriatic port itself, claimed the entire territory. Yugoslavia, claiming rights to the area surrounding the city, protested and troops lined both sides of the border. The tension subsided when the UN trustees postponed their withdrawal.

The slow build-up of European defence forces continued. West Germany voiced its approval by re-electing Chancellor Konrad Adenauer over his Socialist opponents who attacked German participation in a European army.

Formation of the army itself still was delayed, pending ratification by the governments of the powers concerned. A strong section of French opinion remained hesitant, fearing the power of a rearmed West Germany.

14 Newspapermen Get Gold Wrist Watches

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Fourteen veteran members of the Fort William Daily Times Journal staff, including David Smith, pioneer Canadian newspaper publisher, were honored with gold wrist watches Saturday night at a staff dinner.

Special tribute was paid to Mr. Smith who has been in newspaper work for more than 60 years. A pioneer member of The Canadian Press, he was among those who organized the first western Canada press service.

Also honored for 25 years or more of service with The Times-Journal were: Wilfred Brown, 41 years; James Cassidy, 40 years; James Croll, 40 years; Arthur M. Connor, 39 years; Kenneth J. Doak 39 years; William Tiboni, 31 years; Violet Walker, 27 years; William D. Smith, 26 years; Lester C. Wheatley, 25 years.

Lawyer Polio Victim

EDMONTON (CP)—Howard Judson Bishop, 37, prominent Edmonton lawyer, died in hospital Sunday of polio. His wife was also stricken with the disease and is in an iron lung. Mr. Bishop was elected vice-president of the Alberta Young Progressive Conservative Association in 1950.

American TV Defended In Commons

LONDON (Reuters) — American television was defended in the House of Commons Monday night as the government's plan for commercial television came under opposition fire.

David Gammans, assistant postmaster-general, said the government plan did not follow the American idea of sponsored TV.

But, he asked, how many of those who criticized American TV had "the slightest idea of the vast variety of good programs it produced."

With all its "shortcomings," American TV has produced "an enormous vitality and range of programs far beyond anything aspired to in Britain," he added.

VIRILITY NEEDED

Gammans warned that unless Britain produces a virile TV industry, the United States will capture the world's TV markets, "even in Commonwealth countries like Canada, which do not want to be entirely dependent on American influence."

Under the government program, an independent corporation would compete with the state-owned BBC, now the sole telecasting body.

HOME FOR CHRISTMAS—After nearly 14 months away from home aboard the Canadian destroyer Athabaskan, PO. James Fee, of Victoria, B.C., gets a royal welcome from his family on his arrival at Esquimalt naval station with the returning vessel. His two children, Linda, 5, and Dale, 4, were with Mrs. Fee and about 600 other friends and relatives awaiting the arrival of Canadian sailors from service in Korean waters. PO. Fee is due for a long Christmas leave.

Pupils Perform Tableaux At Gift Service

COLDSPRINGS (ENS) — The white gift service was held at St. Paul's United chusch on Sunday evening.

The superintendent of the Suntay school, Frank Ritchie presided for the call to worship.

A tableau "Christmas is Everywhere" was presented by junior members of the Sunday school. The tableau of "The Feast of the Lanterns" was portrayed in Chinese costume by Marlene Turk, Ivan McIntosh, Jack Fields, and Kathryn Harper.

The negro tableau "The Black Madonna" was portrayed by Jean Bowman, Ewart Timlin, Ronald Linton and Elmer Minifie. Madene Morrison, Donald Harris, Ray Turk, Gordon Minifie and Roger May portrayed the Indian tableau. Mrs. P. Harris sang an Indian carol during this presentation.

NATIVITY SCENE

The traditional Canadian Nativity scene was portrayed by Elaine Minifie as Mary and Robin Maughan as Joseph. The angels were Marlene Turk and Viva Morrison. Percy Davidson was narrator.

During this scene the white gifts were brought up the aisle and placed on the altar by junior members of the Sunday school. Margaret Lang gave a recitation, after which Frank Ritchie gave the prayer of dedication.

Christmas carols were sung during the tableau by the choir and congregation.

OUT OF MOTHBALLS — Canada's navy grew a ship stronger over the weekend with the commissioning of the new HMCS Lauzon at Sorel, Que. The reconverted and modernized River Class frigate will join the 1st Canadian Escort Squadron in Halifax. The Lauzon was built in 1944 at Lauzon-Levis and placed in the mothball fleet following war's end. Among the 16 chosen to be reconverted in Canadian shipyards, the Lauzon is now the third to re-enter service. The Lauzon has a displacement of 1,445 tons, is 301 feet in length and has a beam of 37 feet. Now containing increased armament and domestic comforts, the rebuilt Lauzon is a greatly improved version of the wartime frigate. The crew will sleep on berths instead of hammocks and will take their meals cafeteria style from a modern electric galley.

Coldsprings YPU Give $45 To Missions

COLDSPRINGS (ENS) — The Young People's Union met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Willis. There were 13 members and several visitors present.

The new president, Bruce McIntosh presided for the opening call to worship. The scripture was read by Warren Buttars, Leslie Avery gave a reading, followed by prayer by Helen Cowper.

The topic was given by Mrs. Arliess Taylor. Bruce McIntosh read a poem and Larry McIntosh played a piano solo.

Leslie Avery, citizenship and community service convener, was in charge of the meeting and read 12 New Year's resolutions.

It was decided to send $45 to missions.

Recreation was enjoyed, after which lunch was served.

New York State Seeks Authority To Accept Power Licence

WASHINGTON (AP)—New York state contended Monday in a brief filed with the U. S. Court of Appeals that it has legal authority to accept a power commission licence to join with Ontario in construction of a St. Lawrence river power project.

In asserting it has such a right to accept the licence, New York—through its power authority—disputed a contention of the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers, Association.

The association is one of three groups which seeks to bar New York's participation in the $600,000,000 project.

The other two are the Lake Ontario Land Development and Beach Protective Association, and Public Power and Water Corp., Trenton, N. J. The latter is a private engineering firm which unsuccessfully sought the licence granted New York by the Federal Power Commission.

The court will hear argument Dec. 23 on moves by the three groups to have the power commission's action rescinded or reviewed.

The New York brief also said that it accepts full responsibility for any damages experienced by Lake Ontario landowners as result of the project's construction.

It added, however, that such damages would have to be proved a direct result of the project.

The New York brief, filed by Charles M. Goetz, lawyer for the power authority, said control of Lake Ontario water levels is up to the International Joint Commission.

New York also argued that nowhere in the power commission's hearing on the project was it shown that the power plant would raise Lake Ontario's levels.

1909 TREATY

The authority's brief said the 1909 boundary treaty, along with Canadian, U. S. and state law, as well as IJC orders, provide compensation to parties injured by high water resulting from manmade causes.

Lake Ontario levels, since 1860, have varied from 242.68 feet to 249.27 feet. The land owners want the maximum lake level set at 247.38 feet.

The Lake Ontario Association said in its brief that the effect of nature on the lake's levels cannot be determined because until recently Gut Dam tended to raise the lake.

The dam, removed several months ago by order of the IJC, was located in the St. Lawrence river near Ogdensburg, N. Y.

CROSSES OCEAN ALONE—Four-year-old Frazer McGinnis, of Brockville, is greeted by his mother in Montreal after he crossed the ocean alone by plane. He had been visiting his grandmother in Swansea, Wales. His return was delayed until his fourth birthday under a new regulation setting that as the minimum age for children travelling unaccompanied.

WI Sponsors Season's First Euchre Party

COLDSPRINGS (ENS) — The first euchre party for the fall season, sponsored by the Coldsprings Women's Institute, was held Friday night. Twelve tables were played.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Leon Bowman (lady's high); George Ford (gent's high); Mrs. M. Alderson, (lady's low); W. J. Dines (gent's low); Leslie Avery (most lone hands).

Mrs. Hilton Hinifie and party group convened the party and lunch.

Special Christmas Recipes

Good eating is as much a part of Christmas festivities as giving and receiving gifts. The gay, rich goodies that a well known food editor has assembled will delight your family and guests. The selection includes sparkling holiday punch, party tidbits and cakes and breads that are bright with spices and candied fruits. Here are a few recipes from the many she has to offer:

CHRISTMAS PUNCH

1 No. 2½ can sliced pineapple
8 oz. jar maraschino cherries
1 bottle sweet sauterne
1 bottle dry Chablis
1 bottle champagne

Put pineapple, pineapple juice and maraschino cherries in a big bowl along with the sweet and dry white wines. Cover tightly and let stand in your refrigerator 3 to 4 hours to mellow.

Just before serving, dump in a trayful of ice cubes and pour in chiled champagne. Makes 4 quarts.

HONEY CAKE

2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
3 eggs
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 tablespoons cooking oil
6 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon instant or frozen coffee concentrate
3 tablespoons orange juice
1½ teaspoons grated orange rind
¾ cup plus 2 tablespoons honey
⅓ cup granulated sugar
⅓ cup chopped, blanched almonds, pecans or walnuts

Start your oven at 350 deg. Fah. or moderate. Line a 10" x 5" x 3" loaf pan with waxed paper and grease or oil the paper. Sift flour, baking powder, soda, cloves, nutmeg together.

Beat eggs in a large bowl until frothy, add the brown sugar gradually and continue beating until creamy. Now pour in the oil, water, instant or frozen coffee, orange juice and rind and ¾ cup honey. Stir in the flour mixture about ⅓ at a time.

Pour batter into pan and bake 1 hour and 20 minutes or until cake tester comes out dry when tested in centre of cake. Cool in pan for 30 minutes, remove cake and when completely cold peel off the waxed paper.

Meanwhile, cook the granulated sugar in a heavy saucepan until caramel color. Stir constantly. Then add a drop of oil and the chopped nuts. Pour into a greased piepan and cool until firm and brittle. Break into little bits. Mix remaining honey with 1 tablespoon hot water, brush over cake and sprinkle with nut brittle.

RUM ICE-CREAM MOULD

1½ cups light cream
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
4 egg yolks
2 cups heavy cream
½ cup rum
½ cup candied cherries
½ cup pistachio nuts

Heat light cream in a saucepan or top of double boiler until a film wrinkles over the surface. Dont boil. Then stir in sugar and salt until dissolved.

Beat egg yolks slightly, stir a little of the hot cream into them gradually, then mix slowly into the hot cream (no curdling this way). Cook over gently boiling water, stirring constantly, until mixture is smooth and thick as corn syrup. Cool completely.

Beat heavy cream stiff and mix it and the rum gently into the cold custard. Pour into 2 refrigerator trays, set freezing control at coldest point and freeze until firm.

Chop up cherries and nuts. Transfer ice cream to a bowl and mix with a spoon or electric mixer until ice cream is free of chunks. Stir in the cherries and nuts, spoon into a 1½-quart melon mould and freeze until firm in your freezer. No freezer? Then pack as you would homemade ice cream. Will serve 8 to 10.

SPICE BREAD

1 cup milk
2/3 cup butter, margarine or shortening
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
¼ cup lukewarm water
2 pkgs. quick-acting dry or compressed yeast
4 eggs
Grated rind 1 large lemon
4 ½cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1¼ teaspoons ground anise
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground coriander
¼ teaspoon ground cardamon

Heat milk until a film wrinkles over the surface (don't boil) and stir in the butter or margarine or shortening, sugar, salt until dissolved. Pour lukewarm water into a bowl, sprinkle yeast over top to soften, then stir in well-beaten eggs and grated lemon rind. Mix yeast mixture in with the milk mixture.

Sift flour and spices together. Beat flour and spices into the liquid mixture (this particular dough is quite liquid), cover with a clean towel and let rise in a warm spot, away from drafts, until double in bulk. At this point give dough a hard beating and pour into 2 well-greased bread pans 10" x 5" x 3" in size. Pans sould be half full. Brush tops with melted butter or margarine and let stand, uncovered, in a warm place for 30 minutes.

Bake in a 400 deg. Fah. or moderately hot oven 5 minutes, reduce heat to 375 deg. Fah. or moderate and continue baking 25 to 30 minutes longer. Cool in the pan for about 5 minutes, then remove.

DOROTHY DIX

Home In Constant Mess Wife Needs Doctor's Care

DEAR MISS DIX: My childhood was very unhappy—lonesome and insecure. Whether because of this or not, I have difficulty adjusting to adult life and responsibility. I realize my incapacities and have tried constantly to train myself to do the everyday duties of a wife and mother. These things come naturally to most women. My house, however, is a constant mess and sometimes the problem for me is almost insurmountable. My husband is wonderful and understanding; because of his attitude I am more than ever concerned. Lately, I've been so nervous that I am constantly breaking dishes and anything else I pick up. Do you think I'm on the verge of a nervous breakdown? Also, I am very sensitive about other people's attitude toward me.

S. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Medical diagnoses are not in my line, so I can't even hazard a guess as to the possibility of a breakdown, but it certainly is obvious that you need a doctor's care. Analyzing yourself will do no good whatever; you can admit your inadequacies, realize that you're nervous, confide in your husband, but without professional help you'll accomplish nothing. When you are worked up about your own physical and mental condition, naturally you can't devote the time or attention to your household that the job requires. You must get set straight within yourself before anything outside will be orderly.

HOUSEWORK NOT EASY

It might console you to know that by no means do all women take naturally to household tasks. Most housewives have difficulty with at least one or two of their manifold jobs. Tidiness comes automatically to few people, and to no one does it come without some effort. It takes work, concentration, and a good rating of what jobs come first to give household work efficiency. Perhaps you have too many "things" around the home; dispose of all nonessentials such as bric-a-brac, curtains, drapes or spreads that require too much care, superfluous kitchen equipment, and see if that doesn't cut down your work. Keep the children, as much as possible, in clothes that require little or no ironing. But, above all, see a doctor.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My best girl friend and I work in the same office. For some time she has been flirting with various men in the place, and has particularly singled out her boss—a married man. They are together quite a bit, but she claims her only interest is to seek advice on personal affairs. Naturally, the other employees are talking. Should I say anything to her about it?

JEAN S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Talking to the young lady will do little good, since it's quite certain she knows her actions are causing gossip. That she's foolish is obvious; trying to convince her of the fact is something else. The real reason why most girls cotton up to their bosses is, frankly, because they expect to get away with extra time off or less work. Usually they have no more sinister motive than that, but sometimes it's difficult to convince others, especially the boss's wife, of that. I'm afraid the little flirt will pay no heed to your advice, but if your conscience impels you to give it, go ahead.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 16 and have wonderful parents, but I think my mother expects too much of me. She goes to work, and I have almost all the responsibility of the house .Yet what little free time I have seems to be resented.

PATTY P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSRWER: From the list of chores you gave in your letter, I agree that you do have a lot of responsibility, and apparently you are discharging it very well. Reading between the lines, it seems your mother is a very busy person, with perhaps, more dificulties than you know. Why not ask her to sit down with you some evenings, work out a schedule that will leave you more freedom, and at the same time try to learn what her particular worrries are?

Letters To Mary Moore

NOTE: I am not clairvoyant. A few of you have written to me signing with initials and giving no address. That's fine if you can wait three weeks for an answer in this column—maybe longer. Do yourself a favor and enclose addressed stamped envelope.

QUESTION: For the past 4 years I have been baking Xmas cake and after my cake is a couple of weeks old mould forms around the fruit. . . as I can't figure out what causes this I would appreciate your help. . .Teresa G.

ANSWER: There are several reasons for mould but it is usually milk or cream in the cake. You will notice that none of my recipes contains either milk or cream. At the risk of sounding cocky I recommend that you use the fruit cake recipes I give you here. If you have missed them send me your name and address and I will send you recipes, but be sure to repeat your question.

QUESTION: Some members of my family are allergic to the added vitamins "A" and "D" in evaporated milk and margarine. . .is it possible to obtain margarine and evaporated milk without this vitamin . . . milk with only the natural vitamins? If so would you tell me where it may be bought or what milk companies pack it? . . .Mrs. Mary K.

ANSWER: I am not absolutely sure, but I think the answer is "no" All of the Margarine sold in Canada contains Vitamin "A" and all but four contain "D" In the area in which you live the Central Alberta Dairy Pool operates at Red Deer. Write to them. They might give you more satisfactory information.

QUESTION: One of your readers asked for Scotch Oat Cakes. . . my husband is Scottish and loves Oat Cakes (from following recipe)

SCOTCH OAT CAKES (Courtesy Hope Y.)

Measure 1 cup each whole wheat flour and sifted all-purpose flour, and add 1 teaspoon each salt and soda. Cut into this 1 cup shortening (I use ¼ cup bacon fat and ¾ cup commercial shortening). Blend into this 3 cups rolled oats; 1 cup oatmeal, 1 cup cooking bran. You may use all rolled oats if you prefer. Mix with enough water to make a soft dough, to roll out to thickness of thin cookies in 6 or 7-inch rounds using saucepan lid as a marker, then mark these into quarters, lift onto cookies sheet and bake at 325 deg. for 15 minutes . . .delicious with cheese or butter and jam and keep well.

I have 3 little questions: when you have not specified what type of flour do we assume it to be all-purpose?. . .is — baking powder double acting? Are —, and —, and super shortenings you sometimes refer to?. . .like many of your fans I feel I know you and your Pete and Marianne and know you must be a very happy family. Hope Y.

ANSWER:: Your recipe helps answer letter below too. Thank you. Answers to your questions are in order in which you asked them: Yes. No. Yes.

QUESTION: Herewith some re- M. T. recipes you asked for.. Isn't Florence M. T. wonderful? I thought I was good but I am not in that class. I do think that long-term planning gives better meals and greater economy, and what most women will not believe it saves time and effort...I plan my meals for the month except in summer...I would like help with 2 meals built around pies: first Tourtiere, second Hungarian Cheese Tart . . I would like something light, fore aft?...I shall send the recipe for Cheese Tart when I have worked it out better.. I wish someone would come up with the recipe for real Scotch Oat Cakes... B. B. D.

ANSWER: They did, B.B.D. See above. Yes, please do send the Cheese Tart. This is my idea for that meal: Have your hors d'oeuvres, then real French Onion Soup with floating toast crouton and parmesan sprinkled on; then one sole fillet baked for each service with Sauce Supreme (1 cup white sauce made with white wine. To 1 cup add ¼ cup each cream, 1 tablespoon pounded mushrooms, ½ tablespoon lemon juice); a tossed Green salad with French Dressing. If it is a savory Tourtiere like ham or chicken or cheese, preface it with genuine lobster bisque, after the tourtiere serve stuffed tomato or Avocado salad with Roquefort dressing, and finish with an assortment of genuine French pastries and cafe noir. Thanks ever so much for the generous sheaf of recipes.

6—In Memoriam

MANN—In loving memory of Dad, Garbutt D. Mann who passed away one year ago today.
While you, Dear Dad rest and sleep
Your memory we shall always keep.
—Sadly missed by Carl and Bernice also Bill and Lorrie.

POST—
I lost a Dad with a heart of gold
Who was more to me than wealth untold,
Without farwell he fell asleep,
With only memories for me to keep.
I have lost, but God has gained,
One of the best Dads the world contained.
—Always remembered by daughter, Betty.

POST—In loving memory of a Dear husband, Bruce Post who passed away December 15, 1951.
Some day when life's journey is ended,
We shall be together again.
—Sadly missed by wife Laura.

Standard Ammunition Decided For Rifle

PARIS (Reuters) — The Atlantic council ended years of disagreement over military equipment today by deciding that the calibre for standard rifle ammunition will be .300, as now used by Canada and the United States.

An official announcement stated that the decision was taken because of production considerations and that tests showed there was no "significant difference" in the performance of .280 and .300 cartridges.

The controversy over the choice of a standard small-arms weapon began three years ago when Britain strongly urged the North Atlantic Treaty Organization partners to consider a new .280 rifle developed by British experts.

Today's decision on the calibre of the bullets will mean retooling by Canada and Britain, which now use .303. If the .280 calibre ammunition had been adopted it would have meant retooling by all five countries—Britain, France, Belgium, Canada and the United States.

The announcement did not mention the actual rifle to be standardized. But military authorities said it would almost certainly be a new Belgian weapon.

Committee Denies

Ald. P. J. Anglesey said he regretted having been unavoidably absent from the board of health meeting when the matter was brought up.

"I think council has dealt fairly with Dr. Wells," Ald. Anglesey said. "When the matter of his salary increase was first brought up, it was said he hadn't requested it. So it was more or less a gift to him."

"I find it very difficult to make his salary increase retroactive," Ald. H. T. Rehill said, "although I think we are particularly fortunate in view of what he has done about pollution. But I think we should think in terms of a salary increase rather than making anything retroactive."

"I think we would be wrong in principle if we made the increase retroactive to the first of the year," Ald. Gordon Farquharson said. "In case like this, an increase is made retroactive to the time it is applied for. There has been no such period of discussion in this case."

The decision to leave the matter over for the 1954 council was taken on a motion by Ald. Anglesey, seconded by Ald. H. S. Longhurst. Ald. Burrows and Ald. Dewart did not vote in favor of the motion.

NO VACATION

Assessment Commissioner Davis made his request for two weeks' salary in lieu of vacation in person. He pointed out that he had not taken a vacation since coming to the department in 1950. He had worked overtime many nights and on weekends in order to complete the re-assessment.

He had lost two valuable members of the staff and there was no one left whom he felt he could leave in charge of the work. He could not take time off before the end of the year because he was preparing for the court of revision, which he expected would sit shortly after Christmas. He was doubtful that he would be able to take a vacation next year.

"I think we have to admit there was a lot of extra work in connection with the re-assessment," Ald. Rehill said. "But I feel that in future council would expect him to take holidays."

"We don't want to set a precedent," Ald. Miller agreed. "But in view of the extenuating circumstances we might make an exception. I think he's entitled to it. He's worked far in excess of what is normally required of him."

"We have to be careful we're not setting precedents or breaking principles," Ald. Beggs warned.

"It was brought up before and it was pointed out to him that it was up to him to take holidays," said the mayor.

"I think it's up to him to take his holidays," Ald. Syd Black said. "Extra work is part of his job, I didn't take any holidays for 20 years."

THREE IN FAVOR

Ald. Rehill moved the request be granted. His motion was seconded by Ald. Burrows but only Ald. Dewart voted with them and Ald. Miller declared the motion defeated.

Ald. Anglesey then moved that the assessor be paid a gratuity, the equivalent of two weeks' salary for his extra work on the re-assessment.

"If that's not a precedent I never heard one," Ald. Burrows remarked. Ald. Miller added that lots of department heads performed extra duties.

Ald. Black then seconded Ald. Dewart's motion that the matter be referred to the 1954 council but Ald. Rehill suggested it was a matter for this year's council.

"I don't see what more you can do," the mayor said, pointing out that similar requests had been turned down in the past. The motion to grant the request was defeated.

"All I had in mind was that these things be kept in mind when the salaries come up for review next year," Ald. Dewart said. "I think we have been very fortunate in having an employee who is so zealous in his work. But I'll withdraw my motion."

London Hotels Admit Discrimination

LONDON (Reuters) — Arthur McKenzie, manager of London's swank Green Park hotel, says racial discrimination "exists in every first-class hotel in London to a large extent."

McKenzie, commenting on Socialist Arthur Lewis' charge in the House of Commons Monday that his hotel openly applies a color bar, said "some very wealthy colored people" get space in London luxury hotels if they take "three or four suites, eat in their own rooms and avoid mixing."

But the Green Park Hotel has no large suites and "we must respect the wishes of our regular clientele from all parts of the world."

RESULT OF QUEEN'S TRIP

The question of racial discrimination has hit the headlines here since the Queen's visit to Bermuda last month. There was criticism both in Britain and in Bermuda of the fact that colored perso. were not present at a big welcoming banquet there.

The uproar grew when Sir Frank McDavid of British Guiana was refused hotel space in Bermuda en route to England. This brought angry questions on the floor of the House of Commons.

Ask Investigation Of Assessment Setup

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Suburban Sandwich East council Monday night decided to ask the assessment department of the Ontario department of municipal affairs to investigate the system of assessments in the township.

A flood of complaints followed the issuing of this year's assessment notices in which values were revised upward on many properties. Court of revision heard 279 appeals and granted reductions in many.

Allow Sarnia Players Apply For Positions

TORONTO (CP) — Bill Hanley, business manager of the Ontario Hockey Association, announced today that hockey players formerly connected with the Sarnia Sailors may apply for positions on other teams in the OHA up to Dec. 18.

The decision was taken at a meeting of the OHA Monday night following withdrawal of the Sailors Friday from the OHA Senior A series.

Mr. Hanley said that applications are also being accepted from teams bidding for certain of the Sarnia hockey players. After the Dec. 18 deadline, the remainder of the Sarnia team will be allocated among the OHA members, he said.

Shining Eyes Welcome Santa At Crippled Children's Party

Tuesday night Peterborough Rotarians held a Christmas party at the Empress hotel. Their attendance record was supplemented by one more addition.

But that was the least of their individual accomplishments. This was a Christmas party where the term Christmas meant something more than the transference of material things, and a synthetically derived "good wil".

Crippled children of the city and district were genuinely entertained. They feasted, sang carols, watched a puppet show, listened to a cowboy sing—and enjoyed a pre - Yuletide rendezvous with Santa Claus. Each child received a gift directly from the charitable saint. Some were awed to dumbness, others advanced timid bleats of gratefullness, a few rushed innocently to meet him.

The look in the eyes of every child made each Rotarian present feel glad that he was a part of this particular party.

ENTERTAIN

Immediately following the meal, one of the children, Agnes Rose, entertained the assembly with her piano playing. Lois Hully, another crippled child, thanked the club for the wonderful time she, and her friends were having. Jack Bailey sang Christmas songs to the accompaniment of his own guitar. City librarians demonstrated the prowess of their marionettes.

All this entertainment plus the candlelight, candies and Christmas tree, dazzled the children. Some sought the hand of their temporary custodian as they would their own father, most of them asked for more with their tiny, clapping hands. All held a little apprehension for the expected visit of "Saint Nick".

He entered the room, a little late due to the storm, but none the worse for it. A hearty peal of laughter and a bag ful of gifts marked his coming. There was something for each of the 27 children—something pearsonal with his or her own name attached.

A gift was also presented to Ivan Fletcher for his services in driving the children to and from Merrywood camp, near Perth, during the summer.

One little girl spoke for the group when asked how she enjoyed the party. With lowered head and shyly raised eyes, she murmured, "It was really nice".

MISS MARGARET J. E. EWING

The death occurred Monday in Civic Hospital of Miss Margaret Ewing, Dartford, in her 30th year. She was a victim of cancer.

Born in Percy Township, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sloan Ewing, she took her BA and taught for a number of years. She held teaching positions in the Atkinson Public School, Shelburne High School, and the Deaf and Dumb Institute in Belleville.

Surviving beside her parents are three brothers, Harry S. Ewing of Wooler and Charles and Eldon Ewing of Dartford.

Funeral services will be from her home to St. Paul's United Church, Thursday, at 2.00 p.m., for burial in the Warkworth Cemetery. The Rev. A. L. Sisco will officiate.

MRS JOHN HENRY SCOTT

TRENT RIVER — Mrs. John H. Scott, formerly Isabella Hamilton, died suddenly at her Trent River residence Monday night. She was in her 79th year.

Born in Marmora, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton, she was the widow of John H. Scott, who predeceased her in 1951. She lived in Trent River for the past 30 years, and before that in Havelock.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Eric Little (Doris) and Mrs. Thomas White, (Pauline), both of Trent River. Mrs. Scott was the last of 11 children.

An elder in the Trent River United church, she was treasurer of the WA, member of the WI and choir member for 30 years. Mrs. Scott was a Conservative in politics.

Funeral services will be on Thursday at 2.00 p.m. from her home to the Trent River church. The Rev. R. G. Newman will officiate. Burial will be in Maple Grove cemetery.

Request Japanese To Use More Wheat

TOKYO (Reuters) — Parliament today approved a motion calling on the Japanese people to change their national food habits by reducing rice consumption in favor of wheat as the staple food.

The proposed change in the diet is the result of this year's poor rice crop. The motion also caled for encouragement of increased dairy production.

Armed Boats Guard Fishermen

TOKYO (Reuters)—A fleet of 50 heavily-armed Japanese patrol boats will put out to sea early next year to shield Japanese fishing vessels from Communist Chinese attack, the maritime safety board here announced today.

Japanese officials made this announcement immediately after a report that a Japanese patrol ship had been fired on by Chinese vessels Monday when trying to negotiate the release of a captured fishing boat.

The patrol ship was hit 12 times by bullets but no casualties were reported.

Except for pistols carried by the crews, the patrol ships now are unarmed. New armament proposed for the fleet would consist of three-inch artillery and machine-guns leased from the United States.

Queen Mother Sees Black Watch Colonel

LONDON (CP) — Col. William Seamark of Brockville, who leaves shortly for Canada to command the Black Watch, was received today in audience at Clarence House by Queen Mother Elizabeth, the regiment's colonel-in-chief.

Col. Seamark conveyed greetings to the Queen Mother from the honorary colonel of the Black Watch, Col. G. S. Cantlie, and from Lt. Col. J. Bourne, commanding the 3rd (reserve) Battalion. Both officers are from Montreal.

The Queen Mother asked for news of the Black Watch, which is the Royal Highland Regiment of Canada, and received assurances of its loyalty to the crown.

Col. Seamark, with his wife and two children, sails from Liverpool Saturday aboard the liner Franconia.

Red Cross Objective To Be $5,442,850

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Red Cross Society announced today the national objective of its 1954 fund appeal will be $5,442,850, an increase of $112,250 over last year.

Harold H. Leather, chairman of the central council, said the increased amount will be sought to cover normal expansion of projects and the cost of supplying the federal government with 150,000 bottles of blood for gamma globulin to fight polio.

The Ontario objective is $2,144,690.

Suggest Lottery Plan For U.S. Military Service

WASHINGTON (CP)—A plan for a lottery to select American youths for either military training or service was recommended to President Eisenhower Monday by a special commission.

The national security training commission, headed by Julius Ochs Adler, vice-president and general manager of the New York Times, prepared the report after Eisenhower asked last August for recommendations with a view to creating a pool of trained reservists who would be called, in a national emergency, ahead of veterans of the Second World War and Korean War.

The lottery would determine who would get six months' training and who would be required to serve two years as a draftee.

The commission recommended that the system start by Jan. 1, 1955, with the training of 100,000 18-year-olds, the number increasing as manpower availability and the size of the armed forces permit.

It noted that when the Korean War broke out more than 600,000 Second World War veteran reservists were called to fight "their second war, just five to eight years after they fought through their first."

It described this as unfair and said a plan to train youths under the new plan would help eliminate this.

Miners Preparing To Blast Age-Old Riches Out Of Mountain

MURDOCHVILLE, Que. (CP)—Canadian miners are preparing to blast out of a mountainside riches first described by a follower of Samuel de Champlain, founder of Quebec.

In this little town of 2,000 persons in the rugged Gaspe peninsula, Gaspe Copper Mines Limited are developing copper mines which officials believe one day will become eastern Canada's largest open-pit mining project.

Drilling started in 1938, but large-scale operations did not begin until after the war. It was 1952 before construction workers hacked the town out of the bush.

Copper mountain in the narrow York valley 65 miles west of Gaspe was first seen by a white man in 1603, and rock from the hillside has rested in the palace of the kings of France at Versailles for 350 years.

CAN WORK FORTY YEARS

Today, engineers estimate ore deposits in Copper mountain and Needle mountain across the valley may total 70,000,000 tons, enough to justify 40 years of mining.

Engineers plan to mine the ore, pass it down to rock-crushers 1,000 feet below the surface and carry the crushed rock out to the side of the mountain by conveyors. This will eliminate hoisting the rough rock out vertically in buckets as is done elsewhere in the industry.

Later, the top of the mountain will be blown by explosives to lay open other deposits lying closer to the surface.

7,000 TONS DAILY

At the company's mill scheduled for completion next year the rock will be ground at a rate of 7,000 tons a day. After sifting, the impure ore will pass to a smelter where pure copper will be separated and floated out.

Current for the smelter will travel 120 miles, the cable diving 26 miles under the St. Lawrence river in the world's longest underwater conduit, to the south shore.

A problem still to be solved is getting the ore out. The nearest railhead at Gaspe is 65 miles away. Officials, planning to use trucks, are building a road north to Mont Louis, Que., on the south shore of the St. Lawrence.

Obituary

OLIVE JONES

MARMORA (ENS)—After an illness of some months, Miss Olive Jones, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Jones died in a Toronto hospital on Saturday. She was born in Marmora where she lived for many years. After the death of her father, her mother and her aunt, the late Miss Frances Jones with whom she had resided, moved to Toronto where they were joined by her sister Muriel where the four established a home. She was a school teacher for many years and came to be highly respected in Toronto. Besides her sister Muriel, she is survived by one brother, Lt.-Col. Hubert Jones of Ottawa, who is head of the Department of Indian Affairs.

She was a member of the Anglican Church. Following service in Toronto on Tuesday, the remains are being brought to the family plot in Marmora Protestant cemetery for burial. Rev. T. Harvey Good, rector of Madoc, will be the officiating clergyman.

Juveniles Charged

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Four juveniles from St. Catharines were charged Monday with theft, malicious damage and threatening after Rocky Saugeen chool, 25 miles south of here, was ransacked. They were remanded to Dec. 21. Police said the youths followed a caretaker into the school, stole $2 from a Red Cross box and ransacked a teacher's desk.

Mother Reveals Letter From PoW Son

TOKYO (AP)—A heavy-hearted American mother, saying she wanted to show the world "how vicious a thing communism is," made public Monday a letter from her son, a prisoner in Korea, explaining why he rejected repatriation and chose to remain with communism.

Mrs. Portia Howe, 43, of Alden, Minn., then made preparations to fly home later this week without Pte. Richard Tenneson, her son by a previous marriage. She had come here hopeful of meeting him face to face but the U.S. army refused to let her go to Korea.

Tenneson's two-page letter said "It is impossible for me to live in the United States because I want to live as I wish."

He was staying with communism because "I love peace, I love mankind."

SARCASTIC LETTER

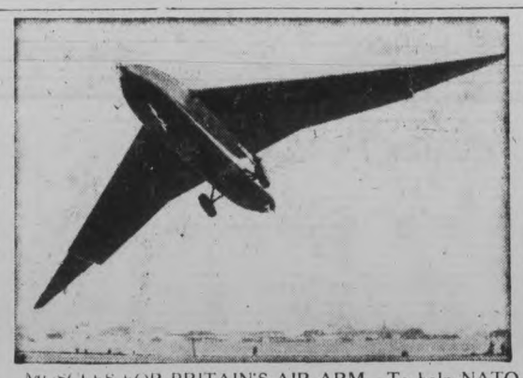
He suggested sarcastically she had better take a loyalty oath after reading the letter lest she be brought before the House of Representatives un-American activities committee; that his stepfather now likely would be followed "by Gestapo FBI every time he went out to deliver chickens."

Caught in a whirlpool of emotions, Mrs. Howe was critical both of herself and her son.

Had she failed him somewhere in boyhood? She needed to know that in raising her other three children.

She noted that the 20-year-old soldier wrote of knowing about "both peace and war in the United States."

"Why he was only 17," she said.



"What does he know of life, and life in the United States? He was in combat seven weeks. What does he know of war? The whole argument falls apart."

Name John Pallett Candidate For Peel

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — John Pallett, 32-year-old Port Credit lawyer, Monday was chosen Progressive Conservative candidate for the Peel federal seat left vacant last September by the death of Gordon Graydon.

More than 200 delegates attended the Peel County Progressive Conservative Association convention at which Mr. Pallett was nominated. The only other nominee, B. C. Smith, Port Credit publisher, withdrew.

Thomas L. Kennedy, member of the Ontario Legislature for Peel and former Ontario Agricultural Minister, predicted that Mr. Pallett will be elected by the biggest majority for any first-run candidate in the province.

MUSCLES FOR BRITAIN'S AIR ARM—To help NATO nations increase their air strength in Europe, Britain has added two new planes to her air force. The tailless Short Sherpa, a bat-like jet, above, is designed to probe the problem of ultra-high-speed flight. The Seamew, below, is a new anti-submarine aircraft which can operate from escort and aircraft carriers. Both planes, shown in flight over Belfast, Ireland, will now go into production for the Royal Navy.

Rudder Damaged

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng. (Reuters) The new 23,000-ton luxury liner Olympia, flagship of the Greek Line, will go into dry dock here today for repairs of damage suffered when she ran aground on a mud bank Sunday night. The Olympia damaged her rudder shortly after leaving here for Canada and the United States with 1,000 passengers, including many German immigrants.

Asks Dresden Discrimination Halted Soon

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, urged the provincial government Monday to announce legislation that would stop reported racial discrimination in Dresden, Ont., about 15 miles north of Chatham.

Following a provincial party executive meeting Saturday, Mr. MacDonald said the broadening of existing anti-discrimination legislation should be carried out at the February session of the Legislature.

Toronto Labor Council (CIO-CCL) Monday night protested what it called "outrageous" treatment of Negroes at Dresden.

Dennis McDermott, a member of the joint labor committee for human rights, said Dresden is "a blot on Canada's democracy."

He said there is no provincial legislation to stop public places from discrimination against Negroes. He said education is needed as well as regulations.

Charge Charity Promoters Take 85% Of Collections

NEW YORK (AP)—A joint state legislative committee heard testimony Monday that huge sums are going into the pockets of charity promoters, with their "take" sometimes as high as 85 per cent of collections.

The committee also was told that singer Bing Crosby's name was used to promote a "National Kid's Day" collection without Crosby's permission, and that radio commentator Jimmy Fidler was one of the prime organizers of that particular drive.

Fidler apparently served without pay, the committee was told.

Executives of the foundation, saying they are "surprised and shocked" by allegations against its methods, promised to answer. The executive committee said it had representatives en route from California to testify voluntarily.

The "Kid's Day" foundation, according to the testimony by committee counsel, raised nearly $4,000,000 from June, 1948, to June, 1953, but so far has spent only $302,000 promoting national Kid's Day.

A commandant of a Maritime Corps league chapter in Brooklyn testified that a promoter of a charity drive, Philip A. Weiss Associates, got 85 per cent of funds collected by the chapter for "welfare."

The commandant, Frank J. Fletcher, Jr., said he conspired with the promoter in the 85-per-cent cut, but the rank-and-file members of his group did not know about it until he disclosed the deal following a charity ball.

The committee is probing what happens to money contributed by New Yorkers to charities, with a view to laws to curb such abuses. It heard an expert make an "informed guess" that nationally some $100,000,000 have been collected this year by rackets in the name of charity.

F. Emerson Andrews, director of philanthropic research for the Russel Sage Foundation, made the estimate.

But 20 relatives and friends were on hand to meet and greet the soldier, his German bride and their four-month-old baby. So far Sapper Hegadoren is the only Peterborough soldier with the 27th Brigade to return with a German bride. Despite the language barrier, the Hegadorens' (above photo) first days in Canada and Peterborough have been exciting and happy. The language isn't a problem with the Sapper and his wife, they speak German, but his wife has trouble speaking with her Canadian in-laws who do not speak German. Even the little baby, Rita, gives her relatives strange looks when they speak English.

Plan To Keep A-Processes Still Secret

May Share Weapons In Some Cases Eisenhower View

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower said today he does not intend to ask Congress to permit the U.S. to share with its allies scentific processes or techniques for building atomic weapons.

He left the implication, however, that the administration does contemplate sharing information about the use of atomic weapons and perhaps sharing the weapons themselves with other NATO powers.

Eisenhower made his remarks at a press conference when asked to comment on the statement by Defence Secretary Wilson before the Paris NATO conference Tuesday. Wilson said Congress would be asked soon to permit the sharing of information on atomic weapons with the NATO allies.

Eisenhower said some changes in the law will be necessary before the U.S. can realize the fullest advantages of atomic progress.

NO CHANGES PLANNED

But no changes were contemplated which have anything to do with the scientific processes involved in developing atomic energy or with the building of atomic weapons.

This appeared to mean that what the administration does contemplate, if Congress approves, is sharing information about the use of atomic weapons and perhaps sharing the weapons themselves with U.S. allies.

Along that line Eisenhower said it would depend on circumstances, meaning military circumstances, whether the U.S. would turn over atomic weapons to its allies.

He said if war comes the U.S. should use its atomic weapons in whatever way would be to the country's best advantage. Quite possibly, he said, it would be best to let an ally use American weapons under certain circumstances.

Eisenhower said he is by no means giving up hope the Russians will decide to accept the proposal he recently made in a speech to the United Nations — that all the atomic powers join in a limited program of atomic research, with emphasis on peacetime power development.

WILL KEEP TRYING

But even a rejection of this offer by the Soviets, Eisenhower said, would not stop him from trying to meet the problem of international control in another way.

The president said the administration has received no official Soviet reaction to the plan he outlined to the United Nations General Assembly.

Eisenhower also commented on State Secretary Dulles' Monday address to the NATO conference. He said in effect that he agrees with Dulles' remarks prodding France to ratify the European defence army project. U.S. law, the president said, already provides that 50 per cent of this year's appropriations for foreign aid must be channelled into the European Defence Community, which has not been set up as yet.

If there is no EDC, the president asked, what do we do? He added he was somewhat astonished that anyone would feel there is anything blunt or new in what Dulles said in Paris.

FOUND STRANGLED — Mrs. Norma Schreiber, 23, of Toronto, was found strangled to death and her husband, Joseph, 30, has been charged with her murder. Mrs. Schreiber was a fellow-employee of Marion McDowell, 17, who disappeared two weeks ago but police said the two cases had no connection.

Lines Down 40 Hours After Storm

2,300 Wire Breaks In W. Ontario; 5,060 Phones Out

TORONTO —(CP)— Some telephone and telegraph lines into southwestern Ontario cities and towns were still down today, about 40 hours after a severe snow and wind storm Monday.

The Bell Telephone company said 5,060 telephones in homes in the Sarnia, Chatham, Barrie and Owen Sound districts were put out of commission when poles and lines were knocked down. There were 2,300 wire breaks which cut communications on 191 long-distance circuits.

A total of 291 poles were knocked down. About 200 men were working round the clock to repair the damage. All communications were expected to be restored by Thursday night.

Long-distance calls into Sarnia were still being handled on a priority basis today. Service into the border city was never completely out but only the most important calls were put through Tuesday.

HEAVILY LOADED

Telegraph lines still operating were heavily loaded today as telegraph and telephone companies sent each others' messages. Communications had to be routed into Sarnia through Port Huron in the United States Tuesday, but officials said some lines into the city through Canada were operating today.

Canadian National Telegraphs had a mile of line down near Stoney Point, halfway between Chatham and Windsor, and another mile down near Watford on the main line to Sarnia.

Canadian Pacific Telegraphs reported 20 miles of line damaged when ice formed on wires and the weight twisted crossarms on telegraph poles. This was between Haycroft and Belle River southeast of Windsor.

CPT lines into Sarnia were also down and were being repaired today. Some lines around Smithville, near Hamilton, were still out today.

New Legislation Will Permit $1,400 Payment

OTTAWA (CP)—Down payments under the government's new housing legislation will be reduced to 10 percent from 20 percent on the first $8,000 of the mortgage value, Works Minister Winters announced today. The down payment on portions in excess of $8,000 will be 30 percent, making for a graduated general reduction from the current 20 percent now applicable to all National Housing Act loans.

Mr. Winters gave these and other details of the government's proposed new housing changes as he introduced a resolution in the Commons preparatory to a bill amending the National Housing Act.

$1,400 DOWN

Under the new legislation a prospective home owner can get a new $10,000 NHA house with a down payment of $1,400 instead of the $2,000 currently required.

Monthly repayments will be reduced by extending the life of the mortgage loans. Mortgages running for 25 years will become common instead of the current 20-year loans.

Principle change, however, will be widening of the mortgage-lending field, to allow chartered banks and Quebec savings banks to make mortgage loans under a mortgage-insurance system to be administered by the government's Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

TAP BANKED FUNDS

This will tap Canada's huge bank savings accounts for home-building. However, when the new lending scheme gets into operation, CMHC will gradually withdraw from the lending field.

Cost of the mortgage insurance premium will be borne by the borrower. It will be two per cent of the loan in the case of home ownership and 2½ per cent on property constructed for rental purposes.

This premium, said Mr. Winters, is about 40 per cent of the cost of mortgage borrowers in the United States. In the event of foreclosure, CMHC will guarantee the mortgage lender will get 97 per cent of his investment back.

Still left to be settled are the ceiling of new NHA loans and the rate of interest. Mr. Winters said lending will be "subject to maximum loans limits" to be established by the government. There

United Church Secretary Dr. G. Sisco Dies

TORONTO (CP)—The Rev. Dr. Gordon Alfred Sisco, secretary of the general council of the United Church of Canada since 1936, died in hospital early today. He was 62.

Dr. Sisco, one of Canada's leading churchmen, entered hospital Tuesday after suffering a heart attack. He had been at work in his office Monday as usual.

Born in Coaticook, Que., he held various ministerial charges in Quebec and Ontario before being appointed secretary of the general council, one of his denomination's highest offices.

QUEEN'S GRADUATE

He was a graduate of Wesleyan Theological College in Montreal and Queen's University, Kingston, where he received a master of arts degree in 1932 and was named an honorary doctor of divinity in 1937.

He held charges at Clarenceville Que., and in Ontario at Cataraqui, Renfrew, Port Hope, Sarnia, and Toronto before his appointment to the general council. While in Renfrew he helped bring about the union of Trinity and St. Andrew's churches.

He was a member of the executive of the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America; of the Canadian Council of Churches; of the Alliance of Reformed Churches and of the executive and central committee of the World Council of Churches.

HONORARY DEGREE

In 1947 he was given an honorary doctor of divinity degree by the University of Washington at Seattle, Wash., and in 1951 received an honorary doctor of laws degree by Mount Allison University, Sackville, N. B.

He is survived by his widow, the former Edith Elizabeth Bothwell of Richmond, Que., a daughter, Mrs. Gordon Birkett of Stouffville, Ont., and a son, Norman A. Sisco.

U.S. Has Agreed To Lift TCA Restrictions

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier today announced that the United States has agreed to allow Trans-Canada Air Lines to use Tampa, Fla., as a stop-over on flights between Montreal and Mexico City.

In return the Canadian government has halted proceedings against two American air lines, Pan-American World Airways and Colonial Airlines had been asked to "show cause" why their Canada-U. S. air routes should not be separated.

Under previous U.S. regulations, TCA was requested to use two aircraft in opening the proposed new Montreal-Mexico City flight, one aircraft taking passengers to Tampa and the other picking up passengers at Tampa for the remainder of the flight to Mexico City.

TCA protested that the use of the two aircraft was uneconomic. Opening of the new line was suspended and the Canadian government took preliminary steps to impose similar restrictions on American air lines flying over Canadian territory.

However, at a two-day Washington conference between Canadian and American officials, agreement was reached to end the controversy with the U.S. lifting its curb on TCA. Canada is expected to take similar action to withdraw action against the American air lines.

John Baldwin, chairman of the Canadian air transport board, returned from the Washington talks Tuesday night carrying with him the U. S. agreement to lift the curbs.

France Refuses Bow To U.S.

PARIS (Reuters) — The National Assembly's foreign affairs committee today declared that foreign influence will not affect French action on the European Army plan.

The declaration clearly referred to John Foster Dulles' urgent warning Monday that the plan must be ratified or the United States will be forced into an "agonizing reappraisal" of its foreign policy. Observers here said the American secretary of state's warning has actually reduced the chances of French ratification of the treaty, which is stalled in Parliament 18 months after its signing.

The foreign affairs committee's reaction came in a resolution stating that the group will continue its study of the treaty at the same speed and by the same method previously decided on. The resolution was passed by 28 votes to 13.

Dismayed by what they consider a threat of American withdrawal from Europe, French parliamentarians have already moved to make up for that possibility by demanding further British commitments on the Continent.

Jean Maroger, an Independent Conservative in the French Senate, has made a proposal to transform the projected European Defence Community by adding Britain, Norway and Denmark to its membership, now made up of France, Italy, West Germany, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Six Below

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg received its first taste of sub-zero weather Tuesday when the temperature dropped to 6 below between 7:30 and 10:30 a.m. Coldest spot in Canada Tuesday was Brochet, Man., 300 miles north of The Pas, where the mercury registered 33 below.

Bogus Bill Found Genuine

OTTAWA (CP)—L. P. J. Roy, deputy secretary of the Bank of Canada, said today that a $20 bill which turned up in bank clearances Monday form a Toronto theatre and at first thought to be counterfeit, is genuine.

Mr. Roy said the bill apparently came in contact with oil or some other solution, blurring the numbers and enlarging the printing on the bill. Coloring of the bill was affected by the solution and the scroll work also was blurred.

Mr. Roy said that at first glance the bill does look like a counterfeit. The Toronto bank branch turned the bill over to RCMP but after a chemical analysis it was found to be genuine.

Office Girls Afraid Resign From Jobs

TORONTO (CP)—Ten days ago Marion McDowell, 17, disappeared from a suburban Scarborough township sideroad. Mrs. Norma Schreiber, 23, who worked in the same office and at the next desk to the missing girl, was found dead from strangulation Tuesday.

Today two other girls in the same office of a photo-engraving firm employing about 350 persons, decided to quit.

Neither girl reported for work and both told the management they will not be coming back.

Two girls in the office fainted Tuesday when told of the death of Mrs. Schreiber. They had to be sent home.

An official of the company said the girls were badly frightened and were asking: "Am I going to be next?"

Shoots Wife, Then Himself

TORONTO (CP)—Suburban East York police said Tuesday that a 49-year-old man shot his wife to death and fatally wounded himself as their 11 months-old baby slept in a crib nearby.

Dead are Alfred Lindsay and his 46-year-old wife, Sarah.

Police quoted Mrs. Elizabeth Sneddon, the couple's landlady, as saying she heard the couple quarreling and went upstairs when the wife screamed that her husband was going to shoot her.

Police said the wife had recently begun separation proceedings against her husband. The Lindsays had five children, two of whom are married. The others, except the baby, were absent from the house at the time.

Pledge Racial Partnership, Federals Lead

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (CP)—The Federal party, which has pledged partnership between Africans and whites in the development of the new Central African Federation, has won a sweeping victory in the federation's first general election.

Sir Godfrey Huggins' party, which campaigned on the racial partnership pledge, had won 14 seats on the basis of the count at mid-day today of Tuesday's voting. The Confederate party of J. R. Dendy Young, which favors a policy of segregation, hadn't won a single seat, although one Independent was elected to the 35-member Parliament.

POPULAR VOTE FIGURES

Results from Nyasaland and parts of Southern Rhodesia are still to come, but in the popular vote the Federal party had 19,847 compared with 7,850 for the Confederates and 873 for the independents.

The fate of Dendy in his personal race remained in doubt.

Huggins and Sir Roy Welensky, who were the principal architects of the federation of Northern and Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, were returned personally with substantial majorities.

In Northern Rhodesia's "copper belt," the Federals won two seats despite a large proportion of voters of South African descent.

Raid Farm House Seize $1,200

TORONTO (CP)—Police seized $1,200 in cash and arrested 128 men early today when they raided a farm house in suburban North York fitted with steel doors, an electric alarm system and a fence eight feet high.

Charged as keepers of a common gaming house were William Simone, 42, and Edward Miller, 44. The 126 others were charged as found-ins.

Police said a set of dice on which two "twos" and two "threes" were marked was taken from imone's sock.

One of the found-ins claimed to have lost $1,600 in the game.

Research Plane Hits Speed Of 1,650 MPH

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Bell X-1A rocket-driven research plane has flown at a record 2½ times the speed of sound, reports current in aviation circles said today.

Presumably the new speed, obtained in a test by the Air Force at Edwards Base, Calif., was at high altitude. Its speed in that case would be about 1,650 miles an hour.

The record compares with one of 2.01 times the speed of sound, or around 1,307 miles an hour in the upper air, which was set Nov. 20. That mark was set in a Navy skyrocket flown by a pilot of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

Schreiber Remanded Week Asks To Attend Funeral

TORONTO (CP)—Joseph Schreiber, 27, appeared in court today and was remanded a week on a murder charge in connection with the strangulation death Monday night of his attractive blonde wife, Norma, 23. Police said Schreiber, a tall, handsome broker's clerk, had asked to attend his wife's funeral Friday afternoon but permission was refused by the attorney-general's department.

Schreiber is accused of killing his wife in their east-end apartment after a reconciliation that followed two weeks of separation.

Police said there is no connection between her death and the disappearance Dec. 6 of 17-year-old Marion McDowell who worked at the next desk to Mrs. Schreiber's in the office of a photo-engraving firm.

Police called by the woman's father-in-law, immigration inspector Collingwood Schreiber, went to the apartment and found the woman's body lying fully-clothed across a bed. They questioned the husband at the apartment and at the police station and then charged him.

Detectives said he told them he couldn't remember what happened after he and his wife arrived home after meeting in a downtown bar. Police said they found several empty beer bottles in the apartment.

NEVER MET

Police said they questioned Scheiber closely about the McDowell girl, reported abducted from a youth's parked car and feared slain. Schrieber told them he had heard of the girl but had never met her.

He said he knew she worked with his wife and that he and his wife had discussed the girl's disappearance. He said that on the night of the kidnapping he was visiting friends.

Chief of detectives Alex McCathie said there was nothing to link the strangling with the kidnapping.

Said one of the investigating officers:

"It is sheer coincidence that the two girls knew each other and worked together."

Railway Unions Accept Plan

LONDON (Reuters)—Three rail unions today provisionally accepted a "peace plan" offered by the British Transport commission and settlement of a threatened Christmas railroad strike appeared in the offing.

The unions will meet again late today with commission executives, who represent the nationalized industry, to iron out details of a settlement.

Agreement would head off the threatened walkout of 400,000 rail workers, called for next Sunday midnight, by the National Union of Railwaymen. The tentative agreement reached this afternoon is understood to involve the pledge of an all-round pay increase for the rail workers, with the government accepting responsibility for the effects of the increase.

It ends three days of tense negotiations by Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton.

The rail workers have been demanding a 15-per-cent wage increase. Their average basic wage now is about £7 a week.

Germany Prepared To Make Compromise

PARIS (Reuters)—Germany is prepared to satisfy France's "legitimate economic interests" in the Saar if talks on the question are conducted "in a spirit of European solidarity," West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said in an interview published here today.

The Saar, autonomous German-speaking state on the Franco-German frontier, has an economic union with France.

Adenauer was quoted by the Paris newspaper Le Figaro as saying current Franco-German talks have become "concrete negotiations" in which the two viewpoints have drawn closer together.

6 Jet Planes Crash In U.K.

LONDON (AP)—Six jet fighter planes, including an RCAF Sabre, crashed today in mist-covered Britain in three separate accidents, killing one Canadian and one British pilot and injuring two other RAF pilots.

Four RAF Meteor planes went down together in thick fog near Duxford, Cambs., presumably because they had run out of fuel. Two pilots parachuted and two crash-landed their planes. Two were taken to hospital.

The Canadian Sabre, from North Luffenham, Rutland, crashed at the market town of Loughborough, Leics., and exploded. The pilot, whose name was withheld, was found in the cockpit.

Later a RAF Vampire fighter crashed on a chicken farm in thick mountain mist near Mold, Flintshire, killing the pilot.

Gala Occasion

Maids, Footmen Throw Party For Royal Family

LONDON (Reuters) — Comely kitchen maids danced with blue-bloods, and footmen squired a princess Tuesday night, as the 200 domestic servants at Buckingham Palace threw a party for the Royal Family.

The traditional palace Christmas party is the one night in the year when princes and valets can forget the roles they must play the rest of the time, and just enjoy themselves together.

This year the Queen, thousands of miles away on a round-the-world tour of the Commonwealth, missed the party, one of her favorites.

But before she left, she arranged for the servants to hold their ball in the glittering, mirrored state ballroom.

And, while the Queen herself was not present, the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret looked in for a while and danced.

Dress for the dance is semi-formal, with the men wearing dark suits or tuxedos, and the women long formal gowns.

The royal ladies never "dress down" at these parties. Instead they wear some of their loveliest clothes and jewels to give the other women the pleasure of describing such splendor to their friends.

Salty Comments On Art Startle British TV Viewers

LONDON (AP) — Sir Gerald Kelly, 74-year-old president of the Royal Academy and a terrifying authority on art, startled Britons Tuesday night with salty comments on Flemish masterpieces.

In a television performance which turned out to be foot race through the Academy galleries, Kelly used near-swear words, and at a climactic moment in his discourse said with great fervor: "To hell with eels."

Kelly, painter of royal portraits, as president of the Academy is boss of the galleries at which another academician, Sir Winston Churchill, exhibits landscapes.

In general, Kelly approved the old Flemish masters, many of whose works were borrowed for a special exhibition, but he treated them without reverence and observed that even old artists had lusty human impulses. Before a picture of undressed characters Kelly exclaimed:

"Two juicy nude bodies—what a nice taste the artist had in healthy flesh."

The remark about eels popped out as Kelly was explaining that a portrait by Jan Van Eyck of the painter's wife had dropped from sight for a long time, to be recovered ultimately in a fish market where the oak board on which the picture had been painted was being used as a surface on which to skin eels. For that reason, apparently, he disapproved of them.

Kelly's comments on Rubens' color sketch of "The Rape of the Sabines" was called somewhat informal by some persons who telephoned to the BBC.

"The Romans were in the Sabine country with no women," Kelly said. "The Sabines had plenty and the Romans decided to go and collect some. Such enterprise was a rush job. There they are, (in the picture) picking up Sabines all over the place. As far as I know, it worked very well."

Wild Driver Forces 30 Cars Off Road

OSHAWA (CP)—Allan T. Duncan of Oshawa Tuesday night led civilian and police pursuers on a hair-raising, zig-zag chase from Whitby to Oshawa.

Police said that along a four-mile stretch of Highway 2, Duncan forced 30 cars off the road before he was apprehended by police cruisers and angry civilians who had been driven into the ditch and gave chase to the outskirts of Oshawa.

Appearing in court today, he was convicted of drunk driving and sentenced to seven days in jail. His licence was suspended for three months and his car impounded for a similar period. Charges of having liquor were withdrawn.

NATO Studies A-Weapon Strategy

Emphasize Progress Made By 14 Nations To Increase Strength

PARIS (Reuters)—North Atlantic treaty ministers today empowered their military committee to study the effect of atomic weapons upon future planning and strategy for the defence of the West.

The decision was announced in a communique following their three day meeting here.

U.S. Defence Secretary Charles Wilson told the NATO session Tuesday that the Eisenhower administration will seek congressional approval for sharing atomic information with its NATO allies.

The five-page communique emphasized the solid progress made by the 14 nations in their efforts to build up the West's strength against aggression.

The communique refers specifically to the need for including German troops in the Western defence set-up through the agency of the European Defence Community system.

SOLIDARITY STRESSED

It records the solidarity of views prevailing among the 14 NATO nations with regard to the Soviet Union as expressed at today's top-secret and restricted meeting of the foreign, defence and finance ministers. It was agreed that these restricted meetings of ministers at NATO council meetings should be continued in the future.

The ministers agreed that the Western Big Three must hold fast against Soviet efforts to break up their 14-nation defensive alliance.

The ministers unanimously agreed Soviet strategy and the Kremlin's ultimate aim of world domination for communism will not be changed even if Moscow agrees to meet in a four-power ministerial conference on the German and Austrian issues. The Russians have not yet replied to the Western invitation to such a meeting.

MUST BE BUILT UP

Consequently, according to these sources, the ministers concluded the NATO structure must still be built up to a level adequate to meet the continuing threat of aggression.

The NATO council of ministers went into their closing sessions considerably cheered by the Eisenhower administration's pledge to try to get congressional approval for sharing some U.S. atomic weapons secrets.

The prospects of limited atomic co-operation, raised Tuesday by U.S. Defence Secretary, Charles E. Wilson, helped ease the sting left by State Secretary Dulles' threat Monday that U.S. aid to Europe may be cut if the European army isn't approved soon.

Wilson promised only that the U. S. Congress will be asked to approve letting the NATO members have "pertinent information" on how to use the atomic weapons the U. S. is building. He did not say the allies might be told how to build them themselves.

Nor did he offer to share U.S. atomic weapons with anyone, but observers pointed out he said nothing to the meeting of allied foreign, defence and finance ministers which would exclude the possibility of shipping atomic weapons to Europe, where the U. S. already has six atomic cannon.

The McMahon atomic energy law bars sharing of U. S. atomic secrets with foreign powers. Wilson said Eisenhower is prepared to ask congress to amend the law.

APPROVE YEAR'S GOALS

The NATO ministers approved these goals for their 1954 campaign to forge a stronger West European defence.

1. A 25-per-cent increase in air power to give NATO close to 5,700 planes by the end of 1954.

2. A five-per-cent increase in ground forces to give NATO 103 front-line and reserve divisions.

3. A 15-per-cent boost in naval craft, for a total of about 1,900 by the end of next year.

In another development Tuesday, the five major gun-making NATO members adopted a standard bullet, shorter and lighter than the kind most Allied soldiers fought with in the Korean and Second World Wars. The new bullet is described as a great advance in giving the foot soldier a high level of fire power with reduced weight to carry.

Canada, the U. S., Britain, Belgium and France will make most NATO bullets.

EMPLOYEES SHARE PROFITS

Christmas and profit sharing bonus cheques were issued to employees of Zeller stores across Canada Tuesday. Manager D. J. Fitzgerald, of the Peterborough branch, issued 37 bonuses, part of the $188,421 total distributed by Zeller's Ltd. Miss Geraldine Hogan, Miss Loretta Roseborough and Mrs. Hazel Shine received the largest cheques. Mrs. Shine and Mrs. Inga Roy also were given pins marking 10 years' service.

Russia Builds Many Cruisers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Swift, highly manoeuvrable cruisers, destroyers, submarines and troop-carrying merchantmen are going into the new fleet Russia is creating for use if she gambles on a conquest of Europe.

Some of her submarines are rated as rivals in under-water speed to the new United States atomic models.

Authorities here estimated today that in cruiser construction alone Soviet building during the last few years has exceeded the total built by the U.S. and its North Atlantic Treaty Organization alllies.

Currently Russia is believed to have more than 30 cruisers built or building, including an ultra-modern, swift, manoeuvrable type designated as the Sverdlov class.

Only one of the class has been seen by the Western world, when it appeared for Britain's Coronation ceremonies last summer. Presumably it and others are based at White sea ports, like Murmansk, toward which the Sverdlov was seen heading after it sailed from England. Cruisers like this are especially useful as raiders against both combat and merchant ships, and in support of amphibious landing operations.

The Sverdlov, listed by the Russians as a 12,000-ton ship but seeming much heavier, manoeuvred swiftly and easily as Western naval experts watched it on its visit last summer.

Says Hollinger Thumbing Nose

OTTAWA (CP)—Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, charged Tuesday night that Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines virtually had thumbed its nose at the Ontario government in rejecting a government-backed plan for settlement of a dispute with 1,500 workers.

Mr. MacDonald said the company was more interested in attempting to smash the United Steelworkers of America (CCL-CIO) than in obtaining a settlement. The company's rejection of the plan, he said, gives the government "no alternative but to seek the acceptance by Hollinger of a settlement which it has sponsored, and which the union has agreed to in good faith."

Most Price Groups Higher In Trading

TORONTO (CP) — Most price groups were higher in light early afternoon trading in the stock market today.

Retail stores, with a balance of gains and losses, was the only industrial category not higher.

Senior golds were strong with Lake Shore and Hollinger higher, but Campbell led juniors lower with a 10-cent loss. Ventures dropped 25 cents in holding companies.

Britalta and Canadian Atlantic, up 25 and 30 cents respectively, led the small western oils gain.

Uraniums gained a little. Gunnar picking up 10 cents. New Larder U with a nine-cent gain led Bathurst-area issues higher.

Noranda led senior base metals with a 50-cent gain. Cassiar, up 40 cents, topped juniors.

Canada Has New Bullet But No Rifle

May Take 4 Years To Re-equip Army With New Gun

OTTAWA —(CP)— Canada, along with four other North Atlantic Treaty countries, is today part-owner of a new bullet. But none of them, at the moment, has a rifle from which to shoot it.

This situation emerged with the announcement in Paris that Canada, the United Kingdom, the United States, France and Belgium have agreed to the standardization of small arms ammunition. Their choice: A .30-calibre (7.62mm) cartridge.

For the last 57 years, Canadian factories have turned out .303 ammunition to fit different types of .303 rifles. Now, they probably will be asked to produce a rifle to suit the new NATO bullet.

The rifle likely will be the Belgian "Fabrique Nationale" (FN). Associate Defence Minister Campney, announcing the NATO decision in the Commons Tuesday, said the Canadian army has ordered "a number" of the FNs.

He did not say that they would become standard army equipment, but some army officers, noting they had been tested satisfactorily, said this was "probable."

A Paris report said the new NATO bullet fits no gun now officially in use by any of the member-armies but that all the experts agree it is a good bullet with plenty of striking power.

The NATO idea was said to be the gradual replacement of existing rifles and ammunition with a new bullet and suitable rifles. This may take a long time.

A Canadian ordnance expert said it might take as many as four years to completely re-equip the army with any new rifle produced in Canada.

The Lee Enfield No. 4 now is the Canadian army rifle.

Its replacement by a rifle to fit the new NATO bullet will entail a complete retooling operation in the government-owned ammunition industry.

If the five NATO countries had decided on the other bullet they considered, a .280-calibre (7mm) round, however, it would have meant a retooling operation in all five countries.

The new rimless cartridge is said to have about the same diameter as an ordinary pencil. It is shorter and stubbier than the rimmed .303 bullet.

Mr. Campney said the nine other NATO countries have been invited to adopt the new bullet.

Opposition Leader Drew, commenting on the announcement, said he hopes the agreement on small arms ammunition will lead to standardization of "other types of ammunition."

Believe President Supports Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Charles Potter (Rep.-Mich.) said today he believes President Eisenhower "understands" that if Congress fails to authorize the St. Lawrence seaway, Canada will build it alone.

Potter made his remark to reporters after a group of seaway supporters called on the president at the White House. Others in the group included Senator Homer Ferguson (Rep.-Mich.) and representative George Dondero, (Rep.-Mich.) and several industrial leaders from the midwest.

Dondero said Eisenhower, who has previously come out in support of the controversial project, displayed "enthusiasm" for he seaway today.

The group urged the president, Dondero said, to include the seaway in his legislative program.

Eisenhower Thursday begins a three-day series of huddles with congressional leaders on the program.

Deposed King To Avoid Conflict

LONDON (Reuters) — The government said today it deposed the Kabaka (king) of Buganda, Nov. 30 to avoid "a head-on conflict."

A government white paper said the kabaka, Mutesa II, had insisted on complete independence for the province of Buganda within the African colony of Uganda.

The white paper said independence for Buganda from the other three provinces of Uganda would disrupt the entire colony's economy and administration. The two principal towns of Uganda—Kampala and Uganda—both are in the Kabaka's "kingdom."

The report said the 29-year-old ruler had made clear he would continue to press for independence and would oppose the British government's decisions in the Buganda Lukiko (parliament).

Peiping Says Dean Has Wrecked Plans

TOKYO (AP)—United States envoy Arthur H. Dean headed today for Washington, hopeful that a Korean peace conference will be called despite seven weeks of futile preliminary negotiations.

As he boarded an airliner here, Dean told reporters it is "distinctly possible" talks to set up a peace conference will be resumed, although it might take some time.

Dean, spokesman for the 17 United Nations countries which fought in Korea, broke off the talks Saturday and demanded that the Communists apologize for accusing the U.S. of conniving with South Korea to release 27,000 anti-Red war prisoners last June.

The Reds have not apologized, and today Peiping radio repeated the charge and accused Dean of wrecking plans for a peace conference.

TWO SEPARATE STORMS

A telephone company official said the widespread damage apparently came from two separate storms Monday—one in the Windsor-Chatham-Sarnia area and the other between Barrie and Owen Sound.

No telephone exchanges were completely cut off at any time, but many lines were cut.

Meanwhile, weather officials said today there was no sign of another bad storm in the next two days to hamper repair crews. Subfreezing temperatures with clear skies and some light snowflurries are forecast for the damaged areas today and Thursday.

Historic Board Honors Rail Pioneer

Citizens of Wellington County will be interested in knowing that the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada has placed in the vilage of Rockwood a bronze tablet recording the fact that James J. Hill, the great American railroad builder, was born in this county, says an editorial in the Guelph Daily Mercury. The tablet, which is on the wall of the Eramosa Township offices in Rockwood, bears the following inscription:

JAMES JEROME HILL

Pioneer railway promoter and builder in Canada and the United States, born near Guelph, 16th September, 1838. Died in St. Paul, Minn., 29th May, 1916.

RECALLS EARLY DAYS

Frank F. Day, of Rockwood, the former postmaster, is authority for the statement that the great railway builder was born on lot 6, concession 7, of Eramosa, a property that had been taken up by his grandfather when he came to Canada in 1829. Mr. Day says that he was told this more than forty years ago by Alex Burns, then about 70, who had lived all his life within about a mile of the site and whose wife was a relative of the Hills.

Mr. Day says further that James J. Hill was born on the extreme south corner of the east half of lot 6, on what is known as No. 5 sideroad, mid-way across the 7th concession. The site is still recognizable by a few old apple trees and some lilac bushes, though no buildings remain on the hundred acres. The spot is about two and a half miles northeast of Rockwood, and is reached by one road running out of Rockwood, that leaving No. 7 Highway at the United Church.

James J. Hill was educated at the Guelph school and at Rockwood Academy, then worked for three years in Pasmore's store which stood just beside the present United Church. He worked a further year in Guelph, and then went west, where he began his spectacular career.

Musical Interludes For Election Rally

MILLBROOK (ENS)—In connection with the municipal elections being held Friday, the Millbrook and district Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring a community rally in the town hall Thursday night at eight o'clock.

The purpose of the rally is to give the general public a chance to hear all the candidates for council, the school board and the public utilities commission. Each will be asked to speak in turn to discuss some of the problems and new ventures confronting these organizations and how they think they should be handled.

For four places on council six candidates are in the field. They are Weldon Coulter, J. H. Raper, G. T. MacPherson, Ivan L. H. Gray, Gordon Trick and Robert Ridge.

Three are to be elected to the public schol board from five candidates: Ed Nattress, Mrs. Anna Kennedy, Fred Lowery, Jack Crowley and James Larmer.

For the new public utilities commission to which four are to be elected there are five running: Stanley Alan and Percy Hamilton for the east zone and Russell Reid, Howard Lancashire and Alex Gilbert for the west.

Between speeches by these candidates, there will be musical numbers.

Daring Dietrich Gown Startles Audiences

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Marlene Dietrich made her night-club debut Tuesday night in the most revealing gown that show business veterans could remember.

The veteran glamor girl opened at the Sahara, and her first appearance drew a gasp from the capacity audience. She sauntered on stage in a gown of transparent black net and little else.

The gown, a clinging number designed by Jean Louis for a reported $6,000, revealed more than it concealed.

Joe Schoenfeld, entertainment veteran and editor of daily Variety, said: "It's the most daring gown I've ever seen on a stage, and I covered New York burlesque in the old days."

"I think she was smart to wear it," said another observer. "People expect sex from Dietrich. They got it."

Trinity Mission Band Holds Annual Election

HASTINGS (ENS) — Trinity Mission Band held its annual Christmas party Saturday afternoon. The president Bob Jones took charge of the worship while members of the WMS were present along with members of the Evening Auxiliary.

Bob Jones was presented with a life membership and pin, the gift of the Evening Auxiliary.

Brenda Thompson read a short address and Eleanor Spinkle presented the assistant leader of the band, Mrs. Jas. Essex with a Life Membership. Mrs. Ross Burnham told the Christmas story.

Following the story, the band had its election of offices for 1954.

They will be: President, Brenda Thompson; vice-president, Charlotte Woodcock, secretary, Bob Jones; treasurer, Eleanor Spinkle; world friends, John Thompson; Press, Peter Crate.

Police Reveal 'Call-Girl' Racket In B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Existence of a large-scale "call-girl" racket here was disclosed by the Vancouver Province in a front-page story Tuesday and police chief Walter Mulligan says his force is virtually unable to stamp it out.

"We know that these women are operating," the chief said. "We know they are definitely 'in business' but they are careful and operate with such tact, that nabbing them in the act is a tremendous job. It is almost impossible to get the evidence necessary to convict."

The Province story says girls are called by telephone, or picked up by a car, and taken to hotels or apartments or wherever a rendezvous is arranged.

GIRL HAS 'PROTECTOR'

The reported said they talked to one girl who admitted "quite cheerfully" that she was a call girl. She told them that she made 27 'visits' last week and on two calls between 4 p. m. and midnight Friday was paid $70.

After a few experiences with bullies "who stole my money and beat me" she acquired a taxi-driver who acts as her "friend and protector."

"One of the things that leaves us absolutely up in the air about the whole thing," Chief Mulligan said, "is that a certain percentage of call girls are not professional prostitutes in the accepted sense.

"They are business girls and, believe it or not, housewives."

Redmen Win On Lindsay Ice

LINDSAY (ENS. — The Muskies dropped their second home game in a row Tuesday night, and Port Hope Redmen avenged a 1-0 loss at the hands of the Lindsay crew in their last meeting. As the visitors skated to a 6-3 win in the Lindsay Arena.

The Muskies could not cope with the flying Redmen, and several of the local players still showed they have not shaken an early season slump.

Goalie Red Wasson was the brightest star for the Redmen, as he held the Muskies to one goal during the second period, the only frame in which they held a decided edge in the play. The Redhead kicked out the rubber from all angles in his free-wheeling style. Downey, Medhurst, Free, Freeman and McKeen were also going well for the winners.

The visitors jumped into a 4-1 lead in the first, on goals by Medhurst, Buckton, Downey and Wilson. The latter was scored when Wilson was sliding toward the Muskie net on his chin, and flipped the puck to O'Connell, who also went down on the play. Crawford scored for the Lindsayites.

In the second, Davis scored the second goal for the locals, from his new spot on a forward line with Deddup and Wyatt.

Third period gave the visitors an increase in their lead, as Free and Downey tallied for Port Hope while Davis scored the only Lindsay goal less than two minutes from the end of the game.

Referee Jim Crombie handled the game in good style, dealing out nine penalties, five to the winners. Only goal scored with the opposition shorthanded was Medhurst's in the first period.

The crowd was reported at 315 by the arena box office.

Rhee Threatens Use Of Force On Papers

SEOUL (AP)—President Syngman Rhee said today he will use force if necessary to reorganize and enhance the quality of Korean newspapers.

Rhee appealed to interviewing South Korean reporters to do "your own best" to establish really good newspapers. He regretted that there were too many small newspapers in South Korea of low quality.

"We must have a few big newspapers which could be quoted by foreign newspapers," he said. "I seldom see the foreign press quoting our newspapers."

There are about 45 daily newspapers in South Korea, and none has more than 10,000 circulation.

Obituary

HUGH F. ANDERSON

Hugh F. Anderson, 51 Mattice Rd., Islington, Ont., fatally injured in a car-truck collision in Etobicoke township Monday, will be buried in Little Lake cemetery, Friday.

Born in Lakefield, Mr. Anderson moved to Oshawa about 15 years ago, and then to Toronto. Former production manager of Canadian Arsenals, Port Credit, he was a partner in the firm of Gibbs Manufacturing Co., Port Credit.

He is survived by his mother, the present Mrs. Ben McCoy of Lakefield; his widow, the former Vera Taylor, and a daughter, Shirley, 16, both of Islington.

Funeral services will be held in the Comstock funeral chapel, Friday at 2.30 p.m., with the Rev. H. Kaye officiating.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 27-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Tuesday's noon rate was 97 1/8 cents. Pound sterling $2.73 1/8, against $2.73 1-16.

36 In Revolt Against Troops Leaving Suez

LONDON (AP)—Thirty-six Conservatives rebelled openly in Parliament Tuesday night against the Churchill government's proposals to remove British troops from the Suez canal zone.

The Conservative backbenchers introduced a "critical motion" in the House of Commons demanding that Britain suspend any negotiations with Egypt aimed at the withdrawal of British troops from the Suez.

The so-called rebels are expected to carry their fight into a foreign affairs debate next Thursday. Their move could seriously embarrass Prime Minister Churchill's government but does not threaten its defeat as no vote is scheduled.

VOTE AGAINST BUDGET

Some of the Conservative rebels, however, have threatened to vote against the government's military budget early next year unless the Suez evacuation plan is dropped. This could lead to a government defeat.

The government has a 26-vote over-all majority in Commons. This is sufficient to assure government victory if the Conservatives remain united but hardly enough to ride out a full-fledged party revolt.

Earlier this month Churchill quelled similar back-bench Conservative revolts against the government's plan to introduce commercial television and its refusal to grant war pensions boosts.

Tuesday night the government rallied full Conservative party support to assure Commons approval of commercial TV and the defeat of a Labor-motion attacking it as a threat to public morals.

has been some speculation the ceiling would be boosted to $12,500 from $10,000.

Mr. Winters said he could not indicate what the new interest rate will be, but the monthly payments will be lower than those prevailing. Current NHA rate is 5 1/4 per cent.

He urged the Commons to give quick consideration to the legislation which will be brought before the Commons banking committee for consideration after the Christmas recess.

DATES OF FALL FAIRS

Peterborough and Lakefield fair boards were not represented at the recent meeting at Port Perry of delegates to the No. 4 division of the Ontario Fairs Association. Newspaper Requests Boxes Council To Quiz Dealers

COBOURG (ENS). — Council met last night to clean up some year-end business. When the council meets again early in the New Year the only change in the lineup will be the replacement of Harold Richardson by Roy Dodge.

Council authorized a $35 advertisement in the intermediate hockey program to mark the opening of the recreation centre which has been rebuilt after last summer's fire. Request of the Public School Board was granted relative to fixing up the road running north from Darcy St. to the new school.

A letter from the Globe and Mail advising council that the paper desired to establish vending boxes at various points in the town was tabled until it is learned whether the news dealers would be in favor of what the council considered competition to the stores selling papers.

Council granted the request of the Chamber of Commerce that Saturday, December 26, be declared a holiday in view of Boxing Day faling on that date, rather than on Monday. The Chamber of Commerce also wrote to inqure if the corporation would be having the business section decorated with cedars for Christmas. Mayor Jack Burnet commented that the usual tree had been erected in front of the town hall and that the rest of the decorations would follow soon.

Councillor Jeff Rolph told council his police committee had received no word from the department of highways about a survey of traffic dangers at the intersection of University Ave. and Division St. Since Division St. is a highway, any traffic light installation there would have to be approved by the department of highways. Council suggested the chairman of the police committee see the local member, the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow.

In reply to a question from Councillor Otto Curtis, the mayor said the engineer had applied to the Ontario department of health for permits for sewer construction on Burnham St. and they were awaiting a reply from the department.

"We will not move until it is all legal; we would not want to get into a mess like they did at Oakville," said Mayor Burnet.

Another housing sub-division company wanted answers to a questionnaire. Town Clerk Jack Ewart said the questions could only be answered in part because it was not known yet to what extent the various utilities would be supplied. Until the school board, public utilities commission and board of health had been consulted, it was impossible to complete the questionnaire, said Mr. Ewart.

Declare Martial Law After Basra Riots

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — The Iraqi oil port of Basra lay under martial law today following a clash between police and striking workers of the Basra Petroleum Co. in which six persons were reported killed.

The casualty reports, which were not confirmed, said 33 other persons, including some police, were injured in the fray. The battle broke out Tuesday when police tried to disperse a worker's demonstration.

The decree was issued following an emergency meeting of the council of ministers Tuesday night. Iraqi army units garrisoned in the Persian gulf city were called out to restore order.

Bites Brother, Jailed

BOLZANO, Italy (AP)—Giuseppe Prantner was sentenced Tuesday to two years in jail for biting off his elder brother's nose. Giuseppe's defence was that he just got biting mad when his brother sneaked some choice logs out of Giuseppe's woodpile.

Woman Fined $50 For Having Deer

BANCROFT (ENS) — Convicted on a charge of having deer out of season, Mrs. Sidney Fuller, of Bancroft, was fined $50 and costs by Magistrate R. C. Jackson.

A fine of $10 and costs was levied on Alvin Wilson of Detlor for carrying firearms without a license and T. F. Van Iderstine of West Hill paid a simliar amount when convicted of having possession of a loaded firearm after sunset and before sunrise.

Samuel Gillespie, of Coe Hill, was fined $10 and costs and bound over to keep the peace for one year on a charge of common assault.

Walter Robins of Bancroft paid $10 and costs for being drunk, and a charge of having liquor at a place other than his residence cost John Boyle of Combermere $15 and costs. Fines of $10 and costs were imposed on Elmer Robbins of Bancroft for failure to share the road, on Peter Freymond of Birds Creek for failure to produce an ownership permit and on Chester Davy of Bancroft for having a vehicle with inadequate brakes.

Failing to produce a driver's permit cost Bessie Laundry, of Birds Creek, $5 and costs.

The link that had to come

The two main roads to the solution of life's problems, divergent though they may have seemed to be, are the way of Science and the way of Religion.

These two paths converge in Christian Science. Today the rational thinker finds logic, supported by proof, in the religious thinker's deep conviction of a primal cause, or intelligence, called God.

Science and religion can now agree, for through the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, the actual Science of Christianity has been revealed.

This great book shows, through reason and revelation, the solution to problems of health, supply, or of any other kind. It may be obtained at all Christian Science Reading Rooms. The coupon below is also for your use.

Brutally Beats Neighbor Girl

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A high school honor student Tuesday brutally beat a 14-year-old neighbor girl with an iron pipe as she ran screaming for mercy through her home.

Mercy hospital attendants said today the victim, red-haired Linda Frey, had four front teeth knocked out, lips cut and swollen, head badly gashed, three fingers on her left hand broken and her index finger almost severed at the first joint.

Police said Crisanto (Rocky) Castro confessed to the beating and was held on a charge of assault to commit murder.

"Something just came over me," the youth said. "I knew I shouldn't do it but something kept pushing me. When I realized what I had done it was too late. I wasn't mad at her."

Steer Causes Accident

KIRKWOOD, N.Y. (AP) — A steer caused a $100,000 highway accident Tuesday when it wandered into the path of a tractor-trailer truck loaded with motion picture film and projectors. The steer was knocked 60 feet and killed, and the trailer shot up in the air and landed in a field. No one was hurt.

Governor Outlaws 3 Left-Wing Groups

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—The British governor of this troubled colony outlawed three left-wing organizations Tuesday night and banned several Communist publications, including the magazine Soviet Weekly and the periodical put out by the cominform.

The order declared illegal the Demerara Youth Rally, the Pioneer Youth League and the British Guiana Peace Committee. It was issued by Governor Sir Alfred Savage under the emergency powers given him two months ago when Britain ousted Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan's People's Progressive party government on charges of plotting to turn British Guiana into a Communist state.

Jagan's American-born wife, Mrs. Janet Rosenberg Jagan, and nine other PPP leaders pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges of violating the emergency regulations by holding a meeting without police permission. The defendants contended that the gathering last Sunday at a sugar estate village 15 miles from Georgetown was a religious meeting not requiring a police permit.

Police Obtain $3,840 More

The finance committee of city council Monday recommended the transfer of $3,840 from the miscellaneous account to the police commission budget to meet the cost of increased wages.

The request for additional funds was made by the police commission in accordance with a resolution forwarded to council when the 1953 budget was being drawn up. Wage negotiations with the police association had not been completed at the time.

City Clerk E. A. Outram explained to the finance committee that a provincial statute required council, when drawing up its budget early each year, make provision in the miscellaneous account for any subsequent salary adjustments. When increases in wages were granted, it was necessary to transfer funds from the miscellaneous account to the department concerned.

Sugar Heir Convicted

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP)—Sugar heir Adolph Spreckles II was convicted by a jury Tuesday of simple assault on his fifth ex-wife, actress Kay Williams. Sentencing was set for Jan. 3.

Downright Mr. Dulles

The American Secretary of State told NATO that the U.S. was not interested in establishing a European Defence Community of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg just for the purpose of getting German men and military equipment into western defences. That is obviously so. One takes with less assurance Mr. Dulles' statement that the U.S. wants E.D.C. (and Germany in it) so as to prevent France and Germany from reviving their traditional hostility and "committing suicide". Mr. Dulles wants a European Defence Community because the U.S. wants, for itself and the western world, a consolidated western Europe defence against Russia—a protective shield for the U.S. as well as Europe. E.D.C. has become the major element in American foreign policy in Europe.

* * *

Many parties in France are hotly opposed to E.D.C. partly because it is being pushed on France by the U.S. but chiefly because they fear that a re-armed Germany in E.D.C. would dominate E.D.C. This is a probability. But how is German dominance to be stopped anyway? The Germans have the population, the technical skills, the heavy industrial resources, and ever since Napoleon have been superior to France as a military power.

* * *

Mr. Dulles has done some plain speaking in undiplomatic language. This has angered the French and hurt French pride. We are inclined to think, however, that French pride is too high-flown in such national matters. Neither its record during the war nor its governmental crises and general progress since have given reason for unbridled pride. Further, who pays the piper calls the tune. France has had hundreds of millions of dollars of American assistance—monetary, material, economic. As the greatest Western Power today, and the one that has paid most of the bills, the U.S. has the right of might and leadership. France has reason to feel grateful that the American might has been so gently used. Let France consider how the big stick has been wielded in Eastern Europe, by the other great power Russia. How has Russia treated her allies Austria and Czechoslovakia?

* * *

If American foreign policy for American defence is at stake in E.D.C. the American Secretary of State can be forgiven his blunt speaking, and if the U.S. wants E.D.C. and only France is blocking the way, the Americans cannot forever be thwarted by lesser power's prejudices and weaknesses.

* * *

Power politics are not pleasant, but they are the realities of international law. France will have to adjust herself to them. This advice, coming from Canada, is not as bold as it sounds. Ever since there has been a Canada this country has been adjusting her life and policies to the will of a great power—of France herself, of Britain, and, in the last half century, of the United States. Yet somehow Canadian pride and purpose have not been eclipsed. France has much to lose, as has Europe, by abstaining from the European Defence Community and spurning American policy; she and western Europe have much to gain by acceding to the U.S. and E.D.C. —perhaps as much as European peace itself.

The Sapid Soviet Press

Soviet newspaper editors have been getting a scolding from Pravda because they are not 'sapid' enough. In our dictionary 'sapid' means flavourful, and we are interested in the means which are suggested for achieving this desirable journalistic quality. Pravda says that editors should pay more attention to the letters they receive, and that they should help letter-writers to improve their style, so that they may write for the papers often.

We are not in a position where we have to pay much attention to what Pravda says about editing a paper, but we are interested in this suggestion, because we get quite a few letters from readers, and we print most of them. We would not venture to give our correspondents any tips about style, for we do not believe that to be our duty; we are content to give them a little assistance with punctuation and spelling, if they need it, and there we stop. But we are keenly interested in the notion of a newspaper which is made up principally of contributions from its readers, and if this idea takes hold in Russia, we shall subscribe to a few Russian papers to see how it works out.

We are wondering, though, how many Russians will take advantage of the new journalistic dispensation. It is never an easy matter to make one's opinion's public, and in a country where the government is so keenly interested in what everybody thinks, we foresee difficulties. The Russian official mind has a way of changing rapidly and completely. Suppose Ivan writes to his local paper praising the high character and devotion to duty of Boris, who manages the local collective farm. Then, two weeks later, Boris disappears suddenly, having been discovered as a reactionary-capitalist-fascist-beast, who is not meeting the turnip quota. Where does that leave Ivan? Does he rush into print declaring that he knew all the time that Boris was a r-c-f-b, or does he go underground for a while? Or, conversely, if he has denounced Boris, what does he do when he learns that Boris is a cousin of the local bigshot, and is going to go far in the local party organization?

Writing letters to the paper is enough of a headache in a democracy. What it would be in Russia we tremble to think. A sapid press in a highly suspicious country is even harder to achieve than in a democracy.

Bounty For Killing

The barbaric savagery of the Mau Mau in Kenya has called for more than ordinary British measures to deal with the terrorists. It has also roused some strong passions in the hearts of men and officers of the British army having to face it.

One British captain, giving evidence at a court-martial in the heart of the Mau Mau country, admitted that a scoreboard was kept in his company officers' mess recording the number of Mau Mau kills and captures. To encourage his men he offered them a five-shilling bounty for every Mau Mau shot. This blood sport has not met with official British approval. Although the officer was found not guilty at his court martial of brutally killing men (ordering his African riflemen to "shoot anyone you want, so long as he is black"), a Parliamentary inquiry has been launched.

Severity is not the same as brutality, and sport not an indulgence in a lottery of human lives. That sort of thing was practised by the worst Nazis. While the Mau Mau cannot be treated gently, to deal with them viciously is to fall into the savagery which the British are trying to wipe out.

Are You Friz?

Winter has come and the countryside hereabouts has the dignity and pure-white charm which inspired Kipling to refer to Canada as "Our Lady of the Snows." Mean people might think it was not the winter weather but Thomas D'Arcy McGee's poem "Our Ladye of the Snow" written forty years earlier, which inspired Kipling's phrase. Perhaps the true Kipling on Canada is this (the lines have been attributed to him):

There was an old man of Quebec
Who was buried in snow to his neck.
When asked: "Are you friz?"
He replied, "Yes, I is,
But we don't call this cold in Quebec."

Nor do we in Ontario, although, permit us to say here and now, that while it is refreshing and something of a pleasure to have the snow back, we can do without unbottled nip. As the Calgary Eye Opener said long ago, "Man wants little here below zero."

No More Nize Baby

Delayed news from New York tells us that Milt Gross, the originator of the Nize Baby stories, died late in November at the age of 58. At one time his pieces, written in what we presume was a literal transcription of a certain kind of New York Jewish dialect, were very popular, but we cannot recall seeing one of them since the war.

We never thought them very funny. They seemed to have no point, beyond the fun of the dialect speech, and we quickly weary of dialect. We grew especially tired when enthusiasts produced volumes of Milt Gross at parties, and insisted on reading aloud from them. In recollection, it always seemed to be something like this: "Momma, is commingk de gobbitch-man! Vell tell him ve don't vant any! Nize bebby; et up all de nize prun-jus". We found this depressing.

We do not think that Mr. Gross meant this fun to be cruel, but there always seemed to us to be a strain of cruelty in it—a mockery of a particular kind of life, aimed not at its real humours, but merely at a form of speech which was not in itself witty or expressive.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A New York 'beautician' (horrible word) advertises a substance which, when sprinkled on the face and hand, makes them shine in the dark. This will appeal to those unfortunate girls whom nobody ever seems to find in the dark.

"You are as young as your faith, old as your doubt", philosophizes a contemporory. And only yesterday we saw a baby full of youthful faith heading straight into the fireplace, and his mother's ancient doubt was just in time to snatch him back to safety.

Viet Minh Loses Initiative

By CHESTER WILMOT
(Noted Military Correspondent)

THE professed readiness of the Vietminh (rebel Communist) leader Ho-Chi-Minh, to negotiate on Indo-China with France is regarded here as a clever and dangerous political move; but it is also considered to be an admission that the Vietminh have lost military initiative, and are anxious for a respite, as the Chinese were when the Korean truce talks were first proposed in May, 1951.

This interpretation — made both by the French and Vietnamese authorities—appears to be justified for there is no doubt that the military situation has been greatly improved since the advent of General Navarre as Commander-in-Chief, and of General Rene Cogny as Commander in North Vietnam six months ago.

✧ ✧ ✧

DURING the last two winters the Vietminh infiltrated strong regular forces into the Red River delta and have also built up powerful local forces there, so that the zones and posts held by the Franco-Vietnamese forces have become islands in a hostile sea. The delta is now so infested with Vietminh that the only road regularly open is that from the port of Haiphong to Hanoi; and even this cannot be used at night.

✧ ✧ ✧

WITH some eighty thousand regular and irregular Vietminh troops inside the delta, carrying on what the French call "guerre en surface," and with six regular divisions ranged around it, General Giap, the Communist Commander-in-Chief, was expected to launch a big offensive this autumn, from north and south and from within. The French considered that this attack would begin as soon as the rains ended in September, and before General Navarre had received the benefit of the nine fresh battalions sent from Europe and Korea and of the recent increase in shipments of United States material.

No such offensive has developed, because General Navarre seized the initiative immediately the campaigning season opened, and has hold it by a series of well-timed ad hoc moves.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN September he attacked the bases, south-east of Hanoi, of two of the three regular Vietminh regiments operating inside the delta. In this operation the better part of two enemy battalions was killed or captured, and the regiments were forced to move and suffered considerable disorganization.

In October, when it seemed that two Vietminh divisions were about to infiltrate into the delta from the south, General Cogny struck first, sending two of his newly-organized light divisions to draw the enemy into battle. Although this operation ("Mouette") took the enemy by surprise, it was not entirely successful, for only one of the Vietminh divisions was brought to battle.

✧ ✧ ✧

"MOUETTE" began with an amphibious diversion designed to keep the 304th Division pinned down in the rich Than Hoa delta, while the Franco-Vietnamese forces were dealing with its neighbour, the 320th. The diversion was rather too effective, since the 304th refused to be drawn in to the fighting around Phu Nho Quan.

There, the 320th Division, which is not regarded as one of the best Vietminh formations, gave as good as it got. While avoiding a major engagement in the open, it harassed the intruding columns with raids and ambushes; and when the French made a direct assault on one of its supply bases they were repulsed and did not try again.

Nevertheless General Cogny maintained his attack until his troops (at comparatively small costs to themselves) had severely mauled four Vietminh battalions, and frustrated —at least for the time being—the plan for mass infiltration from the south.

✧ ✧ ✧

EVIDENTLY alarmed by these aggressive moves, General Giap endeavoured to make a diversion into Northern Laos and the Thai country, where the French still hold the important, though isolated, base at Laichau. In the second week of November, Giap sent the 316th Division marching north-west from the delta.

Again, however, General Cogny struck first. On November 19, a strong force of French and Vietnamese paratroops was dropped fifty miles south of Laichau to recapture the airfield at Dien Bien Phu, which lies on the flank of the route of any Vietminh advance against Laichau or into Northern Laos.

In both the Laichau and Dien Bien Phu areas, General Cogny is rallying the hill tribes to fight as partisans, thereby turning against the Vietminh their own infiltration tactics.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALTHOUGH these operations have forced Giap on to the defensive, the threat to the delta is still serious, since infiltration continues and the area is more heavily infested than it was a year ago. Moreover, the Vietminh have recently gained a cheap victory there over some of the newly-raised light battalions of the Vietnamese Army, brought in to help in the task of pacifying the delta.

On the insistence of the Vietnamese Commander-in-Chief, General Hinh, twelve of these battalions were given a sector of their own, under his command, in the strongly Catholic Bui-Chu area, south-east of Hanoi. In September, when these units began to take over, only two of them had had more than three months' training since the troops were called up; and they were in no condition to withstand the attacks which the Vietminh promptly launched.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN November the command of the Bui-Bui area reverted to the French, and when I was there last week, French and Vietnamese regular forces, working with the light battalions, were trying to restore the situation. But it will be a long and arduous task.

Although the initial reverses suffered by these new units have been a great diappointment, the bitter experience will not have been in vain, if the Vietnamese High Command is prepared to learn from it. Unfortunately, young troops were the victims of the dubious doctrine that elaborate equipment —every man in the units I saw carried an automatic weapon—can make up for insufficient training.

The significant point however—as the Vietminh realised—is that the raising of fifty-four light battalions this year, and the steady increase in the strength of the regular Vietnamese Army, is setting free more and more French units for offensive preparations.

✧ ✧ ✧

TOO MANY French and regular Vietnamese battalions are still tied down in garrisoning the fixed defences and in policing the delta; but General Cogny told me that the growth of the Vietnamese National Army has already enabled him to form his mobile groups into three light divisions, which form his main reserve.

"If this growth continues," he said, "next year we will gain not merely successes but victories; and in the year after that we may gain decisive triumph."

This is the military background to Ho-Chi-Minh's "peace offers" reported last week. In both Saigon and Hanoi I have gained the impression—despite French reticence—that the general position of the French and Vietnamese forces is considered to be better now than it has been at any time during the past three years.

✧ ✧ ✧

ON THE other hand, there is evidence to support the view, expressed to me by both the Vietnam Prime Minister, Mr. Nguyen Van Tam, and General Hinh, that the Vietminh have reached the peak of their power. There has been no increase in the volume of aid received from Communist China since the Korean armistice was signed, and there are no indications that China is about to intervene openly and directly.

Yet without much greater Chinese aid, and without air support, it is doubtful whether General Giap now has the strength to drive the French from their prepared defences in the Red River delta.

✧ ✧ ✧

HO-CHI-MINH'S offer may therefore be an attempt to escape from an awkward dilemma. If he does not carry out the much-heralded attack on the delta, he may lose face, and thus support; while if he does attack and suffers a defeat he will weaken his strongest bargaining counter, his "force in being."

Negotiations, or even talk about the possibility of negotiating, could give him a pretext for not attacking the delta in strength and yet provide an opportunity of continuing unchecked his most dangerous tactics—those of infiltration.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN THE present situation, therefore, both the French and Vietnamese military authorities here are convinced that it would be folly to open negotiations with Ho-Chi-Minh. While these w e in progress the Franco-Vietnamese forces could neither continue their work of pacification nor use their mobile offensive strength. At the same time, however, there would be nothing to stop the Vietminh establishing even stronger guerrilla forces in the Red River delta and other critical areas.

"The time for negotiation will come," a French colonel told me, "only when we have gained a clear-cut military victory."

BOOKS IN REVIEW

One Dozen Assorted

By JULIE BOUDER

THERE is probably no more weary figure of speech than the simile which likens a publisher's products to a river—pamphlets flow, newspapers roll, books rush and tumble from the presses of the country in a never-ending stream. It is used so often, of course, because it is a good simile; therefore we have no hesitation in saying that although the heat of summer dried the flow of printed words to a mere trickle again this year, November found it in full spate. Books and more books: reprints, re-hashes of old themes, detective stories, travel and adventure tales, 'how to' manuals for almost anything you care to name, biography, novels good and bad, and that pet of the modern book-borrower and buyer, historical fiction. Those for consideration today fall into half a dozen categories and range from a straight little satire of fifty-one pages to an involved novel of well over four hundred. We might as well look at them that way, according to size.

✧ ✧ ✧

UNDER the deceptive title Love Among The Ruins Evelyn Waugh pours boiling oil on the makers of the welfare state. At some time in the not-far-off future a young incendiarist is just getting out of prison, one of the fine old English country houses, where he had been enjoying Remedial Repose. He is being posted to the Euthanasia section of the Health Service, a department not in the original 1945 Service but 'a Tory measure designed to attract votes from the aged and the mortally sick.' An unforseeable thing hapnens: in spite of having been bred and trained in a completely planned society he falls in love in the old romantic way. The girl is a ballet dancer with a long, gold beard, the unexpected result of a sterilization operation. From these hints anyone familiar with Waugh's special brand of irony will be able to guess at the victims of it here—politicians, pedagogues, physicians, penologists, sociologists, psychologists, 'ologists' of every creed; he may also suspect, and rightly, that this latest piece of Waugh is as fantastic and vitriolic as The Loved One. The title page calls it 'a romance of the near future, with decorations by various eminent hands, including the author's.'

✧ ✧ ✧

FROM scalding satire we go to Alexander Baron's compassionate humanism. In The Human Kind he writes twenty-odd sketches of men at war, mostly in France and Italy. These vignettes, all of which explore the many sides of the character of man, are told in the first person and although each is complete in itself they hold together by reason of the re-appearance of some figures and the time sequence. There is tenderness here, and brutality; good humour, villainy and greed. Some are droll, some give the heart an unforgettable wrench. All are written in the simple, unpretentious prose that conceals Baron's fine craftsmanship, and it is a pleasure to recommend such a book.

✧ ✧ ✧

TWICE OVER LIGHTLY is Eric Nicol's latest contribution to the Cause of Laughter in Canada, a breezy collection of light essays spoofing everything from Christmas raffles to chlorophyll tablets and poking fun most of all at himself (thereby making the reader with a raffle ticket in his pocket and a green mint in his mouth a lot less comfortable!) This is Nicol's best yet. Unless you respond only to the most delicate and subtle varieties of humour you should get at least two laughs per page.

✧ ✧ ✧

TWO new murder mysteries have unusual touches. In Gladys Mitchell's Merlin's Furlong three undergraduates are implicated in the murders of an art collector and a professor and meet some modern practitioners of witchcraft. Urbane Mrs. Lestrange Bradley, who has done some astonishing detection in crime fiction before this, finds the situation too piquant to leave alone and her solution and comments are equally entertaining. The Ledger Is Kept by Raymond Postgate cannot properly be called a detective story, lacking as it does, the personable young secretaries, double-crossing old family servants and other impedimenta of the 'whodunit'. In fact it is a simple, though immensely ingenious, tale of a civil servant in the Ministry of Supply who sets out to pay a visit, part business, part social, to an old friend who is a scientist at an isotope-producing station. Upon arrival he finds his friend dead and the Chief from Scotland Yard investigating a leakage of top-secret information. The plot is plausible, the conversation cultivated, and the detailed description of an atomic plant at work in wartime imparts to the whole story the factual interest of a 'documentary'.

✧ ✧ ✧

ONCE in a while a novel turns up that can be read with profit and enjoyment by both young and old. Such a book is The Light In The Forest by a former winner of the Pulitzer Prize, Conrad Richter. It is a short novel of fewer than two hundred pages about a Colonial boy who has been captured by Indians at the age of four, raised and loved by them and returned to his own people, under a truce, eleven years later. That conflicts should arise is inevitable and the author reveals the boy's doubts and changing loyalties with subtlety and skill. Harsh, bitter episodes are relieved by scenes of tender affection between him and his Indian parents and brother, and the grandeur of unspoiled nature forms a background which will please anyone with a love of the outdoors. Richter has a passion for the freedom of forest and stream; moreover that he can write of them feelingly without becoming mawkish is to his lasting credit.

✧ ✧ ✧

TWO LIGHT English novels come next in the pile. The jacket of First Catch Your Goose by Derek Barton refers to the author as 'the gayest of post-Waugh novelists'. That may be true certainly this is a hight-spirited little scandal with some vinegary comments on the behaviour of the young adult Britton. Melissa Hayden is finding life with mother and father a trifle thin after her years in the WAAF so she decides to marry a colourless young man in Cultural Relations. A wealthy girl with a powerful mother wants him too and their struggle to catch the goose forms the plot. Frothy, entertaining, and shocking to a degree determined by the reader's susceptibilities. Landscape in Sunlight is by the novelist who delighted so many with Brampton Wick, Elizabeth Fair. It concerns the summer activities of a few English families, complicated by the stratagems of the vicar's wife to marry her daughter Cassandra to the right man and, what is even more vital, to ensure the success of the annual Garden Fete. Miss Fair regards her brain children with an affectionate eye sparkling with a trace of malice, in a nice restrained English way, reminiscent of Angela Thirkell, she is uncommonly funny.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE HEEL and toe of the Italian boot have had a good deal of wear by travellers' feet but Sean O'Faolain has something fresh to say about them in his South To Sicily (also published under the title An Autumn 'n Italy.) O'Faolain has the Irish gift of picturesque description and is a keen observer of places and the people who dwell in them. His new book takes us geographically, and pictorially with almost a score of good photographs, from Naples around the boot and over to Siracusa in Sicily. More interesting to many readers will be the author's moral and political observations on the greed and fear of the Italian peasant, the Mafia, the priests the 'putrefied' upper class. No run-of-the-mill travel book, South To Sicily is a quiet journey with a companion whose historical facts and philosophical speculations are equally worthy of attention.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE THIRD biography of the American novelist to appear within a year is Willa Cather, A Memoir by Elizabeth Shepley Sergeant. The author has been a professional writer since about the time Miss Cather, then on the editorial staff, accepted an article from her for McClure's Magazine. That was in 1910 and a friendship developed which was to last, though less intimate in later years, till Willa Cather's death in 1947. The author of My Antonia did not reveal her true self to many; we are fortunate to have this assessment of both the woman and her work by someone who is neither filled with tremulous awe nor so close to her subject that the figure is distorted. When you have read this book you are well acquainted with Willa Cather's tastes in dwellings, wines and literature, her family in Nebraska, her abhorrence of physical difference or deformity, her great-heartedness and selfishness, her travels and visits which proved to be sources of inspiration. It is a first-rate piece of reporting, warmed with friendly affection and polished by a skillful hand.

✧ ✧ ✧

IF A TAG be put on Dear Mrs. Boswell it should probably read 'biographical fiction'; at any rate, it is an historical novel based on the facts of Peggie Montgomerie's life. This is the story of the girl who married the profligate Scottish lawyer, James Boswell, and of her courage and resourcefulness in the unhappy years of sickness and shame which ensued. Marie Muir was four years completing the book and evidence of diligent research is on every page. Moreover she has done something which we assume is difficult to do: she has given us the feel of the elegant, intellectually vigorous eighteenth century in Scotland and England. The story is convincingly presented and moving in the extreme; what it lacks in interest it makes up in sentiment, in the manner of afternoon radio entertainment. That section of the reading public which is diverted by ladies in distress will cherish Mrs. Boswell.

✧ ✧ ✧

AND NOW for that complicated novel mentioned at the beginning — The Vermilion Gate, by Lin Yutang. Primarily a story of love and war in China during the Moslem revolt of 1932-34, it has an exciting plot and several equally stirring sub-plots developed against the background of China's ancient capital and the deserts of Chinese Turkestan. The old dramas of birth and death are interwoven with high adventure and domestic comedy, and the whole elaborate tapestry is shot through with the thread of humanist philosophy which the author expounded some years ago in The Importance Of Living. Dr. Lin is a storyteller in the Oriental tradition —rambling, sensitive, dramatic, thoughtful, poetic; offering, in other words, something to suit almost any taste.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And God said, Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together into one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so . . . And God said, Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth: and it was so.

And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good. And the evening and the morning were the third day. (Gen 1:9, 11-13.)

Calls Exchange 'Gambling Den'

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Fair (SC—Battle River-Camrose) suggested Friday in the Commons that Justice Minister Garson classify the Winnipeg Grain Exchange as a "gambling den" under the criminal code.

He made the comment during renewed debate on a private bill introduced by Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) to give western farmers the right to deliver grain to the elevator of their choice.

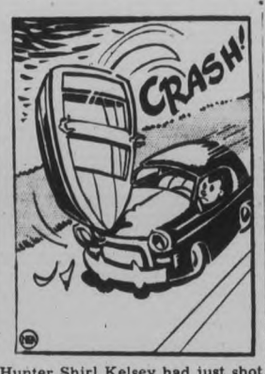
The bill made no more headway than during discussion last week.

Trade Minister Howe again rejected Mr. Argue's proposal that farmers post grain acreages before Oct. 1 among elevators in their area, thus deciding the amount of grain they want to sell to each company. Mr. Argue claims his bill would mean that farmers, not the railways, would decide the distribution of boxcars.

The minister said he hasn't found anyone in the grain business who thinks the CCF member's proposed system is workable.

1953's Wacky Accidents

Squirrel's Corny Act Makes Big Hit



By RICHARD KLEINER

No place is safe. Not even standing on your own property on a soft spring day, drinking in the beauties of nature. You're liable to get bopped with an ear of corn.

That wacky accident happened to J. C. Lightfoot, of Memphis, Tenn. He was communing with nature, and his communing was rudely interrupted when a squirrel let fly an ear of corn from the limb of a tree. Lightfoot suffered a deep gash on his head.

The precision-bombing squirrel was only one of a ghastly group of accident-bearing animals that warred on man during 1953. The National Safety Council, which keeps track of such things, tells all the gory details in its annual report on the year's strange accidents.

In Payson, Utah, it was a deer.

Hunter Shirl Kelsey had just shot the animal, and knelt down beside it. The deer kicked convulsively, struck the trigger of Kelsey's gun and shot him in the thigh.

In Lincoln, Neb., it was a dog. Mrs. Jewell Norman left her car with the motor running and her pet pooch sitting in the back seat. The dog decided to go for a spin, climbed up front, pawed the gear shift and backed up smack into another car.

But animals weren't the only culprits of '53. It was a lawn mower that did Robert Heinbaugh dirt in Painesville, O. He was mowing along and mowed right over a bullet. The lawnmower plugged him in the toe. And a lawn rake had it in for John Plumbe in Santa Cruz, Calif. He raked up a shotgun shell, raked it along with the rest of the rubbish to a bonfire. Bang!

Another unexploded bit of ammunition that blew its top in '53 was a peaceful relic of the Civil War. A shell from a nearby battlefield had long resided on the mantel of the Ishmael Lynch home in Port Gibson, Miss. It fell off, and exploded, blasting holes in the floor, walls and ceiling. No casualties.

For Joan Williams, of Texarkana, Ark., it was a kitchen sink that caused the trouble. Miss Williams, aged four, arrived at the hospital with the sink dangling from her finger. She'd stuck her finger in the drain, and couldn't get unstuck. Daddy unbolted the sing and took appliance and child to the hospital. Both recovered.

The luckiest unlucky accident victim of '53 was Day Ray, of Miami, Fla. He fell asleep while he was smoking on his front porch. When he woke up, his clothing was aflame. Ray promptly fell off the porch. He landed on the water faucet, broke it, and the stream of water put out the fire.

Other fallers were lucky, too. Four-year-old Carners Harris was bouncing on the sofa in his folks' third-flood apartment in New Orleans. One big bounce took him right out the window, but he landed in a sand pit and was uninjured.

Joe Fee fell from the top of a tree in Portland, Ore., while doing some pruning. He wasn't hurt a bit, but his wife was. He landed on her. She suffered a lump on the head, a bruised hand and a few other injuries.

Perhaps the most interesting collision of 1953 involved a car and a rowboat in Holland, Mich. The rowboat crashed into the car. This highly unusual event occurred when high winds plucked the boat out of Lake Michigan and threw it into the side of a car parked on a lakefront road.

Another crash, this one with two cars, found driver George Washington bumping into driver Benjamin Franklin. Both George and Ben were driving trucks, and they met in Richmond, Va.

Nature played strange tricks, all right, but made up for it all in Grand Rapids, Mich. A bolt of lightning hit a furniture plant and started a fire. Then a second bolt hit the fire alarm, set it of, and brought our engine companies to put out the blaze.

Give 2 Names To Baby

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A two-headed, four - armed baby was given two names Tuesday and doctors reported it was making the progress of a normal new-born.

The three-day-old boy was taken off the "critical" list, and its chances of survival were reported as good. Doctors at the Indiana University medical centre said it is taking nourishment in both mouths and the intestinal tract is responding normally.

The 44-year-old father said he gave the name Donald Ray to "the best one" and the name Daniel Kaye to the other head and arms. There was no explanation of the reference to "the best one."

There are two spinal cords joined at about the waistline. As far as doctors have been able to determine, there are no duplications of internal organs.

Dr. John D. Van Nuys, dean of the medical centre, said no surgery is contemplated now. He said the surgical mortality rate for newly-born infants is too high for consideration except in an emergency and it was too soon to determine what surgery would be possible.

Teepees Edge Guelph 7-6 But Lose 1st Place Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines TeePees won a hockey game Tuesday night but lost first place in the standings.

Although the TeePees came from behind a 3-0 deficit to take a 7-6 decision from Guelph Biltmores in St. Catharines, they lost first place because of a team that isn't in the league.

Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts downed Barrie Flyers 7-4 in Kitchener in the only other game, to retain fourth place.

The TeePee drop was caused when Quebec Citadelles were sold. The OHA decided to wipe out the Quebec games from the records and the TeePees, who won five games against the Cits, suffered most, dropping to third place in the standings. Toronto St. Michael's College Majors took over the top rung.

But the TeePee victory didn't go to waste. St. Catharines climbed into second place over the idle Toronto Marlboros.

CIESLA SCORES THREE

The Biltmores took a 3-0 lead in the first period and held on to a 5-3 margin after the second. St. Catharines went ahead in the final session but the Bilts knotted the count-6-6. Hank Ciesla, who led the TeePees with three goals, won it four minutes before the end of the game.

Cec Hoekstra, Hugh Barlow, Jack Armstrong and Brian Cullen were the other St. Catharines marksmen. Chick Chalmers and Ron Howell each notched a pair for Guelph with singles going to Bill McCreary and Bill Graham.

The Greenshirts roared back with a four-goal surge to take the Flyers, last year's Memorial Cup champions. They had to come from behind three times to earn the victory.

PACES GREENSHIRTS

Buddy Horne paced the Greenshirts with three goals. Gary Collins, Graham Joyce, Ivan Tennant and Howie Glover, who was just acquired from the Marlboros, rounded out the total. Bob White with two, Arnold Smith and Jim Robertson accounted for the Barrie output.

Barrie meets the last-place Biltmores in Guelph tonight while Galt Black Hawks are at Hamilton.

Close Contests Dished Up In Trent Loop

MARMORA (ENS) — Although weather conditions delayed arrival of the referees and the Bancroft team the 300 spectators at the Marmora Arena Monday took the delays good naturedly and were rewarded with two cleanly fought even games in which Marmora defeated Trenton 4-1 and Madoc secured a 5-3 win over Bancroft. Trenton commenced the scoring in the opening game through Isteed but Paranuik soon tied it up and also got the goal which closed the scoring. Trumble and Jones scored the other goals. Killian in the Marmora goal was in his best form and negotiated several stiff shots.

The game between Madoc and Bancroft was scoreless in the first. In the second, Madoc got three goals in five minutes and held that lead to the end of the period. Bancroft asserted themselves in the third with fans yelling "tie her up." But it did not happen for Madoc got another and after Lentz, outstanding player for Bancroft, replied with an unassisted goal. Reynolds sealed the game for his team. Ramsbottom played a good game for the losers but did not receive the needed support to be goal scorer.

Will Meet Walls

CHICAGO (AP)—Bob Satterfield, Chicago heavyweight, has earned a Jan. 13 Chicago Stadium match against Earl Walls of Edmonton and Toronto, the Canadian heavyweight champion, off his performance Tuesday night. Satterfield, 184, knocked out Ray Augustus, Topeka, Kans., 176, in the last round of their scheduled eight-round feature bout.

FORD TAKES MIAMI OPEN—Doug Ford of Yonkers, N.Y., winner of the $10,000 Miami Open Golf Tournament, receives the winner's cheque from Barbara McCririck, the Orange Bowl Queen, at Miami, Fla. Ford kept the pressure on during the tournament until his big break came on the 15th hole, where he made an eagle. He had a winning 67 for the final 18 holes, and a 272 winning total for the 72.

Discovered Honus Wagner Ed Barrow Dies At 85

PORT CHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Ed Barrow, 85, the man who discovered Honus Wagner, changed Babe Ruth into an outfielder and developed New York Yankees into the most feared team in baseball, died of cancer Tuesday night.

He entered hospital last July and his close friends knew his death was only a question of time.

Early in November he lapsed into a coma for 36 hours. Then he rallied, began eating again and seemed improved until a relapse Sunday.

Barrow retired in 1947, selling his stock in the Yankees for $300,000. He was with the club for 26 years.

Born in Springfield, Ill., May 10, 1868, he was city editor of the Des Moines Leader when he first got into baseball as a semi-pro manager.

PRESIDENT OF LEAGUE

He was president of the International League for seven years before moving to Boston as manager of the Red Sox.

Here he met Ruth, a left-handed pitcher, and changed him into an outfielder.

"It was the biggest gamble I ever took in my life," Barrow admitted later, "but I never had reason to regret it."

Ruth was sold to the Yankees in 1920 and Barrow soon followed as business manager and secretary. Barrow took over as president when Col. Jake Ruppert died. In 1946 he became chairman of the board of directors when a syndicate headed by Larry McPhail bought the team.

Wagner, a bow-legged Dutchman, was Barrow's pride and joy. He found him in Carnegie, Pa., throwing rocks and later sold him to Louisville as a shortstop. He maintained Wagner was the greatest.

Barrow was well known in Toronto early in his baseball managing career when he brought the Eastern League pennant—it's now the International League—to the Canadian city in 1902. Barrow returned to Toronto in 1908 and managed the Windsor Hotel for a time.

Vancouver's Jimmy McLarnin, on his way to the world's welterweight championship, knocked out Sammy Fuller in the eighth round at Boston 21 years ago tonight. McLarnin won the world crown from Young Corbett the next year, 1933, and lost it to Barney Ross in 1934; regained it from Ross and finally lost it to Ross again in 1935.

Frontenacs List Roster Of New Players

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Frontenacs Tuesday night announced their new roster following a player shuffle involving their own team and players acquired in Monday's purchase of Quebec Citadelles of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A group.

The new team, announced shortly before the midnight deadline for acquiring or selling players in the Quebec Junior Hockey League, retains only three former Frontenac players—goalie Jacques Marcotte, utility player Fernand Turcotte and forward Guy Rosseau.

From the Citadelles the Frontenacs will line up defencemen Moe Mantha, Leo Amadio, Albert Langlois and Bob Chevalier, and forwards Mike Ratchford, Gilles Thibeault, Pat Presley, Clermont Doyon, Ray Cyr, Richard Bouchard, Stan Parker, George Faulkner, Charlie Denomme and Gaston Pelletier.

LIKELY COACH

Likely coach of the almost-new Frontenacs will be Citadelles' Phil Watson, who, Frontenac officials said, will supervise a Frontenacs practice today and remain in charge "until further orders."

Frontenacs coach Phil Renaud announced Tuesday night he has resigned because pressure of business would have prevented him following the team into Ontario under the proposed interlocking schedule. He will be retained as scout and director.

Other players from the two teams accepted the conditions laid down and agreed to play for clubs to which they were sold or assigned.

The other changes included:

Sold to Montreal Royals of the QJHL: Forwards Stan Maxwell and Carl Wandowich, and defenceman Gilles Laperriere, all of Citadelles.

Sold to Guelph Biltmores of the OHA Jr. A: Defenceman Armand Del Bosco of Frontenacs.

Sold to Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts of the OHA Jr. A: Forward Del Topall of Frontenacs.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The other day we mentioned that Ivan Irwin of New York Rangers cuts the palm out of his gloves, claiming it's an old lacrosse custom to get better feel of the stick. Also handy in case of a fight. Bev Groves tells us that he does the same, having learned it from Russ Slater, and adds that he knows quite a few around the OLA circuit who do likewise. Several of the Petes' Trailermen included. Bert Hill pointed out the other evening at Civic Arena that Denny Peterson of the Petes' puckists has no palms in his hockey gloves. Denny, of course, is a pretty handy guy with a lacrosse stick, too. It's rather an interesting angle in the mechanics of sports.

Coach Roy Conacher brings his Midland juniors to Peterborough on Friday night to do OHA battle with the Young Petes, skippered by Red Creighton. It's "father and son" night, meaning kids accompanied by a parent get in for free. A CPC hamper for a door prize, and also several kids' prizes. One is a wrist watch worth $25 from Ostrander's, another is a Foster Hewitt hockey game by Myer Cherney. Plus a dozen hockey sticks by Dit Clapper. They hope to pack the arena that evening. Bud McDougall of the local club will be presented with a CAHA medal at this time, one of which should have been given to his dad, the late Harold (Shrimp) McDougall, years ago for being on a Memorial Cup team. Through an oversight, it was never given to him.

Eyed by The NHL-ers

This strictly amateur junior "B" club has a lot of promising puck talent aboard. Several players are being watched by Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings of the NHL, and should make the pro grade in time. Some good boys like Delahaye, O'Brien, Frizelle, Byrne, Twist, Coyle, Heffernan, Kearns, Gardner, McDougall, Doris, Uren, Hook, Ferguson, Pue, Kane, Ball and a few others. Off to Lindsay tonight, the young Petes (who have no sponsor) are in the thick of a scramble with Port Perry and Lindsay for top spot in the five-team OHA group race. Playing a dashing, scrappy brand of hockey, they should go places this wintry season.

* * * * * *

Senior "B" Petes are interested in the junior squad this year. Not financially, but ready to help in any other way, as some of the youngster are sure-fire seniors within another season or two. Petes' officials tell us they think this is the best junior club here since the palmy days before the war of Honey Tompkins, Bun Kingdon, Art Heal, Eddie Starr, Joe Blewett, Don Crowe, Ray Harding and others of that ilk. That bunch regularly drew larger home crowds than the intermediate Petes and, when they stepped up to intermediate later, they easily held their own or better for years against Trenton Fliers, Belleville, Oshawa and Kingston. Some of our present juniors show equal promise now of future puck greatness.

Petes Playing Away

Petes have two games on the road before they show back at Civic again They're off tomorrow for Orillia to pick up a postponed fixture, and they head for Kingston on Saturday after supper. Monday night will see Orillia Pontiacs playing here, the only senior "B" tilt up this way during Christmas week. Petes go to Belleville next night. Quinte columnist had this to say earlier in the week: "Rumblings from up west have it that all is not well with the Truckmen. In their last two or three games they have been minus four or five stars and, in the game with Kingston, the Truckmen showed up without Colvin in goal, playing coach Ernie Dickens, Thaler, Berwick and Williams. Ken Courtney is filling in between the pipes. The defeat Saturday was the fifth in a row for the erstwhile group leaders."

Latest NHL bulletin puts Ike Hildebrand of Rangers in 14th spot in league scoring, tied with several others at 15 points. Ike has played 29 games, scoring six goals and aiding on nine. Ted Kennedy of Leafs has four in 11 for 15 points, too. Ike has served 12 minutes in penalties so far. Gord Howe is well out in front in the sniping race with 38 points, seven more than Geoffrion. The Canadiens have the best home record to date, while Wings have shown best on the road. These two teams and Leafs are pulling steadily away from Boston, Rangers and Chicago. Canadiens have been penalized most, and Boston the least, according to the latest figures compiled.

SCORING LEADER

MONTREAL (CP)—Andre Corriveau, a veteran performer with the Valleyfield Braves, took over the lead in the Quebec Hockey League scoring race Tuesday with 39 points on 16 goals and 23 assists.

Corriveau picked up three goals and eight assists in the Braves' upsurge during the last week to jump from fourth place in the standings into the lead. He replaced Bucky Buchanan of Chioutimi and Leo Gravelle of Ottawa, who were deadlocked for the top spot last week.

Buchanan dropped into second place with 34 points, five less than Corriveau. Gravelle, a former Montreal Canadiens player, tumbled to third with 33 points but retained the goal-scoring lead with 20.

Toppazzini Doing Big Job Filling In For Chevrefils On Boston Bruin Team

By JIM BASTABLE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Jerry Toppazzini, the youngest and most [illegible] of three hockey-playing brothers, has given coach Lynn Patrick playoff ideas for his NHL Boston Bruins since being recalled from the minors last month. Patrick will be banking on another good game from the 22-year-old utility man when the fourth-place Bruins meet fifth-place New York Rangers in New York tonight in the only game scheduled. Although Toppazzini, a six-foot, 180-pound native of Copper Cliff, Ont., played in 69 games with the Bruins last season, he has never looked better since being recalled from the American League Hershey Bears to fill in for leftwinger Real Chevrefils, who broke a leg on Nov. 14.

Toppazzini didn't score a goal in the first four games with Boston this year, but in the fifth he tallied three times to lead Bruins to a 5-2 victory over the Rangers. That was Nov. 26 and Toppazzini is still showing the drive that probably will keep him in the big time for a while.

NOT MOST GRACEFUL

"I picked him because he never stops hustling when he's on the ice," Patrick said. "He isn't the most graceful player in the world but he's dangerous around the nets."

Toppazzini didn't have much experience at any position a year ago. But he played all of them since then and does a good job, Patrick says.

Lynn figures the Bruins will make the playoffs if they break even in games against Rangers during the rest of the 70-game schedule. They played four times this year and each won twice. The Bruins now have a total of 29 points, nine ahead of Rangers.

In two games Thursday night, third-place Toronto Maple Leafs travel to Boston and last-place Chicago Black Hawks meet the second-place Red Wings in Detroit.

Amateur Hockey Very Costly Smythe Says

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The days of operating an amateur hockey team on a shoe string are over. The teams technically can't even afford to buy the shoe string.

"Nobody makes money in amateur hockey," Stafford Smythe, manager of Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, said in an interview Tuesday night.

He estimated it cost between $40,000 and $50,000 a year to operate a team in the OHA.

"And we consider it a good season if we lose between $20,000 and $30,000," he said.

AFFECTS BOTH GROUPS

The question of finances was never more evident than in the OHA, both junior and senior series, this year.

Sarnia Sailors were forced to drop out of the senior circuit last Friday. Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts were the centre of a bitter dispute recently involving Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. The NHL club owned 18 Kitchener players and attempted to transfer them to the Quebec Junior Hockey League, but the move was blocked. Greenshirt backers claimed financial losses were the reason for the move.

LOSING $1,000 WEEKLY

Quebec Citadelles dropped out of the OHA Junior A loop Monday and the team's holdings were sold to Quebec Frontenacs, rival club in the QJHL.

Walter Weber, Greenshirt president, said at the time the player transfer would realize enough money to meet the payroll and current debt.

"We are losing between $900 and $1,000 a week with no visible means of support," he said.

In withdrawing its team last week, the Sarnia Arena Commission said the Sailors were $8,000 in the red. R. N. Taglietti, commission member, placed the blame "100 per cent on the shoulders of the public."

Bulldogs Edge Niagara 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Cataracts did better Tuesday night with a line-up of 10 players than they have been doing with a full roster during most of the season.

Cataracts, in last place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League, didn't win but they made Windsor Bulldogs work for their 4-3 victory.

The Cataracts twice held leads over the second-place Bulldogs and didn't fall until Lyle Wiseman scored his second goal of the night to clinch it for Windsor in the overtime period.

MERCURYS GROUNDED

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchman enhanced their first-place position by defeating Owen Sound Mercurys, their closest rivals, 4-2 in Owen Sound. In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds counted twice in overtime to defeat Pembroke Lumber Kings 8-6.

Cataracts went ahead in the first period on a screened shot by Red Olsen but Windsor took the lead in the second session on goals by Wiseman and Gord Haidy. Eric Unger tallied for Niagara Falls before the end of the period to knot the count and Nick Dubick sent them ahead 3-2 in the third. Haidy scored his second of the night to force the game into overtime. Wiseman looked after the rest.

McCreary Deal 'Wound Up'

GUELPH (CP)—The Billy McCreary deal, involving Guelph Biltmores and Toronto Marlboros, wound up Tuesday when Biltmores accepted defenceman Don Kendall of Weston Dukes, Marlboro farm club.

The deal, which started near the end of last year's schedule, sent the high-scoring forward to Marlboros for the remainder of the 1952-53 Ontario Hockey Association Junior A season. In return Biltmores were to receive three players outright from the Dukes.

Biltmores chose Bob Forhan, Paul Midghall and Al MacNeil. Forhan and Midghall reported at the start of this season but MacNeil refused. Under the agreement the Biltmores were to receive $5,000 if any of the players refused to report but the Biltmores refused the money. Tuesday they agreed to take Kendall. MacNeil, who has been a standout on defence this year, remains with Toronto.

Trafton Players Greet Coach At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Some of George Trafton's players were at the airport to greet the Winnipeg Blue Bomber coach Tuesday when he returned from a visit to Chicago.

He was jovial but he wasn't saying much.

Asked by reporters when he was going to talk to the football club, Trafton said that was a job for his lawyer, Hart S. Green.

"Mr. Green is my lawyer and he's doing everything for me now" he said. "If I'm going to pay him, I'll let him talk for me, too."

Trafton reported last Friday that he had been fired as coach of the Western Interprovincial Football Union champions, with one year to go on a three-year contract.

DENIED SAME DAY

This was denied the same day by the club, although president Karl Slocomb did say Bombers would be hiring a new man as "head coach" in 1954. Trafton, he said, had been hired as "a coach" and was still on the payroll as "a coach."

Players on hand to greet the coach were tackle Dick Huffman, ends Neill Armstrong and Tom Lumsden, guards Jimmy McPherson and Al Wiley and half Len Meltzer.

Campbellford Zoning Bylaw Presented To Town Council

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Discussion of a proposed zoning by-law for the town occupied much time of the regular meeting of the council here on Monday night, when the by-law was presented for its first and second readings

The by-law is the result of almost two years study and was the original brainchild of councillor P. H. Macmillan.

Council authorized money to prepare the by-law last year and since that time it has been discussed and altered a number of times. Council picked numerous holes in the proposed clauses. A number of points of the discussion were explained by Councillor George Free, who presented the bill, but as some members of council were still not too clear on some of the clauses, it was decided to have additional copies of the by-law printed and distributed to members of council. A meeting will be held later this month at the call of Mayor R. J. Locke with a view to passing the by-law before the close of the year. Councillor Macmillan, who originally suggested the by-law, leaves council this year, after 17 years service, and it is the wish of council to have the by-law passed while he is still a member.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL AREA

A communication from the Minister of Education notified council that the town of Campbellford, the township of Seymour and the township of Percy with the exception of SS No. 9, have being removed from the East Northumberland High School Area Board, and have been named High School Area by themselves, at their own request. This official notification is the result of months of agitation and petitioning by Campbellford, Seymour and part of Percy.

Two trustees were named by council to the new board. They are A. K. Loucks, who was appointed for a two-year term, and R. A. Connor, for one year.

A grant of $200 was made to the Mount Pleasant cemetery board.

Council cancelled the Public Liability and Malpractice insurance policies which they had carried on the old hospital building on Front St. Tenders for the sale of the old hospital were opened at the meeting. Four tenders, for $1,200, $1,250, $2,500 and $2,600 were received, but council decided not to accept any of the offers. The property committee was instructed to have a plumber winterise the plumbing facilities in the building.

HOLIDAY DECEMBER 26

It was decided to declare a civic holiday on December 26, the day following Christmas.

Councillor Ness, chairman of the police committee, reported that two flasher beacons to warn traffic had been installed, one at the top of the school hill and the other at the Edgewater Park turn.

Deputy Reeve Maybee reported excellent progress on the work at the site of the town's new park. The area will be known as Kennedy park. Thirty-five hours have been spent in bulldozing the area, and the hill at one end of the property is now safe for sleighriding.

Public Liability insurance on the park will be investigated, and if the park is not now covered under a policy held by the town the clerk and treasurer were asked to see that the policy was expanded to include the new park.

A vote of thanks was moved to the santa claus parade committee, under chairman Reeve Wm. R. Nicholas, for the excellent job they had done.

J. C. Birmingham, tax collector, reported $104,222. collected in taxes out of $112.940 on the assessment roll. This leaves a balance of only $8,718.03 still to collect.

RE-ASSESSMENT

Harry Townsend, the town assessor, reported on the problems and amount of work involved in carrying out the new re-assessment of the town. He said he was well pleased with the work of Fred Jennings, who has been assisting him in making the surveys. Council later approved a motion confirming the employment of Mr. Jennings at a salary of $70 per week for a period expected to last five or six months.

A Christmas bonus of $15 was granted to town employees.

Council entered into a discussion of the pros and cons of chalking tires and issuing parking tickets on nights during the winter when stores are open. Deputy Reeve Maybee said it was a disgrace to have the police handing out parking tickets when there was lots of room to park on the streets. He said out of town shoppers did not like the practice, and that complaints had been made about it. Councillor Isobel Tatham argued that the parking by-law should be enforced and said that controlled parking was necessary in the town. She called the by-law "A means of enforcing courtesy and consideration for others," which many motorists in the town apparently lacked. No action was taken on the question, and it was left to the new council to decide at the first meeting in January.

After passing the pay sheet, council adjourned, a few minutes after midnight.

International Meet

TORONTO (CP)—Delegates from Russia and Czechoslovakia will be among 2,500 experts from score of countries attending the fifth international congress on mental health at the University of Toronto next August. Among those invited to address the conference is Madame Pandit Nehru, president of the United Nations General Assembly.

Judge Stickler For Decorum, Takes New Post

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court justice renowned as a stickler for courtroom decorum in his 18 years on the bench spoke regretfully Tuesday of the end of his career as a trial judge.

However, Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier said in an interview that he expects his appointment to the Ontario Court of Appeal will give him more time with his family.

The 66-year-old justice who stands a mere five-foot-two chuckled about the description, "terrible-tempered," bestowed because of his insistence on courtroom dignity and strict of of the rules of legal practice. He explained the reason for his attitude: "If you have a precious jewel, you store it away carefully and revere it. The law is our greatest heritage and we must preserve and revere it."

SERVED ACROSS PROVINCE

He has presided at trials in all parts of the province.

"I will certainly miss the human contacts—the human element which one meets on the circuit. I shall now have to deal with a large part of written evidence and a certain amount of verbal representation by counsel.

"I shall now sit exclusively in Toronto in the monastic atmosphere of Osgoode Hall. I shall no longer carry my green bag from l'Orignal to Kenora or Cochrane along the northern circuit—and I will miss it."

CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Children's Aid Society will hold its annual Christmas party for the children, tonight, at 8:00, at the home, 140 Princess St. Donations have been coming in and the staff has assured that each child will receive a remembrance.

TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

Miss Rachel Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society will attend the Family and Child Welfare Division of the Canadian Welfare Council Conference in Toronto, January 14.

RETURNS LOW

The Peterborough and County TB Association's objective of $10,000 for 1953 has been little more than half realized. Tuesday's count of donations totalled $5,138.51. This total, as compared with last year's, is down considerably.

JUST ONE ALARM

City firemen were called out on just one alarm Tuesday and it was a minor one. A flooded space heater was reported at Mrs. Ellen Craig's home, 424 Rogers St. Firemen waited for the fire to burn itself out; an extinguisher wasn't used.

NINE CAR ACCIDENTS

The majority of a total of nine accidents in the city Tuesday, occurred before midday, when slippery conditions were at their worst. No injuries were reported and none of the accidents were considered serious.

LAST OF FLOWERS

It was a long season of blooming for the border of white sweet alyssum in front of Basil D. Hall's office across Hunter St. from the Examiner. From planting time about the middle of spring through the autumn to the middle of December appears to be most of the year for flowers outside.

RECEIVES MEDAL

Corporal Marvin Johnston, an instructor with the Canadian Engineers near Chilliwack, B.C., mentioned in a recent letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Johnston, 188 Rubidge St., that he had received the Coronation Medal. He served thirteen months in Korea.

BUILDING CODE

A special committee appointed by city council to study the adaption of the national building code to the local building code has been unable to take any action this year becouse the federal government has not yet issued the revised building code for cities of under 50,000 population, Ald. T. D. Miller reports.

FLEET INSURANCE

The finance committee of city council has recommended that the city should not take over its auto fleet insurance. Although the premium has increased some $2,000, this was said due to the acquisition of new equipment, including the sanitation department's bull-claw shovel and the fire-fighting equipment from Smith township. Advice from insurance officials was the risk of setting up its own insurance fund was too great for a municipality to take.

C.G.E. Party For 4,200 On Saturday

Five Showings Planned In PCVS Auditorium To Entertain Children

A group of employees at Canadian General Electric Co. are trying to persuade themselves that they have everything in line and order for the Christmas tree party for more than 4,200 boys and girls Saturday in PCVS auditorium.

Experience of years has smoothed out the problem of entertaining this legion of youngsters, the junior members of the families of CGE employees.

The executive from the Social and Athletic Club are: President Eric Cotton; entertainment chairman, Pat Calladine; managing director, Bert Bajley; secretary, Basil Phelan.

GIFTS FOR ALL

By actual count, the society entertained 4,091 young folks a year ago. The assembly next Saturday is expected to be between 4,200 and 4,300. Program will feature the arrival of Santa Claus with gifts for the entire juvenile company, and there will be motion pictures and magic stunts by Ted Bradshaw.

The children are received in prearranged groups, beginning at 9.30 a.m., when Roy T. Bogle first welcomes the little ones and their parents. The schedule for the rest of the day provides for succeeding groups until 4 p.m.

By means of a circular letter, the committee obtains information from the employees about the number of the sons and daughters up to 12 years in their families. Then the organization begins. Groups for the day are estimated at 800, the capacity of the Collegiate auditorium, and are identified with different colors: 9.30 a.m., bright yellow; 11, orange; 1.30 p.m., pink; 2.45 p.m., blue, and 4 p.m., buff.

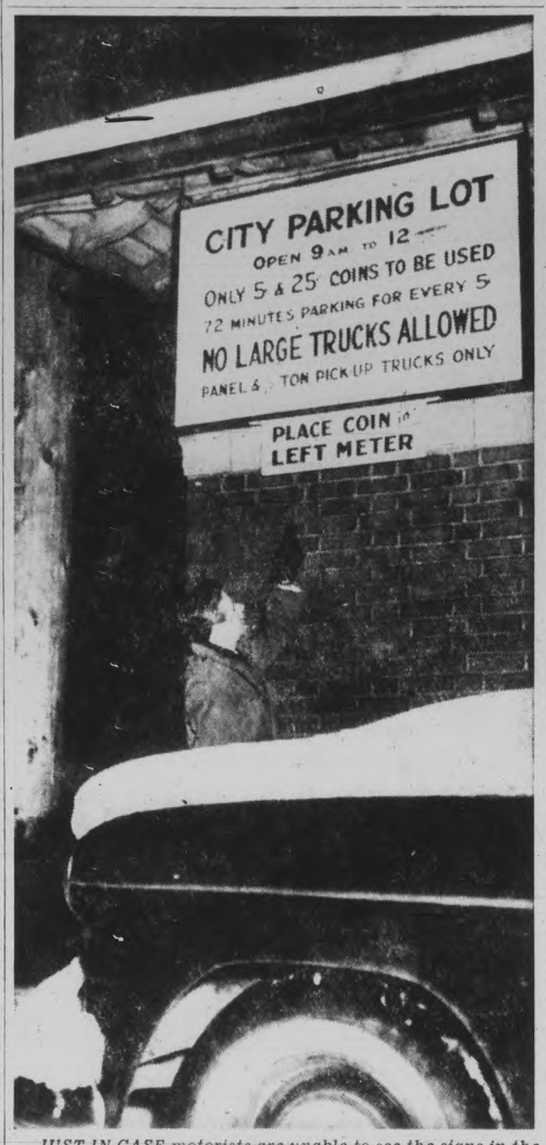
SCHEDULE ROTATED

The children from the various departments are rotated in the annual schedule for the party. For example, the 9.30 group last year will come at 11 a.m. Saturday afternoon, and so on down the long line of more than 4,200.

Santa Claus is affectionately welcomed on his successive appearances, and it transpires that George East, one of the CGE pensioned employees, is going to deputize for the merry old gentleman and be the life of the all-day party. And does he like it! his friends say.

Like the picnic at Nicholls Oval, the Christmas tree party carries the full accord of the company. All the costs of both these events are charged to CGE, but the Social and Athletic Club lay out the program, do the buying and render the bills.

PUC Not Paying For Sidewalk



General-Manager W. Howard Powell pointed out to the utilities commission Tuesday that some misunderstanding had arisen as a result of a letter he had written to the city engineer regarding the cost of repairing the sidewalk on the west side of George St., south of Simcoe St., where the commission has recently been installing underground wiring.

When his letter was read to the board of works, the impression was gained that the commission was offering to share the cost of repairs. This was not so, Mr. Powell explained.

The contractor who had done the work had left about 70 feet of the outside of the sidewalk lower than the remainder. The city engineer had pointed this out and so the contractor had not been paid the full amount of the contract price.

The general-manager pointed out that the completion certificate would not be issued until this condition had been corrected or an adequate sum set aside to correct it at a later date.

Mr. Powell emphasized that the commission had not offered to pay for rebuilding the sidewalk. He had contacted the contractor who said it wouldn't pay him to move his equipment back to the city merely to remedy the error, although it was understood the cost would be deducted from the final payment.

JUST IN CASE motorists are unable to see the signs in the utilities commission to have them floodlighted. The city square parking lot at night, the city has asked the Chamber of Commerce complained to city council that many visitors using the parking lot had been ticketed because they had not seen the signs and so were unaware that it closed at midnight. —(Examiner Staff Photo).

Canadian Soldier Returns With Young German Bride

Sapper Harley Hegadoren sailed for Germany with the 58th Independent Field Regiment in November 1951. He returned to his home, 994 Western Ave., Monday, with a German bride. Their relationship at present is similar to Jack Spratt and his wife of fairy book fame except that their difference is not in diet, but language. The bridegroom has managed enough German, however, to converse with Renate, his wife, and translate for her. It is possible that their four-month-old child, Rita, will be a bilingualist.

SHOPPING BIG ADVENTURE

Although language is still a barrier, the couple seem to have an acute awareness of each other's thoughts and an ability to comprehend. The Christmas spirit, for one thing, is universal and shopping in Canadian stores is a novel and enjoyable event for Mrs. Hegadoren. She is amazed at the variety and quantity of goods and right now baby clothes are her special interest. The one big difference between a Canadian and a German Christmas is that in Germany the feast lasts for two days. "Just as good, but more of it."

Sapper Hegadoren met his wife while stationed in Hameln. The climate in that section of Germany is quite moderate and damp, and although snow does fall there, it doesn't remain long. For the last few years in Hameln a green Christmas has been offset by a white Easter, but this is as unusual as some of the weather that has hit this region in the past few years.

"I like the weather either winter or summer," says Mrs. Hegadoren through her translator, "but not slush."

In Germany there is little bitterness toward Canadian soldiers, reports Spr. Hegadoren. His wife's grandmother lost three sons during World War 2. One of them was my wife's father, but from the beginning they treated me like one of their own. I spent many enjoyable evenings with them."

From an economic standpoint it is quite easy for a Canadian soldier to live well. Prices are quite similar to those in Canada, but the average weekly income today in Germany is equivalent to $25 in Canada.

As he is not yet 21, Spr. Hegadoren does not receive marriage allowance from the army. Although this did not matter much in Germany, it is a different question in Canada. He has had some experience as a plumber before enlisting, and expects to eventually return to that trade. In the meantime he will have to finish his three year term with the army.

Since their arrival at Port Hope station Monday, where they were welcomed by more than 20 of their friends and relatives, the couple have been living in a whirl of joyous rehabilitation. He is happy to be back in Peterborough again, and she is just as happy to be here.

Board Given Resignation Of Sinclair

Recreation Director Accepts Position With St. Catharines

Alex Sinclair, recreation director in Peterborough for the past three years, submitted his resignation Tuesday, at the December meeting of the recreation commission.

He came to Peterborough from Moose Jaw, Sask., in January, 1950 with five years' experience as a director. His first contact with recreational work began with church boys work in his native city of Winnipeg. While assisting as physical education instructor at the Sir Hugh John McDonald Memorial Hostel, a school for deliquent youth in Winnipeg, Mr. Sinclair decided to make recreation his profession.

World War II delayed his choice, however, but he gained valuable experience as a physical education instructor during five years spent as a sergeant in the Royal Canadian Artillery.

Upon his discharge he went to Moose Jaw and, together with his duties as recreation director, he originated a radio program dealing with recreation. He compiled two pamphlets on recreation during this time, "Favorite Games of Prairie People" and "Recreation is Fun".

He succeeded Jack Dane in 1950 as the second Peterborough recreation director. During his three-year stay here he originated the Training Institute for play ground supervisors at Quin-mo-lac. This is a summer camp on Lake Moira, near Madoc, where young people may take courses outfitting them as supervisors of city play grounds.

Another accomplishment is his development of an annual inter-school track meet which has been held May 24th for the past three years.

He is a member of the local barbershop quartette organization and chairman of the professional section of the eastern central zone of the Ontario Recreation Association.

ALEX SINCLAIR

Mr. Sinclair's official duties will terminate here January 15, 1954 and he will proceed to St. Catharines immediately to take over the recreational directorship there. He will replace Miss Lynn Lamley who was recently married.

Court Action Dismissed

A long drawn-out action between the Bellevue Acceptance Corporation of Belleville and Reliable Motor Sales of Peterborough was settled Tuesday afternoon without an exchange of money.

Both the action and the counter-claim were dismissed without costs by Mr. Justice Treleaven who is presiding at the non-jury sitting of the Supreme Court. So neither side has any further claim on the other.

Bellevue Acceptance said the proprietors of Reliable Motor Sales (J. Eldon Paquette and Willard L. Elmsley) were in the used car business in 1950. The company gave them two promissory notes—one in August and the other in September, both for $1,464.50.

They said that the notes, plus interest, totalled $3,134. They still hold the promissory notes for nothing had been paid on them.

Reliable Motors counterclaimed on the grounds that the plaintiffs owed them more than the claim because of complicated business arrangements in which Bellevue loaned money on new and used cars, accepting chattel mortgages and assignments of conditional sale contracts.

So much was supposed to be set aside by the plaintiffs for "dealer reserve" and the defendants asked for an accounting to show how much had actually been set aside. They also said that they had put up $7,500 which the finance company were to match by 50 per cent. Later they received company stock representing this amount.

Alex Elliott, QC, was counsel for Reliable Motors and Malcolm Robb of Belleville, counsel for Bellevue Acceptance Corporation.

Remove 9 Cars

Police Chief John Thompson today issued a second warning to motorists in the habit of leaving cars parked out on the streets overnight. If the practice continues car owners will not not only be charged towing costs, but also will be charged with breaking a city by-law. Tuesday night nine vehicles were removed from the streets before snow-clearing operations could be completed.

Gas Plant Move To Cost City $70,000

The cost of moving the utilities commission's gas plant from its present location south of Hunter St. bridge on the west bank of the Otonabee river would be between $65,000 and $70,000.

This would not include the cost of land for the new location nor of the additional mains that would have to be laid, in the estimation of PUC General-Manager W. Howard Powell. If the plant were moved, it would have to be placed beside the railway and close to 18-inch pressure and 12-inch high-pressure mains, Mr. Powell told the commission Tuesday afternoon.

City council two weeks ago authorized a $29,000 debenture issue to cover the cost of converting the present mechanical system at the gas plant to a completely automatic system. The conversion will eliminate use of the 300,000-cubic foot capacity gasometer, which is used to store propane gas and maintain constant pressure in city gas mains.

REQUEST FROM CITY

In approving the debenture issue, council requested the utilities commission to move the gasometer and, if possible, move the entire gas plant to a new location in order to use the property it now occupies as a parking lot.

Asked by Commissioner G. R. Langley if he had an alternative site in mind, Mr. Powell said he thought the gas plant might be moved to the reclaimed land at the foot of Simcoe St. on the east side of the tracks, which was the same level as the land at the present site but would have to be checked for possible flooding.

Although he thought the gasometer would eventually have to come down, Mr. Powell thought the task would cost more than the equipment would be worth as salvage. He estimate that about 600 cars could be parked on the gas plan property.

The commission instructed the general-manager to discuss the proposal with the city engineer and make a report. It was nevertheless apparent that there were still several details to be discussed.

"Suppose we supply the city with a parking lot," Chairman Fred Hills asked, "are they going to get all the revenue from the meters?"

Chamber Of Commerce Asks City Council To Place $5,395 In Its 1954 Budget

Assist Chamber In Paying Costs of Services City Ought To Share Costs In; Faced With Accumulated Deficit of $1,748

Faced with the prospect of an accumulated deficit of $1,748.83 at the end of the year, the Chamber of Commerce have asked city council to place $5,395 in the 1954 budget to assist the chamber in paying the cost of services for which the city would have to hire extra staff if they were not provided by the chamber. The request was discussed at this week's meeting of council's finance committee who considered it to be a matter for next year's council and recommended it be referred to the 1954 council.

BRIEF SUBMITTED

In a 14-page brief, outlining the details of the work accomplished in various fields of community service, the chamber listed the services for which they felt the city ought to share the cost as: city promotion, promotion of the Kawartha area and the operation of a better business bureau.

"As all of these activities render a service to the public," the chamber said in their brief, "we believe it is logical that public funds should be used for support of such services—on the basis of services rendered.

"As the work of this chamber has grown the past five years, so has its staff. Even so at present we are operating with only part-time stenographic assistance. Our office equipment and furniture have reached the stage where, if not repaired and replaced, it will fall apart. Too, our operating costs have increased as have all others.

"Purpose of this brief then is to inform our city council that this chamber cannot undertake to provide additional services, or continue to supply those which we are now doing . . . without the city assisting in the cost of these services. It will therefore be necessary for us to discontinue the items not selected by city council and, in fairness to our membership, devote our efforts to retail promotion and the other many services pertaining directly to our membership."

DOES NOT WANT TO CURTAIL

"This chamber regrets the possibility of curtailing its services for, in so doing, we consider it a backward step and we would not be fulfilling the true and proper role of a chamber of commerce in its community. However, economic necessity has forced us to this conclusion and our program of work for 1954 . . . . will be guided entirely by city council's action."

SERVICES LISTED

In detail, the chamber listed the following services which they considered the city ought to assist in paying for:

City promotion: renlies to persons wishing to settle in Peterborough; publications and organizations requiring information on Peterborough; inquiries from teachers and schoolchildren; interviews with Peterborough citizens requiring particular information or assistance; information to citizens and visitors on store hours, holidays, travel information, road conditions and so on. Cost to chamber of one member of staff for year)—$3,850; city's share—$1,925.

Area promotion: compilation, including revision of artwork and cuts, printing and distributing 10,000 Kawartha folders and maps; participation in Cleveland Sportsmen's show; representation at conventions and annual meetings and provision of special information to publications and organizations. Cost to chamber—Sportsmen's show, $1,000; folders and maps, $1,200; distribution, $300; other, $200; total, $2,700; to city, $2,700.

RETAILERS GET BULK

(The brief maintained that retailers receive more than 60 cents of each United States dollar left in the Kawartha district, while resort operators receive 17 cents. As a result, more than a million and a half tourist dollars find their way into Peterborough each summer from tourists alone.)

Better business bureau: advising citizens generally on door-to-door canvassers, peddlers, direct mail promotions and so on; cost to chamber (part salary of two members of staff for one year)—$770; to city—$770.

The brief stated that it was generally recognized by most Canadian cities that their chambers of commerce or boards of trade were best suited and equipped to provide such services. With the increasing burden of these services in recent years, many chambers had sought and obtained assistance from city council. As many others were seeking such help.

Refuse Request Second Time To Erect Canopy

The finance committee of city council has recommended that a second request to erect a canopy over the main entrance to the Percival furniture store on Hunter St. be refused.

A previous application was turned down by council on the grounds that the erection of canopies in front of retail stores would tend to limit the amount of parking space available.

IMPROVE APPEARANCE

In their second request, the applicants argued that, although the canopy might prove a disadvantage to car owners, it would improve the appearance of the site. They also pointed out that the Empress and Grand hotels had been given permission to erect canopies.

Ald. T. D. Miller explained there was a distinction between stores and hotels in that the latter were public places and the city was required to provide access to them. He felt that if the request was granted, there would be further requests to have parking meters removed and no-parking signs erected.

"Conceivably, we would be obliged to grant the same right to every merchant in the city, if we granted this request," Ald. J. A. Dewart added.

Why Is Contractor Able To Do Work Cheaper?

Commission Accepts Dr. Langley's Recommendations

At the last meeting but one before his resignation takes effect December 31 Dr. G. R. Langley came to the utilities commission Tuesday prepared with a sheaf of notes bearing comments on commission policy and containing recommendations for the future.

Discussion of the retiring commissioner's second-to-last-act swan song was mild and, with minor amendments, his recommendations were approved.

Dr. Langley noted with surprise that the final progress certificate for the work done by Cornish Construction company on the water main to Downer's corners had been passed without comment at the commission meeting on November 30, during his absence, although the cost had been considerably less than if the work had been done by the commission.

He also made the following recommendations:

1. That the following be set up as commission policy: "Competitive bids shall be obtained on all projects or purchases involving more than $2,000. Specifications submitted to bidders shall not be of a biased nature that might place a handicap on any reputable firm, except with the specific approval of the commission."

2. That a formal cost reduction campaign be carried on throughout 1954 and that a 3½ per cent reduction in costs be set as the objective for each of the four divisions—electrical, water, gas and general office; also that monthly progress reports be made and that improvements via suggestion system be included.

3. That the six employees whose telephones are paid in full by the commission be requested to keep a careful record during the next month of calls involving commission business. It i probable that in most cases—not in all—it will prove to be more than fair if the commission assumes only half the cost.

CANNOT MEET SPECIFICATION

Dr. Langley made his first recommendation in connection with a letter from English Electric Co. regarding the commission's request for tenders for equipment for the new electric substation on Bellevue St., a project which had drawn severe criticism from Dr. Langley at previous meetings and had eventually led to his resignation.

The company stated in their letter that they were unable, at the present time, to offer switchgear equipment which would comply in all respects with the commission's specifications. They would be pleased to submit a separate quotation on transformers only but it was understood the commission was interested only in "a complete proposition."

"We anticipate that in the near future we will be in a position to supply equipment which would be fully in accordance with your specifications and for this reason would welcome the opportunity of quoting on your future requirements," the letter stated.

General-Manager W. Howard Powell added that CGE had submitted a quotation on November 27. Westinghouse had been phoned and written, asking for their quotation, but as yet no reply had been received.

MONOPOLY ON PARTS

Dr. Langley asserted that companies were notorious for urging customers to ask for bids on equipment including parts on which they had a monopoly. This was the bias to which he referred in his motion.

Commissioner Richard Raine said the resolution was all right but the commission might have a preference for a particular type of equipment, which might appear biased to a competing manufacturer.

Mr. Powell said, in reference to the letter from English Electric he had been given to understand they were changing their breaker designs; but he would be glad to write and get further information.

Dr. Langley suggested adding to his resolution the words,"—except with the specific approval of the commission."

Hear Evidence On 33 Fraud Charges

PERTH, Ont. (CP)—The last two of seven witnesses were to testify today at the preliminary hearing of a former Perth school teacher who became a successful bond dealer on Toronto's Bay street and then went broke.

The hearing of 33 fraud and theft charges against Walter L. McKinnon opened Monday. The 71-year-old bond dealer was first charged last Sept. 10. He has pleaded not guilty to the charges.

R. S. McCurrie, Ontario securities commission investigator who investigated McKinnon's dealings, said near the end of Monday's session that his examination of McKinnon's records showed "no evidence of an attempt to hide any transactions."

HOW CHARGE ORIGINATED

Carl J. Miller, one of seven persons from the Perth area who have laid claims involving some $44,000 against McKinnon, said under questioning by defence counsel J. J. Robinette of Toronto that "thoughts of theft" hadn't entered his head at the time he learned of McKinnon's bankruptcy last year.

"Would it be fair to say that you never thought of laying a charge of theft until the securities commission came along and put the idea into your mind?" asked Mr. Robinette.

"Yes," replied Mr. Miller.

McKinnon is charged with defrauding Mr. Miller of a total of $3,840.

Norman B. James, who lost $2,243 in the failure of McKinnon's firm, said he knew he was selling his bonds to McKinnon, "but I thought he was going to give me others as part payment. I never got some of them."

The crown contends McKinnon almost immediately should have bought his Perth investors new bonds in part payment for the ones he purchased from them. The defence holds that he was under no obligation to obtain the new bonds immediately. They were for future delivery.

Would Give Yukon, NWT To Western Provinces

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator W. M. Aseltine, acting Opposition leader in the Senate, Tuesday suggested that the government could get rid of a costly administrative headache by giving the Yukon and Northwest Territories to the four western provinces.

Senator Aseltine made the suggestion during debate on a measure changing the name of the department of resources and development to the department of northern affairs and national resources.

"I am informed that the cost of administration is considerable and that there is very little revenue so I am going to suggest that my solution of this whole problem of looking after the northwest territory would be to give it to the provinces," he said.

British Columbia would get the Yukon and that part of the Northwest Territories lying to its north and Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba would get the portions of the Northwest Territories lying to their north.

The bill was given approval in principle and sent to the Senate's committee on natural resources for further study.

Senator W. Ross Macdonald, government leader in the upper chamber, drew a laugh when he asked Senator Aseltine if he thought the provinces would ask for a subsidy to administer the 1,500,000 square miles of mineral-rich territory.

Call Off Hostilities

RANGOON (AP)—Burma has agreed to refrain from hostilities against Chinese Nationalist guerrillas on her soil until Dec. 21. The action was taken Tuesday at the request of the United States and Thailand, who are trying to evacuate the Chinese. The evacuation program slowed down Dec. 8, by which time 1,850 men and 443 dependents had been flown out of Formosa. Nationalist China has agreed to take 2,000 men and 500 dependents.

U.K. Firm Gets Job

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP)—A British company Tuesday was awarded a $3,651,461 contract for two generators for McNary dam on the Columbia river. Col. F. S. Tandy of the United States Engineers Corps announced the award to the English Electric Export and Trading Co., which was about $200,000 under the next low offer, by General Electric Co.

ARGOS' TROUBLE

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Frank Clair, coach of Toronto Argonauts, said Tuesday night that his Big Four football team fell from 1952 Grey Cup champions to 1953 cellar dwellers because he didn't add new players.

"The league was so greatly improved that we fell behind," he said at the annual B'nai B'rith sports night.

"Other teams brought in giant tackles like John Kissel and Tex Coulter. We didn't. But next season we'll have a couple of big fellows like them, as well as some giant-sized backfielders."

Junior Winners Honored By H And S Assoc.

The ladies of the Confederation Home and School Association banqueted the field day winners, and the junior soccer team which won the Public School championship, in the cafeteria at Kenner Collegiate on Tuesday evening.

The tables were gay with Christmas decorations, cedar boughs and colored lights. Billy Bell offered the blessing and a special thanks to the ladies was given by Douglas Blark. The junior soccer cup was received on behalf of the team by the captain, Gary Grierson. Mr. G. Hagerman, the coach of the team, presented crests to each member. Words of congratulation were tendered by the captains of winning teams from previous years, Lawrence Brooks, Jack Pulkinghorn, Gary Rollins, Paul Parnell, Clayton Outwater, Larry Ferguson and Ron Jones.

PRESENTS CRESTS

Mr. L. A. Corbett presented crests to the field day champions as follows: Jr. champions, Helen Brooks, Gary Grierson; intermediate champions, Karen Wood, Kenneth Ruttan; senior champions, Sandra Ferguson, Man Kimball.

The speaker for the occasion was Mr. E. L. Sackville who gave an inspiring talk to the students on the value of leadership and the part each one had to play for the common good of all. The principal, J. G. Nichols acted as chairman for the evening.

Members of the junior soccer team present were:

MUCH AT STAKE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles is a boxer at the crossroads.

If he doesn't beat Coley Wallace here tonight his chances for a shot at the title he once owned probably will be gone forever.

They're both contenders, Charles No. 3 and Wallace No. 6. The outcome of their nationally-televised 10-rounder will mean much to the winner.

The 32-year-old Charles, from Cincinnati and champion from 1949 to 1951, is favored to whip his younger, bigger rival. Ezzard will weigh around 188 pounds. Wallace, a 25-year-old 205-pounder from New York, stands six feet, two inches.

Wallace has had only two fights this year and won both with ease. He took the part of Joe Louis in the movie, "The Joe Louis Story."

EXTORTION ATTEMPT

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban police Tuesday night arrested four men charged with attempting to extort money from Kid Gavilan, world welterweight boxing champion.

Police said all four were arrested in a passageway of the Radio Centro Theatre where Gavilan made his debut Tuesday night as a mambo dancer.

Gavilan's father told police four men came to Gavilan's home recently and said they needed $3,000 to "get passage out of Cuba for one of our friends."

CLEARS WHITFIELD

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A regional secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union said Tuesday that as far as he is concerned, Olympic star Mal Whitfield is completely cleared of any charges which might jeopardize his amateur standing.

AAU official Larry Houston made the statement after interviewing the world's top half-miler.

Monday night in New York city, AAU secretary Dean Ferris said the brilliant track careers of Whitfield and Wes Santee, America's fastest miler, are threatened by an AAU investigation. He said the inquiry concerned alleged violations of amateur rules.

Weekly Newspaper's Circulation Jumps 163,000 In Nine Months

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—On the hypothesis that sin is news and murder in print is a communal commodity, Montreal's newest weekly newspaper has skyrocketed from a first-issue 12,000 copies to 175,000 in nine months.

This aptly - titled, French-language tabloid is Allo Police—the words anyone might use on stumbling upon a crime and rushing to a telephone.

Its sensational success may be based on its lavish use of crime photos or on its solid pages of crime stories (some half-a-century old)—or on both.

EXPERIENCED EDITOR

Its directive editorial genius is 38-year-old Robert Poulin, a dapper, cigar-smoking family man who has spent 18 years in newspaper work. He has held such positions as managing editor of a long-established news weekly and a standard daily.

Allo Police is the tangible expression of Poulin's theory about news in relation to human nature and human behavior, about what people want to read.

Three years ago, at a conference of Canadian managing editors, Poulin chided his co-editors for hush-hush methods in home-town journalism, for squeamishness in printing crime details. He told them:

"I think statistics could prove that the most lurid crimes are committed in small towns where papers seldom carry crime news. If you say that big-city populations are more apt to stomach lurid news, then you find these avid readers are largely refugees from small towns who have freed themselves from small-town tyranny."

WEEKLY PAPER SUCCESSFUL—Circulation of Montreal's newest weekly paper, Allo Police, has skyrocketed from a first-issue 12,000 copies to 175,000 in nine months. Editor Robert Poulin, 38, veteran of 18 years in newspaper work, believes the paper—which deals largely with crime news—is suitable for the family. Mark, 9 (back left), and Erik, 7, look over his shoulder while editor Poulin reads it to Pierre, 3, and Bobby, 4.

FAMILY NEWSPAPER

Allo Police is required reading in the home in suburban Westmount where publisher lives with his wife and four sons.

There, in the evening, Poulin edits much of the copy that appears in Allo Police every Wednesday. Nine-year-old Mark and Erik, 7, see the paper when their father brings it home the evening before it goes on newsstand sale.

"The younger fellows can't read yet," says Poulin of sons Bobby, 4 and Pierre, 3.

"But of course, I talk to them all about the paper and explain any stories they want to know about. Why not? It's bread and butter for the family."

In keeping with its name, Allo Police espouses the work of police and urges public co-operation. It is no scandal sheet and does not poke fun at people. It explains court procedure and carries a chit-chat column about bench and bar. There are articles by criminologists and medico-legal experts; stories of famous murder cases of years ago, of murders today in Canada and abroad.

GRUESOME PICTURES

Allo Police majors in crime at home. Let there be a shocking murder in Montreal or Quebec province, and Allo Police opens wide its column gates to words and pictures, let the blood run where it may.

It published untouched photographs of the head, found weeks after the body, of the victim in Montreal's sensational torso mystery. Poulin says use of such pictures is to assist police in identification; also readers are sometimes warned in captions "to be careful if they can't take it." He says the paper has never had a protest.

Poulin gave much study to news in crime before embarking on the publication. He is a law graduate himself and was joined by a Montreal lawyer friend in financing the project.

Each was prepared to invest $5,000. The tabloid was such a whopping success from the start profits after an outlay of only $1,750 each.

The staff of six is hand-picked. There are also free-lancers and contributors. The editorial offices are in downtown Montreal; the actual printing is done by a printing firm. The paper was started as a 16-page tabloid. Now it is 24, including a four-page section on local entertainment—everything in show business, including TV.

CAREFUL STUDY

Poulin studied many newspapers, technical papers and books on modern journalism in his endeavor to "give people what they want."

"If a man drowns a cat in his backyard that's bigger news for his neighbors than the drowning of 300 coolies in the China sea.

"Masterpieces in literature deal with crime and blood. Movies and TV take stories of murder and wars from the Bible.

"Take murder from Shakespeare and you take his best. In French literature the tragedies of Racine and Corneille are from the Greek classics. Those authors had the common touch.

"We publish news of crime but we are not a scandal sheet. We write it straight from the facts, with all details. We don't harp on such words as gruesome, ghastly, brutal. If we did, people would feel they were being cheated of their own opinion.

CAUSE OF DELINQUENCY

"In our series on juvenile delinquency we decided the cause is not slums, not poverty. Parents are at fault in not teaching and raising children properly. The demarcation between good and evil is not made plain. Psychologists of today offer explanations of child misbehavior. We think a good spanking is better.

"We are not crusading. We are trying to help police and we are interested in police work throughout the world. We have started a cautious, educational campaign for universal fingerprinting. We want people to get away from the idea that it has some criminal connotation and to realize it is in their own interest as well as that of the police."

In fastening on the name for the paper Poulin wanted a title with "police" in it, yet something phonetically snappy. He thought of "metropolice," play on "metropolis." Then the idea of people phoning police struck him.

PLANNED AS MONTHLY

When the first issue came out last Feb. 28 the backers "were prepared to issue a monthly, not for the success we met."

After the first issue of 12,000 copies they didn't wait a month but came out with the second issue—15,000—two weeks later. They had to have 5,000 more copies run off. Immediately they swung into weekly publication.

Since then there have been at least half a dozen times that extra-run copies of 3,000 to 5,000 were necessary. Distribution hit 50,000 May 26 and there was no summer lag. It reached 75,000 Sept. 8, 100,000 Oct. 27 and 175,000 with the current issue.

The paper does not seek subscriptions although it has accepted some at full rates from distant points—northern Ontario, New Brunswick and the northern New England states.

At the start the backers agreed to take returns from dealers. "We were told to be satisfied with 20 per cent returns," says Poulin. "We have never had more than five per cent."

Parliament Prepares To Adjourn Soon

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament may adjourn tonight for the Christmas recess.

Members Tuesday night agreed to a proposal by Citizenship Minister Harris, government House leader, that they sit this afternoon and evening in an effort to finish necessary business before the holiday recess.

Parliament will reassemble Monday, Jan. 11.

Frank Fay, Harvey To Be Reunited

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Among the holiday season's happiest news is the reconciliation of Frank Fay and his old friend, Harvey.

Fay and the Pooka—that's a six-foot rabbit—are friends from 'way back. They started out together in the Mary Chase play in 1945 and developed a fast friendship. They remained pals for five years—a record run for any star and play. Then they went with one particular role. It can hurt your career.

But actors change their minds. Fay has signed up for yet another tour with "Harvey" as Elwood P. Dowds. Part of the reason is the miserable condition of the legitimate road.

This season is shaping up as one of the worst in the history of the American theatre. The legit outlook hasn't been as black since the 1936-37 season when the road was devoid of shows, except for Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and Washington.

Showmen have been putting their heads together for ideas on how to revitalize the road. They came up with the notion of sending Fay around in "Harvey" again. It is considered a sure-fire property.

"They convinced me," said the bland Fay. "So did the money.

"But it isn't only commercial. I get letters every week from people who have seen the show and would love to see it again. Also from people who missed it and say they would give anything to see 'Harvey.' It's wonderful.

"REMARKABLE SHOW"

I asked him if he ever found it difficult to do "Harvey" during the long run.

"No," he replied. "It's a remarkable show. Many times I would come to the theatre and feel tired. I felt as though I would have to drag through the show. But once I got onstage and heard that first laugh, the play would lift me up and carry me along.

"After three years away, I now have to learn the play all over again. I looked at the scrip and couldn't even remember doing some of the things that were written there. But it will come back fast."

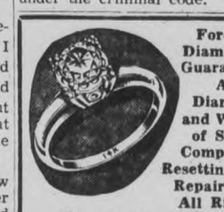
ROYAL—In this recent Royal Command portrait released by Buckingham Palace, Queen Elizabeth wears a yellow tulle evening gown and the Blue Ribbon and Star of the Garter. The gown is decorated with sprays of mimosa and gold paillette embroidery. Her Majesty's diamonds include a necklace, which is a wedding present from the Nizam of Hyderabad; a tiara, also a wedding gift, from the late Queen Mary; a bow brooch, drop earrings, bracelet and platinum wrist watch. This portrait was taken by Baron on the small staircase in the grand entrance of Buckingham Palace in London.

Union Leader May Face Periury Charge

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis said Tuesday Gerard Picard, president of the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor, is liable to a charge of perjury, punishable by seven years in penitentiary, in connection with obtaining an automobile driving permit.

Mr. Duplessis made the statement in the Legislative Assembly in connection with a clause of a government bill declaring it an offence for anyone to get a permit while already under a court suspension for driving because of a traffic violation.

The premier said he noted in the newspapers that Jean-Paul Noel (L—Montreal Jeanne-Mance) had said the bill was aimed at Gerard Picard, CCL president, who was arrested for speeding last spring and whose driving licence was suspended.



Mr. Duplessis said the union leader had obtained another permit after swearing to a false statement.

He could have been charged on the spot with perjury, punishable by seven years, or under another article of the criminal code providing a penalty of six months in jail.

By the clause in the bill, the government had wanted to make his offence a lesser one punishable only by a fine of $500 to $1,000 or by imprisonment 30 to 90 days in jail.

"Since what the government has done does not seem to have been appreciated, we withdraw the clause declaring this offence retroactive and let the articles of the Canadian criminal code stand," said Mr. Duplessis.

It could not be learned immediately whether or not Mr. Duplessis, who is also Quebec's attorney-general, intends to charge Mr. Picard under the criminal code.

A Christmas party and exchange of gifts has been planned by Miss Aileen Patton for the '38 Club meeting tonight at the YWCA.

✧ ✧ ✧

Christmas parties for the Grace Church Sunday school have been held, with 150 attending the seniors party and 100 at the juniors.

✧ ✧ ✧

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gardiner of 662 Elgin St. attended the Christmas banquet held by the H. C. Downham Nursery Company in Bowmanville for which Mr. Gardiner is local representative.

✧ ✧ ✧

Business girls' gymn class decorated three Christmas trees in the YWCA gym Tuesday evening as a part of their Christmas party. Afterward they sang carols and exchanged gifts and the refreshments served by Mrs. Janet Painter and Miss Mary Bolton were heartily enjoyed.

✧ ✧ ✧

A grand Christmas party was held by members of the Peterborough Accordion Club at Ashburnham Hall on Monday night. Junior club members played carols around the Christmas tree. Gifts were exchanged and games and dancing were enjoyed. The lunch was served by Mrs. L. Rawson, Miss Shirley Hubbard and Miss Rosemarie DeCarlo.

✧ ✧ ✧

Miss Anne McDougall, Romaine Street, was winner of the draw for an American doll and wardrobe donated to the Local Association of Girl Guides by Mrs. Claude Rogers, a former district commissioner for Peterborough. Mrs. Hugh Waddell made the draw. The ticket sales were in charge of Mrs. C. S. Howard.

✧ ✧ ✧

Probably the most lavish of all the parties being held in this pre-Christmas season was that of the Sales and Ad Club at the Club Aragon Tuesday evening. There were favors for the ladies and gifts of hammered aluminum lazy Susan trays, and they were entertained to a sumptuous dinner, pleasing floor show entertainment, and an address which was titled "Women, Women, Women".

✧ ✧ ✧

St. George's Ladies' Bowling Club had a Christmas party in the church hall Tuesday afternoon and were visited by Santa with gifts for all. The ladies played several interesting games and the prizes were won by Mrs. Robert Cole, Mrs. William Saunders, Mrs. F. Hele and Mrs. Thomas Busby. The party refreshments were convened by Mrs. Busby. President Mrs. Fred Dorrell extended greetings of the season and was chairman.

✧ ✧ ✧

Swimming department of the YWCA started today on a series of 11 Christmas parties and a swimming meet to be held this week. Miss Roselyn Stone, director, supervised six parties today. They are all taking place right in the water and appear to be lots of fun. Each guest received candy when leaving the party. The swimming meet on Thursday night is to take the place of parties for five of the more advanced classes and winners will be announced. A decorated Christmas tree is suspended over the centre of the Y pool to give the right note of festiveness to these occasions.

New Cancer Sub-Unit

Peterborough Cancer Society Unit president Mrs. Maurice Holt announces the formation of a new sub-unit to take in the district of Bewdley, Bailieboro and South Monaghan. Mrs. Merton Thompson of South Monaghan will be the chairman and will also be appointed to the board of directors of the Peterborough unit. Mrs. Alan Dawson of Bailieboro will be secretary-treasurer. This brings to three the number of sub-units formed by the local organization, the others being in Lakefield and Madoc. Each carries on a three-fold program of lay education, welfare and fund-raising in conjunction with the parent units. The new sub-unit is sponsored by the Bailieboro Women's Institute.

Poinsettia Tea

A Poinsettia Tea was held by St. Anne's Parent-Teacher Association in the school on Sunday afternoon. Tea table decoration with a triple poinsettia on a cedar base flanked by wrought iron candelabra holding tall red candles gave this event its name. Small tables for the guests were centred with single candle holders with green candles and a poinsettia. A decorated Christmas tree was effective in the candle-lit room, and two scenes. "The Star of Bethlehem" and "The Coming of the Wise Men" added to the Christmas atmosphere. Guests were received by Mrs. H. Bartlett and Mr. G. Burns. Tea was poured by Mrs. L. Smith, Mrs. Ann Lucas, Mrs. R. Shaughnessy, Mrs. B. Harrison, Mrs. M. Baker and Mrs. O. Paquette. The door prize was a Christmas cake, drawn for by Mrs. Margaret O'Brien, provincial president of PTA.

Easy To Make Christmas Decorations

REGINA (CP)—With used flash bulbs, firewood, silver foil and old nylon stockings, bright-eyed youngsters and grown-ups at a youth centre here are turning out original gifts and decorations.

Persons of all ages have found they can have a lot of fun making their own gifts and ornaments.

Ordinary sticks of firewood become Yule logs when they are covered with plaster of paris. Spaces are left for candles and the log trimmed with pine cones and miniature Christmas trees.

WREATHS EASY

Christmas flowers, miniature Santas and animals are made from chenille. A bit of crepe paper, an old newspaper and some metal foil becomes a Christmas wreath, or a tree or room decoration. Used flash bulbs and old golf balls, dressed up with paint become colorful and effective ornaments.

Hundreds of items are turned out in the centre's craft room each week—Figurines, plaques, bookends, pictures painted on glass and flowers. In the advanced craft room, hobbyists put the finishing touches to larger and more intricate work: leather golf club bags, designs on copper and aluminium, lawn ornaments and pieces of furniture.

Candies The Ideal Gift

Candies, with a professional look about them, an be made in your kitchen. All you need have is a good recipe, proper ingredients and a few minutes time. Puffed Corn Balls are practically fool-proof to make, requiring the combination of just four ingredients. They pack easily and will remain fresh for a goodly length of time. Make ideal Christmas gifts.

Puffed Corn Balls

1 cup dark corn syrup,
3 cups Sugar Corn Pops, (pre-sweetened puffed corn)
1 tablespoon butter or margarine,
¼ cup water.

Combine syrup and water in heavy saucepan. Cook, stirring frequently, to 260 degrees F. (hard balls in cold water). Remove from heat. Add butter and Sugar Corn Pops, stirring quickly until well-coated. When cool enough, to handle shape into balls.

Yield: 14 balls, 2½ inches in diameter.

Queen Elizabeth Christmas Party By H&S Assoc.

Stormy weather didn't dampen enthusiasm of children of Queen Elizabeth school or their parents for the Home and School Association Christmas party held in the auditorium of the teachers' college Monday evening.

Mrs. W. Weaver opened the party by welcoming everyone, after which Mr. E. A. Drury acted as master of ceremonies for the evening.

Carol singing was led by Miss Cruickkshanks. A piano solo was by Carol Race. Miss Bryant's pupils were happy to entertain with "Merry Christmas" and "Snowflakes." Mary Leason then recited a Christmas poem.

The intermediate classroom presented a short play "Runaway Soldiers"—the soldiers having run away from the Christmas tree to which they returned at the end of the play. Lynn and June Tucker favored the audience with a piano duet.

The children, especially younger ones, enjoyed the film "A Merry Christmas" which showed Santa in his toyshop and delivering his goods on Christmas Eve. Spencer Tucker pleased the audience with his two solos "Susie Snowflake" and "I See The Moon." The dialogue "Waiting For The Doctor" was an entertaining skit about patients in a doctors waiting room.

Before the film "Sparky The Colt" was shown, Mr. Drury announced that Santa was on his way and after the film Santa did arrive to distribute bags of candy to all of the children.

The successful program was in charge of Mesdames H. Race, T. Ellicott and A. Long.

Home and School Association News

MAY'S SCHOOL

The junior choir from St. Giles' Presbyterian Church, directed by Mrs. Gwen Craw, contributed special music for the Christmas meeting of May's Home and School Association Monday evening. Their selections were "The Bell Carol", "Infant Holy" and "Deck the Halls".

Carol singing led by Mrs. Craw was enjoyed later. A skit entitled "The Census Taker" was presented by Mrs. F Spencley and Mrs. O. Wells.

The Rev. A. Lloyd Shorten was guest speaker and spoke on what thoughts of Christmas should be, and their meaning. He was introduced by Mrs. Q. Dantzer.

Appreciation to the choir and Mr. Shorten was expressed by Mrs. V. White.

Opening devotions, following singing of the carol "Hark the Herald Angels Sing", included scripture and a story suitable to the Christmas season read by Mrs. P. Bosnell.

President Mrs. P. Dyer presided for routine business. She announced the program for January meeting will be condnucted by the fathers. Attendance prize was won by Mrs. Bosnell's room.

Lunch was served by Mrs. O. Weese and her committee.

Bailieboro News

A number of friends and neighbors assembled in Centerville Community Hall Friday night to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Eagleson who are moving to Cobourg. Progressive euchre was played with prizes going to Mrs. Ben Sinclair, Mrs. I. Muspratt, Messers. C. Barnard and Peter Banks.

Robert Kelley was chairman for the evening, Mrs. H. C. Howson read the accompanying address and N. Earle, C. Barnard and Alex Watt made the presentation of a studio couch.

Friday night Miss Fay Darling teacher of S.S. No. 3, was honored when she was presented with a miscellaneous shower, by the rate payers, in the No. 3 school of South Monaghan. Miss Darling is resigning as she is being married in the near future.

Euchre and crokinole were played. Miss Doris Reid read the address. Others helping in the evening were Waneto Dawson and Marlene Crews.

Monday night the Bensfort Sunbeams held a Christmas party at the home of Marlene Crews. In the absence of the president Doreen Murduff, the meeting was taken by Doris Reid.

A Christmas story was read by Miss Fay Darling, a guest at the meeting. Others taking part were Doreen Larmer and Nesta Libbey. All the members, including the mothers exchanged Christmas gifts from a well laden tree.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Doreen Murduff on January 11th.

Smith-Hay Rites

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — A quiet wedding took place at the home of the Rev. Gordon Whitehorne Saturday when Helen Bernice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Albert Hay of Campbellford, became the bride of Russell Kenneth Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Smith of Port Hope.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a suit of brown checked gabardine, trimmed with rust accessories, and had a corsage of red roses. Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Barbara Jean Hay, who wore a mauve knited suit with black accessories and corsage of yellow 'mums. Groomsman was Glenn Powers Rusk of Cobourg.

A reception was held at Kay's restaurant where the bride's mother received, wearing navy crepe with a black velvet hat and corsage of red roses. The couple left afterward on a wedding trip to points west. They will live in Port Hope.

Serve Cranberry Garnish With Christmas Turkey

Everyone likes to add a special something to her Christmas menu to make it the year's most festive meal. The compiete bill of fare is pretty much a family affair, but the turkey and cranberry part is a natural choice.

It was thoughts of the sparkling cranberry garnish for the Christmas turkey that brought on today's Christmas dinner idea. Why not make a glistening cranberry glaze for Christmas rolls. A 1-pound can of jellied cranberry sauce makes a beautiful glaze for 2 dozen brown 'n serve rolls (triple the recipe given below).

Or those pieces of cranberry sauce that are left after making Christmas tree cut-outs from plump slices of jellied cranberry sauce will make glaze enough for 8. In either case you'll have a festive Christmas hot bread in just the time it takes to bake the rolls.

Here's how it's done . . .

CRANBERRY GLAZED ROLLS

¼ cup chopped nuts
½ cup canned jellied cranberry sauce
¼ cup brown sugar
8 brown 'n serve rolls

Set oven to 400 deg. F.

Grease custard cups or muffin tins. Sprinkle a few chopped nuts into bottom of each cup. Crush cranberry sauce with a fork and stir in brown sugar. Put a tablespoon of this mixture in each custard cup. Turn a brown 'n serve roll upside-down and press into each cup. Bake at 400 deg. F. for 7 to 10 minutes. Let pans cool for 4 to 5 minutes before inverting to remove rolls. Recipe makes 8 rolls.

BROWN 'N SERVE CRANBERRY ROLLS

Crush canned jellied cranberry sauce with a fork. Gently separate clover leaf bron 'n serve rools just enough so that the crushed sauce can be spooned down into the cracks. Brush tops of rolls with melted butter and sprinkle with brown sugar. Bake as directed on package.

CRANBERRY NUT BREAD

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
¾ cup granulated sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup shopped walnuts
1 egg
1 cup canned whole cranberry sauce, drained
2 tablespoons melted shortening

Heat oven to 350 degrees F. Sift together onto waxed paper the flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, soda, and cinnamon. Add walnuts. In mixing bowl, beat egg; add cranberry sauce and shortening. Add dry ingredients; stir until just blended. Pour into greased 9" x 5" 3" loaf pan. Bake in 350 degree F. oven 45 minutes. Cool on rack.

Blind Have Christmas Party With Traditional "Fixins"

All the glamor of Christmas combined with much of the din of a New Year's Eve party, went to make up the gala affair Tuesday evening at which members of the Louis Braille Society and friends celebrated the festive season.

It was the seventh annual Christmas dinner of the blind people of Peterborough City and County, and it was held in the Canadian Legion Hall.

Extra money to buy the turkey and other trimmings of the first course, favors and gifts, came to the society from the Lions Club, the Order of the Eastern Star, several chapters of the IODE and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion, and the dinner was prepared and served by ladies of the Eastern Star, who themselves provided the dessert of mince pie and fruit cup.

Greetings of the season from various organizations and friends were extended by the representatives attending: the Rev. A. E. Larke, Mayor-elect Norman Graham, Mrs. Keith Armstrong, worthy matron of the Order of the Eastern Star, Mrs. G. C. Stevens, president of the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary, who in addition presented a cheque for $50 to the society, Mr. Hurrell Dodds, secretary of the Canadian Legion, representing the president, who announced donation of the Legion Hall for the evening, and Mr. Charles Ray, chairman of the Local Advisory Board of the CNIB. Wives and husbands of these guests were also invited.

After-dinner speaker for this occasion was Dr. Edward Cragg, oculist, whose association with many of the blind people on both a professional and a friendly basis, made his tone and remarks hit the exact key to please. His wife, who shares his interest in the welfare of the Louis Braille members, was also present.

Dr. Cragg told interesting facts and also amusing ones from the history of eye surgery and treatments of diseases of the eye, starting with 3000 BC. He said that at that time a famous Hindustan eye surgeon was performing serious eye operations, using bronze instruments. The knowledge and skill of that time was allowed to decrease, however, and was practically nil by the time of Christ.

Treatment for eye diseases by about 500 AD included starvation, hot foot baths, gargles, sneezing, rubbing the eyes with the equivalent of steel wool, red hot pokers applied to the temples, etc., Dr. Craggr eported from the records.

He noted that it was only 200 years ago the first cataract extraction was performed and it was not until 100 years ago that there were anaesthetics to make the operation one of careful performance. The first operation to correct a squint was done in 1839.

Dr. Cragg told about gypsies he had met wheni n England, where he became a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons. These gypsies favored spitting in the eye as treatment for any disease of the organ, and would use their tongues to remove any foreign object from the eye.

He remarked that glasses were considered for only the "very best people" in the olden days. Also, that it was Benjamin Franklin who invented the bifocals because he couldn't understand the Frenchman unless he could see his lips, and at a dinner he had to wear reading glasses to see his food and therefore could not tell what was said by people in front of him. The doctor also mentioned the Eskimos of Canada who wear whalebone with slits over the eyes to protect from the dazzling rays of the sun, which also appears to improve their vision.

The old question of the "evil eye" dates back as far as recorded history and was an accepted fact for many centuries, with some forms still happening today, the doctor remarked in conclusion.

Introduction of Dr. Cragg was made by past president Earl Schwantz and the thank-you was voiced by Ozzie Maher.

President Frank Simmons was chairman and expressed the society's appreciation to all those who helped with the party.

A number of draws were made by Mrs. Albert Mason and the prizes distributed to the blind people by Mrs. Tom Pritchard.

Musical entertainment included ballads sung by Mr. Anthony De-Noble and Christmas carols by Mrs. Al Spencley, both accompanied by Mrs. Quinlan. An orchestra was on hand to play for the dancing which concluded the evening.

Chanel To Sell Dresses Fashion World Startled

By MARC PURDUE

PARIS (AP)—All that excitement last summer over Dior's shorter skirts is nothing compared to the stir today in the Paris fashion world created by a simple business announcement:

Gabrielle Chanel will start selling dresses again Feb. 5.

Now nearing 70, Chanel has been quietly refurbishing her establishment which for 15 years has sold only the famous perfume that bears her name.

This week, from the seclusion of her Ritz hotel suite, she let it be known officially that she will reopen her dressmaking salon for the next big round of fashion shows.

It's still a mystery why "Coco" Chanel has decided to re-enter the field she dominated in the '20s and '30s and then abandoned at the start of the war in 1939, leaving only the internationally famed "No. 5" perfume to keep her name before the public.

PONDER REASONS

Does she need the money because inflation has damaged her investments garnered through years as one of the most successful French fashion designers? Or is she simply bored in retirement while such newcomers as Dior, Bailmain and Fath collected the money and fame?

Whatever her motive, Chanel's reopening is a bombshell for the fashion folk, not only because of the nostalgia for the good old days she may arouse in the smart set, but also because of her reputation for startling stunts that stick.

Old-timers remember the many times she set the business on its ear by defying prejudice and tradition. One year she showed dresses made of wool jersey, until then a fabric reserved for workmen's garments. The mills still are turning out wool jersey.

Rev. G. S. Maxwell Delivers Timely Message

"Christmas calls us to go out past the cradle to the foot of the Cross, in pureness of heart and boldness of faith to adjust our sense of values and see things through the eyes of the Master," said the Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell in his Christmas message to the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary of Trinity Church Monday night.

Mr. Maxwell stipulated "We must prepare for the best, lest it find us all unprepared and we miss the best." He cited a phrase from Tennyson, "How pure in heart and sound in head, with divine affections bold", to stress the need for purity of heart and sound sense and said it is time people realized the responsibility of character for the new world, and that they must be capable of assessing things at their true value, and "put aside the tinsel and come to Christmas able to see things really worthwhile and to look at the Master."

He started a need to venture out in faith with a boldness that overcomes both despair and discouragement and he used the message of John the Baptist in St. Luke's gospel; his great call to repentance with its philosophy of straightening out relationships with fellowmen and then straightening out relationship with God.

The minister claimed that Christmas does wake people up and make their hearts more mellow, but that they must change their ways. "If we can come to Christmas with our way of looking at things changed more nearly to our Master's viewpoint, then indeed will Christmas come to us."

Mr. Maxwell was introduced by Miss Myrtle Sargent and Miss Rachael Young expressed the thanks of members for his timely message.

The P.C.V.S. girl's sextette favoured with three Christmas numbers.

Worship service followed the theme "And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us" and the presentation was shared by Miss Helen Moore, Mrs. Gray, Miss Mabel Brown and Mrs. R. Woodcock. President Mrs. F. W. Horton presided for a brief business session.

A delicious lunch was served by the group in charge under leadership of Mrs. R. Woodcock.

MRS. PORTIA HOWE, of Alden, Minn., waves from the ramp of an aircraft as she leaves for the Far East in an effort to see her son, Pte. Richard Tenneson, one of the 22 American PoW's the Communists say do not want to return to their homeland. With her is Stewardess Dorothy Brown. Mrs. Howe arrived in Tokyo but was refused permission to continue to Korea.

CABBAGE CASSEROLES

Shred 1¼ lbs. cabbage as finely as possible with long sharp knife. Place onethird of it in buttered casserole. Cover this with 1 or 2 slices tomatoes, a sprinkling of grated cheese (using ½ to 2-3 cup cheese in all) and some salt and pepper. Repeat 5 times. Cover with 2 cups of medium thick white sauce (4 tablespoons each butter and flour and 2 cups milk), sprinkle with a few crumbs and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 40 minutes. (If desired, the thick part from canned tomatoes may be used instead of fresh tomatoes.)

When folding diapers, make a separate pile of double ones for use at night.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Odds And Ends That Were Promised

Today is the day I usually reserve for a Special-Purpose Menu. I am going to leave it out this week. You seldom tell me that you look for it and expect it on Wednesday, but when I leave it out I sure hear. My, you are a hungry bunch. Remind me of my crowd.

However I have to have space for Almond Icing and white Icing for Fruit Cakes, and for Cranberry Sauce, etc. Tomorrow I give you method of roasting turkey, and for making stuffing. You will also find tomorrow recipes for sauces for the Plum Pudding.

GENUINE ALMOND PASTE No. 1

One lb. unblanched almonds or ⅞ lb. blanched almonds, 4 egg yolks, 1 lb. icing sugar, 1 teaspoon rosewater, ½ teaspoon bitter almond extract. If unblanched almonds are used, blanch them and let them dry overnight in single layer. Put through finest knife of food chopper three times. With fingers or wooden spoon work to a paste, then add unbeaten yolks and sugar and flavorings gradually until this is perfectly smooth. It may require a very little extra icing sugar. Roll out to exact size of cake on icing-sugar-sprinkled board. Brush top of cake with corn syrup, to make paste stick, and press paste on. Let stand 24 hours before applying white icing (see below).

ALMOND PASTE No. 2

To make 1 lb. grind 2 cups dry blanched almonds 3 times through finest knife of food chopper. Mix in 1½ cups sifted icing sugar, then stir in ¼ cup egg whites, unbeaten, and 2 teaspoons almond flavoring. Knead to make smooth. Let ripen, covered in refrigerator 4 days. Roll out as above.

WHITE ICING

(for covering almond paste on fruit cakes)

To 2 unbeaten egg whites in bowl add 1 cup icing sugar and juice of ½ medium-sized lemon, and beat until mixed and beginning to thicken, then gradually add enough sifted icing sugar to make mixture consistency of thick whipped cream. Beat until very light. Spread over almond paste to ⅛ or 1/16 inch thickness. This does not harden so much that it chips.

EPICURE'S CRANBERRY RELISH

Peel 3 oranges and save the rind of 1 one them. Cut the pulp out to discard the membrane and seeds. Cut each orange section in half. Put 1 quart washed and dried and picked over cranberries through medium knife of food chopper with the ring of 1 orange. Add the prepared orange pulp to this and 1½ cups sugar. Cover and let stand at least 24 hours. This keeps very well.

ATTENTION RUBY C.

I have not decided whether to use following vegetable in the Christmas dinner menu I will give you early next week. But I may, and since Ruby C. wanted it and since it is good, here it is:

SWEET POTATO AND APPLE CASSEROLE

Butter a casserole generously. Using a 4 medium-large sliced sweet potatoes (boiled with skin on until ¾ tender) which have been peeled, and 2 medium-large apples which have been pared, cored and sliced in ½-inch slices, put them in alternate layers in casserole, sprinkle with sale and dotting with 2 tablespoons butter. Over top sprinkle ½ cup white or brown sugar or pour ½ cup maple syrup OR cover with 8 marshmallows which have been sliced in halves crosswise. Dot top with butter. Stand pan in larger pan containing hot water. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. about 1 hour.

NOTE: Slices of drained canned pineapple may be used instead of raw apple.

NOTE RE HALF-TURKEY

Roast a half-turkey at 325 deg. Fahr, allowing 25 to 30 minutes per lb. the longer time being for a large half-turkey. Place, cavity side down, on aluminum foil or rack in pan. When half done pile stuffing, in a mound to fill the cavity, on foil, place half roasted turkey over, and finish roasting. Cover turkey throughout baking with foil. It will brown beautifully.

DOROTHY DIX

18 Months Time For Situation To Ease

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been going steady with a boy of 20 for the past year. I'm 17. We have fine times together; he's very pleasant and considerate. We hope to get married as soon as he graduates from college, which will be in a year and a half. He has his faults, but to me they are trivial and I know they won't affect our future happiness.

However, my mother feels we are not suited to each other. I am the social type, and he is not, but we are happy together, anyway. Before I met this boy I went to parties, but we attend few social functions together, since he would rather spend quiet evenings at home. My parents have been letting me see him only on week ends and they are quite cool to him when he calls.

Fran M.

BORED EVENINGS

ANSWER: With 18 months to go before you can be married, the problem is quite likely to resolve itself. There's a good deal to be said on your parents' side. Quiet evenings at home may appeal to you at present, when everything is tinted with the rosy glow of romance, but in the solid reality of married life, these evenings, which now seem romantic, will be just boring. Perhaps your love is so strong that you really will be able to make a satisfactory adjustment; the chances, however, are against it. Another sign that isn't good is the fact that your young man apparently expects you to make all the concessions. There's no inkling that he is prepared to go to more than a "very few" socials; this will be cut to none at all after you're married.

If at 17 you are compelled to spend every evening at home, I think you'll have a change of mind and heart before the boy graduates. In the meantime, mollify your parents with only your weekend dates (the lad's studies will keep him occupied most of the other evenings, anyway), and see how long love will survive. If you are right, you'll both know by commencement that you are truly meant for each other, and I think your parents will agree that, after so long a trial, you know your own mind.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: As my wedding date draws near, I find that I no longer love my fiance. My parents say if I break the engagement now, people in our community will look down on me, since my fiance holds a responsible position here, and is greatly respected. Will I lose my self-respect if I don't go through with the marriage?

✧ ✧ ✧

Wanda D.

ANSWER: You're more likely to lose your self-respect if you do enter a loveless marriage. It certainly will be kinder to the man to break the engagement than to marry him under false pretenses. A girl rarely loses the regard of her neighbours by cancelling her nuptials.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been engaged for almost two months. I love the boy very much; though he isn't always nice to me. Sometimes he actualy acts as if he didn't want to be bothered with me. I loaned him $200 to buy a car and my friends say I was very foolish.

✧ ✧ ✧

Polly

ANSWER: Do you have any more money to "lend"? If you do the young man will be nice to you as long as it lasts. Then, farewell money and farewell "friend", your readily available finances are, I'm afraid, your only asset, as far as he's concerned.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs Ann Gerber (Mother of 5)

If baby seems to balk at this first spoonful or two of cereal it might be the new texture is too thick. Try thinning the cereal with enough milk or formula until you have a "soupy" mixture. This makes the texture a little more familiar to baby and easier for him to swallow.

• • •

Cereal cue! When it comes to selecting those so-important starting cereals for baby try Gerber's Cereals. Millions of mothers have discovered that most babies take to the bland, pleasant flavors, the smooth texture right from the start. Even more important, Gerber's Cereals are enriched with calcium, iron and B-Vitamins. Gerber's Cereals are precooked and ready to serve! Just add milk or formula. For interest rotate: Mixed, Rice, Barley, Oatmeal and Wheat Cereals.

• • •

Beauty balm. While beautifying that little one with baby oil, smart mothers remember to steal a few drops for hands and elbows. Keeps hands nice for holding baby, for being held by dad.

• • •

More beauty business. Baby oil is most beneficial too, for unruly hair. After washing, a few drops massaged into damp hair helps make it soft, manageable.

• • •

A treat in store for you mothers with "teething" babies! Gerber's now have ready for you their famous Teething Biscuits—so helpful for this trying time. Baby gets plenty of chewing satisfaction from firm Gerber's Teething Biscuits—yet they're smooth, gentle for tender gums. Special shape is easy for little hands to hold. Nice for you, too—they don't fall apart so there's no mess. Teething Biscuits come individually wrapped—so convenient to tuck into your purse when you take baby out.

Canada Played Major Role In United Nations In '53

By MEL SUFRIN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada played a major role in the United Nations in 1953 although much of its activity was behind the scenes.

External Affairs Minister Pearson served as president of the General Assembly for the first eight months and was thus closely associated with the diplomatic moves that helped bring about the Korean armistice in July.

But his position also meant that he had to maintain a generally neutral position in UN affairs so that much of the negotiating and manoeuvring which produced the Korean developments were not publicized.

Pearson presided at the regular Assembly session early in the year and again in the special Korean session in July. The latter produced the UN proposals for make-up of the Korean conference and also the only major difference between Canada and the United States that occurred in the UN in 1953.

CHIEF DELEGATE

Health Minister Martin was the chief delegate at the Korean session and delivered an attack on a Russian proposal which would not have included Canada at the conference table.

He also helped formulate the Canadian-British proposal that India be invited to the conference as a neutral. The U.S., under heavy pressure from South Korean President Syngman Rhee who had publicly expressed dislike of Indian policies, opposed the proposal and, with the support of the Latin-American bloc, was able to thwart the plan to invite India.

If the Communists had any hopes that the differences between the western allies would reach major proportions, they were disappointed when Canada and Britain later decided to go along with a plan to invite the 17 nations which fought under the U Ncommand to send representatives to the projected conference.

It was decided at that time that Russia could be invited, but not as a neutral, only as a member of the Communist side. It was this point which resulted in the stalemate over conference plans and left little hope late in the year that the conference would ever be held on the same scale as the Assembly, received less publicity.

GIVES MAJOR SPEECH

After stepping down as Assembly president in September, Pearson delivered the major Canadian policy speech of the fall session.

He emphasized that Canadian troops would not fight if Rhee were to carry out his threat to violate the truce by resuming the Korean war on his own. He also expressed hope that eventually there would be a free and United Korea with a freely-elected government and all foreign forces withdrawn.

His suggestion that Korea's security might be "provided for under an international and supervised guarantee" drew favorable reaction in the West but at year's end, the hope of a neutral, united Korea seemed far off.

During the year Canada played its part in other UN bodies which, because they did not produce the dramatic East-West conflicts on

MORE FINANCIAL AID

In the plan to aid underdeveloped countries Canada increased its financial contribution and sent experts to many countries.

The fall session saw Dr. George Davidson, Canada's deputy minister of welfare, elected to head the UN social committee.

The Canadian delegation at the fall meeting of the Assembly included Postmaster General Cote, Senator Stanley McKeen of Vancouver, Alan Macnaughton, Liberal member of Parliament for Mount Royal, Mrs. A. L. Caldwell of Saskatoon, a member of the national film board, D. M. Johnson, the permanent delegate, and George Patterson, a native of Moncton, N.B., who died Nov. 8 in Boston where he was Canadian consul-general, a post he combined with his UN activities.

Toronto Mayor Annoyed By Pictures

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Allan Lamport Tuesday spent 15 minutes publicly criticizing The Globe and Mail for publishing a series of pictures, "This is Toronto."

The morning paper's series has been running for several weeks. It has drawn attention to such things as breaks in pavement, carelessly painted traffic lines, piles of garbage littering certain streets and neglected monuments.

The mayor said during Tuesday's board of control meeting that he will try to find a way to tax or licence the paper's street-corner sales boxes. He said:

"If The Globe and Mail don't like Toronto, why don't they move out of town?

SHOULD CHARGE TAX

"We ought to charge them a yearly tax. Twenty dollars a year for each unattended box would be about right. And they should have to keep them painted.

"I resent on behalf of this good city this paper being sent around the province with these pictures which try to show Toronto in a bad light. I object to them holding us up to ridicule."

The vice - chairman, controller Leslie Saunders, said he agreed with the mayor. The three other controllers, Louis Shannon, Ford Brand and David Balfour, dissociated themselves from the mayor's remarks.

45-Foot Plunge

HAWKESBURY, Ont. (CP)—Armand Larocque of Hawkesbury survived a 45-foot plunge off a bridge in his automobile Tuesday night with nothing more than a bruised chest and shock. Police said the car apparently skidded on the icy bridge near here, crashed through the railing, turned over in mid-air and landed on its roof. It hit between the Ottawa river and a canal.

Must Match Progress

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Dr. James A. Henderson, head of the Ontario Veterinary College, Guelph, said Tuesday that dairy men must match the progress made by plant breeders in the last 50 years if they are to meet competition from other foods, particularly vegetable oils. He spoke to the annual meeting of the Oxford and District Cattle Breeding Association.

Four Drown

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Four New Brunswick men were drowned Tuesday night when an automobile ran off the highway near Hammond River, 14 miles from Saint John, and plunged into a deep, narrow stream. The dead: John M. MacQuarrie, Sussex Corner merchant; Fred Fraser, Nauwigewauk; William G. Braden, Hibernia, and A. C. Titus, Norton merchant.

Confesses Slaying

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—A 30-year-old ex-convict, under almost steady questioning for four days, cracked Tuesday night and confessed that he strangled 11-year-old Irene Fiederowicz here Dec. 10. He was identified as Robert N. Malm, an attendant at a state tuberculosis sanatarium, by police Lieut. William H. Sullivan.

Canada First To Successfully Run Engine

OTTAWA (CP)—Mines Minister Prudham announced Tuesday that Canada is the first country in the world to complete successfully a test run of an exhaust-heated gas turbine engine.

Mr. Prudham told the Commons the test run was made by scientists of the gas dynamics laboratory of McGill University, Montreal, who are experimenting on the design of a coal-burning gas-turbine engine to drive locomotives or electric-power units. The design of the engine has been in the experimental stage for three years under sponsorship of the department of mines and technical surveys.

FIRST TEST SATISFACTORY

"On Nov. 27, after preliminary runs using oil, the first test on coal was made and was satisfactory. This was the first run of an exhaust-heated turbine engine in the world, and the third time that power has been produced from coal in a gas turbine, the first and second occasions having been tests of other types of units in the United Kingdom and United States of America."

The minister said it is anticipated that the second stage of the research program on the engine will be carried out at McGill during a two-year period.

CHRISTMAS STREET DECORATIONS

The contributions of merchants participating in the Christmas Shopping Jamboree has made possible the downtown Christmas decorations—trees, tree lights and candy canes. These, in addition to the coloured street lights strung by the Peterborough Utilities Commission, give our downtown section a festive appearance.

In Appreciation

The Retail Section of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce appreciates the kind co-operation of the City Parks Department in fastening Christmas trees to the posts and stringing tree lights in the downtown section.

ONLY SEVEN MORE SHOPPING DAYS TILL CHRISTMAS!

It's later than you think – – and it's no joke. The balmy weather we have been experiencing has made us feel that Christmas is still some time away – – and that there's lots of time to gift-shop.

The snow that we now have makes us aware of the fact that the day Santa arrives has been creeping up on us. We now find that we have only seven days to round up all those presents that are on our gift list.

No doubt it will be a rush for many of us – – but if you start now, you'll find that our Peterborough Merchants are ready.

In some cases things may be a little in short supply but in the main stocks are still good. So start now – – Check advertisements in this Shopping Jamboree Section for suggestions – – then come down town armed with your list. You still have a chance to sit back, three or four days before Christmas and say – – "Gee, I'm glad my Christmas shopping is done."

Here is a list (as provided by the Chamber of Commerce) of merchants participating in the Christmas Shopping Jamboree:—

Grading Grants To Children's Aid Discontinued By Department Of Welfare

The Ontario department of Public Welfare has discontinued its annual grading grants to various municipal societies. The Peterborough Children's Aid Society had been classed as grade A and received an annual grant of $2,000 including 1953.

The department hopes to develop a more equitable method of providing financial assistance to societies, and of evaluating their work, by this move.

PRAISES WORK OF C.A.S.

A letter from the department of Public Welfare concerning the activities of the local organization for the past five years, praised it highly in every function.

"During the five years under consideration there has been considerable staff turnover, and this has made it difficult to maintain the consistent high standard of service desirable. It has added immeasurably to the responsibilities of the superintendent (Miss Rachel Young), who until the current year has had no workers with previous social work training. It is due to the type of supervision and the planned in-service training program that a good service has been provided to the community at all times. The quality of service this year would appear to have reached its highest level."

Special mention was made of the society's health and dental programs and the efficiency of the clerical staff and the board of directors as well.

ONTARIO JURIST — Eric G. Moorehouse of London, Ont., has been appointed a judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario and member of the High Court of Justice for Ontario and ex officio member of the Court of Appeal for Ontario.

Fiji Holding Dress Rehearsal

ABOARD S. S. GOTHIC (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth steps ashore Thursday to a royal welcome in the Fiji islands.

The islanders have been holding full-scale rehearsals of native dances and ceremonies since they learned the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh planned to stop at Suva on their Commonwealth tour. It will mark the first time they have touched land since leaving Panama Nov. 29.

The royal couple already has been given a preview of the entertainment Maori crew members of the escort New Zealand cruiser Black Prince daubed their faces and donned yellow and black skirts Tuesday night when they visited this royal liner. Accompanied by guitars, they chanted and whirled about in war dances.

Soldier Released

LONDON (Reuters) — British Army signalman Harry Richard Page, 22, sentenced to seven years in jail for the murder of an Egyptian in the Suez canal zone last December, had his sentence suspended Tuesday by the war office. Page reached England after more than a year in jail.

Studio Signs La Rosa

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Julius La Rosa, the television singer fired by Arthur Godfrey for "lacking humility," will get a movie try-out. Paramount Tuesday signed him for a screen test and said that if he makes good he'll be given a long-term contract. He's to report to the studio next month.

Demand Bonuses

LINZ, Austria (AP)—About 200 Communist - led Austrian unemployed workers Tuesday forced their way into the building of the Austrian chamber of labor here to demand Christmas bonuses. They were thrown out by labor officials and Linz police after a brief scuffle.

MIKE RODDEN — Former NHL Referee . . . Queen's football star and coach of five Big Four champions. Now Sports Editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard.

I Remember

The night I got showered with eggs!

BY MIKE RODDEN

"In Detroit one evening during the International League round-robin final between the Buffalo Bisons and the Detroit Olympics, conditions became so serious in the final period (the score was 2 all) that, as referee, I had occasion to warn Manager Jack Adams that the ice must be cleared of debris or in failure the title would be awarded to Buffalo. Mr. Adams verbally doubted if I would keep this promise and in no time at all he discovered that he had erred. The egg and missile shower that greeted announcement of the award may have established an unapproachable record. I wouldn't know, however, as I had seen only one counterpart of such marksmanship. The sweaters worn by Referee Jerry Goodman and myself were rendered hors-de-combat but we did manage to reach the dressing room in advance of the approaching fans."

Forecast Lower Food Prices For 1954

OTTAWA (CP)—Pigs, hens and rent collectors made things tough for the housewife in her daily battle against living costs in 1953.

But the pressure on her purse may ease. Federal experts forecast lower food prices in 1954.

Retail prices seemed to be in the buyer's favor in the first half of 1953 as living costs continud the decline started early in 1952.

Half-way through 1953, food and other prices began to perk up. Living-cost increases in the latter half eliminated all the drops in the first half and pushed the cost-of-living yardstick to where it was the spring of 1952.

FOOD PRICES UP

Causes were varied, but higher prices for foods and rents were among the main factors. Pork and egg prices rose to a two-year high. Rents touched a peak.

The consumer price index, barometer for measuring living costs, reflected the 1953 slide and bounce. From the record high of 118.2 Jan. 2, 1952, it dropped to 115.7 Jan. 2, 1953. By May 1, the index had slid to 114.4, lowest in almost two years. By Nov. 1 it was back to 116.2, highest in 16 months and a half-point higher than the Jan. 2 level.

In the United States, living costs reached an all-time high. In Canada they were still below the 118.2 record. Inflationary forces seemed to be on the march, but they retreated. Price softening was on its way at the year end. During November the index dropped half-point, mainly because of lower food prices.

Federal food experts, at the annual federal-provincial agricultural conference in November, forecast lower prices in 1954 for meats, eggs, fruits, potatoes and grain.

Bigger supplies of pork—which helped push living costs higher in 1953—are likely to be on the market in the latter part of 1954.

EXPENSIVE BACON

The high price of pork resulted from the large United States market for Canadian supplies. There was a smaller market for beef and subsequently a price drop. But those who liked bacon for breakfast had to pay the highest prices in history.

On the basis of 1949 prices equalling 100, the bacon sub-index rose to 127.2 Oct. 1 from 73.9 Oct. 1, 1952. The pork loin sub-index rose to 121.6 from 102.3.

Generally, the food index reflected the over-all cost-of-living trend. This column, which had reached a peak of 122.5 Dec. 1, 1951, dropped to 113.5 Jan. 2, 1953. By May 1 it had slipped to 110.1. Then it bounced to 115.5 Oct. 1, highest in a year, retreating to 113.4 Nov. 1.

STEADY RENT INCRFASE

Rents, meanwhile, continued to rise steadily. The shelter index, covering rents and home-ownership costs, which rose 3.1 points in the first 11 months of 1952, increased by another 2.7 points in the first 11 months of 1953, rising to a new high of 125.

One consolation to the rent payer was that pace of the increases seemed to be declining. It may slow still more as Canada boosts its housing construction.

Other cost-of-living changes were relatively small. Medical costs were higher, but cigaret prices were lower. Clothing showed little change, but the cost of running a house, including laundry bills, was a shade higher.

The household operations column edged to 117.4 Nov. 1 from 116.5 Jan. 2. It was just one-tenth of a point from the all-time high of 117.5 Oct. 1.

DESPAIR—Mrs. Portia Howe covers her face in despair after being refused permission to enter Korea to try and persuade her PoW son to return home. Mrs. Howe travelled from her home at Alden, Minn., only to have Gen. John E. Hull tell her that she could not go to Korea from Tokyo.

Huskier Offspring

PENGE, England (CP)—Children today are bigger than their predecessors, the education committee of this Kent county town found. Many old desks built to fit infants 60 years ago are being scrapped.

BUBBLE BLOWER—Heinz Kuhn is one of the few craftsmen left in Germany who scorns modern machinery to blow Christmas balls in his small shop in the British sector of Berlin. During the holiday rush he has taken on additional help to cope with a flood of orders to make gaily-colored tree decorations.

Discontinue Efforts To See Gouzenko

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate internal security sub-committee announced Tuesday that chairman William Jenner (Rep. Ind.) is discontinuing his efforts to interview Igor Gouzenko [illegible] Canada before Christmas.

Robert Morris, sub-committee counsel, said that does not mean the sub-committee is giving up hopes of questioning Gouzenko later; that it might interview him between Christmas and the opening of congress Jan. 6.

Morris said that so far the sub-committee has been unable to make arrangements with the Canadian government for questioning the former code clerk in the Soviet embassy in Ottawa.

Jenner had said previously it wanted to find out whether the former government code clerk has any information that might help to uncover a new spy ring in the U.S. government.

Canadian Courts Outlined To Rotary Club

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — Francis De Carrol was guest speaker at the Campbellford Rotary Club on Monday, speaking on the subject "Law and the English Legal System."

English legal practise is the heritage of a system which made its own laws. English common law played a major role in the development of constitutions not only in England but in France and the entire English speaking world.

There are two broad channels of law, common and statutory. Common law judge-made law—decision handed down by a wise and incorruptible judiciary. One of the chief functions of parliament or government of any kind is the making of laws, which are usually hard-and-fast rules, in contrast to the common law based on previous decisions.

In the 12th century in the earliest history of recorded law in England Royal appointments were made to settle disputes. Most of these men were scholars with monastic training. Their decisions were recorded, providing the basis for common law today. As ideas of right and justice were changed so did the laws change. Whereas laws of trespass used to be most strict they have been somewhat modified.

COURT STRUCTURE

The Canadian court structure was briefly explained by the speaker.

The division court has jurisdiction over personal action where the amount involved is less than $200. unless by agreement of the litigating parties when this amount may reach $400.

The magistrate's or police court has jurisdiction over petty crime. The county court rules on matters of contract up to $1,200, and personal actions up to $1,000. By agreement of parties concerned these items may be larger.

The county court judge's criminal court may try cases where the jury is waived. The court of general sessions is also a county court with jury which meets several times a year. Over and above this is the supreme court of Ontario.

The highest court is the Canadian supreme court which may try any offence and the judgment is final.

Two other courts — the Surrogate court which deals with testamentary affairs and the exchequer court which deals with claims against the Crown were also mentioned.

In conclusion Mr. DeCarrol said that though the law may at times seem too conservative, too rigid or too complicated it has the advantages of impartiality, equality, general uniformity and certainty.

The saying "We are slaves to the Law so that we may be free" has much truth. The law is wiser than any individual and though it may at times be a curb, it is certainly a protector.

The speaker was introduced by thanked by Rotarian Wallace Rutherford.

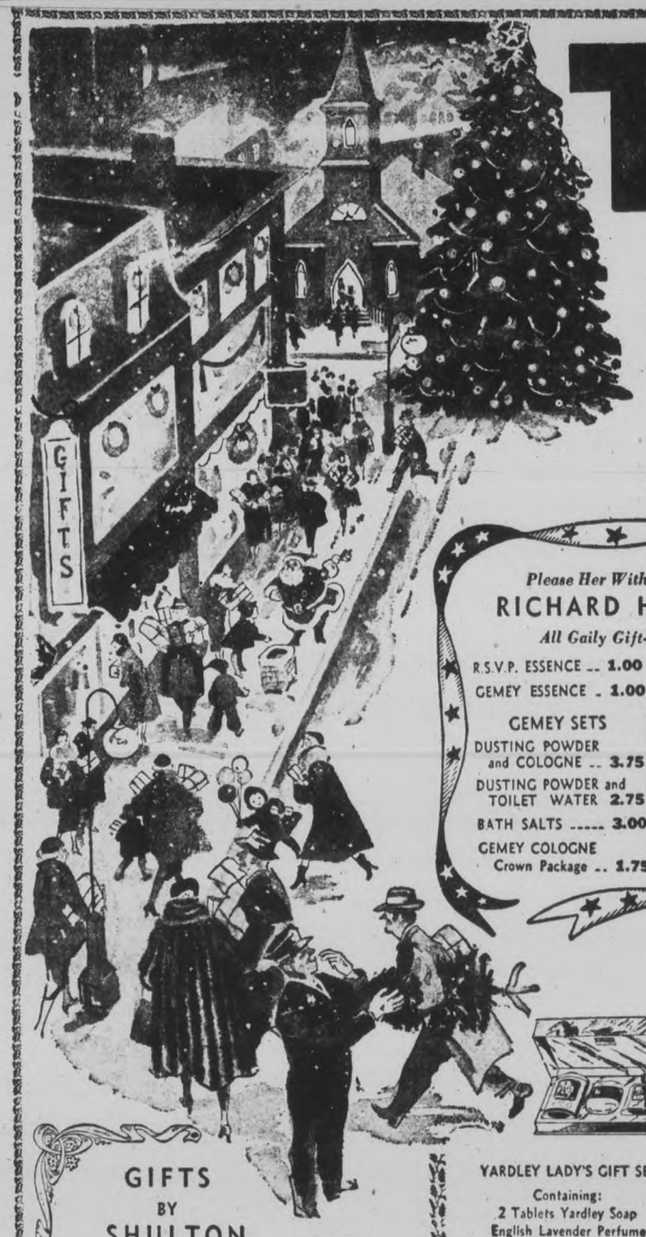
Electricians Postpone Strike

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton's 300 construction electricians decided at a meeting Tuesday to postpone a strike which might have stopped work on 20 building jobs in the city.

The decision was taken when business agent Cecil Dibble announced that the head office of the International brotherhood of Electrical Workers had refused permission for the strike at present.

Local 105, IBEW has been negotiating for months with the Hamilton Electrical Contractor's Association. A conciliation board had recommended a wage increase of 15 cents an hour now and five cents more in the spring. This was turned down by the local which voted for strike action at a meeting Monday night.

The president of the union at Washington sent the local a telegram Tuesday saying that permission to organize the strike was withheld, and that a representative from Washington would be sent into the area shortly after New Year's.



If this representative cannot obtain a settlement strike action will follow.

Christmas Tree Business Brings Revenue Of Millions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Christmas tree may symbolize the festive spirit in countless homes, but to Canadian growers and operators it means millions of dollars in revenue.

The annual bonanza is being reaped as trees by the carload are rushed to many parts of Canada, the United States, Mexico and even the Caribbean and South America.

British Columbia exporters have reported a record sale of 2,000,000 trees with a wholesale value of $1,000,000. New Brunswick expects sales to total $1,500,000 from 2,000,000 trees. Nova Scotia, which exported 3,000,000 trees last year, reports a slight reduction in deliveries this year. Ontario's U.S. sales in 1952 reached $1,000,000. Quebec made $1,000,000 from 2,500,000 trees.

Retail prices on the domestic market are generally the same as last year, a Canadian Press survey shows.

BALSAM POPULAR

In Newfoundland, where balsam fir is the most popular, the price range is from $1 to $2. About 15,000 trees have been sold in St. John's, Corner Brook and Grand Falls. Cutters for export have been paid from $10-$15 a day.

Nova Scotia's prices range from 75 cents to $2. Growers are receiving $1.25 a bale and up delivered to the car.

New Brunswickers are paying $1.50 for seven - foot trees—the same as last year. Spruce is the most plentiful but balsam fir, with its needle-retaining quality, is the most popular. The industry means about $400,000 annually to residents. Cutters are paid according to the number cut and can earn from $10 to $40 daily. The industry employs more than 1,000 men in cutting, bundling, tagging, trucking and shipping. Cutting began Oct. 15 and generally ended Dec. 5.

Prices in Prince Edward Island generally are comparable to those of the other Atlantic provinces.

QUEBECERS LIKE FIR

Fir is the most popular tree in Quebec. Farmers who cut trees on their woodlots on a spare-time basis receive about 30 cents a tree. The Quebec lands and forests department warned farmers to cut no more than the total assured sales because more than 20,000 trees remained unsold in 1952. Approximately 99 per cent of the Quebec sales are made in the U.S. Business this year is expected to equal that of last.

Ottawa residents are paying from 75 cents to $2 for smaller trees styled for apartments. The larger variety range from $3-$10. Blue spruce and scotch pine, averaging $3-$4, are popular in Toronto, although the price range begins at 75 cents for the small trees. An estimated $75,000-$100,000 trade is expected in the Windsor area where cutters are being paid from 75 cents to $1 an hour.

Jack pine is the most plentiful tree in Manitoba and is being sold from 75 cents to $3. Cutters, working under contract, are making about 10 cents a tree and if in business, they can sell trees for about 25 cents each.

SASKATCHEWAN PRICE

Northern Saskatchewan black spruce is selling from 75 cents to $1.50 for a six-footer. A number of B.C. trees are being sold in some southern districts. Any person may cut trees on Crown lands in Saskatchewan providing they have a government permit and pay from seven to 12 cents for each tree cut.

Albertans prefer highland, blue spruce and pine with prices at 30-35 cents a foot. Over-cutting last year and the recent mild weather have retarded sales in Edmonton. Prices in Calgary average 30 cents a foot.

B.C.'s record harvest was concentrated mainly on Vancouver island and in the Nelson-Kamloops area. Last year growers received about $1.25 a bale with one to eight trees to a bale depending on size. The trees this year are expected to retail at 25 cents a foot and up.

Seek Minerals In Nova Scotia

By GERRY MARTIN

HALIFAX (CP)—A search is under way to uncover the mineral wealth of Nova Scotia, sparked by the boom that carried New Brunswick into the fore as a source of base metals earlier this year.

Never in the province's history has such an interest been taken in her potential mineral wealth.

Before the war, surveys uncovered signs that wealth lay hidden in the province. With the exception of coal, salt, gypsum, limestone and gold, actual development of raw materials has been virtually neglected.

Since October three mining companies have taken out concession rights in the province.

In 1928-29 several surface showings were uncovered by interests now connected with Landover Oils and Mines which last October obtained exclusive one-year rights to about 1,100 square miles.

The concession covers the southwest portion of Cape Breton Island. The company has the right to all minerals except coal.

No Inquiry Asked

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson Tuesday informed E. G. McCullough (CCF — Moose Mountain) that Niagara peninsula fruit and vegetable growers have not asked for an inquiry into what Mr. McCullough said were "price fixing and price spreads of the fertilizer industry."

Criminal Code Revision To Be Tackled

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commons-Senate committee is going to tackle the possibilities of abolishing capital punishment and whipping and whether lotteries should be permitted in Canada.

At the same time, the legal defence of insanity will be studied by a royal commission.

The twin attack on the knottiest problems in the Criminal Code was announced Thursday night in the Commons by Justice Minister Garson.

All parties later approved the principle of revising the Criminal Code and the House gave second reading to a bill outlining the changes. Clause-by-clause study will be taken up by the Commons after the Christmas recess.

The House will adjourn until Jan. 11 after debate today on the government's proposed changes in the National Housing Act to provide lower down payments on new homes and a longer time in which to repay loans.

WON'T DELAY PASSAGE

Mr. Garson said special study of the four clauses, capital punishment, whipping, lotteries and legal defence of insanity, will not hold up passage of the new code. The present Criminal Code has been in force 60 years.

The four clauses as they now stand will be incorporated into the new code. Amendments suggested by the parliamentary committee or royal commission could be brought in later. The government would expedite any proposed opposition legislation stemming from the reports.

At the last session of Parliament, a special committee recommended that the four clauses be studied by a parliamentary committee or royal commission because it did not have sufficient knowledge to pass final judgment on them.

Mr. Gerson said the government feels a parliamentary committee can handle the subjects of capital punishment, whipping and lotteries but that it will take special legal and psychiatric knowledge by a royal commission to deal with the legal defence of insanity.

The bill was given second reading on the understanding that members were approving the principle that the code should be altered. When detailed study starts, members may object to or support the principles of its various clauses such as capital punishment, six other classes of maximum sentences and abolition of many minimum sentences.

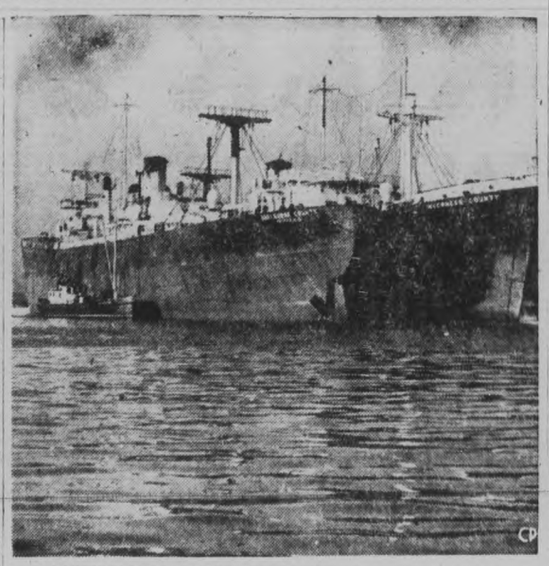
Canada's Merchant Fleet Has Hard Time



By JOHN LeBLANC

OTTAWA (CP) — After several post-war years of prosperity Canada's deep-sea merchant fleet has come upon the shoals of hard times.

High operating costs, stiffened competition from low - wage carriers and other factors, the operators say, have set up a serious question mark as to the survival of the fleet.

Anxious owners have taken their case to the federal cabinet. Last week, for the second time in a month, the government had the problem under onsideration but came to no decision on government action.

In their latest move the shipowners sought authority to sell most of the Canadian owned deep-sea vessels in view of a Nov. 12 government decision not to subsidize operations. The owners said the deep - sea industry faces insolvency because of government restrictions on how the operators may dispose of their ships.

MERCHANT NAVY HAS PROBLEMS—Canada's deep-sea merchant navy, after several post-war years of prosperity, is flying distress signals. The federal government is considering a request from ship owners for authority to sell most of the Canadian-owned vessels in view of a November 12th government decision not to subsidize operations. Two laid-up ships are anchored in Halifax harbor.

UNDER CANADIAN FLAG

Canadian ships plying the ocean lanes under this country's flag total 64. Not all of these are in trouble. The 14 tankers have a substantial trade that does not appear threatened, and the same applies to some of the dry-cargo vessels.

Another 92 Canadian-owned vessels are on United Kingdom registry, transferred in 1950 under a U. K.-Canada agreement when a slump developed. These can operate more cheaply than Canadian-flag ships, chiefly because they do not have to pay Canadian-standard wages, second only to those on United States vessels.

From the cost standpoint, the main argument of the Canadian operators for government help is that it takes about $100,000 a year more to run a Canadian-registered ship than one under U. K. registry.

Most of the difficulties of the fleet are in eastern Canada. Apart from tankers, only two deep-sea ships operate out of Vancouver, in combined cargo-liner and tramping work.

VARIED JOBS

Most of the dry-cargo carriers—34 ships—run out of Montreal. They go in for such varied jobs as passenger-cargo and straight cargo - liner services, industrial carriers and coastal trade.

Some of these are year - round tramps — operating without schedule around the world and picking up cargoes as they become available—and others go in for tramping in the off-season when the St. Lawrence river is closed by ice.

Another dozen vessels operate out of Nova Scotia ports—Halifax, Sydney and Liverpool — as industrial carriers for particular firms, coastal trading and tramping. Two more are based in Newfoundland.

The dry - cargo fleet employs about 2,000 persons, including shore based staffs.

Most of the dry-cargo ships remaining under Canadian registry—47—were bought from the Canadian government after the war. Virtually all were built by the government itself in its wartime ship program.

REASONABLE TERMS

They were sold on reasonable terms, in return for which the owners signed a so-called "covenant" that the vessels would not be sold abroad or have their registry transferred to other countries.

This first large-scale peacetime merchant marine for Canada since the years after the First World War thrived for a time. Ocean business was booming then.

Shippers were clamoring for cargo space. Britain's merchantmen, which for generations had dominated the ocean carriage business, had not yet fully repaired the ravages of the sea war. Nor had other countries' fleets.

BUSINESS DECLINES

By late 1949, business for Canadian vessels was on the down side. More ships were operating globally. Canadian operating costs had gone up. Currency restrictions hampered dollar-country shipping. And there was less total traffic available as the world appeared settling down into normal peacetime trade.

Transfers to British registry were then authorized by the Canadian government, which relaxed the no-transfer provision in an arrangement with the U. K. This was accompanied by a $3,000,000 federal subsidy—for one year only — to help operations of the ships staying on Canadian registry.

Soon after that, the Korean war gave Canada's merchant shipping such a lift that the whole of the subsidy was not taken up. But that now has worn off, particularly since the cessation of actual fighting.

In its first representation to the cabinet, the Canadian shipowners association—representing about 60 per cent of the deep-sea fleet—sugested it would take about $5,000,000 a year to keep the vessels in operation economically.

OPERATORS' CASE

It put up these arguments:

1. Up to now, the extra expense of Canadian-flag operation has cost the owners more than the original price of the vessels.

2. The Canadian deep-sea merchant marine receives no subsidies such as other governments provide for their shipping.

3. There is a "compelling" need for Canadian vessels in international carriage, both for use in an emergency and as a safeguard against "exploitation" of Canada's foreign trade.

The owners asked that, if the government decided the industry was not to be helped from the treasury, it lift all restrictions and let the operators work out their own economic salvation.

EASE ONE RESTRICTION

The cabinet eased one restriction. Previously, it had allowed some sales of ships abroad when the proceeds were put into an escrow fund to be spent in Canadian shipyards. Now, it will let the operators—when such foreign sales are approved—spend the sale price in yards abroad, where construction costs are lower than in this country.

Dissatisfied with that, the owners' association made its new representations to the government. With no subsidy in prospect, they want freedom to sell their ships or transfer registry elsewhere. Otherwise, they said in a statement, bankruptcy for the operators is inevitable.

Meanwhile, three of the ships are tied up and out of business. Five were tied up in recent months, but owners of two scraped up enough business to keep them going.

CD Commandant

OTTAWA (CP)—Appointment of Maj.-Gen. M. H. S. Penhale, Winnipeg civil defence director, as commandant of the federal Civil Defence College at Arnprior, Ont., was announced Tuesday. The college so far has graduated nearly 3,000 civil defence experts.

$25,000 For Cake

NEW YORK (AP)—A small town housewife from Webster, S.D., who learned kitchen artistry as a child Tuesday won $25,000 for a layer cake she baked. She is Mrs. Bernard Kanago, selected as "cook of the year" in a contest with 80 other women for Pillsbury Mills' fifth national bake-off title.

Don't Run Risks Lighting Christmas Tree

The placing of a powerful agent such as electricity in the hands of inexperienced people, old and young, enabling them by the flick of a switch or the touch of a button to set in motion huge industrial machines, flood a Christmas tree with lights or run an electric toy train, is the result of skilful engineering, strict control of its use and manufacturing of equipment which conforms with rigid specifications.

Don't say to yourself—it couldn't happen in my home. Beware. Christmas trees will burn —if they are ignited. Don't run any risks with the lighting. Select Christmas tree electrical equipment that has been approved by the Canadian Standards Association, and not candles for illuminating your tree and window decorations. Make sure your Christmas this year will be a safe one.

A fire hazard exists, when the wiring of Christmas lights is frayed or the bulbs used are unsafe or if sparks are created in connecting or disconnecting lights. Be sure there are no frayed wires, loose connections or broken sockets. Watch those Christmas gift electrical toys and your electrical appliance gifts. Choose those which comply with thhe safety standards of the Canadian Standards Association.

In decorating the home for Christmas, dont place cotton and other flammable material around the tree. It is safe practice to keep electric trains and other electrical toys away from the Christmas tree. Don't hook up electric toys near water, heating or gas pipes. If a fault occurse, a child might be badly shocked.

Six Made Line-Up

LUTON, England (CP)—Two is too few to form a line-up, say road safety authorities in this Devonshire town. Officials ruled at least six persons must wait at a bus stop before a line-up is formed.

TWO DOORS FROM THE ODEON THEATRE

Bethany WI Members Discuss Mental Health

BETHANY (ENS) — Mrs. J. C. Cummiskey entertained members of the Bethany Women's Institute for their Christmas meeting, with Mrs. T. Jennings presiding. Following the singing of the Institute Ode and repeating the Mary Stewart Collect and the Lord's Prayer, Christmas carols were sung.

The roll call was answered with a "Fift For A Korean Child" in place of the usual exchange of gifts among the members and it was decided to send a gift of $5.00 to the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto.

Several gifts to the new kitchen in the town hall were acknowledged and the secretary was asked to write several firms with a view to purchasing additional dishes.

Leaflets were distributed by Mrs. H. F. Rayson which covered a discussion of current misconceptions regarding mental illness, probably the least understood of all human ailments.

Mrs. Rayson also described "What To Do For a Sick Patient" written by a medical doctor. Mrs. Charles Reynolds gave a reading, "Christmas Discard."

REFUSES TO ANSWER — While her lawyer Victor Rabinowitz bites his nails, Sylvia Berke, a New York City public school clerk, refuses to tell Sen. Joseph McCarthy whether she had been a Communist. During hearings in New York, she refused to answer on the grounds that it might incriminate her.

PoW Campaign Seems Failure

By STAN CARTER

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Allied campaign to win back balky war prisoners appeared today to have collapsed, and an Indian spokesman said the 22 Americans and one Briton who chose communism are fully aware time is running out.

Two PoW leaders who conferred Tuesday with Indian Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya said it makes no difference to them that the 90-day period for interviews expires Dec. 23.

A South Korean prisoner repatriated from the pro-Communist compound today said, however, that three of the 22 Americans want to be repatriated.

Pfc. Kim Mun Du said most of the 77 South Koreans remaining to be interviewed also will ask to return home. He asserted the Communists deliberately stalled further interviews so the remaining prisoners would have no choice.

Kim asked his Indian guards for repatriation and was returned to the United Nations command during the day. He said it is possible that other prisoners may also ask to be returned.

Catholic Women Hold Christmas Party

MARMORA (ENS)—The monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League with which was associated the annual Christmas party was held in the Sacred Heart parish hall Sunday night.

Mrs. W. Forestell and Mrs. F. Reynolds said they made four calls to sick. Volunteers for the same duty in the current month were Mrs. J. A. Paquet, Mrs. J. L. Shannon and Mrs. E. D. O'Connor.

A donation of $15 was voted to Our Lady's missionaries and a further donation went to the Chamber of Commerce Santa Claus fund.

Mrs. Donald Shannon presented a crucifix to Mrs. W. A. Shannon, immediate past president, in appreciation of her leadership while in the chair. Rev. Father W. P. Healey wished all members a good Christmas and the president echoed his sentiments.

The program included Christmas carols and the legend of the Christmas flower.

Mrs J. L. Shannon was the winner of the whistling contest. As a duet Miss Eva Shannon and Mrs. Hugh Brady sang "A White Christmas" and "Winter Wonderland."

Mrs. Charles Brady followed with a reading "Your Christmas Tree". Some diversion was then provided by the Mocking Bird Silver-Toned Ladies' Quartette. Mrs. K. McCoy gave a piano selection. Heralding the approach of Santa Claus, Mrs. Ed. Warren read "I Believe In Santa".

The exchange of gifts was then carried out and Rev. Father Healey was presented with a handsome table lamp.

2 Killers Enjoy Doing Puzzles

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The Greenlease kinap-killers spent part of their time today reading wild west stories and working cross word puzzles, outwardly nonchalant about their execution early Friday.

Carl Austin Hall, 34-year-old playboy, and Bonnie Brown Heady, 41, his paramour, gave no outward signs of cracking before their death in the gas chamber.

They pay with their lives, side by side, a few minutes after midnight Thursday night for the killing of six-year-old Bobby Greenlease which they planned before they kidnapped him Sept. 28 in Kansas City.

The only enigma of the crime left is what happened to half of the $600,000 ransom paid by Bobby's multi-millionaire father, Robert C. Greenlease. The missing money, which Hall has insisted he had with him when arrested in St. Louis the night of Oct. 6, has become the object of an inquiry by a federal grand jury at Kansas City, the FBI and the St. Louis police board.

CNIB Appeal, Tag Day Nets Auxiliary $216

BANCROFT (ENS)—At Friday's meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to Canadian Legion, Branch 181, it was announced the canvass carried out on behalf of the National Institute for the Blind, augmented by a tag day conducted by pupils of North Hastings high, had raised a total of $216.

Two members of the group, Mrs. A. Towle and Mrs. B. Turner, have been appointed to the Hastings County Advisory Board of the CNIB and will arrange the packing of 17 Christmas parcels for blind folk of the district.

Parcels have also been forwarded to five local boys serving in Germany and Korea.

Bickering Dangerous Habit For Canada, United States

OTTAWA (CP) — A Newfoundland merchant warned Tuesday in the Senate that Canada and the United States are falling into the dangerous habit of bickering across their mutual boundary.

Senator C. C. Pratt, a Liberal, said during the throne speech debate that what is needed is a movement to put across to the people of both countries how they can be of benefit to each other. After his speech, the address in reply to the throne speech was adopted.

"In the economic field, reaching down to the average citizen, I think I can say there is a wall of ignorance between us," he said.

"There is undoubtedly the will to understand and there is a full measure of respect one towards the other. With that background, we have an ideal setting for the promotion of mutual interest in our trading and economic problems by organized effort in both countries."

He said trade relations between the two countries can never reach a solid, sensible basis unless the general public in both countries understand the problems involved.

"As things now are, on both sides of the border, we are growing into the habit of bickering but with widespread effort I feel we can correct that and develop together on a much broader and more fruitful plane."

HUSBAND CHARGED—Joseph Schreiber, 30, (right) has been charged with the murder of his wife and police said he also is being investigated for a possible connection in the two-week-old disappearance of Marion McDowell. Mrs. Norma Schreiber, 23, was found strangled in her Toronto apartment. She was a fellow-employee of Miss McDowell. Schreiber is shown accompanied by a Toronto detective.

Defeat PC Move To Broaden New Anti-Dumping Law

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Tuesday defeated a Progressive Conservative move to broaden the government's new anti-dumping legislation.

Members rejected two amendments by Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) to apply the measure to all goods, not merely manufactured goods, and extend operation throughout the year.

The bill would deal with sharp seasonal cuts in imported manufactured goods by providing for an appraisal for customs duty purposes. This appraisal would be of a "weighted average" price based on price for the goods in the country of origin up to six months prior to the date of import.

Provisions of the bill went into effect last Tuesday, aimed chiefly at cut-rate United States textile imports. It provided for a customs appraisal when import prices drop to below-normal levels "as the result of the advance of the season or the marketing period."

AMENDMENTS DEFEATED

Mr. Fleming's first amendment, to apply the bill to all goods, was defeated 87 to 39.

His second amendment, to delete the reference to season and marketing period, was rejected 104 to 32.

Mr. Fleming said that "astute" U.S. manufacturers could find ways to get around such narrow definitions.

The present dumping of U.S. goods was not confined to sales at the end of seasons or marketing periods. Some U.S. textile plants kept operating even after their own markets had been supplied in order to avoid the costs of shutting down. The surplus production was dumped into Canada, "the happy dumping ground."

Revenue Minister McCann said if members wished to adopt the first amendment, the government was prepared to accept it and apply the measure to imports of all goods.

COULDN'T AGREE

But the government could not agree to deletion of the reference to season and marketing period. The bill's aim was to provide for a fair and reasonable basis of valuation.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said the type of dumping dealt with by the bill was not the kind of competition which Canadian manufacturers should be asked to meet.

The government was prepared, if members wished, to extend provisions of the bill to all goods. It did not want to give the impression it was favoring a certain group.

NOT SAME THING

Mr. St. Laurent said, however, he did not think that any goods other than manufactured articles came under the situation dealt with by the bill.

Some members, including H. P. Cavers (L—Lincoln) and Charles Yuill (SC—Jasper-Edson), said the bill should protect fruit and vegetable growers from U.S. imports during their marketing season.

Mr. St. Laurent replied that he believed the growers would prefer the present system of seasonal tariffs on U.S. fruits and vegetables rather than protection under the new legislation.

Otto Spencer

BETHANY— (ENS) —Following a lengthy illness, Otto Spencer, 69, died Thursday night at his home in the village. The only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Spencer, he was born in Manvers township and farmed on the outskirts of Bethany all his life. Last March, ill health caused him to move to the village.

Rev. A. E. Harding of Welcome had charge of the service held from the United church on Monday and paid tribute to Mr. Spencer's long activity in Church work and as a good citizen and neighbor. Mrs. Clarence Rowan presided at the organ and the choir were in attendance. Mr. Harry Preston and Mrs. Wellington Fallis sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

Palbearers were Ernest Stacey, Leslie Challice, Walter Rowland, Mansell Finney, Milton Weatherilt and Milton Wright.

Bearing the many beautiful floral tributes were Earl Weatherilt, Allan Beer, Charles Preston, Norman Wilson, Wellington Fallis, Charles Weatherilt, Clarence Neals, Weston Hutchinson, Harold Kincaide and William Rowan.

Burial was in the family plot at Yelverton cemetery.

Immediately surviving is his widow, the former Winnifred Lowes and his sister Mrs. Lloyd Kennedy (Bena) of Bethany.

Cheques $25 TO $8,000 Await 58 "Lost" Canadians

NEW YORK (CP) — Fifty-eight "lost" Canadians, or their heirs, may be the surprised recipients of from $25 to $8,000 or more as bonus Christmas presents this year.

The Canadians are among 100,000 lost stockholders sought throughout the world for large corporations so that they may receive accumulated dividend cheques, cash surrender values and other stock interests due them.

The Tracers Company of America has accepted the task of searching for these people who do not know they have more than $3,000,000,000 coming to them.

"The value of all securities back to 1860 can be checked," Myles A. Barsily, manager of the company says, "and many of them are worth cash even if the company has been liquidated or has changed its name."

He reported that more than 6,000 persons have received sums ranging from $25 to $8,000 by asking Tracers to research stocks and bonds they had long since considered valueless.

Greene Making Broadway Debut

NEW YORK (CP)—A Canadian actor makes his Broadway debut tonight in a role that should come naturally to him. It was his real-life job for many years.

Lorne Greene, one of Canada's best known radio personalities and a news broadcaster for several years, plays the part of a news commentator—Katharine Cornell's leading man—in "The Prescott Proposals," by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse.

The play, produced by Leland Hayward of "South Pacific" note, concerns some recommendations made in the United Nations by an American delegate, Mary Prescott (Miss Cornell), and the complications that they touch off.

The play has just completed a two-week pre-Broadway run in Washington where critical reaction was favorable.

Greene began acting while a language student at Queen's University at Kingston.

Ex-Convict Admits Strangling Girl, 11

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Detectives say an ex-convict with a police record of attacks on girls has admitted he strangled an 11-year-old girl a week ago.

A soldier had "confessed" the same crime only hours before, but his story was discredited later.

Detectives identified the prison parolee as Robert Nelson Malm, a gaunt 30-year-old man who has served a jail term for attacks on young girls and a prison term for robbery with violence.

Malm broke down late Tuesday night after four days of constant interrogation. He was arrested after he was picked out of a police line-up by a 19-year-old girl who said he attacked her Nov. 28.

Steady Expansion Made In Britain During Year

THE CANADIAN PRESS
By GEORGE ABRAHAMSON

LONDON (CP) — After the adjustments of 1952, the year 1953 will enter British economic history as one of steady but unspectacular expansion.

By September, production was nine per cent higher than the preceding year and four per cent above the peak post-war year of 1951. There were fewer unemployed and fewer persons in public administration.

There were more in manufacturing industries, especially the textile and clothing trades which established a heartening recovery. Raw materials caused few worries.

The coal output was maintained at about 223,000,000 tons by a slowly decreasing labor force, and steel production rose to a peak level of 18,460,000 tons in October.

Highlights of the industrial scene were the expansion in house-building (more than 300,000 units) and the continued progress in auto production (480,000 for January-October).

Rationing and restrictions were progressively relaxed.

Price changes in the world market were slow in making themselves felt. British retail prices continued to advance until August, partly as a result of further cuts in food subsidies, hich now assume the character of producers' rather than consumers' subsidies. As well, wholesale prices declined slowly from March.

Though wages and salaries once again failed to keep in step with the advance of the cost of living, purchasing power was not short. Retail sales, stimulated by a 25-per-cent slash in purchase tax on many commodities, were better than expected. More money than ever was spent on non-essentials.

INVENTORIES LOWERED

Business firms continued to lower inventories wherever possible, and lisuidity ratios and profit margins improved in some branches of industry. In agriculture, decontrol made necessary a comprehensive policy review to maintain guaranteed prices to British farmers.

Foreign commerce was marked by growing competition. Import and export prices developed in Britain's favor; by September, import prices were nine to 10 per cent below 1952 while export prices fell by two per cent. The volume of exports was maintained while that of imports increased after the sharp contraction of stocks in 1952.

The advverse balance of trade—£500,000,000 ($1,40,000,000) for the first 10 months of the year—remained formidable and one of the government's chief worries. Commerce with North America was not unsatisfactory.

Relaxation of import cuts in Australia and elsewhere helped trade with the Commonwealth, but intensive competition by other European exporters resulted in lower prices and smaller sales elsewhere.

CURRENCY POSITION

Substantial invisible exports helped to improve the currency position. Accordingly, the dollar problem gave no trouble during the year. The balance of payments was active throughout, but the surplus was slight in the second half.

By the end of November, the sterling area's gold and dollar reserves had climbed back to more than $2,500,000,000, an improvement of more than $700,00,000 over 1952. Trade concessions were able to be made to the Organization for European Economic Co-operation and other countries, but convertibility still appeared far off.

The cut in the bank rate in September—by ½ per cent to 3½ per cent—reflected official confidence that inflationary pressure was subsiding. While the bank note circulation advanced in line with rising consumption, bankers' advances to industry declined and bank deposits increased.

MORE FAVORABLE COURSE

Small savings also took a more favorable course. New capital and loan issues met steady responses from large and small investors. Fixed interest securities rose by seven per cent. Ordinary industrial shares, helped by higher dividends, increased by 12 per cent on an average by the end of November, after falls of 1½ and five per cent in 1952.

Treasury receipts reflected the tax concessions to the extent that further reductions appeared unlikely.

The general outlook justifies cautious optimism as far as industrial production and investments are concerned.

There is still a serious burden of unproductive government expenditure, despite considerable economies, and the export position remains the country's biggest wory.

ESCAPE TO FREEDOM—This is the group of seven Czechs who escaped through the Iron Curtain to freedom in the vehicle on which they are posing after their arrival in the United States at Idelwild Airport in New York. The man (rear) waving his hat, built the ersatz tank. The group and the tank will tour the nation to solicit funds for the Crusade for Freedom drive.

Shaw's Last Play Job For Writers

LONDON (Reuters) — George Bernard Shaw's last play, unfinished when he died three years ago, may provide writers with the same fun they have had trying to write an ending to Charles Dickens' unfinished "Edwin Drood."

But there are only 16 poorly-typed and heavily-corrected pages of "Why She would Not—a little Comedy," comprising a rough draft of the first five scenes.

There is little great or even funny writing in the play—Shaw was 94 when he died, with nearly 50 plays behind him. It seems largely a reversal of "The Millionairess," with a man the money-making main character instead of a woman.

One-Year Sentence

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Melville Rowe of Niagara Falls, Ont., Tuesday was given a one-year suspended sentence on a charge of fraud.

Report Sale Volume Down 10 Per Cent

NEW YORK (AP)—Sale volume in New York City's department stores dropped 10 per cent last week, compared with the comparable week a year ago, according to preliminary figures issued by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The report Monday also showed that sales for the four weeks ended Dec. 12 were off six per cent from the corresponding period a year ago.

Store executives attributed last week's drop in business to the 11-day strike of newspaper photo-engravers, which ended Dec. 8, and unseasonably warm weather. During the strike the stores couldn't use newspapers for their promotions.

Lockup In Lindsay "Isn't Fit For A Pig"

LINDSAY (ENS) — Members of council on Monday night visited the town lockup, and their reactions varied from "filthy"—"disgusting" —"it isn't fit for a pig in here."

The cells at the rear of the town hall are for the detention of prisoners either after their arrest or while they are awaiting trial. Councillors viewed the small rooms, which they found littered with every kind of refuse, heavy with an offensive odor, and containing human refuse in tin pails. The cells were ordered cleaned up, by a motion, which also provided that no one should be incarcerated in them until the job was done.

Taxicab Driver Said Hostile, Case Dismissed

Harry Dunford, cab driver, and key witness for police in an assault charge against Geraldine McLaren, 26, of Bell Apartments, was declared hostile by Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, in the magistrate's court Wednesday. The case was later dismissed.

Patrol Sergeant Andy Dalton said that in company with Constable W. G. Scott, he had visited Bell Apartments at 11 p.m. December 5 to investigate a complaint made by Mrs. R. L. Bishop. On reaching the door of Mrs. McLaren's apartment the accused had tried to run out, but he had stopped her. Dunford had given him a paring knife stating the accused had tried to stab him with it. Dunford also told police that he had been invited to the apartment by Mrs. McLaren.

Sergeant Dalton added that on two further occasions he had prevented attempts by Mrs. McLaren to run out of the apartment.

Dunford told Magistrate Philp that he had had quite a lot to drink that evening and did not remember telling the police that Mrs. McLaren had tried to stab him. He admitted to having taken four bottles of wine to the apartment and drinking them in company with her and another man. Later they had all gone to a beverage room, returning to the apartment at about 11 p.m.

Then an argument had started between Mrs. McLaren and the witness.

"She picked this knife up and I just walked across to her and took it way," said Dunford. "She did not threaten me with it."

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw asked Dunford if he were telling everything that happened and reminded him that he was under oath to tell the truth.

Dunford repeated he had quite a lot to drink and was not sure of all that had happened. He did not remember telling the sergeant Mrs. McLaren had threatened him with the knife ,whereupon Magistrate declared Dunford hostile.

Under cross-examination Dunford admitted that there had been a "hullabaloo" in the apartment. He and Mrs. McLaren had been wrestling, but "only in fun." He admitted to having seen Mrs. McLaren since that night, but denied having been to her apartment again.

To defense lawyer Edward Fanjoy, Dunford admitted to being "pretty intoxicated" at the time and not remembering quite what took place. He also agreed that Mrs. McLaren had asked him to leave on several occasions.

Mrs. Bishop, also a tenant in the apartment house, said that she had called police following a scuffle she thought took place in the hall. She had also heard a man with a low voice say "Who's got the knife now?"

Dismissing the charge Magistrate Philp advised Mrs. McLaren "next time any party won't leave your apartment you had better call the police."

City Industries Plan Christmas Parties

A number of local industries plan Christmas parties for their staff and children Friday and Saturday of this week.

On Friday the DeLaval Co. Ltd., will hold its annual Christmas party at the PCVS auditorium and the Peterborough Kiwanis Christmas Tree party will take place at the YWCA.

Dominion Woollens will entertain tehir staff and families at Queen Mary's auditorium on Saturday as will the Quaker Oats Co., at St. Peter's Boys' elementary school.

Lindsay Reconsiders Maryknoll Agreement

LINDSAY (ENS)—Council were told that a land assembly program started by the provincial department of planning and development to tie in with the Maryknoll building co-operative scheme has forced the town to reconsider its agreement with both Maryknoll and the department in the light of the present financial situation.

Councillors were told the town's share of the services for the Maryknoll project and the new scheme had risen since the department began to take options on land near the Maryknoll property. The estimates submitted by the department for the servicing for the land on the development program were too high for council, members decided, and further investigation of the plan was ordered before action is taken on the services.

Lindsay Jobless Double 1952's Level

LINDSAY— (ENS) —Unemployment in Lindsay is about double the level of the same period last year, according to district national employment director, Harry Brown.

Some 642 persons are reported unemployed at the local office which covers Victoria county an parts of Ontario and Simcoe counties. The figure is blamed on layoffs at General Motors in Oshaw which have not yet ended, and seasonal slump in the textiles trad with several of the workers out jobs reportedly being from th three Lindsay textiles plants.

Director Brown reports the co dition is not "alarming, but sea onal".

THE TEMPERATURE IS 20 BELOW at the pulpwood depot and the water boy is making his rounds as the camp superintendent spells out "Joyeux Noel" with logs in the snow to get ready for the big Christmas celebrations. Millions of these four-foot logs pour out of the valuable Gatineau forests every year to make newsprint, fine papers, plastics, wallboards and many other products.—(Photo by Malak, Ottawa)

Commission Accepts

"If a special type of equipment is considered, it will have to be approved by the commission," he explained.

"That's all right so long as it's made clear we're not tying our hands," Mr. Raine said.

SAVING OF $11,709

Dr. Langley said he had noted in The Examiner on August 29 a saving of $11,709 was reported as resulting from placing the construction of the water main to Downer's corners with the Cornish company instead of having the commission do the work. Along with many other citizens, he wanted to know what would account for the discrepancy.

He said his notes indicated the estimates for the commission doing the work was $8,519 higher, rather than $11,709.

"Further , would assume that the cost of engineering and drafting was included along with the overhead applied to our estimated labor cost. If the cost of engineering and drafting is assumed at $519, we would have a final discrepancy of $8,000, nearly 60 per cent above the Cornish company price, which, of course, includes their overhead, profit and transportation of equipment.

"No report on overhead has been submitted to the commissioners during the last two years —but I assume that it has been carefully calculated for each department, also that the amounts charged have balanced the expenses fairly closely."

Mr. Powell said that, on a rough estimate, the actual saving was four to five thousand dollars. The company had bid $2 a yard for excavating against the commission's $2.50 and 40 cents for laying pipe against the commission's 75 cents.

"The basic saving has been in labor," Dr. Langley observed. "What we have to do is stop operating at a loss."

RENT BULLDOZERS

Mr. Powell pointed out that the commission had to pay rental of a bulldozer for such jobs and the company were equipped with a pipe-laying machine which cut down on the number of men required. But he said commission employees had learned a great deal frmo observing the company in operation.

"When we have to lay only about 500 feet of pipe though, and lay it when the consumer wants it, we can give better service by doing it ourselves," he said.

"I think what has to be done is to set a dividing line between what size of job we should do ourselves and what size requires a contractor with proper equipment," Dr. Langley said. "I think also our overhead is too high. Every labor dollar should have to bear the burden of all the additional expense the commission is put to by employing these men, including health insurance, supervision, workmen's compensation, depreciation on tools and so on."

Mr. Powell pointed out that the company had a profit-sharing plan which encouraged the employees to work more efficiently. The commission wasn't profit-making and he thought there would be no way of sharing any savings with the employees.

"We can pay them higher wages," Dr. Langley suggested.

Dr. Langley described his cost-reduction proposition as "wide open." It would include the suggestion system and stimulate rivalry among the departments.

PAYING TELEPHONES

Of his third proposal, Dr. Langley said the practice of paying six employees' telephones in full gave the citizens the impression the commission was being "very liberal."

Dr. Langley also drew the commissioner's attention to the report in July of Prof. J. D. Lee, which contained the following recommendation:

"It is concluded that the water is substantially active in so far as corrosion is concerned. It is felt that consderation should be given to using lime instead of soda ash for conditioning the water and that the ph (acidity) of the filtered water should be raised to around eight. This would help to lengthen the life of water tanks and hot water piping."

For a long time past, Dr. Langley said, Peterborough citizens had been under heavy expense, due to short life of galvanized-iron water tanks. "Has Prof. Lee's recommendation for alleviating this condition been put into effect?" he asked.

LENGTHY TESTS

Mr. Powell noted that Prof. Lee's report had been based on tests taken by a water-softening company. A previous report had shown the water not to be alkiline. He warned that the commission would have to proceed with care before substituting lime for soda ash in the water. Tests taken in other centres had lasted as long as a year.

"I think a great deal of the corrosion can be attributed to the quality of the galvanzing being done today," he said. In Belleville, tanks had corroded in nine months and glass lining was now being used.

The commission instructed the general-manger to obtain a report on the acid concentration in the water.

Dr. Langley's parting shaft was the following observation:

"I note from the papers that there have been two failures recently of water mains—one in St. Catherines and one in Toronto. Newspaper reports place the loss in the latter case at one million dollars.

"I am assured on good authority that neither case involved tranite pipe and I assume therefore that [redacted] failures of cast-iron pipe. It would look as though Peterborough citizens were being forced to pay about 1 per cent extra for a reputed infallibility that actually does not exist."

There was no comment.

Report Priest Safe In Arctic

CHURCHILL (CP) — A brief radio message, relayed along the Arctic's dog team-radio network, has brought word from the Barren Lands that a 39-year-old French missionary, unreported for several months, is safe at a northern outpost.

The Rev. Joseph Buliard of the Roman Catholic Oblate order was last seen by a mining engineer during the summer, making the rounds of his Eskimo parishioners. Much concern was felt here for his safety after a plan to send supplies to his Garry Lake mission, 1,200 miles north of Winnipeg, failed to work out.

The Rev. Peter Lessard of Oblate mission mailed a message to the CBC's "Northern Messenger" service which was broadcast from Winnipeg last Friday seeking word of the priest who has worked 14 years in the Arctic.

Before the message was broadcast a radio report came from Baker lake, 980 miles north of Winnipeg, saying Father Buliard is in good health. He said he did not need a plane load of supplies until next March.

Only Few Hours Ill Girl Dies Suddenly

Barbara Johnston, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. P. Johnston of Stratford and formerly of Peterborough died very suddenly on Saturday in a Kitchener hospital.

Born in Peterborough, where her father was manager of the Bell Telephone company, she left here early in the Second World War when her father was transferred to Toronto.

This past June she graduated from Macdonald Hall and accepted a position with a Kitchener insurance company. Friday she said she was not feeling very well and decided to go home for the weekend. Her mother came to drive her home and as they were passing the Kitchener hospital she collapsed in the car and never regained consciousness.

Death was said to be due to an acute virus affecting the brain.

She leaves her parents and one sister, Susan (Mrs. Douglas Ross) of Tillsonburg. The funeral was on Monday in Stratford where burial also took place.

KINGSTON (CP) — L. M. Loney, collector of customs and excise for Kingston, today announced his retirement after 36 years with the department of revenue. He joined the department in Ottawa in 1917 and came to Kingston in 1920. In 1945 he was appointed collector.

Lindsay Town Council Raises Horses' Pay

LINDSAY (ENS)—Town council moved an increase in pay for snow-plow operators on the town's sidewalks. Small plows, pulled by horses, are used for this job.

Council authorized a guarantee of $125 for the winter to each man on the job, instead of the $100 previously paid, and granted an increase in pay, making the rate now $1 per hour for each man, and 60 cents for the horse.

OBITUARY

WILLIS R. WHITSIDE

BETHANY (ENS) — Willis R. Whiteside, 5, of RR No. 3, Bethany, died in Toronto General Hospital on Wednesday following an illness of two months. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Whiteside, born in Manvers township where he had lived all his lifetime. A successful farmer and for many years employed by the township as the operator of the road maintainer and snow plow, he was widely known and highly respected.

The funeral service held on Sunday from his residence was largely attended and was in charge of the Rev. Lawrence Norman of the United church and Rev. T. S. Gault, rector of St. Paul's Anglican church.

Palbearers were Alban. Sisson, Herbert Neals, Roy Strong, Walter Neals, Percy Preston and Archie Wilson. The many beautiful floral tributes were carried by members of the Loyayl Orange Lodge of which he had been a member for many years. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery and the service at the graveside was conducted by the officials of LOL 1022.

Immediately surviving are his widow, the former Amelia Morrow; two sons, Glenn and Maurice, both of Peterborough; four sisters, Mrs. R. Stinson (Hazel) of Lotus, Mrs. Beatrice Muirhead of Jeanville; Mrs. L. O'Rourke (Etta) of Peterborough, Mrs. Earl White (Madeline) of Warkworth and one brother Stanley of London.

Traffic Offenders Dealt With In Court

For exceeding 30 m.p.h. in a restricted zone Don Dubay of Peterborough was fined $12.50 and costs of $2.50, by Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC in magistrate's court Wednesday. Fines of $5 and $2.50 costs were imposed on Frederick C. Denure of Oshawa for overtime parking and on Paul Spencer, Peterborough, for parking in a prohibited zone.

Ernest Redmond, RR 8, Peterborough, was convicted of being intoxicated in a public place and fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

No Benefits For Miners

TIMMINS (CP)—The 350 miners of the Paymaster gold mine, due to be laid off Thursday with the mine's closing, have been disqualified by the federal labor department from receiving unemployment benefits, Bill Shields, manager of the unemployment insurance commission officer here, said today.

Mr. Shields said this ruling was made by the labor department's chief claims officer on the assumption that the Paymaster closing is a lockout.

Charles Cook, mine manager, announced Nov. 26 that the gold mine will close Dec. 17 due to expensive operating costs.

Eamon Park, an official of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), met labor department officials in Ottawa Tuesday night in an unsuccessful attempt to get the ruling on insurance benefits reversed.

With Thursday's lay off, about 5,500 gold miners in northern Ontario and northwestern Quebec will be out of work. Miners from the seven other mines, however, are out on strike.

Policeman, Bandit Killed In Gun Fight

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A policeman and a bandit were killed in a gun battle early today outside a bar on the western edge of the city.

The gunfight occurred after police spotted the car used by two men who escaped Sunday night from jail in Savannah, Ga., where they were being held on bank robbery charges.

When police saw the car, the two men—Myron Goldman, 32, and Samuel Hornbeck, 34, of Louisville, Ky.—were holding up the tavern.

Patrolman T. A. Robinson Jr., 27, and Goldman were killed in the ensuing gun battle. Hornbeck was arrested after a 50-mile auto chase.

Arms And Legs Paralyzed Veterans Operate Chairs

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 18 quadriplegic war veterans—men paralyzed in arms and legs—soon may be able to move around under their own steam.

A new-type electric drive has been developed which can be attached to standard collapsible wheel chairs. The operating lever is so sensitive that body movements can manoeuvre the chair.

The drive was developed by George J. Klein, 49, of the mechanical engineering division of the National Research Council, for the veterans affairs department. A prototype has been successfully tested at Sunnybrook Hospital and Lyndhurst Lodge paraplegic centre in Toronto.

The veterans affairs department plans to produce 24 units, including spares, for the quadriplegics in veterans hospitals or at home.

The department said a limited number will be made available later to the Canadian Paraplegic Association. However, details of production for civilan patients have not been worked out. The cost of producing the drive in volume and installing on standard chairs has not been determined.

EASILY MANOEUVRED

The drive consists of a 24-volt storage battery and separate motors for each wheel of the chair. The control lever which can be placed on either arm of the chair, requires only light action and can be covered by the patient's wrist or wedged between two fingers.

By slight motions of the forearm, the chair can be moved forward or backward. The paralyzed arm can be moved by changes in body position.

The chair can be moved in whatever direction the control lever is tilted and can be steered in long gentle curves or turned on a dime. It has one speed, about 2½ miles an hour, and a moderate acceleration.

The control lever also serves as a brake. The lever returns automatically to neutral when pressure is removed, bringing the chair to a gentle stop. If an emergency brake is needed, the lever can be flicked to reverse.

The chair has a range of about 25 miles on a fully-charged battery and is primarily intended for use in hospitals where floors are smooth. However, it can be used on sidewalks or paved roads provided there are no curbs or steep grades.

A patient at Sunnybrook Hospital, Cyril Hutchinson of Toronto, 33-year-old veteran of the Second World War, tested the drive recently and soon was able to perform complicated manoeuvres with little difficulty. He is "highly pleased" with the performance.

CHAIR FOR QUADRIPLEGICS—Canada's 18 quadriplegic war veterans, men paralyzed in arms and legs, soon may be able to move around on their own in this new electric-powered wheel chair being demonstrated by George J. Klein of the National Research Council. Quadriplegic patients will be able to manoeuvre the chair by operating a control lever with slight body movements. The chair is powered by a new-type electric drive consisting of a 24-volt storage battery and separate motors for each wheel.

Low Refuses To Champion McCarthyism

OTTAWA (CP)—Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said Tuesday in the Commons his party has no intention of "championing McCarthyism" in Canada.

Earlier in the session, John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) made two speeches in which he praised Senator Joseph McCarthy.

A few minutes after Mr. Low's statement Tuesday, Mr. Blackmore tried to adjourn regular debate to discuss the "desirability" of Parliament setting up the "means" to determine whether any Canadians were working toward the end of allowing South Korea to fall under Communist domination.

Mr. Blackmore claimed this was a matter of "urgent public importance."

Speaker Rene Beaudoin said Mr. Blackmore's motion was "vague" and that it did not rate taking precedence over the "important public business" announced for the day.

Rising on a question of privilege, Mr. Low took issue with a column in the Dec. 8 issue of the Vancouver Sun written by Elmore Philpott (L—Vancouver South), a regular Sun columnist.

Mr. Low said: "I want to make it clear to him (Mr. Philpott) and all others in Canada that the Social Credit movement, of which I have the honor to be the spokesman, is not now championing McCarthyism in Canada, and not getting ready to do so in the future."

TOO SOFT FOR TRUCKS

The cold snap hasn't yet been chilling enough to freeze the ground and permit the filling operation at Gannon's Narrows to go ahead. Because of the weight of the heavy dump trucks, the two-and-ahalf-mile Harvey township road from the limestone pit to the narrows will have to be frozen to a depth of several inches before it will take the constant pounding of the 17-ton trucks. It is unlikely that the dumping can begin till January. 1.

Bomber Hits Houses Killing 17

14 Others Injured At Guam Base; Had Engine Trouble

GUAM (AP)—A homeward-bound B-29 superfort, forced by engine trouble to turn back, plunged into a military housing area and exploded today, killing 17 persons and injuring 14.

The big bomber dropped out of a stormy sky just short of its goal and smashed a fiery 800-foot path through the homes of United States Air Force families.

Dead are three crew members, five military passengers, six children, two women and one air force officer. Fourteen persons, including a woman, were injured. Two are in critical condition.

Seven of the crew and one passenger were rescued from the blazing wreckage.

ROUTINE FLIGHT

Only minutes before the crash the superfort took off from Anderson air force base here en route to the U.S. on a routine rotation flight. It carried a crew of 10 and six military passengers.

Fifty miles out the pilot radioed that the plane had developed engine trouble and he was turning back. He made one approach to the field but did not land. On the second approach the plane faltered just short of the runway and ripped into the housing area.

The crash occurred during a howling storm which forced the navy and air force to suspend temporarily the search for a big navy weather plane which vanished with nine men about 300 miles north of Guam Wednesday.

PLANES GROUNDED

Winds up to 80 miles an hour forced search planes back to their base and ships hove to, riding out the blow.

The B-29 destroyed eight houses and damaged six as it ripped through the housing area. The crash occurred while most air force personnel and their families were asleep.

The huge wing sliced through one house as the plane came down but Maj. Clyde Owen and his wife escaped injury.

The plane then hit the ground and exploded in a ball of fire, strewing wreckage along a swath 800 feet long and 150 feet wide.

THANK YOU SANTA—Little Linda, hugged tight in Santa Claus' arms, admires the ball Santa has given her at the children's aid shelter annual Christmas party Wednesday night. Children from the shelter, from St. Vincent's Orphanage and from foster homes attended and after a program of songs, recitations, magical acts and singing, Santa paid his visit, giving a toy to each. After his visit, the children, parents and friends enjoyed refreshments, ice cream and cake, of course.

Five Firemen Trapped In Blaze

CHICAGO (AP)—At least two persons — one a fireman — were killed and five other firemen were reported trapped today in the fire-swept wreckage of a small west-side hotel.

Twenty-one firemen and one hotel resident were injured. Sixteen of the firemen and the resident were taken to hospital. More than 40 patrons of the 46-room hotel escaped.

A dozen firefighters were reported trapped in the ruins when the front wall of the three-storey Reliance Hotel collapsed. All but five were rescued within a few hours.

START INVESTIGATION

Earl Downes, fire department lawyer said a note found on the body of the resident prompted Downes to start an investigation to determine if the fire was the work of an arsonist.

The lawyer identified the victim as John Tybor, recently released from a state mental hospital.

Downes said the note, scrawled on the back of a cigaret package, read in part: "I am really crazy. I killed 15 people. I also set fire to 12 apartment buildings. . . ."

The dead fireman was one of 12 reported searching the ruins for possible victims when the front wall of the building collapsed.

Tweed Clairvoyant Fails To Find Body

MARKHAM (CP) — A clairvoyant's "dream" that the body of Marion McDowell would be found in nearby farmland sent police on a four-hour search Wednesday that they called "a nightmare."

The clairvoyant, who had never before been in Markham township, came in person to direct the search. After the fruitless hunt, he returned to his home at Tweed, taking with him a map of Markham township. Markham is 25 miles northeast of Toronto.

Constable Harvey Cox said the clairvoyant felt with the aid of the map he will be able to narrow down the location so that in a week or 10 days he will be able to lead police to the exact spot.

Cold Wave Expected To Continue

TORONTO (CP)—Old Man Winter tightened his grip on most of Canada today and weather officials say there is no indication when he will relax it.

Although temperatures were 15 degrees below normal in Ontario, and southern Quebec and five degrees below normal on the prairies, only a few scattered snow flurries were expected in some areas. No bad storms were in sight.

Clear weather was recorded across Canada Wednesday night. It will continue until Friday night at least.

Coldest spot in Canada Wednesday night was Graham in northwestern Ontario, with 33 below zero. The Pacific coast was the warmest area, with a high of about 45 expected at Vancouver and Victoria today.

Temperatures in eastern Canada are about 30 degrees lower than a week ago.

Even Miami, Fla., was cold today. Few bathers were expected on beaches in 47-degree weather, 15 degrees lower than average December temperatures.

2nd Canadian Questioned With Gouzenko By FBI

OTTAWA—(CP)—Justice Minister Garson disclosed Wednesday that at least one other Canadian besides Igor Gouzenko has been questioned by the FBI in Canada in connection with loyalty inquiries in the United States. Mr. Garson informed Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) that this Canadian—he did not identify him—had been asked whether he would be willing to appear as a witness in the U.S. concerning a possible "criminal charge" against an American involved in a loyalty investigation.

The minister did not give the outcome of the case. For "obvious reasons," it would be "unwise" to discuss the matter publicly.

Mr. Garson said, however, that outside of the Gouzenko case, no Canadians have been quizzed in Canada by U.S. congressional investigators.

Gouzenko, former cipher clerk in the Russian embassy here who bared a Soviet spy ring in Canada in 1945, was questioned in Ottawa in 1949 by representatives of a U.S. Senate sub-committee. He is soon to be questioned again by another U.S. Senate sub-committee—the internal security group headed by Senator William Jenner. Gouzenko was also quizzed in Canada on several occasions by the FBI between 1946 and 1950.

ARRANGEMENT HELPFUL

Mr. Knowles asked if the government would disapprove of the FBI questioning Canadians in Canada on behalf of congressional inquiries except where special arrangements were made as in the Gouzenko case.

Mr. Garson said he couldn't add to his statement, which covered this point "very clearly."

Previously, in his statement, Mr Garson said: ". . . The police investigator of one country will never conduct any investigation whatsoever in the other country unless it is with the full knowledge and approval of the appropriate agency in the other country. . . . Our authorities have always found the FBI meticulous in this regard."

FULLY RECIPROCAL

The arrangement was "fully reciprocal" and proved as much advantage to the RCMP as to the FBI.

In the case of the unidentified Canadian, the FBI had conducted the interview with the knowledge and approval of the RCMP and with an RCMP officer present.

Believe Hulls Near Fort Remains Of French Fleet

KINGSTON (CP) — Historians say three wooden hulls unearthed near old Fort Frontenac may be the relics of what once was France's Lake Ontario fleet.

Col. John Bradstreet led a British raid across the lake from Oswego, N.Y., in August, 1758, about 13 months before Gen. James Wolfe took Quebec in the battle that brought about the British capture of Canada. Bradstreet burned the French fort here, destroyed its supplies, and, as he wrote later, "set fire to the vessels which lay near the wharves."

Two weeks ago construction men digging trenches for foundation piers for a new National Defence College building brought a power shovel down hard on one of the hulls at the point where historians say remains of the French ships ought to be.

Since then, in the 37 foundation trenches, three vessels have been glimpsed, with the possibility of a fourth.

SPARE LITTLE TIME

The contracting firm, with a deadline to meet, could spare little time for historical research, particularly with winter at hand. However, they granted a few days for workers to dig out one of the hulls. The battered bow of the most exposed ship was freed Wednesday and taken by truck to Fort Henry for further examination.

The three hulls lie parallel with each other with their bows pointed toward Fort Frontenac and their sterns extending into what once was a small bay. Between two of them workmen found what could have been a small dock—or perhaps was timbering from an old causeway that once erossed the Cataraqui River.

C. H. J. Snider, former editor of the Toronto Telegram and an authority on lake ships, viewed the find. He and Ronald Way, director of Fort Henry, said closer examination of the hulls will be necessary before identification is definite.

Historians say one indicaton the ships were built in the 18th century is the fact the metal fittings on them appear to be forged rather than machined.

Begin Choosing French President

VERSAILLES (AP) — France's parliament moved today to the historic old Palace of Versailles to elect the second president of the fourth French republic. There were indications that it might be a long process.

Eight candidates were announced to succeed Socialist Vincent Auriol in the seven-year post of great prestige but few real powers. There was a possibility that several others might enter the field, and also that a voting deadlock might produce other compromise choices.

Under France's multi-party system, none of the nine factions holds anything like a majority of the 946 seats in the National Assembly and the upper house, the Council of the Republic. Since each member must walk to the rostrum singly to cast his vote, each ballot takes about four hours. Two a day is about the maximum.

This time, veteran observers expected no decision before the third, or possibly the fourth vote.

Report Missing Girl Has Initials On Arm

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto police today investigated a report from a co-worker of missing Marion McDowell that the 17-year-old girl had initials of a boy friend carved on her forearm a few days before her Dec. 6 disappearance.

They quoted the unidentified co-worker as saying the initials were "K.M." when she displayed them at the photo-engraving office where she worked. Marion is reported to have said she had also carved her name or initials into the arm of the boy friend.

Two Toronto detectives are investigating the story.

Beria, 6 Men Confess Moscow Says

Special Sitting Of Supreme Court Will Try Plotters

MOSCOW—(AP)—The Soviet government announced today that Lavrenty P. Beria has confessed to plotting against the state and will go on trial with six key members of the police network he headed for 15 years.

The official announcement, published in the government newspaper Izvestia, said the Soviet state prosecutar has completed his case against Beria, Premier Georgi Malenkov's top deputy until his arrest June 26. Moscow radio said the seven men will be tried at a special sitting of the Soviet Supreme Court. It did not say when.

The government announcement said Beria and his associates aimed at using "the organs of the ministry of internal affairs . . . against the Communist party and the government of the U.S.S.R. in the interests of foreign capital . . . to grab power and to liquidate the Soviet worker-peasant regime with a view to restoring capitalism and securing the domination of the bourgeoisie (middle class)."

ADMIT GUILT

Beria, who headed Russia's police activities from 1938 until his arrest, was first deputy prime minister and minister of internal affairs under Malenkov. The internal affairs post controls police, intelligence, and related work.

The statement said Beria and his associates "admitted their guilt of having committed a number of the most serious state crimes." It declared that the former police boss had been committed for trial on charges of high treason, organizing an anti-Soviet plot and counter-revolutionary work.

LIST DEFENDANTS

Similar charges were listed against the six other defendants identified as:

V. N. Merkulov, former minister of state security and long Beria's deputy.

V. G. Dekanozov and S. A. Goglidze, both former ministers of internal affairs in Georgia, the native republic of both Beria and Stalin.

P. Y. Meshik, a former minister of internal affairs in the Ukraine.

L. E. Vlodzimirsky, described as the former head of the investigation department "for particularly important affairs of the U.S.S.R. MVD (secret police)."

Thaws Out Pipes But Burns House

ELMWOOD, Ont. (CP) — An Elmwood man thawed out his frozen pipes but burned his house down in the process.

Leonard Monk had set to work Wednesday with a blow torch to thaw out a frozen waste pipe. Flames from the torch licked up between the walls of the house, set it on fire and reduced it to ruins.

The Elmwood and Hanover fire departments vainly strove to check the blaze.

Elmwood is 32 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

Re-open Inquiry Into Mine Shutdown

OTTAWA (CP)—Chief Commissioner J. G. Bisson of the unemployment insurance commission said today a new investigation is being launched into the shutdown of the Paymaster gold mine at Timmins, Ont.

The commission has tentatively ruled that the 350 mine workers have been "locked out" as a result of a labor dispute and therefore are ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits.

However, Mr. Bisson said that as a result of representations made, the commission has decided to send one of its Toronto officers to Timmins to find out if there are any "new facts" in the case which might warrant a reversal of the decision.

The commission's ruling was based on reported wage negotiations at Paymaster, which a claims officer decided, had led to a mine lockout. However, mine manager Charles Cook announced Nov. 26 that the mine would close today because of expensive operating costs.

The Canadian Congress of Labor and the United Steel Workers of America (CIO-CCL) have appealed for a reversal of the commission's ruling, declaring there is no industrial dispute at the mine.

City Digging Out

SARNIA (CP)—Residents of the Sarnia district today dug themselves out of the worst snow storm of the season which dumped a foot of snow in five hours Wednesday, tying up communications and disrupting traffic. Most telephone and telegraph communications are expected to be in order tonight. There have been no fatalities or injuries.

School Girl, 15 Vanishes At Kingston

KINGSTON (CP)—City and provincial police are today checking into the disappearance of a 15-year-old Kingston girl missing from her home since early in the week.

Helen Marie Joyce, attractive third form high school student, was last seen when she left the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Lambert at 10 a. m. Tuesday on her way to classes at Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute.

Since then constant checking by local police here and provincial police detachments both in Kingston and Belleville has failed to turn up any clue as to her whereabouts.

Parents of the missing girl, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Joyce, at first thought it possible that their daughter might have returned to her grandmother's after school on Tuesday. When she did not come home Wednesday a check with school authorities showed she had never turned up for classes Tuesday.

HAD BEEN ILL

The girl had been hospitalized with pneumonia during late October and early November and she had been receiving medical treatment almost up to the time of her disappearance. Her parents think it possible that some sort of amnesia may have resulted from a fall she had prior to her bout with pneumonia.

Helen Joyce is five feet eight inches in height, has dark brown hair and dark complexion and may be wearing her hair in a pony tail. When last seen she was wearing an air force plaid skirt, cream colored sweater and brown loafter shoes.

Railway Strike Averted In U.K.

LONDON (AP)—A union-management agreement has ended the threat of a Christmas-time railway strike throughout Britain.

The two sides agreed Wednesday night to a sweeping review of wage demands by 400,000 members of the powerful National Union of Railwaymen.

The union said it will insist on minimum wage increases of not less than seven shillings a week. The British transport commission, which runs the nationalized railway system, had previously refused to grant boosts of more than four shillings.

The agreement provides for an immediate minimum wage increase of four shillings a week and negotiation of a further interim increase within the next six weeks.

Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton, who succeeded in averting the strike, knocked himself out of action in the intensive negotiations, his physicians disclosed today.

They ordered the 62-year-old lawyer to take an immediate rest to cure an influenza attack. Monckton refused to go to bed with the illness throughout negotiations over the threatened strike which would have started just five days before Christmas on all British railways.

Churchill Warns France Of Danger If Reject Treaty

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today he hopes the West will offer Soviet Russia security guarantees at the forthcoming Big Four foreign ministers conference in Berlin. Giving the House of Commons a review of the Big Three Bermuda conference talks, Churchill said: "I used the opportunity of the conference to emphasize the view which I expressed here on May 11 that the Soviet Union is entitled to assurances against aggression after what she suffered at Hitler's hands.

"I think I was successful in impressing upon my colleagues at Bermuda the justice and advantage of such a course even though Russian strength is so vast.

"It is my hope that from the Berlin meeting there may emerge some means to provide Russia with a sense of security arising from other facts than mere force."

WARNS FRENCH

Opening a one-day foreign affairs debate in the Commons, Churchill also disclosed he had warned the French at the Bermuda conference of the "gravity of the situation" which would develop over failure to ratify the European army plan. Churchill threw his support behind the position taken by U. S. State Secretary Dulles. He said:

"When the safety of France, indeed of Europe, depends upon the policy of the United States, all the possible consequences of abandoning EDC (European Defence Community) should be placed squarely before the French people."

Turning to Anglo-American relations, Churchill said it would be a "treat pity" if such relations were increasingly expressed in "McCarthy-Bevanite" terms.

Churchill referred to the anti-British statements of Senator Joseph McCarthy and the anti-American remarks of Britain's left-wing Socialist Aneurin Bevan.

"I went to Bermuda hoping to render ever more cordial and

Movie Fight Becomes Real Brawl For Trio

URUAPAN, Mexico (AP) — A movie fight turned into a real brawl today, leaving Gary Cooper, Richard Widmark and Cameron Mitchell nursing assorted cuts and bruises.

Cooper, who had a sprained wrist, a black eye and a cut lip, said he was just trying to make the movie fight look real and he had not heard the order to quit.

Widmark apologized to the other two in the same general terms.

"It was simple reflex action," he said. "You get hit and you hit back instinctively."

The trio was in a fight for the making of the "Garden of Evil" when the fight turned real. The 20th Century Fox cinemascope cameras had stopped turning but the battle continued. Widmark came out of it with lumps on his head. Cooper got dragged through the coals of a camp fire.

968 Car Fatalities In 10 Months Of '53

TORONTO (CP) — Officials of the safety bureau, traffic accident prevention division department of highways, today reported that 968 motor vehicle fatalities occurred from January to November, 1953, compared with 910 for the same period last year.

The bureau reported the Christmas-New Year holiday season as one of the "most dangerous periods of the year" for motorists and pedestrians.

Poisoned Parents' Drink To Collect $100,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Howard Fraden, 20, was accused today of murdering his parents, to get their $100,000 wealth, by spiking their champagne with poison as all drank a toast to his new job.

The case had been considered a double suicide or a murder and suicide for four months, until a girl started talking.

District attorney George B. de Luca said Fraden will be charged with homicide in the deaths of his parents, Dr. William Fraden, 53, and his wife, Shirley, 50.

De Luca aid Fraden nd a friend, Dennis Wepman, 23, an unemployed writer, "planned the murder of Fraden's parents for some time."

Wepman, also facing a homicide charge, made a complete confession but Fraden was unco-operative, the district attorney said.

Fraden was seized by detectives yesterday in his $200-a-month hotel room.

De Luca said Fraden and a living luxuriously on the inheritance from his parents, had purchased a Rolls Royce for $18,000 and planned to go to England to pick up the car.

Wepman was quoted as saying Fraden poured more potassium cyanide into his parents' mouths after they collapsed from the poisoned champagne.

De Luca said he also got this information from Wepman:

Fraden, falsely telling his parents that he had obtained a job, gave them the poisoned champagne on the night of Aug. 19 in their apartment.

The son, out of the sight of his parents, spiked their champagne in the kitchen and then returned to the living room to join them in a toast to the job that didn't exist.

4 Centres Help Village To Fight Fire

BURFORD (CP) — Pumper trucks from four community's raced here Wednesday night to help battle the worst blaze in 15 years in this village, 10 miles east of Brantford.

Starting in a 100-year-old building which was being used for a bakery, the flames destroyed the bakery and an adjoining butcher store. A barber shop next in line was also gutted.

No one was injured. The damage was estimated at $50,000.

SCARCITY OF WATER

Firefighters, hampered by a six-above-zero temperature and scarcity of water, brought the blaze under control as the flames were threatening the fire hall shortly after midnight. Most of the village's 900 citizens turned out to watch or help.

Pumper trucks were brought in from Woodstock, Paris, Brantford and Scotland.

Firemen kept the blaze from spreading to a block of buildings when they hooked a giant snowplow to a burning building and moved it into the street, making a fire-break.

The meat store, owned by Art Brooks, was demolished by the plow after being gutted with flames.

Smoke swirled through an insurance office of the Crown agency and the home of Mrs. Robert Carnrike, damaging the interiors.

Thomas King, proprietor of the bakery, and his family lost their possessions. They lived in an apartment above the bakery.

Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined. No one was hurt.

Telephone communications with the village, disrupted during the blaze were restored early today.

Most of Burford's firemen were at a turkey dinner at Brantford when the blaze started.

A call for help was broadcast over a Brantford radio station when officials feared the water supply would give out. Commercial vehicles with portable water tanks came to the rescue.

Recount Makes MacIsaac Mayor

ORILLIA (CP) — John R. MacIsaac became mayor of Orillia Wednesday after a recount of the ballots of Monday's elections.

After the first count Mr. MacIsaac was tied with U. Johnston, each with 1,227 votes.

The recount increased Mr. MacIsaac's total to 1,241 votes. Mr. Johnston received 1,228.

W. M. Cramp, mayor last year, picked up eight votes in the recount.

Judge J.G. Harvie ruled that ticks or check marks would be accepted. The customary mark on a ballot is an "X".

Indo-China Premier Resigns In Dispute

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP) — Nguyen Van Tam resigned today as premier of the war-torn Indo-Chinese state of Viet Nam and prince Buu Loc, Viet Namese high commissioner in France, was asked to form a new government.

Van Tam said he and his government quit because Viet Nam's chief of state, ex-premier Bao Dai, would not agree to his bringing into the cabinet nationalists hostile to the former monarch.

An announcement in Paris said Buu Loc expects to leave the French capital early next week for Saigon. Van Tam will remain in office until a new government is formed.

In a statement today Van Tam complained that Bao Dai's instructions had "almost always made it impossible" for him to work for the independence within the French Union which France promised Viet Nam last July.

One Brother Dies Under Tons of Sand In Toronto Sewer

TORONTO (CP)—Rescuers dug for four hours in a caved-in sewer excavation Wednesday night to free Mike Caruso, 24, but they could not save his 42-year-old brother, Guiseppe, found dead six feet away from him under collapsed planking and tons of sand.

The brothers, who came to Canada from Italy, were working on coinstruction of a 600-foot storm sewer along Fallingbrook drive in suburban Scarborough Township. They were alone in the sewer when a section of plank shoring gave way and loose sand pushed the plank wall against the opposite side, trapping the Carusos.

Guiseppe who leaves a widow and three children, was caught with his head between two eight-by-eight-inch timbers. For some time his brother and the rescue workers could hear him groaning

CHATTED WITH WORKMEN

Mike lay with his back and legs pinned against a two-foot concrete sewer pipe. While men with hand shovels and steam shovels toiled to free him, he chatted with fellow workmen and with members of his family. A doctor twice went down the steep incline to give him a sedative to ease his pain.

One man crawled 500 feet along the uncompleted storm sewer to move the pipe that was pressing against Mike's leg.

At hospital, Mike was found to be suffering from shock and exposure, scratches and bruises.

Cut 9 Years Off For Duguid

TORONTO (CP)—Bank robber Harry Duguid, 38, of Toronto and London, Ont., had nine years sliced from his 19-year total of jail sentences Wednesday by the Ontario court of Appeal.

Duiguid, who was once on the RCMP's list of most-wanted men, was sentenced June 15 at Welland to nine years for robbing a branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada at Stamford, in June, 1947, and for escaping from the Welland county jail in August of the same year.

The father of five children had previously been sentenced to eight years for a 1942 bank robbery in Toronto had to two years for a series of break-ins in Vancouver

Considerate Gunmen

AVONMORE — (CP)—Two considerate gunmen held up Merild C. Nesbitt and his wife in their home Wednesday night and escaped with $1,000. The men forced the insurance and real estate man to open a safe in his office adjoining the Nesbitt home. From the safe, Nesbitt's wallet and Mrs. Nesbitt's purse, they netted the $1,000. Before leaving, the men bound Nesbitt and his wife, but put a pillow under Nesbitt's head when he told them he had just returned from hospital after an eye operation and asked them to go easy on him. A neighbor found the Nesbitts 20 minutes after the men fled.

Norwood Church Rebuilding Reaches Bricking

The concrete-mixing machine has taken the place of the skill of the stonesmason to such an extent that in the planing of the rebuilding of the United Church at Norwood the stone work has been reduced to a comparatively narrow strip above the ground line.

The general contract is being carried out by Walter Mortlock of Peterborough at $70,000. Construction has reached the main brickwork of the body of the structure.

The old church of which the corner stone was laid on May 24, 1890, was built of stone quarried from the Norwood district. When the board in charge of the new building contemplated restoration in stone, they encountered costs and other difficulties of securing workmen. The result was abandonment of that general design. Mr. Mortlock's bid included the foundation but not the four-foot strip. For that detail the committee engaged Harold Simpson of Allen's Mills near Campbellford. He had several young men as helpers, and was also assisted in the capping work by Wiliam Garden and Sons of Norwood.

Competent stonemasons are few these days. One of the last of their craft in Peterborough was the late Andrew Webb of this city whose ability is set in the fine work done on Trinity United Church. The Rev. H. R. Wright of the United Church at Norwood, said today that the corner stone of the new building will be laid some time in the New Year.

Price Groups Mixed In Light Trading

TORONTO (CP)—Price groups were mixed in light early afternoon trading on today's stock market.

Papers, utilities, foods, liquors, refining, oils, man factures and banks were strongest industrials.

Base metal seniors led their group, lower with losses ranging to Noranda's 60 cents. Juniors were also weaker as chromium showed the biggest loss, 25 cents.

Juniors and holding companies were weak in golds, with most losses small. Seniors were stronger as McIntyre and Hollinger gained 25 cents.

Uraniums and Bathurst-area base metals were lower. All price changes were small. Gunnar's five-cent gain was the largest of the few plusses.

Pacific and Canadian Collieries stood out in western oils. Pacific gained 35 cents while Colleries lost the same amount. Merrill was down 25 cents.

Begin Hearing In Slaying Of Que. CWAC

MORRISBURG, Ont. (CP)—Preliminary hearing opened here today in the knife slaying of a pretty 22-year-old CWAC sergeant.

2nd Lieut. Peter Ernest Robin Balcombe, 24, of London, Ont., attached to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, appeared before a crowded court. He is charged with the slaying of Marie Anne Carrier, of Bienville, Que., whose nude body was recovered in a ditch near here Oct. 15.

Shortly after the trial opened, magistrate F. M. Cass dismissed an appeal by defence counsel G. M. P. Kelly that the trial be closed to press and public. Mr. Kelly had contended that a public hearing would be bound to prejudice a fair trial.

SITS NEAR GIRL'S FAMILY

Balcombe, dressed in his officer's battle dress and clutching his red regimental beret, sat only two seats from members of the slain girl's family.

He was on leave from Valcartier, Que., at the time of the slaying and was arrested while sitting down to dinner in his London home with his wife, their three-year-old daughter and infant son.

SAYS PRESS COMPETENT

Crown attorney R. P. Milligan, replying to Mr. Kelly's appeal for a closed hearing, commented:

"We have a competent press in this part of the country. There has already been widespread publicity to this case and there have been rumors circulating."

"Might not many of these groundless rumors be dispelled once and for all if the truth now is published as a result of what evidence may be produced at this hearing?"

Magistrate Cass said he agreed with the prosecutor that, due to the publicity already given to the case, exclusion of the press and public at this time might do more harm than good.

"I see nothing to make this particular case any different from other similar hearings."

lively the vital relations between Britain and the United States," Churchill said.

"It would be a great pity if this were to be increasingly expressed in what I might call McCarthy-Bevanite terms.

"It would be very discreditable to the English-speaking world and disastrous to the whole world if this manifestations were to be regarded as other than proofs of our faith on both sides of the ocean that in free communities, free speech—however misused — can find its own correctives."

Churchill said the first object of his Bermuda meeting with President Eisenhower early this month was "to nourish Anglo-American friendship and co-operation and that, I am sure, has been achieved."

He said he made it clear to Premier Laniel at the meeting, that Britain would keep her troops on the Continent "at least as long as the Americans are there."

PRAISES ADDRESS

Churchill said President Eisenhower's atomic address last week before the United Nations was "one of the most important events in world history since the end of the war."

He said he believed the speech might afford a chance for contact with Russia on the highest level.

"I fervently hope the Soviet government will not ignore this beam of light amid so much darkness and confusion."

Churchill said that if a "Bermuda" meeting of the great powers had been held in 1914, the First World War "might have been, if not prevented, at any rate delayed."

The prime minister said the Big Three discussed such questions as trade and "even such awkward personalities" as President Syngman Rhee of South Korea and Chinese Nationalist chief Chiang Kai-shek.

"I hope," he added, "I shall not tempt members to ask questions which, in the present circumstances, it would not be in the public interest for me to answer."

DISCUSSED ATOMIC PROBLEM

In addition to discussing the Trieste situation and Britain's oil quarrel with Iran, Churchill said he talked to Eisenhower on "a number of points about the atomic problem affecting our two countries."

"We in Britain have already discovered almost as much as our American allies (on atomic knowledge) and it is probably true that our Russian fellow mortals — because that is what they are—may well know almost as much as either of us," he said.

"At any rate, I hope that results will in due course become apparent which will bring Britain and the United States into a closer, more agreeable and more fertile relationship upon atomic knowledge."

Wheat Exports Have Declined

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's wheat exports have declined and her stockpile has increased.

Supplies on Nov. 1—aside from those required for Canadian millers—totalled 738,300,000 bushels, up 84,600,000 from 653,700,000 last year, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Exports in the first three months of the current crop year which opened Aug. 1 totalled 67,900,000 bushels, down 12,300,000 from 80,200,00 a year ago.

Heavier supplies not only were evident in Canada but in other exporting countries as well. The Nov. 1 stockpile in the four major exporting countries — Canada, United States, Argentina and Australia—totalled 1,813,600,000 bushels, up 378,600,000 from 1,435,000,000 last year.

CCF Leader Criticizes Stand On Mine

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald said today the federal labor department has adopted a "Scrooge-like stand" in connection with workers made jobless by the pre-Christmas shutdown of the Paymaster gold mine at Timmins.

"The run-around being given the men laid off by the mine is absolutely preposterous," he said in a statement.

The unemployment insurance commission has tentatively ruled that the 350 Paymaster workers have been "locked out" as a result of a labor dispute and therefore are ineligible for unemployment insurance benefits. Both labor and management say there is no labor dispute. The commission is opening a new investigation.

SEES NO JUSTIFICATION

Mr. MacDonald's statement:

"Here we have a situation in which one federal government department is refusing — on wholly unjustifiable grounds — to grant unemployment benefits to the men, while another government department will continue to grant relief to the company until the end of the year under the Emergency Gold Mining Assistance Act. . . .

"The Paymaster gold mine has shut down completely, effective today, Dec. 17. The federal labor department has ruled that these men are disqualified from receiving unemployment benefits on the grounds that the closing is a lock-out. . . .

"Paymaster has been laying its men off for weeks; this is merely the final lay-off. Whoever heard of a lockout by instalments?

"It is emphatically asserted by both management and union that there is no industrial dispute involved. Therefore there can be no lock-out. The mayor of Timmins supports this contention too.

"In the dead of winter, with Christmas just a week off, the federal labor department adopts this Scrooge-like stand that no unemployment benefits can be paid. Under the provincial Municipal Act the local municipality is not responsible for public assistance, and even if it were, many of the workers could not qualify because of residential requirements. . . .

"Unless the federal government wishes to convince every objective-minded man and woman of northern Ontario that it is working hand-in-glove with the gold mining management, with little or no concern for the welfare of the workers, some very hasty reversal of decisions will have to be made."

Red Die-Hards Hold Back PoWs

PANMUNJOM (AP) — A South Korean captive who fled from a pro-Communist prisoner compound said today die-hard Red leaders are guarding three and perhaps four Americans and 20 South Korean prisoners who may want to go home.

The young soldier said compound leaders have stalled Allied explanations to prisoners who refused repatriation because they fear "defections."

He named four Americans who might come home if given an opportunity but the names were withheld by military authorities to prevent possible reprisals.

Far East command censors later permitted identification of one, Cpl. William A. Cowart of Monticello, Ark., because of prior publication in the United States.

The Indian custodial command said meanwhile one of the 22 non-returning Americans wanted to hear "come home" explanations, but later changed his mind and now is standing with the others against explanations. He was not named.

RCAF Jets Have 37 Accidents In Two Years

OTTAWA (CP)—Associate Defence Minister Campney said Wednesday RCAF CF-100s have been involved in 37 accidents since the all-weather jet fighter went into service about two years ago.

Six RCAF personnel and seven civilians were killed in 11 major accidents and 26 minor ones. The civilians were killed in a single accident at Ville St. Laurent, Que., when a CF-100 plunged into a row of houses.

Of the 37 accidents, 10 were due to defects in the aircraft, seven to human error, two to faulty maintenance, four to other causes and there was as yet no final finding for the other 14.

Mr. Campney informed Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) in the Commons that the CF-100 had undergone minor modifications as a result of the accidents but there had been no major structural changes.

COMPLETE CONFIDENCE

The RCAF had "complete confidence" in the CF-100. It had been designed for a special role—North American defence—and was living up to it. There had been no changes in RCAF plans concerning its use.

Mr. Campney said the CF-100 compares favorably with other aircraft in Canada and other countries.

The accident rate had been "gratifyingly low" and every precaution was being taken in operation of the CF-100.

116 Labor MP's Back Churchill On Suez Move

LONDON (CP)—More than 100 Labor members of Parliament lined up today with the government in favor of negotiations with Egypt to settle the Suez dispute, thus putting an apparent end to a threat to the government by a dissident Conservative minority.

Thirty-nine Conservative members had rebelled against the government's policy of continuing negotiations with Egypt. And had the issue come to a vote of confidence with Labor lined up against the government, the 39 Conservatives voting against their own side could have caused a government defeat in the House of Commons—which would mean its resignation.

But Wednesday night 116 Labor members put up a surprise resolution endorsing the government's aim to reach a settlement with Egypt providing for withdrawal of British troops from the Suez canal zone base.

HAVE REINFORCEMENTS

The government thus went into today's foreign affairs debate, which was to centre mainly on Egypt, with more than one-third of the Opposition behind it. The Conservative majority in the House is 20.

The Labor resolution on Egypt came after the Conservatives defeated a Labor motion, 301-273, censuring the Churchill government for its handling of African colonial affairs.

The Labor party had expressed "grave disquiet" over the manner in which Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton had dealt wth Mau Mau terrorists in Kenya and administrative matters in Uganda.

The government also won a House vote Wednesday night on its controversial plan to set up a sponsored television network.

Little Hope Any Let-up In Cold War

By STANLEY PRIDDLE

PARIS (Reuters)—Atlantic pact chiefs left for home today with little hope that the forthcoming Big Four meeting in Berlin will lead to any let-up in the cold war.

Their final communique Wednesday night at the end of a three-day session declared Russia still aims at world domination. The West, therefore cannot permit any easing of its "policy of strength."

The idea of meeting Soviet strength with strength will be fully tested for the first time at the foreign ministers' conference in Berlin. Although the Atlantic leaders doubt that the Kremlin will accept the Jan. 4 date proposed for the meeting, they believe the conference will have taken place by the time of their next council session here next April.

FIRST SINCE 1949

It will be the first meeting of American, British, French and Soviet foreign ministers since June, 1949, when the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was only in its formative stages.

The 40 foreign, defence and finance ministers of the 14 NATO governments are pessimistic about the Berlin conference's date and outcome. They emphasize that the Russians already realize the Jan. 4 date fits conveniently into the United States time-table for obtaining congressional approval for the administration's aid appropriations for next year.

More Saucers Sighted Than Reported Says Expert

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON (NEA)—There has been a revolution in America's attitude on flying saucers.

That's the belief of Donald E. Keyhoe. It's based on changed reactions to his two books, "Flying Saucers Are Real," published in 1950, and his current best seller, "Flying Saucers From Outer Space."

Keyhoe, a lean, serious, sharp-featured individual, admits he was publicly rated a screwball after his first book.

Today, he says, due to what he calls a public conviction there's really something to all the saucer sightings, he finds himself generally regarded as an expert on the subject.

He's in demand for serious TV and radio performances, lectures and technical advice. Each morning an average of 20 letters are delivered to his home near Mt. Vernon "from serious, respectable and honest persons" reporting sightings and offering additional information on saucers.

"The thing that astonishes me most," he says, "is the number of persons who spend a lot of money to call me up long distance from all over the country to report sightings and other information in great detail."

If the flow of new information on the subject continues, he believes, he will have enough new material for another book, although when he finished the last one he had intended to drop the saucer subject.

The most impressive new information on unidentified flying objects which he has received since the new book is from commercial and military pilots.

Fourteen airline pilots have reported recently seeing unidentifiable flying objects "which are just impossible to dismiss," he says.

"One especially was from a captain who has been flying airliners for 15 years. He saw a light manoeuvring and flying around over Lake Michigan. We both agreed from his report that it couldn't have been anything we know about as natural phenomena or aircraft. An the other reports from these men seem to follow the same pattern," Keyhoe explains.

Proof of the importance of airline pilots' sightings, Keyhoe believes, is the new Air Force plan to have them report all sightings immediately, by voice. A new communications system is being set up for this purpose to take care of such messages from all over the world.

"This proves how interested the Air Force is in this matter," he says. Further, he claims, the saucer subject has suddenly become a very hot one among airline pilots. There are hostile camps of believers and disbelievers in the group, he reveals.

"Airline pilots now don't like to talk about their sightings in public for fear of bad airline or Air Force reaction," he insists, "but they come to me because they know they can trust me not to reveal anything they tell me in confidence."

Both the Air Line Pilots Association and the airlines have pledged the Air Force full cooperation in the new program on reporting.

Another impressive collection of evidence Keyhoe produces is a growing stack of letters from Air Force pilots. A great many add bits of support and new facts on specific sightings mentioned in his book.

Only a very few letters from Air Force officers challenge his premise that saucers are both real and from outer space. Many of them are sharply critical of the way the Air Force has been treating the subject.

A major writes:

"We do not report sightings because we know the critical reception we get when we do. The word is out that if you report seeing a flying saucer it could hold up a promotion."

Keyhoe now finds himself a sort of unofficial reporting point for all saucer sightings. "The commercial and military pilots, and ordinary civilians, tell me about these things because they have learned that I won't make fun of them and that I will try to put their information to good use."

The Air Force and Keyhoe have a kind of cold war going on over the question. He thinks the Air Force is not being frank with the public and is covering up what it knows. The Air Force blames the recent flurry of sightings on his book and unofficially thinks he has exploited the question beyond its true importance.

DONALD KEYHOE

Keyhoe claims that he has yet to get rich off flying saucers. He says he lost oney on research between books and that if he had never written on the subject he'd be better off today financially.

Looking to the future, Keyhoe believes the new Canadian saucer observatory at Shirley Bay near Ottawa should produce the most reliable new information. It consists of complicated electronic devices which automatically set off a battery of movie cameras when minute changes in gamma radiation, magnetism, gravity and other natural phenomena occur in the area.

In addition to that, Keyhoe believes that somebody should start trying to communicate with these things when they are seen.

He is convinced there are intelligent beings inside.

Nurse Finishes Course In Maternal Health

COBOURG (ENS)—The counties health unit here has announced that Miss Rosella Cunningham, senior nurse on the unit staff, has completed a course in Toronto in maternal and child health taught by Miss Aileen Hogan, Maternity Centre, New York.

It was given to 50 nurses, mostly from obstetrical departments of hospitals in Ontario to instruct them in the latest developments of training for child birth.

The material will be available to parents in Northumberland and Durham counties from all the nurses of the counties health unit, with the approval of the physician concerned.

24 Cases Of Disease Reported In Week

COBOURG (ENS) — Twenty-four new cases of communicable diseases were recorded for the week ending December 12 by the Northumberland and Durham counties health unit. Chicken pox dropped off to only three new cases. There were five cases of infectious jaundice, two of mumps, 13 cases of scarlet fever and one of whooping cough.

Sickness is prevalent in Port Hope, with three cases of chicken pox, two of jaundice, two cases of mumps and six cases of scarlet fever in that town. Port Hope has had a considerable number of cases of scarlet fever during the past four weeks.

Wanted In Mimico Arrested In Cobourg

COBOURG (ENS)—Said to be wanted by Mimico police in connection with a robbery there 26-year-old Raymond Pennell of Mimico was arrested Wednesday at Alderville by Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine and RCMP Constable D. A. Carreau of Cobourg. He was lodged in the counties jail here pending the arrival of a police escort from Mimico.

Good Neighbourliness—With Prodding

Canadian relations with the United States in commerce as well as in diplomatic matters are generally close and and cordial. However, even good friends can have differences, and when one is bigger than the other, the big fellow tries to get his way. This happened in connection with commercial flying routes. TCA wanted to use its Tampa (Florida) run as a connecting point for an extension of the flight to Mexico City. Powerful aviation interests in the U.S. persuaded the American governmental authorities not to allow TCA to use Tampa for this purpose. The Canadian Government thereupon played swiftly and hard itself. The Department of Transport told a couple of American companies operating into and from Canada that it was disposed to alter concessions these companies enjoyed. In this move on an aviation chequer-board, the pawns were wisely chosen. The U.S. has agreed to lift its restrictions on TCA, and the Department of Transport has halted its proceedings against the American companies.

* * *

Even when playing with friends, it is always well to keep a corner of the board free for counter-checking, especially if the stakes are high. The new joint Canadian-American Board of cabinet ministers which will consider and advise on economic matters affecting both countries should do much to make unnecessary such retaliatory public moves as were made over the air routes dispute. On the other hand, the affair and its settlement as now announced were no bad thing for Canadian prestige. The whole action shows that Canada has bargaining power, too.

Some Fondness For The Smut-Machine

In this day when newspapers have a livelier sense of fair play than ever before, and consider it their duty to inform rather than to misinform, they come under more severe criticism than ever before. The oddity is explained by this: readers of other days did not expect newspapers to be unpartisan or fair. One read the newspaper which favoured one's own side, and did not buy any other, except to damn its principles, not its practices.

This was punchy journalism and sometimes now when the going is dull, reporters and editors hanker for the freedom of fifty or eighty years ago, when one could sling prejudices and opinions high, wide and unhandsomely and still end up with a job, with readers, and without suits for libel. How tame are today's elections compared with those of two generations ago! They were vigorous times, although, one suspects, good government came despite the slander and smut, not because of it.

There were, it is true, a few critics of newspaper ethics a century ago. Mrs. Susanna Moodie, of Peterborough, Belleville and Lakefield, wrote in her book Roughing It In The Bush (1852) that:

> Men, in Canada, may call one another rogues and miscreants, in the most approved Billingsgate, through the medium of the newspapers, which are a sort of safety-valve to let off all the bad feelings and malignant passions floating through the country, without any dread of the horse-whip. Hence it is the commonest thing in the world to hear one editor abusing, like a pickpocket, an opposition brother; calling him a reptile—a crawling thing—a calumniator—a hired vendor of lies; and his paper a smut-machine, a vile engine of corruption, as base and degraded as the proprietor, etc.

Mrs. Moody continues her diatribe: "Of this description was the paper I now held in my hand, which had the impudence to style itself the Reformer—not of morals or manners, certainly, if one might judge by the vulgar abuse that defiled every page of the precious document. I soon flung it from me, thinking it worthy of the fate of many a better production in the olden times, that of being burned by the common hangman."

We admit to a feeling of mild annoyance with Mrs. Moodie's harsh words, for the Reformer was one of our antecedents—not in a direct line, but collaterally. Perhaps Mrs. Moody was irate not because the Reformer calumniated, but that its calumnies were not directed at the right party, and above all, not administered with the velvet glove of a refined, English-born editor.

Mrs. Moodie had a predilection for refinement, and improving or chastening the lower orders. Her and Mr. Moodie's Victoria Magazine "A Cheap Periodical for the Canadian People", and her essays in The Literary Garland "A Monthly Magazine devoted to the Advancement of General Literature" held never a word of naughty or nasty invective. We note, however, that these papers failed to survive many months, unlike more lusty ones.

Further, Mrs. Moodie's criticism must be considered only with her other disdainful prejudices. She was ill at ease in the vigorous world of young Canada, and so cannot be expected to have approved its voice—the newspapers of the time. Although she admits in her book addressed to British readers that "It is a glorious country for the labouring classes", she ends its thus: "If these sketches should prove the means of deterring one family from sinking their property, and shipwrecking all their hopes, by going to reside in the backwoods of Canada, I shall consider myself amply repaid for revealing the prison-house, and feel that I have not toiled and suffered in the wilderness in vain."

So much for Mrs. Moodie's opinions on Canada—and Canadian newspapers.

Rhapsody On Pie

We know many people who are partial to pie, but we have never read such a rhapsody on that theme as the following, which comes to us from the Cleveland Plain Dealer:

Of pie we sing, and of man's desire for more of the succulent pastry, that tops a blessed meal. For this is the season of the year for abundance of the special ingredients that go into superior types of pies: sturdy, unblemished apples, brown-yellow pumpkin and mysterious mince meat.

If womanhood is God's greatest creation, certainly one of her greatest products of wit and wisdom is pie. How to describe it? The flaky dough that serves as a lower support, but not an eavestrough for the juices that simmer down through the baking process; the tangy fruit—even nondescript pumpkin is a fruit when adequately prepared and spiced for its natural destination; and finally, the topping, whether more fluffy dough, meringue or whipped cream. These are the substances that go into a pie, but there is more to a good one than that, for the whole is bound together with the maker's character, self-respect and love of good things and good people.

We may be putting pie on a pedestal, when it deserves to be on the table, but at least we are not talking about pie in the sky. Those who do not realize that by putting it out of reach they would be undermining one of the more vital supports of the typical home.

When is the proper time for pie? Your real aficionado asks, when isn't? What does it matter, a pie-loving friend asks as he dips into a huge triangle as a midnight snack, what does it matter if it will keep me awake tonight? It doesn't matter a whit; I shall lie awake thinking about more pie tomorrow.

This is honest, and we welcome it, because it is contrary to the current trend of thought, which is strongly anti-pie. Doctors are against pie. Those busybodies who are not doctors but who assume the professional right to tell us what is good for us, the dieticians, are against pie. The people who are waging war on fat are against pie. "Heart disease claims its victims by thousands, but pie by millions," runs the battle cry. "You must shovel eight tons of coal, or walk fifty miles, to use up the calories provided by one medium slice of pie," warn the diet experts.

We are glad, then that the Plain Dealer clings to the faith which our forefathers reposed in pie. They ate pie for breakfast. It was the only dessert they recognized. They made pies out of the most improbable ingredients, including squash and persimmon. True, they tended to die young, of ailments to which medical science could not put a name. But they knew what they liked, and they could not get enough of it.

New Bullet, New Rifle?

Is the long wrangle over a standard infantry rifle for Western armies now to be settled by the Belgian bullet? Our readers will remember the hot differences of opinion which came from Churchill downwards and outwards during the last three years. The major countries—Britain, the U.S. and France—were agreed on the advisability of standardizing weapons, but could get no agreement on the basic one of all, the rifle. Britain long had the .303. So did Canada. The U.S. has its Garand .300. Then Britain developed a new one, of smaller gauge, said by the British and some others to be the best in the world. Canada was willing to adopt it, the U.S. not; but it would be obviously silly for Canada to equip itself with a British type which the U.S. did not, and would not manufacture.

The story that Canada, the U.S., Britain, France and Belgium are now agreed on a Belgian bullet—a .30 calibre cartridge—for small arms means that the wrangle is over, and a standard NATO rifle has been adopted. The situation now seems to be that these countries have bullets but no new rifles to fit them. However, they are at peace, and the situation is not as dangerous as that confronting soldiers in the line with weapons but no ammunition. Actually, NATO troops are well equipped with their own national varieties of rifles and bullets. The standardization long aimed at and now, it seems, effected, will mean that equipment can be interchangeable, and, most important, the ammunition will be readily available, when Canada and other countries get into production, to any member of NATO.

50TH ANNIVERSARY

How Wrights Took Flight

By C. H. GIBBS-SMITH, M.A., F.R.S.A.

(Ed. Note: Today is the fiftieth anniversary of the first proper flight in a powered aeroplane—it was made by Orville Wright and lasted for twelve seconds. C. H. Gibbs-Smith is an authority on the history of aeronautics. His books include "Ballooning," "Man Takes Wings" (written for the British Air Ministry) and "A History of Flying.")

"IF SUCH sensational and tremendously important experiments are being conducted in a not very remote part of the country, on a subject in which almost everybody feels the most profound interest, is it possible to believe that the enterprising American reporter, who, it is well known, comes down the chimney when the door is locked in his face—even if he has to scale a fifteen-story skyscraper to do so—would not have ascertained all about them and published them broadcast long ago?" These rash words appeared in a respected journal, the "Scientific American," on January 13, 1906, as a sceptical comment on a letter which the Wright brothers had written about the flights they had accomplished in 1905.

At this date the Wrights had not only started, but finished, all their essential work on the powered aeroplane. It was decidedly embarrassing for the local Press when these facts emerged—since 105 flights in 1904, and some hundreds in 1905, had been made at the Huffman pasture near Dayton, a field in full view of two roads and a much-used tramway.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS peculiar state of affairs derived chiefly from two understandable causes — the general conviction supported by eminent scientists and echoed by the Press, that heavier-than-air aircraft could never fly; and a grotesquely garbled account which an aspiring reporter had turned in two years before. He had pirated a telegram at Norfolk, Virginia, which was on its circuitous way from the lonely sand wastes near Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, to Bishop Wright, of the United Brethern Church in Dayton, Ohio. The wire announced the success of the bishop's two bicycle-maker sons, Wilbur and Orville, in flying a powered aeroplane on December 17, 1903, news of which the old man had been waiting daily.

There were then so many crack-pot inventors at large in America that it is difficult to blame the Press Association for taking one look at this telegram—it described a fantastic machine with one six-bladed propeller to support it underneath and another to propel it through the air—and issuing it to their subscribers as a joke. Even then, the world might not have had to wait long for the greatest news story of the century if another improbable collision of circumstances had not occurred.

✧ ✧ ✧

ON MAY 23, 1904, the Wrights invited the local newsmen to see their new powered machine make some flights at the Huffman pasture. The reporters came and looked at the puzzling winged machine of wood and linen; then the weather played up and nothing flew except the birds, so the sceptics went away. The Wrights were too absorbed in their work to mind what anyone thought, but politely said they would be pleased to see the reporters again to-morrow. One or two turned up; a flight was in fact started, but the Flyer—as the aircraft was called—had engine failure and scarcely left the ground. This time the visitors departed with final shrugs. They never returned, despite constant eye-witness reports to the Dayton newspapers of what was happening those few miles out of town.

The months, then the years, passed on; and by autumn of 1905 the Wrights had properly mastered the air in their third powered Flyer, and were staying up easily for over half an hour at a time, with perfect control over the machine. But the world knew nothing of all this; was nothing, in fact, to see the Wrights in the air, until the summer of 1908.

✧ ✧ ✧

EVEN to-day — owing to this absurdly strange story, and to the attention gained by the wavering start which European aviation had made in 1906 and 1907—it is not widely realized just what the Wrights did and when they did it. Even now, it is often assumed, sometimes by those who should know better, that the two remarkable brothers constructed overnight some primitive bird-cage contraption; tied on it a secondhand engine; and succeeded, "by guess and by God," in wrenching themselves free of the ground. The true facts are quite different.

The Wrights—Wilbur and Orville—were not the first fly in gliders and were not the first to build a powered aeroplane. But they were the first to achieve a practical aeroplane, one which could make powered, sustained and properly controlled flights. No one else had come within the pompous Maxim nor the stubborn Ader. Nearest to success had been Professor Langley, in 1903, but his launching and control systems were hopelessly inadequate, and his aircraft proved a failure.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Wrights' triumph depended on admirable qualities of mind and heart: on lively and original thinking; on tenacity, adaptibility, confidence, modesty and co-operation. As inventors at a time when the internal-combustion engine had been developed into a practical power unit for automobiles. Their technical achievement with their limited equipment was astonishing. They reworked and revolutionised all the known calculations for wing lift; they performed completely original work on airscrews; they designed and built their own petrol engine and airframe; and, above all, they invented proper flying controls.

Their unique contribution was the idea of "warping" the rear wing-tips in order to right the wings or to bank them, an idea suggested to Wilbur by the buzzard. Linked automatically with the warping device was a movable rear rudder; this counteracted the the bank and so could be used to take the machine round in a smooth turn. From this warping developed the aileron of today. For climb and dive, the Wrights added the familiar front elevator. This control system was the basis of their famous patent of 1906.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEIR preliminary work—in time off from the bicycle business—was done at the Kill Devil sandhills, south of Kitty Hawk, North Carolina. Here, in three seasons (1900, 1901, and 1902), they tested three gliders, and made well over 1,000 successful glides. After extensive reading, exhaustive ground and air tests, including many in their own small wind tunnel, the Wrights built their first powered Flyer and had her ready by the autumn of 1903.

They set off for the Kill Devil hills on September 23. After minor but time-wasting setbacks, a first unsuccessful test was made by Wilbur (who had won the toss) on December 14, when the over-sensitive elevator caused him to crash mildly. Repairs were soon effected, and on the 17th Orville made the first proper flight, which lasted for twelve seconds. Three more flights were achieved on that day—the third lasting for fifty-nine seconds—before the Flyer made a rough landing and was partly wrecked when the wind overturned her.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS HISTORIC aircraft was a biplane of forty-foot span, with a twelve-horse-power petrol engine driving two propellers, and an airspeed of some thirty miles per hour. The pilot lay prone on the lower wing and worked the warp and rudder controls by swinging his torso in a moveable cradle: the front elevator was worked by a hand lever.

In 1904, using a new machine and for the first time, a weight and derrick for assisted take-off from the Huffman pasture, they improved their control and performance. In 1905, as we have noted, they produced the third powered Flyer, an excellent machine with which they virtually completed their work.

Surrounded by spies, suspicions and stupidity of every kind and unable to gain even a chance to demonstrate their machine to the Government, the brothers then decided to stop flying. From the autumn of 1905 to the spring of 1908 they never once left the ground.

But scepticism was at last exploded, official interest at last aroused and it was decided to demonstrate in public—four and a half years after the Wrights first left the ground. The first public flight was made on August 8 by Wilbur near Le Mans, France: while Orville went up at Fort Myer, near Washington. "That Wilbur Wright is in possession of a power which controls the fate of nations," said Major Baden-Powell, "is beyond dispute."

GUIDANCE ON SCOTS

SIR: I notice an article in the Editorial Page of Friday's Examiner of special interest to Scots, Scots-Canadian and Canadians alike. I have the honour of being in the second category through the fact that I have resided in the country for the prescribed 5 years, and also have the desire to be known as a Scots-Canadian. You ask for guidance regarding some pronunciations appertaining to the Scots. I venture the liberty of offering my help by right of my parentage, and the fact that it is possible, there still linger some traces of heather in the folds of my tweeds.

To speak "broad" Scotch one would say "Dalhoosie" when refering to Dalhousie, and Auchenleck is pronounced as it is written with a definite "ich" if and only if one possesses a Scotch "burr" can this be successfully spoken, at least I have yet to hear a "Sassenach" who can "ich" their "chs" in correct style, no one to the loss of a Scot can imitate successfully the Scotish accent. It causes me to shudder when I hear "R's" being rolled as though the speaker had swallowed a rat and desired it to be known at every turn of speech. To conclude Kirkcudlright is definitely "Kincoabry" to all true sons of Scotia. Note: broad, not braid is the term we use, a "braid" in Scots is either a reference to a lasses' style of hairdressing or the name of a range of hills, near my native Edinburgh. I hope I have helped enlighten those who desire enlightenment.

Sincerely yours,
"A TRUE SCOTTY"

ALNWICK HOMEMAKER'S CLUB

SIR: I would like to correct an error in your paper of Saturday, December 12th, as reported by Mr. Nick Nickels, in which he states that there is no Homemaker's Club in the Alnwick Reserve. I beg to differ, we do have a club, in fact, our latest meeting was held on December 9th of last week with eleven members and one visitor in attendance. Our club was organized in October, 1947, with twelve ladies present. Though we have since lost three original members through death, and several others have moved away. New members have joined up to fill the gaps.

Without going into details, I can assure you that our club has been quite active and done a large amount of good work especially in the early years, before the other provincial clubs were able to take over, the cutting and sewing of pyjamas and other garments for hospitals.

I am sure that with the kitchen facilities available in the new hall, which Mr. Nickels so kindly refers to, our club should have a bright and wonderful future.

And last I would like to mention that Mr. H. Lander of Coldsprings was in charge of decorating the United church at Alderville and has put more time, and care, into his work than just the ordinary fulfilling of a contract.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. JACK SIMPSON,
President of Homemaker's Club.

KINDLY OFFER

SIR: You may have read recently of the opening of the Air Force Memorial at Runnyside, England, by H.M. the Queen. In the cloisters of the memorial are the names of all men who served in the air forces of the British Commonwealth and Empire from 1939 to 1945 and have no known grave.

I visited this memorial on Remembrance Sunday and found the name of Jack Arundel, son of Mrs. Bingham, a resident of Peterborough, and a personal friend and schoolmate.

It is my desire to invite any reader of the Examiner who may have lost a loved one under the same circumstance and whose name is inscribed there, to write me personally at the above address.

I will endeavour to send them a photograph of the actual inscription if they give me the year of death, rank and full initials.

I am a Canadian by birth, living in Peterborough and Millbrook for fifteen years before coming to England with my mother and father. The tie is still strong and it is because of my love for Canada and even more my deep sympathy for those whose loved ones have no stone to mark their grave on earth but a very special place in the heart of God and their people that I do this.

With best wishes to you all for a very happy Christmas and a peaceful New Year,

Yours most sincerely,
JOAN BOND (nee Deyell),
88 Hamilton Road,
West Norwood,
London, S.E. 27,
England.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

For, lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, The Lord, The God of hosts, is his name. (Amos 4:13.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And God said, Let there be lights in the firmament of the heaven to divide the day from the night; and let them be for signs, and for seasons, and for days and years: and let them be for lights in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth: and it was so.

And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night: he made the stars also. And God sent them in the firmament of the heaven to give light upon the earth, and to rule over the day and over the darkness: and God saw that it was good. And the evening and the morning were the fourth day. (Gen 1:14-19.)

✧ ✧ ✧

O give thanks unto the Lord: for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever . . . To him who alone doeth great wonders: for his mercy endureth for ever . . . To him that made great lights: for his mercy endureth for ever: the sun to rule by day: for his mercy endureth for ever: the moon and the stars to rule by night: for his mercy endureth for ever. (Ps. 136:1, 4, 7-9.)

Praise Acting Drama Critics In New Play

NEW YORK (CP)—New York drama critics had praise today for the acting in Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse's new vehicle "The Prescott Proposals," which opened at the Broadhurst Theatre Wednesday night, and most of them liked the play too.

The drama about United Nations delegates in New York is largely a vehicle for Katherine Cornell, with Lorne Greene, the Canadian radio commentator, playing a real-life role as her leading man. The critics were unanimous in their verdicts on Miss Cornell's magnificent acting, and Greene, who plays a radio commentator, also drew praise.

Walter F. Kerr of the Herald Tribune said Greene was "straightforward as a bulldog commentator," while The Times' Brooks Atkinson wrote of the "able performance by Lorne Greene as a supernatural radio commentator who knows all, sees all and falls in love like other mortals."

Atkinson called the play itself an "exciting piece of work. . . well planned, well staged and well acted." Kerr wrote: "Once you have granted the papier-mache plotting, . . 'The Prescott Proposals' is left with a certain good-natured old-world charm of its own."

After the opening Greene called the debut "an exhilarating experience" and "working with Miss Cornell—with all of them—is absolutely wonderful."

As Mary Prescott, UN delegate from the United States, Miss Cornell in the play is out to win some justice for people who continue to seek freedom and, from her personal viewpoint, to win a man she loves.

Despite her position, she is impeded by a former lover who comes in and falls dead from heart failure in her bedroom. The dead man has been a Czechoslovakian delegate to the UN. So, as a responsible delegate from the U.S., Miss Cornell must keep secret the tragedy in her bedroom just at the time when the Russian delegate calls upon her.

Mrs. W. G. Waterman Elected President

FRASERVILLE (ENS) — W. A. S. Fraserville Annual meeting and installation of offciers was held at the parsonage at Bailieboro. President, Mrs. Waterman, presided for devotional hour and business period.

Several Christmas carols were sung with Mrs. Finlay pianist. A reading "They Found the Christ" was given by Mrs. E. Clarke. Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Steward. A duet by Mrs. P. Moncrief and Mrs. R. Finlay. Mrs. Lackey led in prayer.

Words of appreciation to the president and executive were expressed by Mrs. Finlay.

Rev. D. Yarr presided for the election of officers for 1954.

Refuse Dummer Fire Protection

LAKEFIELD—(ENS)—The village is to have some new snow removal equipment, and the action of the streets' committee to obtain it was confirmed at the recent meeting of the council. A tractor and snow blower will be purchased on the following terms: $800 on the tractor and $275 for the snowblower after the machines have had a thorough trial and proven satisfactory. The remaining $800 will be paid in 90 days.

The committee was also authorized to purchase a loader chute for the blower, providing the blower proves satisfactory, cost not to exceed $75. This action, the council feels, will make the removal of snow from sidewalks a much easier matter. The tractor will also have many other uses in village work.

A request for fire protection for Dummer township was turned down by council and the clerk asked to inform Dummer of the decision. It was felt that since the village has only a volunteer fire brigade and insufficient equipment the policy would not be wise.

The council refused to pay for the tile under the second culvert at the Hendren funeral home on the grounds that it has not been the policy to provide second culverts to citizens.

The village will not sell the piece of land on Concession Street on which the building owned by Mrs. William Shannon encroaches as it will set a precedent in such cases.

A letter will be sent to John G. Bell requesting him to remove his fences from the village property on Water Street.

Boxing Day, December 26, was reclared a holiday in the village.

The finance committee recommended payment of accounts totalling $17,525.55.

Nurse Shows Parents Dental Improvements

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — The Lakefield public and high school Home and School Association held their December meeting. The program took the form of a Christmas concert, the teachers of each room preparing portions of it.

The mothers of Mr. Wannamaker's room were hostesses to the children while the parents sang carols led by Mr. Wannamaker with Mrs. T. Payton, convener of the program at the piano. Mrs. C. Coons gave a reading on Christmas legends.

Mrs. W. Hendren, school nurse, spoke on the dental charts recently purchased by the association and showed the marked improvement in dental health each year. In 1948-49 of 266 pupils only 54 had no dental defects. The latest charts show that of 285 pupils, 116 had no such defects.

The mothers of Mrs. Hobden's room were hostesses for the social half hour at the close of the meeting.

The following children took part in the program: Miss Kidd's room, Billie Gastle, Pat Wannamaker, Jacqueline Cocks, Pamela Jessup, Lola Neill, Wayne Moore and Cherril Myers. From Mrs. Watt's room, Norman Bean, Cheryle Canning, Billie McFadden, Sharon Hollingshead, Paul Kennedy, Paul Davidson, Barbara Lean, Vera Crapp, Garry King, Mollie Hall; Miss Benton's room, Mello Wickett, Linda Farrow, Sharon Dracup, Brenda Trude, Ronnie Bailey, Georgie Jackman, Janet Twist.

From Miss Beavis' Room 17 children gave a good demonstration of kitchen rhythm band. Carol Newson of Miss Madill's room gave a recitation and Gloria Carey of Mrs. Hobden's room played a piano solo. From Mr. Wannamaker's room were Betty Payton, Carolyn Northey, Linda Webster, Eleanor Quackenbush, Jackie Brattain.

The pupils of Mr. Paterson's room enacted a Christmas play with Evelyn Whetung, Helen Ross, Barbara Hollingshead, Godfrey Cooper, Garry Spencer, Douglas Sheppard, Carol Hudson and Carl Kennedy taking part. From Principal E. G. Sloan's room Margaret Richardson gave a speech and David Payton, Donald Webster and Bill Hunter sang.

Silas Henry Pearson

LAKEFIELD—(ENS)—Funeral services for Silas Henry Pearson of R.R. 1, Lakefield, who died in Peterborough hospital on Sunday, was held from the Hendren funeral home on Tuesday afternoon.

Pallbearers were: Hilliard McCracken, Ray Pearson, Harold Mesley, Reginald Pearson, Clifford Pearson and Ollie Pearson.

The service was conducted by Kenneth Stewart of Wesley United Church, of which the deceased was a member. Burial was in Lakefield cemetery.

Hen Works Overtime

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A pullet on a Willoughby farm near here is speeding up production by laying two eggs at a time—both in the same package. Twice during the last 10 days the hen has laid eggs eight inches in circumference one way and 9¼ inches the other. The normal contents of an egg were found inside the shell, together with a complete egg of average pullet size.

RCN Gets Minesweeper

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Canadian Navy Wednesday accepted delivery of HMCS Thunder, one of 14 minesweepers being built at St. Lawrence river ports as part of Canada's contribution to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The 150-foot vessel was formally handed over by Col. O. H. Barrett, president of Canadian Vickers, to Cmdr. P. S. Booth of Ottawa, representing the chief of naval staff.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Talking to Jack Devine the other day and the conversation turned to baseball. Rather unseasonable for such a subject, especially in a hockey rink, but Jack (here with the Belleville team to broadcast the game) likes the diamond sport. He is a former secretary-treasurer of the defunct Central Ontario Baseball League. Devine would like to see a revival of the COBL next spring, and plans to have a meeting called in January. Representatives will be invited from Peterborough, Oshawa, Kingston and Belleville, and he hopes to have these four clubs back in oldtime rivalry once more. Well, it certainly is worth a try, and local ball officials should be interested.

* * * * * *

Kingston carried on with a senior city league last summer, and might well be anxious to field a team in a four-club COBL next summer. Jack says he's heard from Oshawa officials and a lot of people there (including some businessmen who helped back last year's team) are fed up on semi-pro play in the Inter-county League, and would like to get back to less expensive ball closer to home. Things are pretty quiet in Belleville, but they might perk up enough interest to put in an entry in the Central Loop. We think the Petes could get going again, using half a dozen of their veterans, the pick of the ex-juniors and several of the senior "B" puck imports, who have also played senior ball. It's worth thinking over during the next several weeks.

* * * * * *

What'll They do Next?

An item in the Windsor paper says new laminated bats recently were approved for organized baseball in the States by the Rules Committee. The major leagues haven't adopted it, but colleges and other amateur organizations figure these bats will outlast a solid ash weapon two to three times, and therefore will save them money. The laminating is done by glueing strips of hickory together, five pieces, and shaping them. Laminated bats prevent chipping and splintering as the grain is turned. They can be made a suitable weight and balance. Along this line, we wonder that tougher hockey sticks aren't manufactured as teams lose a number through breakage every game, and it runs into considerable money in a season.

* * * * * *

Midland and the Young Petes tangle tomorrow (Friday) night at 8:30 in Civic Arena, a scheduled OHA junior "B" fixture. Coach Roy Conacher's northern crew will be out to square accounts with Red Creighton's crowd in this, as they staged quite a sizzler last time in Midland. Locals have been going good in recent tilts and deserve plenty of fan support. And it's "father and son night", a raft of boys and girls will be on deck, no doubt, getting in free if accompanied by parents. A door prize for adults and three good draw prizes for the kids. Medal presentation to Bud McDougall, too. All this, plus a speedy puck struggle—so the place should be filled Friday e'en.

Lot of it Plain Luck

No set pattern is set by most good NHL scorers, says Johnny Peirson of Boston Bruins in a recent item. He has averaged close to 20 goals each of the past five seasons, and that's rated a very good mark in the major hockey circuit. "The closest thing to a set rule for scoring is for a player to station himself in front of the net," the Boston winger remarked. "It doesn't matter what pattern you follow in scoring goals, one of the biggest and most important parts is luck." Much truth to that, but certain aces have their pet methods of getting in there and unloading to light the lamp. Bob Greenlaw and Honey Tompkins are two former senior stars here who had specialties, as many fans will recall. And they sure got their share of goals.

* * * * * *

Unless it's blood and thunder every minute of the bout, some mat fans can't get excited. They're so used to redhot action from start to finish that they look for a steady diet of this. Personally, we liked the semi-final bout of the card here last eve when Tim Geohagen and Pat Flanagan drew in a fast, clean and scientific display. They certainly showed a lot of holds in the process—and they stuck to the code. Both are clever grapplers, with Tim being a bit the stronger. The main bout wound up in a draw when time ran out on them. 'Twas Ilio DiPaolo and Hombre Montana, the people's choice, 'gainst bad-tempered Fred Atkins and sly Athol Layton. A mean pair, but they got their come-uppance at times, too. Tony Martinelli took the prelim when Alan Garfield roughed Ref Sam Gotter once too often.

CAMERA TROUBLE—Kansas University, Kan., distance runner Wes Santee looks at a camera, the cause of all his troubles. The Amateur Athletic Union is investigating him for alleged violations of amateur rules stemming from his request that prizes won during a German tour last summer be pooled into one prize, a camera. AAU officials admitted that the charge of amateur rule violations bars Santee from consideration for its highest award, the Sullivan Prize.

Yankeees Acquire Robinson In 11-Player League Deal

NEW YORK (AP)—In an 11-player deal, the world champion New York Yankees Wednesday acquired first baseman Eddie Robinson and pitcher Harry Byrd from Philadelphia Athletics in exchange for Negro first baseman Vic Powers, outfielder Bill Renna and first baseman Don Bollweg.

The trade, greatest numerically in Yankee history, also involved the Yankees' Kansas City farm of the American Association and the return of $25,000 to the Athletics in the sale of third baseman Loren Babe last year.

Besides the main five, here are the other players involved in the transaction:

The A's sent Babe, first baseman Tom Hamilton and outfielder Carmen Mauro to Kansas City.

In return the A's got catcher Al Robertson, who played with Kansas City and Syracuse, pitcher John Gray of Kansas City and third baseman Jim Finnegan of Binghamton of the Eastern League.

TWO OPTIONED

In addition the Yankees said they would option two Kansas City players to Ottawa, Philadelphia's International League farm. The Yanks said they would retain possession of the players.

The Yankees sold Babe last April to the A's for $25,000 and as part of Wednesday's deal the Yankees will return the money.

Although Earle Mack, Philadelphia vice-president, called it "a wonderful deal for us," there wasn't the slightest doubt that the Yankees thought it was super-wonderful for them.

"This will open the floodgates," said George Weiss, Yankee general manager. "The other clubs will have to scramble."

Dutchmen Edge Stratford In 3-1 Tilt

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen increased their leadership in the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A race Wednesday night by defeating Stratford Indians 3-1.

In the third period coach Howie Meeker of the Indians was ordered out of the rink when he climbed into the stands after a heckler. It was the second successive game that the fiery Stratford coach has been put out. He paid a $10 fine for the last offence.

Dutchmen got a 2-0 lead in the first period on a pair of goals by centre Ken Laufman.

SCORES FOR INDIANS

In the third period Mickey Roth scored for Indians while the Dutchmen were short-handed. McKenzie counted for the Dutchies with less than six minutes to play to clinch the verdict.

Fred Pletsch got three penalties including a major. He cut winger Charlie Charlie Brooker over the head for 10 stitches, precipitating a second period fight in which they both got majors.

There were 19 penalties in all, 10 to the Indians.

Ilio DiPaolo And Montana Tie Atkins And Layton In Main Grapple Bout

"Three cheers for the Empiah!" Lord Athol Layton said sarcastically as he waded his way through wrestling fans last night following the main pro mat bout. H. and his Australian buddy, Fred Atkins, had gained a draw in the tag team bout against Hombre Montana and Ilio DiPaolo, when the hour gong sounded, finding all four in the ring at once mixing it up, and little Referee Sammy Gotter scrambling for his life. Layton was being booed roundly by the customers when he made his crack. It was a lively bout at times, but draggy in spots, too, and each side got away with some illegal stuff in the corners.

Ilio won the second and equalizing fall in seven minutes over Layton with a series of flying tackles off the ropes. Whereas Montana did most of the bull work for his side in the third round, he sa' out the second go and DiPaolo got a rough passage for a spell in the Villains' corner. But the speedy and durable young Italian came back strongly to gain the win. He was popular with the small crowd on deck, and probably few fans noticed that the bad-tempered Fred Atkins unmercifully punched Ilio's sore ear every chance he had, and it was up in real cauliflower fashion before the scrap ended. The ref missed much and broke them both slowly and poorly from illegal grips.

Layton, scaling 272 pounds, won the first fall in 31 minutes from the 246-pound DiPaolo. He used an odd grip (known as the "Australian surf-board hold") for the fall, a sort of double reverse arm and leglock combination, to make Ilio concede. He softened the Italian up first with sidehand slashes to the throat and other questionable ring tactics. The 325-pound bewhiskered Montana showed his strength against tough Atkins, going 252, and the tall Englishman, the latter pair as a rule teaming up better in their own corner, though both corners turned out to be "no man's land" in this type of relentless tussle. Montana and DiPaolo were popular with the paying customers.

THE TRUE SPIRIT

The true Christmas spirit of peace on earth goodwill toward man prevailed in the semi-final, a right interesting but exceptionally clean wrestling display. It saw Toronto's Pat Flanagan, going 232, and Dublin's Tim Geohagen, one pound heavier, go to a draw in 18 minutes. They collided in a flying tackle and weren't up in time to beat the 10-count. While they served up a fine dish of grappling, they were so sportsmanlike about it and clean that modern fans hardly knew what to think. Both had their following, and both battled hard but without illegitimate stuff thrown in. Pat was fast and tricky, but couldn't quite match Tim's strength. Even the referee looked good in this one.

Tony Martinelli, 220, won the prelim from 234-pound Alan Garfield when Sammy Gotter disqualified the latter at 22 minutes. Seems the ref didn't take kindly to a roughing Garfield gave the referee, when the latter was caught between the pair. So he gave the bout to Tony, as fans applauded. It was clean enough at first with not too much action, and later Garfield pulled some rather raw stuff, besides talking a good game instead of wrestling more. They livened it up later for a spell and were banging away hard at it when Gotter got in the middle, and that did it.

Charles Wins Fight In Good Style

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Lean, mean Ezzard Charles, the former heavyweight boxing champion, is banging at the title door again following his impressive victory over Coley Wallace Wednesday night.

Charles, fighting in the same powerful fashion as when he wore the crown from 1949 to 1951, stopped Wallace 17 seconds before the scheduled end of the nationally-televised 10-rounder.

Although he won in masterful fashion and led from start to finish, Charles' win provided the setting for an argument over whether he should be credited with a knock-out or a TKO.

The No. 3 heavyweight contender dropped his younger rival twice in the 10th round. The first one was for a nine-count. Wallace hit the canvas from a right to the jaw. He staggered to his feet and went down again from a right and left to the chin. The time was 2:43.

NO COUNT

Referee Frankie Brown did not count over the fallen Wallace. According to California state athletic commission rules, it should have been called a technical knockout. Brown, in his report to the commission, said it was a knockout.

Judges Eddie James and Toby Irwin said it was a TKO in their first report but later changed it to conform with Brown's decision.

Willie Ritchie, former world lightweight champion now chief commission inspector for northern California, said it was a TKO, but commissioner Joe Phillips said he would abide by the referee's ruling.

Charles, 32 and in championship form, proved that experience and top condition can overcome such physical advantages as Wallace enjoyed because of his youth and size. Wallace, 25, weighed 201 pounds to 190 for Charles.

Asks Continued Unity In Canadian Football

SARNIA (CP) — Norm Perry, president of the Canadian Rugby Union, Wednesday night called for continued unity in Canadian football.

He told a service club that any return to two separate football unions operating under different rules would harm the game. The former Sarnia Imperials player hoped Canadian football could be kept "where it belongs, with Canadians governing it."

He said changes in voting power in the CRU which were made this year went "as far as we should go." The changes gave the Big Four and the Western Conference three votes each, compared with two for the Ontario Rugby Football Union and one each for the Inter-collegiate and Quebec leagues.

Jr. Hockey Officials To Discuss Schedule

MONTREAL (CP)—Representatives of junior hockey in Quebec and Ontario will get together today to discuss a new schedule for the Quebec Junior Hockey League and interlocking arrangements for games with teams of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A division.

Necessity for the new arrangement follows purchase by Quebec Frontenacs of the Quebec Citadelles club. Frontenacs were operating in the QJHL and Citadelles in the OHA. After the purchase deal went through it was decided to resume the interlocking arrangement which was in effect last season.

Birchant Whips Vic Seixas

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — Jacques Brichant, 23-year-old automobile salesman, sent United States Davis Cup hopes plunging downward today when he defeated Vic Seixas 6-3, 11-9, 2-6, 6-1 in the second singles match of the U.S.-Belgium interzone finals.

It was not so much the fact that Brichant defeated Seixas that bothered American captain Billy Talbert. Rather, it was the effortless manner in which he turned the trick. Seixas' defeat took all the joy out of Tony Trabert's 6-4, 6-2, 6-4 victory over Philippe Washer in the first match.

Now the best-of-five series is all tied and Friday Trabert and Seixas must play Brichant and Washer in doubles. And it was in the tandem event that Australian experts figured the Belgians had their best chance of salvaging perhaps one match.

Instead, the Belgians now are thinking in terms of reaching the challenge round against the Australians later this month.

Cleveland Dumped By Syracuse 5-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Surprise of otherwise uneventful American Hockey League exchanges Wednesday was a 5-3 dusting handed by lowly Syracuse Warriors to second-place Cleveland Barons in the toughest game of the night.

Elsewhere, league-leaders Buffalo Bisons played their second straight home tie, 2-2 with Providence Reds; and Pittsburgh Hornets downed Hershey 4-1 to squeeze into a third-place tie with the Bears.

At Syracuse, fireworks flew in the second stanza with five goals—three for Warriors—and free-for-all fighting that led to five penalties, including a major and misconduct for Don Perry and a major for Glen Sonmor.

Keith Allen and Harry Pidhirny counted two each for Warriors, with Walter Atanas getting the fifth. Fred Shero, Eddie Olson and Chuck Blair notched the Cleveland tallies.

Break 10-Game Losing Streak Biltmores Crush Barrie 5-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Biltmores just got under the trading deadline Wednesday in a deal with Galt Black Hawks. The move paid off.

The Biltmores broke a 10-game losing streak by defeating Barrie Flyers 5-2 in Guelph Wednesday night.

Hamilton Tigers edged the Hawks 3-2 in the other Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game.

Biltmore coach Alf Pike, seeking to strengthen his defence, dealt forward Chick Chalmers to the Hawks in return for defenceman John Muckler, forward Hillary Menard and an unidentified junior B player from Hespeler Hawks.

The Biltmores also loaned centre Paul Midghal to Galt for the rest of the season and gave netminder Mike Cirka his release.

Glen Ramsay now becomes Guelph's regular netminder. He started on the right foot, allowing the Flyers a single tally in each of the first and second periods.

McCREARY NETS PAIR

Billy McCreary scored two goals to lead Guelph snipers. Bill Pirie, Ed Shack and Ed Mateka, whom the Biltmores also acquired Wednesday in a straight deal with Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts scored singles.

John Martan and Bill Hope counted for Barrie.

Bill Stewart won it for Hamilton after the Hawks erased a 2-0 lead given the Tigers by Brian Kilrea and Ed Loutitt.

Switching sweaters didn't affect Chalmers and he accounted for half of Galt's total. Bob Wilson fired the other marker for the Hawks.

Guelph plays host to Toronto Marlboros Friday while Kitchener is at Barrie and Galt at St. Catharines.

Two Horses Share Dufferin Limelight

TORONTO (CP)—Roll On, owned by Harry Hirsch of Sydney, N.S., and Edna F. Scott, owned by Fawm brothers of Mitchell, shared the limelight at Dufferin Park Wednesday when they each won a heat in the junior free for all trot, the featured harness attraction.

Roll On's time of 2:14 3-5, over a snow-covered track, was the fastest time of the Dufferin season to date.

Spender Lawrence, owned and handled by Jack Bannerman of Stratford, was an easy winner of both heats in the class AA trot, the secondary feature.

Hepburn Considers Offer To Be Wrestler

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver News-Herald said Wednesday in a sports-page story that world heavyweight-lifting champion Doug Hepburn of Vancouver is seriously considering an offer to become a professional wrestler.

Considered a sure winner for Canada in the 1954 British Empire Games here, Hepburn was reported to be in Oakland, Calif., on the invitation of wrestling promoters Joe and Mike Malcewicz of Oakland.

Hepburn won his world title at the 1953 championships in Stockholm in August.

Bilts Loan Centre To Galt Hawks

GUELPH (CP) — Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Wednesday announced the loan of centre Paul Midghall to Galt Black Hawks for the remainder of the season.

They also announced that netminder Mike Cirka, obtained from Oshawa Generals early this season, has been given his outright release. Glen Ramsay will be the regular goaltender.

Rangers Make Sudden Spurt Clip Bruins 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers took Boston coach Lynn Patrick seriously. No sooner had Patrick stuck his neck out and commented Boston Bruins needed only to break even with New York in their remaining games to make the Stanley Cup playoffs, when the Rangers developed new hockey life. The fifth-place Rangers, who have won only eight games in 30 outings this season, scored in the dying minutes Wednesday night to beat the Bruins 4-3 in a National Hockey League game before 5,152 fans at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Ron Murphy, 21-year-old left-winger, gave the New Yorkers the victory with his first goal of the season late in the third period.

It was the fifth time the two clubs met this year and the third time the Rangers came out on top.

The win left New York in fifth place with 22 points, seven behind the Bruins.

Nick Mickoski, Don Raleigh and Camille Henry scored for Rangers, along with Murphy. Johnny Peirson, Milt Schmidt and Joe Klukay accounted for the Boston goals.

FIRST-PERIOD LEAD

The Bruins took the lead on Peirson's goal at 10:23 of the first period. Rangers broke out with three goals in the second, while the Bruins got one.

Murphy beat Boston goalkeeper Sugar Jim Henry at 16:19 of the third period after Klukay had tied the game at 14:12.

The Bruins go back at it tonight in Boston against third-place Toronto Maple Leafs. In the only other league tilt, second-place Detroit Red Wings play host to the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks.

Sarnia Sailors Deal To Re-enter Finals

SARNIA (CP) — Rollie Beauchamp and Don Savage, player representatives for Sarnia Sailors who were attempting to re-enter the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league, said Wednesday the deal is off.

They said three or four key players refused to sign an agreement to run the club co-operatively and the plan collapsed. In Wingham, Tory Gregg, president of the OHA confirmed that the re-entry attempt had fallen through.

A Sarnia contractor, Lorne Hay, had agreed to back the team financially if it were run on a co-operative basis and re-entered the league.

The Sailors dropped out of the league last week after poor attendance caused the team an $8,000 loss. The Sarnia arena commission, which ran the club, gave team members permission to continue on their own.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Patrick Picks Red Kelly As Best NHL Player

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Who is the National Hockey League's best player—Gordie Howe of Detroit or Maurice Richard of Montreal?

"Neither," says Boston Bruin coach Lynn Patrick. "I'll take Red Kelly (Detroit defenceman)."

"Kelly is the best all-round performer in our league," Patrick declared. "Sure, Howe and Richard are good. But Red is not only great on defence, he can score too. In my opinion, he's the big reason Detroit has won five straight championships."

Kelly, 26-year-old native of Simcoe, Ont., currently is fifth among the NHL's top scorers. He has 26 points on 10 goals and 16 assists.

"When Kelly rushes up ice, it's something to see," Patrick said. "He sparks Howe and Ted Lindsay and the others. When we play the Wings, we go out to stop him. We feel there's a better chance of winning that way."

ROLLINS TOPS

Patrick made another surprising observation by naming Al Rollins of the last-place Chicago Black Hawks as the league's best goalie.

"Rollins doesn't get nearly the protection that the others get. But he's looked great against us and with a better defence he'd be right up there with Harry Lumley (Toronto) and Terry Sawchuk (Detroit)."

Lynn thinks his own club, which now is in fourth place and lost 4-3 to the Rangers here Wednesday night, will find itself before the season is over.

MIGHT MAKE SHOWING

"Earlier in the year, I thought we had a good chance of challenging Montreal and Detroit for the lead. But after we lost Bill Quackenbush and Real Chevrefils on injuries we hit the skids. If we're at full strength in a couple of months I still believe we might finish near the top."

The 41-year-old former coach and star left wing of the Rangers figures the first-place battle between Montreal and Detroit is a toss-up.

"But the Wings have Kelly, and that might be the difference."

Chicago Denies Hawks Leaving NHL

CHICAGO (CP)—Chicago Black Hawk officials again have denied persisting rumors that the club will move out of the National Hockey League.

The latest report appeared in the Toronto Star Wednesday in a story by sport editor Milt Dunnell.

"It sounds like another guy is up in the air," said Johnny Gottselig, former Hawk star who now is a front-office man. "All I know is that Mr. Wirtz (Arthur M. Wirtz, Hawk president) recently said the report was silly and nothing has happened that I know of to change that comment.

HAVE DEEP ROOTS

A Chicago Stadium spokesman who declined to be identified said: "Where would the Hawks go? Hockey has deep roots here. It's just a matter of the Hawks getting players. Those 15,000 people who used to storm our gates for every home game haven't moved away. Good hockey by the Hawks will bring them back."

Bill Tobin, Hawks general manager, has blamed the lack of a draft system in the NHL in part for the team's inability to be built into a solid contender.

Murder Not Important

Kidnapper Full Of Regret That His Plans Failed

By AL DOPKING

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Carl Austin Hall's last day was filled today with regret—not regret that he kidnapped and killed little Bobby Greenlease, but that his wild gamble for quick riches was lost in a drunken spending spree.

A few cells away from him in death row his paramour, Bonnie Brown Heady, was sorry, too—sorry that her illicit love affair with Carl was broken up in a shocking crime.

The killers die tonight in the gas chamber a few minutes after midnight for killing six-year-old Bobby a few hours after his kidnapping Sept. 28.

Both have written to the multi-millionaire Greenlease family in Kansas City asking forgiveness. And both asked for spiritual counsel in their final hours tonight.

SORRY ABOUT PLANS

It was learned from officials who have talked with Hall since he entered prison Nov. 20 that his sorrow is not over the slaying he and Mrs. Heady plotted the day before the kidnapping.

Officials say Hall is sorry only that his plans for quick and easy wealth crashed in the binge that led to his arrest.

The 34-year-old Hall had been quoted as saying that he planned to kill Mrs. Heady, 41, next and that he had vowed never to be taken alive. Now Hall says his prolonged spree made him too fuzzy to realize clearly what was happening when arresting officers knocked on his hotel door in St. Louis Oct. 6.

MYSTERY UNSOLVED

But as death in the gas chamber came closer, neither Hall nor Mrs. Heady had talked about the big remaining mystery:

What happened to the missing half of the record $600,000 ransom money they collected from Bobby's 71-year-old father after they had already killed and buried the little boy in Mrs. Heady's back yard in St. Joseph?

A federal grand jury at Kansas City is looking into that. So are the FBI and the St. Louis police board. The board's i[illegible]iry into the handling of the arrest so angered former Lieut. Louis Shoulders that he resigned. His partner in the arrest, patrolman Elmer Dolan, has been suspended.

Despite this tangle of doubt and mystery, the eve of the criminals' execution arrived with no one sure what happened to the missing $303,720.

HAVE FINAL CHAT

Hall and Mrs. Heady will wear regulation prison clothing when they are taken a quarter of a mile by automobile from death row to the lethal gas chamber tonight. For Mrs. Heady that will be a green cotton dress and scuff-type sandals.

Hall will be dressed in green twill pants and shirt. He will go into the gas tank barefoot.

In their last hours, the once-gay lovers will have a final chat in death row.

Both are reported outwardly calm. They have been eating food taken to them from the officers' mess and for their last meal they ordered a chicken dinner.

Lakefield WA Plans 30 Baskets For Sick

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Reports given at the December meeting of the Women's Association of Lakefield United church showed that the organization has completed a successful year. The president, Mrs. P. H. Darling, presided.

Thirty Christmas baskets for sick and shut-ins will be packed by the president, Mrs. W. James Charlton, Mrs. Frank Darling and Mrs. E. Dunford who were appointed to do this work.

A letter of appreciation was received from the Fairview United Church WA for the use of the Sunday school rooms for a dinner at which they catered. A cheque, which was enclosed will be given to the church board.

The Rev. W. H. Wolfraim gave a Christmas message to the meeting, "If Christ has not been born". Mrs. Donald Hendren sang a solo, accompanied by Mrs. E. Rath and carols were sung. Mrs. Sherman Northey was in charge of the devotional period.

The estate of Vatican City has an area of 108.7 acres with a population just more than 1,000.

Sunday School Party Held At Norwood

NORWOOD (ENS) — Christ Church Sunday school held their Christmas party on Monday evening. Supper was served by the teachers in the parish hall to more than 50 children.

The children then gave a concert in the town hall to their parents and friends.

Mr. Maaswinkle of Peterborough entertained with feats of magic allowing some of the children to assist him.

Santa Claus arrived to the tune of Jingle Bells, laden with gifts.

Tusk Identified

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP)—A five-foot tusk found in a nearby Aldershot gravel pit last week has been identified as that of a prehistoric mastodon, greatest of the hairy mammals to roam the earth. Dr. Herman Kleerekoper of McMaster University here examined the tusk and identified it as a mastodon's. Digging at the pit is expected to continue for about four years. Workmen have been asked to watch for further remains of the mastodon, believed to have died about 15,000 years ago.

Award Woman $6,715 For Injuries

Gertrude Hogan, 23, of 263 Bethune St. on Wednesday was awarded damages totalling $6,715 a motor accident suit in Supreme Court brought against John D. McDonald, 22, of Toronto.

Miss Hogan was a passenger in a car being driven by Ross Clark of Woodville that was in headon collision with another car, driven by McDonald, on the brow of a hill, seven miles south of Peterborough on Highway 28. Two people—one in each car—died as a result of the collision and Miss Hogan was seriously injured.

The accident occurred on July 25, 1952. It resulted in two deaths and four injuries.

ADMITTED LIABLE

Donald Bark, solicitor for McDonald, admitted his client's liability but contested the damages. T. J. Carley, QC, was counsel for Miss Hogan.

Miss Hogan, a pieceworker at CGE, was sitting in the left rear seat when the cars collided. She was knocked unconscious for 16 hours and was unable to remember details of the accident. She was 16 days in hospital.

Her injuries included a fractured skull, a broken nose, broken teeth and a bad cut on her right leg, above the ankle. For three or four months after the accident she suffered severe headaches and still has them occasionally. Her back injury still troubles her, also.

Mr. Justice Treleaven, presiding at the non-jury sittings, awarded Miss Hogan specific damages of $2,215 for out-of-pocket expenses, and general damages of $4,500.

Cadet Rifle Trophy Returns To Britain

LONDON (CP)—The Earl Roberts Trophy for cadet rifle shooting, held for the last four years by Canadian teams, has returned to Britain for the first time in 21 years.

The Imperial Cadet Association announced today that the 1953 competition, open to cadet marksmen throughout the Commonwealth, has been won by a team from Bristol, Gloucestershire with a record score of 315 of a possible 320.

Second prize went to a team from Christchurch, N.Z., with 314 and the Westdale Secondary School Cadet corps, Hamilton, Ont., was third with the same score.

Pembroke Collegiate C.C., Pembroke, Ont., scored 240.

Set Transcontinental Plane Record In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A transcontinental speed record for United States commercial aircraft apparently was set early today when a National Airlines DC7 completed a California-Washington flight in five hours, 54 minutes.

The old record, six hours, 17 minutes, was made by a Lockheed Constellation in February, 1949, on a flight from Burbank, Calif., to New York.

The DC-7, piloted by Capt. David B. Gannon, 43, and Capt. L. J. Royal, 32, carried five passengers.

The airline said the ferry flight was made in connection with the 50th anniversary of powered flight.

Ask Frost Convene Emergency Session

TORONTO (CP)—J. B. Salsberg, only Communist member of the Ontario legislature, said today in a statement he has sent a telegram to Premier Frost calling on him to convene in emergency session of the legislature to deal with the strike of northern Ontario gold miners.

He asked that legislation be enacted "to enable government to take over the mines and operate them on basis of government's latest settlement plan."

W. F. Alderman

Funeral services were conducted today for William Frank Alderman, 51-year-old resident of 341 Simcoe St., who died Tuesday.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Edward Alderman of Edmonton, he is survived by his parents, a sister, Mrs. R. Bohning of Edmonton, and a brother, Robert of Pontiac, Mich.

Major H. G. Roberts of the Salvation Army officiated at the services, conducted from the Kaye funeral home. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Pallbearers were W. Weaver, B. Carney, A. Henshall, E. Guppy, J. Wilson and T. McCabe.

Obituary

MRS. JOSEPH McMURRAY

Mrs. Joseph McMurray, Young's Point, a former resident of Peterborough, died today in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Born in Young's Point, the former Theresa Ayotte, she was a daughter of the late George Ayotte and Catherine Mullins. She lived 25 years in Peterborough, but the last three in Young's Point.

She is survived by her susband, a brother, John and a sister, Miss Mary Ayotte, both of Young's Point.

The funeral service will be held Saturday from the family home to St. Mary's Church, Young's Point and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery. Funeral arrangements are being made by Anglesey funeral home.

Careful Not To Kill

MANNHEIM, Germany (AP)—Bernhard Prigan testified Wednesday that because of his "Christian responsibility" he did not strangle his alleged rape victims to death, but only to unconsciousness. The 33-year-old German miner, on trial charged with three sex murders and 17 rapes or attempted rapes between 1949 and 1952, said: "I was always careful not to kill them."

RAF Bomber On Way To US For Celebration

GANDER, Nfld. (CP)—The RAF Canberra jet bomber which won an England-to-New Zealand air race last October landed for refuelling here today en route to Elizabeth City, N. C., to join in celebrations marking the 50th anniversary of powered flight.

The speedy twin-engined bomber, which left Aldergrove airfield in Northern Ireland early this morning, will be among the planes assembled at Kitty Hawkkkk, N. C. where the Wright brothers conducted their historic flight in 1903.

Revise Exam Schedule

VIENNA (AP) — The Polish ministry of education has revised examination schedules in schools and reduced the number of annual exams in high schools. The revision, announced by Radio Warsaw, followed complaints in Polish newspapers that teaching in Polish schools is steadily declining and "below average," and that the majority of teachers lack necessary education and authority.

Find Student's Body In Pond Near College

AURORA (CP) — The body of Ronald MacMillan, 15, captain of the lower school hockey team at St. Andrew's College, was recovered today by firemen. MacMillan fell through the ice on a pond near the college Wednesday.

The popular prep school hockey star is believed to have been testing the ice for skating. Teachers started searching when he failed to return to his Aurora home for dinner.

Firemen recovered the body by dragging the pond in a punt after they had cut a channel through the ice.

Want A Pier

LONDON (CP)—The government operated British Railways has a pier for sale. The structure which juts into the Thames here will be useless when improvements to the ferry service are completed.

Here And There In Sports

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

40-MAN N.Z. TEAM

AUCKLAND (CP)—At least 40 New Zealand athletes are expected to compete in next summer's Empire games at Vancouver as a result of government grants toward competitors' expenses.

This number will probably include three officials and eight lawn bowlers who financed their own trips.

The New Zealand Empire Games Association is insisting that national sports associations donate $280 for each competitor as a check on the sending of below-standard athletes.

The New Zealand teams leave by air July 13 and return from Canada Aug. 13.

A new government announcement Wednesday gave promise of a considerably larger attendance of New Zealand spectators than previously was expected. The announcement said $400 would be allowed visitors to Vancouver for the games.

Normally the dollar exchange is not available except small sums to through-travelers and limited amounts to business men on essential visits.

The allowance does not include fares, which is payable in New Zealand currency.

ESKIMOS LOSE END

EDMONTON (CP)—Coach Darrell Royal of Edmonton Eskimos has announced that import end Tom Stolhandske has been inducted into the United States Army. Royal said the big offensive end from Texas won't be with the team next season in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

But Bill Rowekamp, a back who has already served in the United States armed forces, probably will be back. Rowekamp was cut off the Edmonton squad Oct. 1 because of a foot injury.

TOP 2ND BASEMAN AGAIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Al (Red) Schoendienst, who narrowly missed out as the National League's leading batter, was its top defensive second baseman for the third time in 1953.

The St. Louis Cardinals' mainstay fielded .983 with only 14 errors in 809 chances, official statistics released by the National League service bureau, show.

Schoendienst, a .342 batter, second to Carl Furillo's .344, easily won out over rookie Junior Gilliam of Brooklyn and Cincinnati's Rocky Bridges, each of whom fielded .976. Red also was tops at his position in 1946 and 1949.

HOCKEY RECORD SET

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP)—An amateur hockey scoring record of three goals in 12 seconds has been set by Bill Naismith, former Medicine Hat forward now with Great Falls Americans in the Alta-Mont Intermediate League.

Confirmation that Naismith's Saturday night feat at Great Falls, against Medicine Hat Cantalinis was a record came in a telegram from W. A. Hewitt of Toronto, registrar-secretary of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The previous record was held by Jack Shill, former member of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League. Playing for Toronto Marlboros against Sudbury Wolves in 1932, Shill scored three goals in 26 seconds.

Star Athlete Must Choose Hockey, Football Or Education

By WALTER GRAY

TORONTO (CP)—Gerry James has a major decision to make next year. He must choose between hockey, football or education.

The 19-year-old Toronto athlete said in an interview Wednesday that by next summer he hopes to have made the decision. But right now he's happy doing all three.

As a football player he's already a proven star with two seasons with Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union behind him.

As a hockey player, he's a key defenceman with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series with the promise of something better next year.

As for education, Gerry is in fifth form at Toronto's Runnymede Collegiate, taking five subjects this year and planning four more in 1954 with an engineering course in mind.

NO CONTRACT SIGNED

James says he plans to return to Winnipeg next June to look over the football situation. He has not signed a contract yet and says he will wait until the Blue Bomber coaching situation is straightened out.

"It all depends on who the new coach is," he said. "How I react to him and how he reacts to me will influence my decision."

At present Bomber coach George Trafton is in Winnipeg attempting to clarify his status with the club.

Born in Regina Oct. 22, 1934, Gerry started playing football with a Winnipeg public school team in 1951. He moved to Toronto with his family the same year and joined the Runnymede team.

Signed by the Bombers in 1952, he returned to Toronto for a whirl at junior B hockey and was signed by Marlboros, farm club of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, to play defence in the junior A playoffs against Guelph Biltmores. Following this year's footbal final he rejoined Marlboros and has one more season of junior hockey ahead of him.

Gerry said that although he has had no pro hockey offers yet, several have been mentioned.

Eating Way Out Of Glut Of Beef Cattle

In the nine months to the end of September this y people of Canada have eaten 100 million pounds of meat more than in the same three-quarters of 1952.

That was the good tidings Ab Stoltz, fieldman of the Ontario Shorthorn Breeders Association, stressed to the annual meeting of its Peterborough county branch Wednesday.

"I feel that we can have a lot of confidence in our industry because of the way our Canadians are eating beef. When beef is at a price that compares favorably with the other meats, they prefer beef, That is borne out by the figures that have become available for the first nine months of this year.

"We can say for the rest of the country, that we are eating our way out of the difficulties that faced us at the first of the year.

"There is no burdensome carry-over. Stocks are normal. That is particularly encouraging because we had heavy runs of cattle in the early part of 1953. The situation is the same in the States. They have had a terrifc number of cattle marketed on account of the abnormal drouth in many of the States that are cattle country. The big consuming market has absorbed that heavy volume. Those cattle are out of the way.

"The fortunes of our purebred cattle are tied up with the fortunes of the commercial breeders. All the information we have been getting in the last year or two about the expansion of our home market appears to be borne out by the figures for this year, and it should be our hope that the employment conditions will continue in 1954. When the people are eating beef, we know they are well fed."

LOU SHAW RETIRES

Lorne Pimmett of Indian River was elected president of the Peterborough Shorthorn breeders, taking the place of Lou Shaw of Otonabee, who, after three years in the chair insisted that he should make way for one of the younger members.

George Shoniker was moved up to 1st vice-president, and Fred Carpenter was elected 2nd vice-president.

Secretary-treasurer is Dr. Harry Hamilton, succeeding Elwood Dunford who recommended the change.

Directors are: Lou Shaw, John Bolin, W. W. Donaldson, Elwood Dunford, Arthur Hancock, Archie Matchett, Cliff Lowes, Stewart Armstrong, Ross Wiles and Dougal Matchett.

Thanks to Mr. Shaw for his active leadership and also to Shaw Brothers for the success of the field day at their farm were recorded in a resolution. Similar appreciation was expressed to Mr. Carpenter for his work in arranging for the first Shorthorn sale this season.

The members decided to put on another sale next fall with the same committee in charge. "I think we ought to start right now and select good cattle and fit them properly," said Mr. Pimmitt. "If we follow that policy, we're sure to attract buyers."

FAVOR REGIONAL SHOW

Mr. Pimmett was nominated as a candidate for director of the Ontario Scottish Shorthorn Breeders Club. Tentative plans were begun for a regional show at the Norwood Fair. The secretary was instructed to write the provincial association to the effect that the Peterborough group are interested in a regional show, and to emphasize that the required conditions are provided at Norwood."

Lakefield Fair was mentioned, but it lacks cover accomodation for livestock.

ARGENTINES TO MOSCOW

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — Seven Argentine officials left by air wednesday or Moscow to study the purchase of $30,000,000 worth of capital goods in Russia. The goods include equipment for agriculture, mining, oil drilling, power and transport.

Aces Win Two By Big Scores In Minor League

Four decisive victories were recorded Wednesday night in the weekly minor hockey league games at the Civic arena. The juvenile Aces, the league power team, accounted for two large-margin wins, defeating Norwood 10-1 and romping through Oddfellows 7-1. At the same time midget Shamrocks trounced Norwood 12-1 and whipped Aces 6-1. The only close game of the night was between the Aces and the Shamrocks, the Aces edging out a close 4-3 decision.

Stewart, Kane and Ferren paced the juvenile Aces in their game with Norwood as the Peterborough lads took a 3-0 lead in the first period, jumped ahead 8-0 in the second and coasted to a 10-1 win. Miles scored the lone Norwood goal.

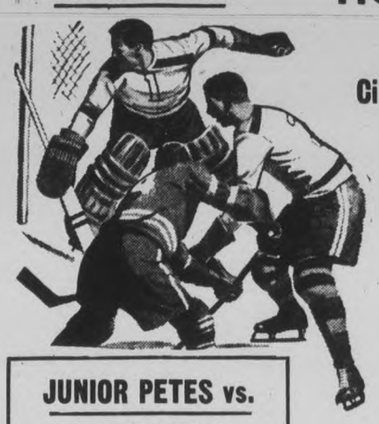
In the other juvenile game, one sprinkled with penalties, the Aces were again paced by Kane, Stewart, Ferren and McFadden. The Aces this time took a 3-1 lead in the first period, went scoreless in the second and then romped through the third for four more goals.

Shamrocks, the midget variety, had an easy time in their two games. Mahoney with two and McCarthy with the hat tricks helped the Shamrocks race away to a 2-0 lead in the first, 3-0 in the second and then finish off outscoring the Aces 3-1 in the third for a 6-1 victory.

The whole Shamrock team took part in the scoring in the other game as they trounced Norwood 12-1. McCarthy made his night's work, seven goals, with four in this game. The Shamrocks went ahead 4-0 in the first, 8-0 in the second and walked away in the third 4-1.

The other game saw the Aces avenge a defeat at the hands of the Shamrocks earlier this week with a 4-3 victory. The Shamrocks had won on Monday night 6-4.

The Shamrocks Wednesday went ahead 2-0 on goals by McFadden and Delpellaro. But in the second Fitzgerald, Billingsley and Finney scored for the Aces, tying the score at three-all in the second. Fitzgerald scored the winning goal, for the Aces midway through the third period.



On Way To Launching Tug Goes Aground

COLLINGWOOD (CP)—The tug Helen Hindman, bound here to attend a launching, ran aground Wednesday night in a heavy storm.

Waves crashed against the tug while another tug, the Paul Evans, stood by with a line aboard the Helen Hindman. The Evans had tried to free the other craft as soon as the wind calmed and made further efforts possible.

The Helen Hindman, owned by Capt. Howard Hindman of Owen Sound, was bound here from Wiarton.

ON DISPLAY TOMORROW!

The Bel Air 4-door sedan. With 13 models in 3 series, Chevrolet offers the widest choice in the low-priced field.

New 1954 Chevrolet

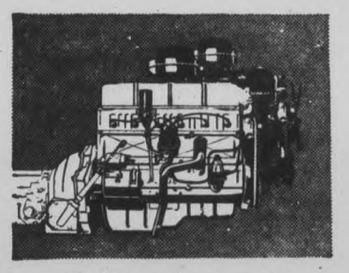
Come see the most beautiful, most powerful Chevrolet ever built . . . the new car that combines great new performance with money-saving gas mileage!

More things more people want, that's why

More People Buy Chevrolets Than Any Other Car!

This is what you're going to find when you come in to check over this new '54 Chevrolet: In every way, Chevrolet now brings you even more of the things you want.

More beauty with brilliant new styling in Body by Fisher and bright new color harmonies outside and inside the car.



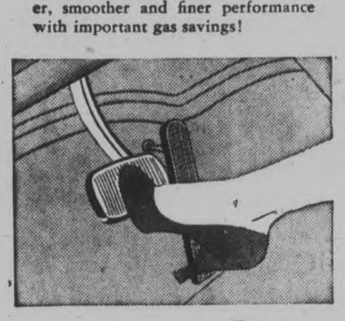
More power and finer performance with new high-compression engine power in all models.

More comforts and conveniences, including the richest and most luxurious interiors in Chevrolet history, and such new features as automatic electric window and seat controls.

And, thanks to advanced Chevrolet engineering, all this with new economy, too. Chevrolet is the new car that combines finer performance with important gasoline savings.

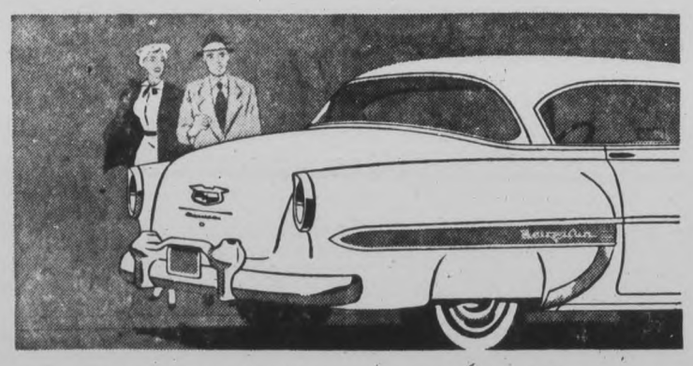
The fact is, you'll find that no other car offers so many things you want at such low cost. That means the low first cost of the lowest-priced line in its field. And it means money-saving economy of operation and upkeep, as well.

The colorful, new 1954 models are ready for your inspection. Stop in and take a good look at the best-looking Chevrolet you ever saw . . . and your best buy for 1954!



Thrifty new power in all models

Now Powerglide models offer the most powerful Chevrolet engine ever — the "Blue-Flame 125". Gearshift models have the advanced, more powerful "Blue-Flame 115". Both high-compression engines bring quieter, smoother and finer performance with important gas savings!



New, automatic window and seat controls

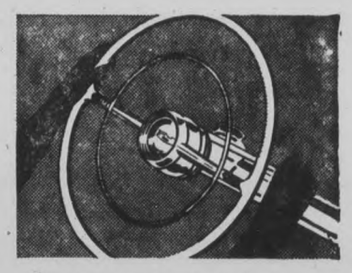
Now, at the touch of a button, front windows are electrically raised or lowered. Touch another conveniently placed control to move the front seat up and forward or down and back into your most comfortable position. Optional on Bel-Air and "Two-Ten" models at extra cost.

Power brakes for easier stops

Chevrolet in the low-priced field brings you another great advance in driving ease — Power Brakes. Stopping is almost unbelievably easy and convenient — just a swing of your foot from accelerator to brake pedal! Optional at extra cost on all models.

New styling that will stay new

There's a new, lower, smarter look about this new 1954 Chevrolet. The new front-end and rear-end designs are even cleaner and more distinctive. Massive new bumpers extend even farther around the fenders. All around the car, new styling presents Fisher Body at its beautiful best. It's the kind of styling that keeps Chevrolet new for a long, long time!



New interior richness

Here's the kind of quality you'd expect to find only in high-priced cars. Fine new upholstery fabrics with a more liberal use of durable, beautiful vinyl trim. New color treatments in harmony with the brilliant new exterior colors. Built-in arm rests on all Bel Air models. And of course Chevrolet offers the luxury and craftsmanship of Body by Fisher.

New, lower price on power steering

Chevrolet Power Steering substantially reduced in price! That's good news to everyone who wants to steer and park with the utmost ease and safety. Chevrolet Power Steering does 80% of the work to give easy, sure control. It's optional on all models at extra cost.

New, wider choice of Powerglide models

Now, Powerglide automatic transmission is available on all models. Powerglide is preferred as the smoother automatic transmission that gives instant response and positive acceleration. Teamed with the "Blue-Flame 125" engine, it's optional at extra cost.

POWERED FOR PERFORMANCE
ENGINEERED FOR ECONOMY!

BEST IN BELGIAN TAPESTRY—Designed by Peter Kolfs, this tapestry is being exhibited in Malignes, Belgium, after which it will be offered to the UN. It was chosen as the best of 80 works displayed for the benefit of the Belgian government, and took 40,000 working hours to complete. In the centre of the tapestry is a female figure representing life, which separates two male figures, symbolizing two nations at war. Included in the tapestry are the weaver's conception of well-known sights in various parts of the world.

Boy Lamas Competing For Supremacy Of Tibet

WASHINGTON — In remote, isolated Tibet, the "Forbidden Land" of central Asia, the Dalai Lama and the Panchen Lama compete for leadership.

The 20-year-old Dalai Lama still rules as the "living Buddha," spiritual and temporal head of four million people. He received Western visitors cordially in previous years.

Conversely, the slightly younger Panchen Lama has allied himself with Communist China. He has been given a seat on the administrative council by the Red overlords, whose troops marched into Tibet in 1950.

Historically, the two Lamas are supposed to supplement each other in Tibet's government. The Dalai Lama is believed to be the 14th reincarnation of Chenrezi, Compassionate Lord. The Panchen Lama is supposedly the reincarnation of Chenrezi's tutor.

The Chinese apparently hope for a break between Tibetans and the Dalai Lama. A rift — in violation of the 1951 treaty between Tibet and Red China — would permit them to elevate the Panchen Lama to supreme authority. Under the treaty, Tibet's internal regime was to remain unaltered. The Chinese were to be responsible only for national defence and foreign policy.

Reportedly, the Dalai Lama's ministers already have been dismissed. The Tibetan army has been incorporated into the Chinese army. Chinese technicians are planning a road network that will link up with China in order to exploit Tibet's vast untapped natural resources.

An area almost twice the size of Texas, Tibet is known to have rich deposits of coal, iron and gold, and may hold copper and uranium. Despite its potential wealth, however, the mountain-girt nation has no metallurgical, mining or chemical industries, no hydro-electric power or electricity. There are no roads or railways. Wheeled vehicles are unknown.

Tibet is hemmed in by the Himalayan massif to the south and west, and the rugged Kunlun Range to the north and northeast. It is the highest country in the world. Its average level is above the 14,495-foot peak of Mt. Whitney, California, the highest point in the United States.

AGRARIAN ECONOMY

Most of Tibet's 470,000 square miles are barren, and much of the country has never been explored. Upland plateaus are swept by violent winds. Lacking irrigation, only a fraction of the land is cultivated.

Nevertheless, the average Tibetan lives on the land. Barley, corn and cereals are the main crops. Farming methods and tools are primitive; wooden stakes reinforced with iron serve as plows. Flour made from roast barley and mixed with butter is the food staple.

A surprising variety of goods crosses Tibet's frontiers, though import-export trade plays only a minor part in the national economy. Caravans plod across lofty mountain passes in the south to barter yak and sheep wool and homemade carpets, shoes and clothes for Indian silk and Burmese soap and candles. Spices and tea are brought in from China. A trickle of mechanical goods comes in from America and Britain.

Lamaism, a form of Buddhism which makes generous use of legend and superstition, is the state religion of Tibet. Tibetans believe that ghosts and devils will meddle with their affairs unless appeased by a lama. The land has more than 500,000 priests—about one-eighth of the population.

Nearly every village has a lamasery. Some house as many as 1,000 monks. The Dalai Lama resides in the fabulous Pofala in Lhasa. Over 400 feet high and 90 feet long, the immense fortress like palace was built in the 17th century by the fifth Dalai Lama.

Within its 25-foot-thick walls, the Potala's vast interior is criss-crossed by miles of damp corridors linking thousands of mouldy rooms. Tombs of departed Dalai Lamas, encrusted with gold leaf, pearls and precious stones, spread across its roof.

Nervy Character

LONDON (CP)—Truck driver Arthur Faithful, 36, was convicted of stealing five tons of coke ordered for police headquarters at Scotland Yard. He was sentenced to nine months in jail.

Born In Bailieboro Rev. G. H. Sneyd Dies

COLDWATER. — Rev. George H. Sneyd, 90, retired United Church minister, died here Monday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Millard.

Born at Bailieboro, he graduated from McMaster University in 1897 and a year later married the former Nellie Simpson of Drumbo. He retired 20 years ago, and until recently had resided in Orillia. Pastorates in which he served included Fonthill, Niagara Falls, Port Arthur, Preston, Sturgeon Falls, Severn Bridge and Beeton.

He leaves his widow; two sons, Howard of Guelph and Ralph of Montreal; his daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Millard, Coldwater; also 11 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at Coldwater, with interment at Paris Cemetery.

C. I. Archibald Named Recreation Treasurer

C. I. Archibald, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, was officially apointed treasurer of the recreation committee on Tuesday night, replacing R. E. Macdonald, who was recently transferred to Toronto. Mr. Macdonald was the former Bank of Nova Scotia manager as well.

The Charles Kearns memorial trophy will be presented to the outstanding athlete of 1953, by Alex Sinclair at the dinner of champions to be held January 15, 1954.

A report from city clerk E. A Outram informed the commission that room rent for their office will be lowered 55 cents per square foot next year. The present rental rate of $2.25 per square foot will be lowered to $1.70 per square foot.

Inventors Not So Busy As 20 Years Ago

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inventors aren't inventing like they used to.

In 1931, for example, there were 84,000 applications for patents. Last year that had dropped to 60,000.

What's happened? The most obvious answer is that in 1931 a lot of people were in the inventing business because they couldn't find anything else to do.

LIFE GETS COMPLICATED

But life gets more complicated, as you can see by noting these new inventions:

Robert W. Foreman and Melvin M. Fink of Cleveland have come up with an "apparatus for co-ordinating operating wave length and slit size in spectrophotometers."

Harold J. Hasbrouck, Jr., of Teaneck, N.J., has invented—and just let the Russians say they thought of this one first—a sphygmonanometer.

These undoubtedly are fine, useful inventions, but they're hardly the type that would come with a blinding flash to the average fellow while he was shaving.

Still, a inventor's life isn't exclusively sphygmonanometers these days.

Claude Paxton of El Paso, Tex., has a new paint can brush scraper and Barbara B. Titfle of South Bend, Ind.l has a plan for pinless diapers.

One curious thing about inventors is that, having invented something, they often have to produce something that partly disinvents it.

Such as the radio. Having got it, inventors then went to work trying to get a gadget which would quiet it during overly enthusiastic commercials, thereby giving us blessed silence, which is what we had in the first place.

LIGHT TOUCH GONE

On the whole some of the old-time lightheartedness seems to be gone from the official gazette.

Where is the like of the auto- ...tic hat tipper, whereby a dandy could tip his bowler merely by squeezing a bulb in his pocket? And where is there something similar to the windshield wipers for spectacles during grapefruit season?

DANCING AT 104

YORKTON, Sask. (CP) — John Farkes celebrated his 104th birthday by dancing a jig and singing a couple of Hungarian love songs. He came from Hungary in 1894 and lives at the farm home of a son near here.

ONE KILLED IN BLAZING WRECK — Firemen pour water on gasoline truck which burst into flames after colliding with a passenger car at Chicago. The driver of the car was killed and the truck driver was seriously injured. The truck was carrying 6,000 gallons of gasoline.

Soviet Families Part Of Vienna Scene

By GARY LEVY

VIENNA (Reuters) — Vienna is the only western city in the world where Soviet officials and soldiers, their wives and children have become an integral part of the street scene.

Officials of the Soviet high commission and officers of the occupation army live in requisitioned apartments and houses in the Russian sector of the city, just as their American and British colleagues do in theirs.

No attempt is made to screen Soviet family life from the Viennese who live next-door and across the street.

The centre of family life are the children. One rarely sees a couple without them. Since only children under school age may remain in Austria, their ages range only up to about six.

It is common to see uniformed officers pushing carriages.

SATURDAY PARTIES

On week nights the Soviet families go to bed early. But on Saturday nights they have house parties with much drinking and singing.

It is fairly easy to know the tenants of each apartment. The single men stick newspapers over their windows. A woman living in an apartment is indicated by bright floral curtains. Early in the morning the men do gymnastics and the women comb their hair by the open window.

Austrian store keepers are pleased with their Soviet customers. The women know what they want and seem to have plenty of money for quality goods.

Legal Lotteries For Bank Depositors

ISTANBUL (AP) — Small, modern branch savings banks with shiny glass-brick fronts are springing up in Turkish cities.

Their mushroom growth is due at least partly to the lure of unusual but legal lotteries for depositors.

Let's say you have the equivalent of $35 on deposit at a bank. It earns three per cent interest. It also gives you a lottery chance on a house and lot or on a big cash prize.

Bank deposits have jumped by 25 per cent in the last year.

Prime Minister Suffering Cold

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent is suffering from a slight cold brought on by inoculations necessary for his coming trip to Europe and the Far East.

A spokesman in his office said Mr. St. Laurent's cold is "a mild case." He attended the night session of the Commons.

Elected Indian Chief

BRANTFORD (CP)—Fred W. G. King Wednesday was elected chief councillor of the Mississauga Indian reserve, defeating Robert C. Brant.

Ex-MPP Dies In London

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—John Willard Freeborn, 68, a former Liberal-Progressive member of the Ontario legislature for Middlesex North, died Wednesday.

Mr. Freeborn was first elected in 1919 when the United Farmers of Ontario took power but after their defeat, he usually voted with the Liberals.

He is survived by his widow and four children.

Plan Big Development

TORONTO (CP) — A $25,000,000 development project, including 1,000 dwelling units and a 37-acre shopping centre, is planned for suburban Thistletown by Principal Investments, Ltd. It was not announced when building will start.

IT ISN'T EVERY DAY that a dog gets to be "interviewed" but Roy Der Gute seems bored by it all. Roy places a paw on the shoulder of Charles Chamberlain, Chicago sports writer, who casts a wary glance at the yawning canine. Owner Victor D. Bendel of Westmount, Ill., did the talking for the 100-pound German Shepherd dog and claims that Roy is "the most obedient dog in the United States." At the age of two years and nine months he has won 96 trophies and 21 cash awards in 23 shows.

Jordan Forced To Take Aid It Doesn't Want From U.K.

By RAWLE KNOX

AMMAN—(OFNS)— The road from Damascus to Amman, the capital of Jordan, traverses a countryside which presents nature at its severest. The sweep of the brown hills is almost unbroken except for the occasional slim spire of a mosque. On the Syrian side of the frontier the stony land still contains the rich color of promise, and is cultivated by peasants almost to the summit of the hills. But beyond the frontier town of Dera'a the face of the country hardens into bleak stone and rock.

Jordan is the consolation kingdom, given to the Hashemite sheikhs after Ibn Saud had created Saudi Arabia out of almost everything worth having in this part of the world. He left to the Hashemites a few miles of green lands along the bank of the River Jordan; a waste of desert; and the protection of the British.

ARAB LEGION

In Jordan about one man in two is a soldier, a policeman or a refugee; usually the last. The neat camps of the 30,000-strong Arab Legion stand at intervals along the roads within their barbed wire. So do the not-so-neat refugee settlements. Between are a few mud-walled villages, themselves built like forts, with their houses as individual strong-points. It is a country which looks as though it had been at war all its life.

The distant hills grow mauve under the rich azure sky, but they cannot conceal the stony desperation of the desert. Along the road ragged hitch-hikers, coming from no visible village, jerk their thumbs without hope. An Arab Legion soldier swings off a lonely bus, burdened, obviously going home on leave, and makes off abruptly across the desert. Far on the horizon, several hours march away, you can see the hamlet which must be his home.

A huge man and his wife pass, riding a tiny exhausted donkey. Ridiculously another donkey tows a well-known oil company's petrol tank, mounted on cart-wheels. In a field of boulders, a lonely farmer and his horse struggle with their plough.

EXIST ON SUBSIDY

This marginal people remains in existence largely because of subsidy from Britain. The ordinary expenditure of the Government (which includes $3,500,000 for police and prisons) is little more than $15,400,000, and its revenue perhaps a little less. But the $23,310,000 which are spent on the Arab Legion and its little air force, on the volunteer National Guards and on the "Dead Sea Fleet" (it exists; as a defensive force against a few known Israeli gunboats) are provided by Britain. Britain also provided a development loan of $2,800,000 in 1949, another $4,200,000 in 1951, and another $1,400,000 in March, 1953—this last sum because it was discovered that the Jordan Government had not managed to spend $2,800,000 of the earlier loans.

Jordan is riddled with frustrations. Although it added to its territories (which previously extended only up to the east bank of the Jordan) during the war with Israel, it gained little but the jealousy of the other Arab countries and an influx of some 476,000 refugees to swell its total population to about 1,300,000. Even without the refugees, Jordan can barely feed itself. So the United Nations feeds the refugees—and that means more charity. Because of its dependence on Western aid, especially on British military aid for its armed forces, Jordan finds itself looked down on by its Arab allies—although all of them know that Jordan's Arab Legion is head and shoulder above any other Arab fighting force.

Britain and the United States—which is also giving Jordan certain aid under the Point Four program—have some able and sympathetic administrators on the spot. Part of the British development loan is parcelled out as individual small loans to farmers who need the money and who show that they can use it to advantage.

Both Britain and the U.S.A. are helping in the development of Jordan's phosphate industry which, experts reckon, could produce some ten times its present $152,000 worth of annual output, even with the deposits known at present.

The British loan is also helping to develop Jordan's only port, Akaba, and the road linking it with Amman. Although Anglophobes in Jordan say that this is only because Britain has troops stationed at Akaba (currently about two companies), it is a fact that the cost of using the port of Beirut in the neighboring Lebanon for Jordan's foreign trade is so high that an expansion of Akaba is the only answer.

But with the millstone of the refugees round its neck, and its consequent, very understandable, refusal to make peace with Israel until the refugee problem is settled, Jordan must remain a slave to its army—and to the desert. The camels will continue to graze on litfle but mirages, and the celebrated Glubb Pasha, the Commander-in-Chief of the Arab Legion, will continue to dash around Amman escorted by two jeep-loads of ponderously armed Legionaires, while young King Hussain amiably drives himself about in an open car. If the quarrel with Israel is settled, Jordan can begin to decide how to live without the British.

New Anti-Dumping Legislation Now Law

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's new anti-dumping legislation became law officially Wednesday night. It received royal assent in the Senate despite last-minute objections.

The measure, put into effect last Dec. 8 by order-in-council, was opposed by Senator Thomas Crerar (L—Manitoba) who said it is inconsistent with Canada's efforts to expand trade abroad. Senator W.M. Aseltine, acting opposition leader, urged the government to leave the dumping laws as they now are framed.

Following a brief but bluntly-worded debate in the upper chamber, the measure was given three readings, a procedure which usually requires at least two days. Then the bill and six other measures were given royal assent by Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, deputy governor-general.

The customs bill passed the Commons minutes before it was presented to the Senate by Senator W. D. Euler (L—Ontario), a former revenue minister and trade minister. He said that the bill would make it possible to set an evaluation for duty on imported manufactured goods equal to the average price of the goods in the country of origin during the previous six months.

In the Commons, George Hees (PC — Broadview) described the measure as having been drafted deliberately so that it would be unworkable.

He said it would take months and "an army of customs inspectors" to determine customs evaluations called for by the measure, aimed at curbing end-of-season dumping of manufactured imports at cut-rate prices.

Mr. Hees was one of several Progressive Conservative members who argued against the method of evaluation—a "weighted average" of prices in the country of export during a period up to six months prior to the date of import. The PCs urged that the customs evaluation be based on production and marketing costs.

Prime Minister St. Laurent replied that a production-cost valuation would be regarded by other countries as a "clear violation" of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, the world pact to reduce tariff barriers.

The evaluation method proposed in the bill could not be disputed by the United States government, since the U.S. administration had urged Congress to adopt the same type of measure.

The Progressive Conservative proposal did not come to a vote.

However the Commons rejected, by 126 to 14, a CCF motion that the measure expire Dec. 8, 1954. Provisions of the bill have been in effect since last Dec. 8.

Colin Cameron (CCF—Nanaimo) who moved the motion, said the bill gave the revenue minister power to set the customs evaluation. Such power should not be given without some provision for annual review.

Mr. St. Laurent, opposing the motion, said the Commons could review any legislation during consideration of departmental estimates.

Extend Benefits For Veterans

OTTAWA (CP)—Veterans Minister Lapointe Wednesday introduced in the Commons a bill providing for extension of rehabilitation benefits to some 22,000 regular force veterans who served in Korea.

The benefits are similar to those granted to Second World War veterans. They cover veterans of all three services who left for Korean service before July 27, 1953, date of the armistice.

Previously, regular force veterans in Korea had received gratuities and re-establishment credit but not such benefits as settlement under the Veterans' Land Act. The 5,000-man special force, which arrived in Korea in 1950, already was covered.

the luckiest goal ever scored!

BY GORD WALKER

GORD WALKER covers International League Baseball, N.H.L. Hockey and Big Four Football for Toronto Globe and Mail. Previously Business Manager of Toronto Baseball Club.

"It was scored at Maple Leaf Gardens, March 4, 1933, by Newmarket Redmen and it eliminated Toronto Nationals 3-2 in overtime in the fifth and deciding game of the OHA Junior semi-finals for the Memorial Cup. Newmarket's Don Willson fired a long shot that hit the wire screen behind Nationals' goal. The puck landed on top of the goal and slowly rolled forward. While the crowd roared warning, goalie Ginger Hall peered from side to side as the puck slowly toppled, struck his back, and bounded into goal. Newmarket went on from there to win the Canadian Championship".

Lack Of Fear, Afternoon Nap Things That Keep Churchill Going Strong

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—All who want to live into their 80th year should take a few tips from Winston Churchill.

He is the best known artist of living in our time. Why? It can be put into one word—Gusto.

"All babies look like me," he quipped once. And he has retained the qualities that mark all healthy children—imagination, curiosity, enthusiasm, and the desire to keep on growing up.

Churchill was born with a silver spoon in his mouth, saw it change to brass, and by his own efforts turned it into gold.

GOING AT GALLOP

American football brags about its 60-minute player, but in the tremendous battlefield of life Churchill has seen nearly 60 years of continuous action—and at 79 is still going at a gallop

Churchill has never been afraid to be greatly right—or of being greatly wrong. He has never run from death or hesitated to outface fear. He has undertaken mighty responsibilities, not as irksome duties, but as welcome adventures.

"Power, for the sake of lording it over fellow creatures or adding to personal pomp, is rightly judged base," he wrote. "But power in a national crisis, when a man believes he knows what orders should be given, is a blessing."

Churchill has never lost faith in himself, in victory or defeat. He never took his goals too lightly or himself too seriously. He has never lost his sense of humor.

"If Hitler invaded hell," he said once, "I would make at least a favorable reference to the devil in the House of Commons."

A GREAT MAN

He is an actor, a painter, an orator, a statesman, philosopher, warrior, and literary genius. He wrote fine history, and he made fine history—with both his words and his deeds

Churchill has played and worked with equal fervor all his life, and yet is a stout defender of the afternoon nap.

"The rest and the spell of sleep in the middle of the day refresh the human frame far more than a long night," he wrote. "We were not made by nature to work, or even to play, from 8 o'clock in the morning till midnight."

So if you want to live a rich, full life like Churchill's, enjoy your work as much as your play—and get that afternoon nap.

Nothing else to it. Except ability.

Man 104 Dies At Fort William

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—An Iranian-born Canadian believed to have been 103 years old, died at his home here Tuesday.

Family records show that Boba Hosanna was born in Uramia, Iran in 1850, where he operated a general store and vineyard. He went to Pennsylvania in 1905 and worked as a miner before coming to Fort William in 1906.

Mr. Hosanna returned to Iran and brought his wife and two children to Canada in 1916. He worked as a coach cleaner for the Canadian Pacific Railway until his retirement in 1941 at the age of 91.

His wife died here in 1951.

The mineral miersite was named after British mineralogist Sir Henry Alexander Miers in 1898.

Annexation Order Draft Approved

North Monaghan township council at its last meeting of the year held on Monday at the court house gave approval to the draft of an order submitted by the Ontario Municipal Board approving annexation by the city of Peterborough of the subdivision, now known as Westmount Gardens, and formerly known as the Hugh Stewart farm and the five acres purchased by the Board of Education for a school site in the same area.

J. C. N. Currelly was asked to prepare deeds of transfer on properties on both sides of road lots 7 and 8, concession 11.

John G. Flett asked council for pay for one sheep missing since the time dogs killed two ewes. Mr. Flett said he had never been able to find the sheep since the two were killed.

Bylaw 1431 was passed authorizing the issuing of debentures to pay the cost of the water main on St. Mary St. Bylaw 1432 authorized the reeve and treasurer to borrow $2,500 to meet cost of water main until debentures are issued was passed.

An account was received from the Peterborough Utilities Commission for cost of erecting the water main for $2,301.16 and $45 cost of registration and searches for 10 water services.

Following accounts were passed for payment: Roads and streets $1,085.05; printing, postage, etc., $227.50; salaries $1,490; councillors' pay $275; county rates, $14,622.36; schools $14,770.28; hydro for street lights $22.00; legal fees $63.00; deptuy returing offices, poll clerks and pooling booths $38; relief and welfare $73.27; Herman Killingbeck constable duties and weed inspector $66.00.

Lands Of Mau Mau Leaders Bill Aims At Confiscating

By A. M. FERNANDEZ

NAIROBI, Kenya — (OFNS) — have been involved in the Mau Mau (secret terrorist) movement and subsequently convicted will lose all their land if a Bill now before the colony's Legislature becomes law.

This drastic measure, called the Forfeiture of Lands Ordinance, 1953, was foreshadowed by the Governor, Eir Evelyn Baring, in October, in his speech from the Throne to the Legislative Council. If the Bill becomes law this session—and there is every indication that it will receive overwhelming support from Government officials and the European members of the Council—it will empower the Governor to make orders confiscating land, or interests in land, of persons convicted of offences punishable with death or with imprisonment for a tearm of seven years or more. The Bill will also be applicable to those who have helped further the aims of any unlawful society; while another provision is aimed at persons who are "leaders or organizers" of armed or violent resistance against the security forces. Even persons who are "at large" and who have been connected with any subversive organization will be affected.

Under a Setting-apart Order which will accompany the Forfeiture Order, confiscated land will be deemed to have been set apart for the purpose of utilizing it for a "public purpose." (In October Sir Evelyn indicated that such land would be used for clinics or shcools, or for agriculture experiment).

NO APPEAL ALLOWED

There is no appeal from the orders to any existing court in the colony. But under the provisions of the Bill the Governor will set up a tribunal, to be called the Forfeiture Appeals Tribunal, to determine matters arising out of the Orders. The tribunal will have the power to fix compensation for any innocent party.

The measure is regarded as a triumph for the European Elected Members' Organization, and for leaders of the European community who have been publicly campaigning for the confiscation of land held by convicted Mau Mau leaders. And it is likely to affect Jomo Kenyatta and the other African leaders, all former Kenya Africa Union officials, whose appeal against prison sentences imposed for being members of and managing Mau Mau is now being argued before the Supreme Court of Kenya.

It is known that Kenyatta and four other Africans have big holding in land, mainly in the African reserves. Kenyatta's holdings in the Kiambu Reserve alone are estimated at six hundred acres.

Already there has been wide approval of the proposed measures, The Kiambu African District Council has unanimously approved of the proposed mea-Hall and Nyeri districts.

The Government can, of course, count on the Europeans' support when the measure is debated in the Legislative Council next week. But it is unlikely that the six African unofficial members will support the Government: most of them hold the view that Africans convicted of Mau Mau offences have paid adequately by imprisonment; and that to deprive them of their only possession would be vindictive.

Reports From Red China Indicate Buildup For Invasion Of Burma

By A. L. McINTYRE

SINGAPORE (AP) — Reports from behind the Bamboo Curtain indicate China's Communist bosses have made plans for invasion of southeast Asia with Burma as the first target.

Observers who regularly monitor Chinese Red broadcasts say Laos, in Indo-China, and Thailand are other invasion targets after Burma. To coincide with the main Red push, Communist agents in Indonesia and the Philippines would step up campaigns to create internal disorder. No dates have been mentioned.

Communist officials in southeast Asia are said to have attended three meetings in June, August and October. The conferences decided to establish a united operations department to direct operations in southeast Asian countries.

The meetings are reported to have given special attention to Malaya, where the Red guerrilla army is fighting a losing battle against Gen. Sir Gerald Templer's British and Malayan security forces.

AGENTS TRAINED

Special Communist agents, trained in Chinese spy schools, will:

1. Collect information on U.S. moves in the Pacific and try to learn how much liaison exists between U.S. and British authorities.
2. Exploit differences between the United States and Britain on Pacific defence policies.
3. Encourage anti-British sentiment in Malaya.
4. Lure Chinese business men into supporting red China economically.
5. Encourage Chinese students in southeast Asia to return to China.

Grains Impounded By Gov't Reduce Amount On Free Market

By WILLIAM FERRIS

CHICAGO (AP) — Falling grain prices stirred a lot of political commotion in the United States this year.

In a decline which started in December, 1951, grains headed downward until August, 1953, after which a rally began. The long decline may be over or the current rally may be only a temporary rebound.

On the favorable side is the fact much grain has been impounded under the government loan. This reduces the amount available in the free market. Despite the recent rise, prices are still below the loan for wheat, corn, oats and rye.

World supplies of grain are very large. Demand for United States grains from foreign countries is slim.

The government may try to get rid of some of the grain it has acquired through defaults in its loan program, selling it in the free market, at a loss.

In this connection, the government announced Dec. 8 that it would subsidize a "limited quantity" of exports of surplus wheat at the same rate it subsidizes shipments under the International Wheat Agreement. The subsidies will range from 49 to 52 cents a bushel, depending on the port of shipment.

BENSON ON SPOT

Politically, the drop in grain prices put Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson on a hot seat, which became downright scorching after the ninth congressional district in Wisconsin, a farm area, elected a Democrat for the first time in history.

Benson must come up with a new farm program for the next session of Congress. The problem simmers down to a choice between rigid price supports, as at present or flexible ones, which would lower government support levels when surpluses become excessive.

Other political developments included agitation in Congress against imports of oats and rye from Canada.

The agriculture department recommended restriction of oats imports. Hearings were held before the tariff commission, which has submitted its recommendations to President Eisenhower. It is up to the President to proclaim restrictions.

Subsequently the U. S. government proposed and Canada accepted a limitation of Canadian exports of oats to the U. S. to 23,000,000 bushels for the period from Dec. 11, 1953 to Oct. 1, 1954.

The agriculture department said it plans to make similar recommendations with regard to Canadian rye.

APPROVED QUOTAS

And then there was a vote. In August U.S. wheat farmers approved by an overwhelming majority wheat marketing quotas on the 1954 crop. That assured government support at 90 per cent of parity. Without quotas, the support level would have dropped to 50 per cent.

It was at this period that grain futures on the Chicago board of trade scored their lows for the year, apparently on fears wheat farmers would reject quotas.

All the political commotion was stirred up by the same basic facts which had pushed grain prices down throughout 1952: a huge supply and a limited demand.

Total U.S. wheat supplies in the current marketing year were estimated by the agriculture department at about 1,750,000,000 bushels, a record. The total oats supply of about 1,500,000,000 bushels is down about 120,000,000 bushels from last year, but still large.

High for cash wheat at Chicago was $2.33 in February, low was $1.77½ in August; the oats high was 95 cents in January and the low 71½ cents in May.

Churchill To Tell Results Of Talks

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill promised the House of Commons today he would tell Thursday about the results of his talks on the exchange of atomic information with President Eisenhower at Bermuda.

Responsible British quarters, meanwhile, warmly welcomed U. S. Defence Secretary Charles Wilson's Paris statement that the U. S. administration intends to ask Congress to modify existing laws to permit a degree of sharing of atomic weapon information.

HELD—Frank Holt, 34-year-old unemployed coal miner, is being held by East Springfield, O., police in connection with the death of his three children. Police say that he swung a crowbar killing three and seriously injuring two of his children. Holt gave this reason: "God told me

SEVEN OF EIGHT CZECHS who escaped into West Germany last July in a rebuilt armored car, wave from top the vehicle at New York's International Airport on their arrival by air from Frankfurt, Germany. The group and the vehicle, which arrived earlier by boat, were brought to the U.S. by the "Crusade For Freedom" to participate in a drive for $10,000,000 for the operation of Radio Free Europe. In light trenchcoat is Vaclav Krejcirik. Others from the left, are: Joseph Pisarik, Vaclav Uhlik and his wife, Marta, with their two children, Vaclav Jr., 6, and Eva, 4, and Walter Hora. The eighth member of the group, Mrs. Leonard Cloud, 31, who had been denied permission to leave Czechoslovakia with her husband, a U.S. Army veteran, four years ago, came to the U.S. in September and is now living with her husband in Sioux City, Iowa.

Will Be Doubled In Year

Santa Claus Village Near Montreal

SANTA CLAUS VILLAGE, Que. (CP)—A group of business men have spent $135,000 to set Santa Claus up in this new community 50 miles north of Montreal.

Santa is installed in a village of eight buildings on the outskirts of the Laurentian town of Val David. He is taking Christmas orders from visiting children.

The project which will cost $250,000 when complete next year is the idea of James Melchers and a half-dozen associates.

Mr. Melchers thought that while the cold weather and distance of northern Canada might suit Santa Claus, the old gent might get more visitors if he were set up nearer to Montreal.

Four months ago Mr. Melchers with G. R. Lasalle, general administrator of Santa Claus Village, and other business men got work on the village started.

HAS EIGHT BUILDINGS

Now incorporated as Santa Claus Village, Que., it covers an area of 300,000 square feet and has eight brightly-painted buildings including a chapel, a restaurant, a home for Santa and toy shops.

Next year, the size of the village will be almost doubled and more than 20 new buildings including toy factories will be erected.

In the Laurentian hills setting, llama, reindeer, goats, lambs and bear cubs were added to the village population.

The post office will direct children's Christmas letters to Santa Claus Village which is accessible from Montreal by rail, highway or by air.

Its sponsors believe the village is the only one of its kind in Canada.

Million Dollar Fund Waits To Ransom Captives

By ROBERT JONES

LONDON (AP)—There's a million-dollar nest egg available here in Britain to ransom anybody captured by Barbary Coast pirates.

And there's a fund to build a pest house and graveyard in the heart of London—in case plague breaks out.

The Barbary Coast pirates went out of business more than 120 years ago and there hasn't been a plague outbreak in London for 200 years, but the money is still there waiting to be used—together with an estimated £200,000,000 locked up in 110,000 charities set up by tenderhearted Britons through the centuries.

At least a quarter of these charities are more than 100 years old. Approximately 3,000 of them have annual incomes of less than £20 Nobody knows how many of their purposes are outdated now.

There's even a fund in the Leicestershire village of Bitteswell dating back to the time of the Spanish Armada in 1588 which provides £25 a year to furnish an armed soldier in time of war.

The size of the bequests varies from tiny village charities of a few shillings—made even smaller by rising living costs—to million-pound trusts like the Nuffield Foundation with an income of £100,000 a year.

MAY MAKE CHANGE

Under British law if the original purpose of a trust is outdated, the courts alone have the power to make a change. Even then the money must go for a purpose as near as possible to the original.

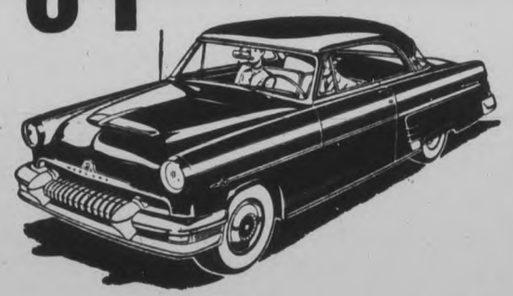
The Barbary pirate trust, for instance, has been out of date since the French drove the pirates from the Algerian coast in 1830.

The last time the trust was used for its original purpose was in 1827. The trustees got permission to devote the money to supporting hospitals until Britain's medical services were nationalized five years ago.

WHEEL TURNS

They applied then to have the income given to impoverished clergymen, but the wheel turned full circle when the court directed that a proportion of the money be given to fight slavery in parts of Africa and Arabia.

To sort out the tangle of these trusts the former Labor government set up a royal commission three years ago. It recently reported there isn't much that can be done.



THEATRE PLANS

The first plans for a national theatre in Britain were formed in 1903.

Alberta Marketing Board Gives Many Varieties Of Service

EDMONTON (CP) — A grower wants an outlet for a crop of cranberries. An inventor wants information on patent rights. A foreign industrialist wants a sample of bituminous sand.

These are a few of the varied requests that might be filled any da[y] Alberta's marketing board s[ervice] provincial government to promote natural resources.

The board's activities include:

1. Promotion of industrial enterprises for the utilization of Alberta's natural resources;

2. Assistance to industries through mass buying of raw materials;

3. Making available at low prices machinery parts and other supplies essential to farm production;

4. Assistance in the distribution of the products of Alberta farms and industries and promoting Alberta-made goods;

5. Sponsoring, managing and assisting in operating industries to utilize the province's natural resources.

The aid to farmers was started during the depression years when government implement-parts stores were opened in several communities.

DEMAND DWINDLED

As the economic situation improved, farmers were able to purchase more goods on the competitive market and the need for the stores decreased. Now the board operates only one parts store, the main warehouse and office in Edmonton.

During 1952 assistance was given to furnace manufacturers, automatic coal stokers, propane gas makers and rock wool industries. Steel, prefabricated buildings and pumps were imported for the oil industry, cement was acquired and distributed to manufacturers of cement blocks and concrete culverts. Raw wool was purchased and imported for processing in Alberta.

In addition to these major purchasing problems, the board was able to handle many individual requests. An inventor was directed to a source of titanium dioxide needed for research, a maker of propane gas bus heaters was supplied with necessary materials and radios were obtained for audio-visual education courses.

Samples from the province's huge bituminous sands deposits 280 miles northeast of Edmonton have been sent to oil companies throughout the world.

Seagull Passenger

LONDON (CP)—Porters opened the freight hold of a plane on its arrival at London airport from Rome—and a seagull fluttered out. The bird had had a free ride of 900 miles.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CVI. No. 294 THURSDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1953

Main Street Topics

FIRST MEETING

Mayor-elect Norman Graham has called a private caucus meeting of members of the 1954 city council to be held Friday at 3 p.m. in the city hall to discuss appointing chairmen of the various standing committees.

REFEREE SCHOOL

The Peterborough Basketball Referee Association will sponsor a referee school in St. Peter's gym Saturday at 2.00 p.m. Demonstration of refereeing techniques and interpretation of the rules will be given by two Toronto referees, Harold Cochrane and Keith Davidson.

CORRECTION

In the account of the utilities commission meeting in The Examiner on Wednesday, Dr. G. R. Langley was quoted as referring to a saving of one per cent in connection with the use of transite pipe in preference to cast-iron pipe. This was a misquotation. The figure referred to was 10 per cent.

TV SET WINNER

A 14-year-old student of St. Peter's school, Joan Murray of 174 Clifton St., Peterborough, was the winner of this week's Christmas Shopping Jamboree television set draw. John Madden, president of the Chamber of Commerce, made the draw of a slip obtained at Allan B. Collis department store.

CANCEL ACCOUNT

The finance committee of city council recommended cancellation of the city's account of $140 with the Peterborough Water Ski Meet committee for erecting bleachers in Inverlea park for the Ontario championship water ski meet in August. In a letter to council, the committee said they had suffered a loss of $500, which they attributed in part to the fact that the meet had to be transferred from Little Lake, which was reported polluted.

HIT BY TRAIN, UNINJURED

Cecil G. Patterson, 51, of Norwood, had a narrow escape from death or serious injury Wednesday when his half-ton pickup truck was in collision with an eastbound passenger train at the CPR crossing, Indian River. The train struck the box on the left rear of the truck, spinning it about and shifting it 49 feet into the southeast ditch. The 1951-model truck was wrecked. OPP Constable Harold Armstrong investigated.

Christmas At City Hall

Three of the finest Christmas trees that are likely to be seen in the city this year were put up at the city hall today and will be decorated with strings of lights as they were last year. A year ago, such a good job was done of putting them up that it was a question in the minds of many whether or not they might be permanently planted. One of the three is situated near the flag pole and the other two flank the main entrance.

Poll Lakefield On Sale Of Park Lots

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — When Lakefield residents go to the polls on Monday to elect a council and public school board, they will also vote on the question of whether or not the lots in the park on which cottages are now erected will be offered for sale.

This issue provided the source of major discussion when the ratepayers met for their annual meeting in the memorial hall Tuesday evening.

Reeve William Grant occupied the chair. While the meeting was small, much interest was shown.

The land in question was purchased by council in 1911, as a result of a vote, and was known as Hague's Point. Price was $3,000 and it was paid in 20 equal debentures. It was to be used as a park and still belongs to the village.

LOT SOLD

In 1933 a piece of this land having a frontage of 25 feet on D'Eyncourt St. and a depth of 100 feet was sold. In July, 1937, by motion of council, the south-east part of the east side was surveyed and subdivided into lots, each having a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 115 feet. Since then, 31 lots have been leased for $10 a year. The tenants are required to pay taxes on the buildings but not on the land.

Since there is plenty of land remaining for a suitable park and playgrounds and since the revenue at present is considered small, the sale of the lots in question would help greatly in the reduction of village taxes and park improvement, in the opinion of the present council.

Reeve Grant explained that the village had an exceptionally high tax rate, an increase of 15.1 mills over the 1952 rate, due almost entirely to increased requirements of school boards and the county and a decrease in the road subsidy. He said that the part over which the Council had control had not risen; but over some requirements they had no control. These had caused the rise in tax rate.

In order for a municipality to be in a healthy financial condition, he said, it should have a 50 per cent industrial assessment, which was far in excess of what exists. In view of this, it was imperative that the village should be willing to spend some money, if necessary, to encourage industries to locate in Lakefield.

BUILDINGS NEEDED

The questions of suitable offices for the clerk and chief of police, sheds in which village machinery could be stored, adequate accommodation for the fire department and other items needed by the village were discussed and a recommendation made to the new council to do as much as possible towards achieving these ends.

The question of a decrease in money paid for recreational purposes in the village was discussed at some length. A vote of the meeting showed that they considered the sum not excessive and so the recommendation was stricken from the suggested list.

Donald Hendren, who has just retired as hydro commissioner, to be replaced by Walter Killoran, gave a report of what had been done while he held office. He stated that Lakefield had the lowest domestic rate of any town of its size in Ontario, but did have a slightly higher industrial rate.

The insurance on property and equipment has been raised, repairs made to the office and a new truck purchased. He suggested that the matter of a pension fund for employees should be investigated. At present a couple of employees have been with the Lakefield hydro for almost 20 years.

The waterworks and some other questions were not gone into, as the meeting had already gone on for more than three hours.

Warehouse Robbed Of Cigarettes

Cartons Worth $2,500 Stolen; First Theft In 48 Years Business

By JACK OLIVER

Santa Claus missed out on 200 pounds of nuts and candies, warehouse-owner Gordon Hill missed out on a sale, but some light-fingered persons who worked a little overtime Wednesday night, made off with 150,000 cigarettes valued at $2,500.

A break-in was discovered this morning when employees at the Charlotte street warehouse went to work.

What Mr. Hill finds hard to believe is that he failed to break into his own warehouse at 8 o'clock Wednesday night. He did not know then that thieves had earlier taken off the usual lock and substituted one of their own.

Mr. Hill was trying to get 200 pounds of nuts and candies in answer to an urgent call from Santa who was officiating at the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing company's annual Christmas party.

When his own key would not fit the lock, Mr. Hill thought one of his employees might have changed the padlock. He checked and found they had not. So he went to work on the lock with a hammer, but in vain and Santa had to go without his nuts.

This morning it was discovered that he should have tried just once more. The iron bar hasp connecting the lock to the door just fell off at the first touch.

FIRST BREAK-IN

Mr. Hill told the Examiner this morning that this was the first break-in since the firm had been started in 1905. Thieves had helped themselves to 15 large cartons off shelves on the ground floor, but downstairs in the cellar the warehouse-owner showed how easily they could have used a hopper lift to get away with thousands of dollars worth of stock.

Employees busy checking stock could not say definitely that nothing else had been taken, but a preliminary survey showed only five shelves, which had been filled Wednesday, had been emptied. Nearby were other shelves packed with candies, chocolate bars and special Christmas tins of cigarettes.

Investigations at the scene of the break-in were made this morning by Sergeant of Detectives John Stevenson, who later was joined by Inspector of Detectives William A. Clarke and Detective Douglas Farthing.

5-Below Zero Freezes Lakes

Winter cracked down with a vengeance over the Kawarthas Wednesday night sending the temperature down to an official five degrees below zero.

We don't hope to compete with weather-spot White River that made the record again on Wednesday night across Canada with 15 below but we are holding our own with Ottawa that had the same temperature as Peterborough. On Vancouver Island at Victoria, people basked in 42 degrees above weather.

One would suppose that Wednesday night was a night for ice making. Chemong Lake froze over on Tuesday night and Bridgenorth children played shinny on the inch-thick ice on Wednesday evening, along the shores.

Observers at Bewdley said today that Rice Lake was pretty well skimmed over on Tuesday night, from what they could see, and more ice was made on Wednesday night.

Mrs. George Cowle of Hiawatha said this morning that the lake appeared to be frozen solid to the south shore, although the ice did break up in limited areas along shorelines on Wednesday.

Upper Stony Lake, however, between the Government Wharf and Salmon Island, or, the main body of the lake, did not freeze over on Wednesday night. Mrs. Roy Whetung said that she could see wave action from her store but that her sons reported the Burleigh shore, and between close islands, ice had formed a few days ago.

Date Set For Revision Court Include Night Hearings

December 28 has been tentatively set as the date for the first sitting of the court of revision to hear appeals against 1953 assessments. Sittings of the court are expected to last until March 24 and will probably be held a maximum of three days a week, with appeals of owners of residential property being heard in the evenings.

Neither of these dates has been definitely set, Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis emphasized, in making the announcement, but have been given only tentative approval by the members of the court, who are: J. A. Harstone, chairman, T. C. Ephgrave and F. L. Finnie.

There have been 537 appeals entered against the assessment of commercial and residential properties and 21 against the assessment of industrial properties. Monday was the final day for filing appeals.

175 ERRORS

Of the 537 commercial and residential appeals, there are 175 on which the assessment department made errors and which he will recommend to be corrected, Mr. Davis stated. Another 70 have to do with changes in ownership, tenancy or the question of whether the property should be assessed for public or separate school support, but are not appeals against the assessed value.

The other 271 residential and commercial assessments which have been appealed will be de-

Cash Registers Ring Out, Weather Helps

With the arrival of wintry weather, Peterborough merchants' tills have been ringing like Santa's sleigh bells. One merchant states that all the advertising and decorating in the world doesn't compare in effect with a few inches of snow.

The sudden dropping of temperature which followed the snow hasn't been so conductive to heavy shopping. Early today sales were comparatively slow, but as the bright sunlight removed the chill, the streets and stores began to swarm.

The demand for snow tires was exceptional. One retailer sold out his stock of snow and mud tires over a two day period and has another order in. The stock sold would normally last most of the winter season.

Shoe stores, that all during November were making the most of their sales in leather footwear, are now supplying galoshes, rubbers and snow boots to protect the shoes. The stock of winter footwear, which was beginning to be looked upon rather sadly by the owners, is quickly diminishing and a few additional orders have already been sent to wholesalers.

The heavy wave of purchasing is general throughout the city. Hardware and clothing stores have noticed an increase, although their sales were comparable with other years, before the weather break. All the merchants agree that shoppers have taken on the Christmas spirit since the snow arrived.

To accommodate shoppers who for some reason might not be able to get downtown during the day, stores will remain open until 9:00 p.m., on Friday and Saturday of this week and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. They will be open all day Wednesday next week, closing Thursday evening at 6:00 p.m. and not opening again until the following Monday.

Mining Rights Surface Claims Clash In Court

TORONTO (CP)—In an unusual case before the Ontario mining court, the Marmoraton Mining Co. Ltd. and its parent company, Bethlehem Mines Corp., are seeking permission to dump tailings from an iron development at Marmora on lands to which Marmoraton already holds surface rights.

However, the application is being opposed by the Mineral Exploration Company which holds mineral rights to the same 105-acre plot in Hastings county. This company is arguing, in the case which has been before Judge Thomas E. Godson since early November, that its right to dig for and mine materials below the surface will be damaged by the dumping of tailings.

Evidence and argument in the case are expected to be concluded next week.

It is unusual for a company to apply for the right to dump tailings—refuse from a mill—on property to which it holds surface rights. Normally a company with underground rights seeks an easement to dump tailings on the surface above it to which another firm holds the rights.

The Ontario Mining Act provides for compensation if such an easement is granted.

MANY SMOKES WERE MISSING from the wholesale warehouse of John G. Hill, Charlotte and Bethune Sts. Owner Gordon Hill, at phone above, found this morning that thieves had entered his premises early Wednesday evening and made off with about $2,500 worth of cigarettes. Warehouseman Al Barnes, below Mr. Hill, totals up the actual loss from a physical inventory sheet.
